CALIFORNIA MUST SUPPLY FOOD.

SNOW AND FROST WIPES OUT THIRTY MILLIONS.

Fruit and Vegetable Belts of Middle West Are Ruined for Best of Season.

Worst Storm in Generation Sweeps Ten States; from Michigan and Wisconsin to Kentucky—Price of Fresh Foodstuffs Leaps Automatically.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] California and other fruit-producing States will be called upon this year to supply all of the Middle Western States in addition to the regular business, for no fruit, with the possible exception of strawberries and a few late grapes, will be grown in six or eight States. Of these, Michigan and Missouri have heretofore been counted upon for very large supplies, but they will be forced to buy everything this season.

Prematurely budding crops of the Middle West have been swept away in the most disastrous and far-reaching storm experienced in a generation. The disturbance has wrought more than $30,000,000 damages to fruits and vegetables and has started an upward shoot in the price of fresh foodstuffs that will be felt during the entire season.

The Michigan fruit belt—the backbone of the fruit district—is described as almost wholly wiped out for the season, while the freezing temperature in Illinois and Iowa, not only has killed buds, flowers and fruits, but threatens to ruin oats.

DAMAGED BEYOND HOPE.

In and about Chicago truck gardeners have seen all hopes of early vegetables blasted in a single night. Vegetables and flowers that had promised huge profits because of the early spring have been damaged beyond hope. All that can be done is to replant, where this is possible, making the season several weeks behind rather than ahead.

But in the end it will be the housekeeper who will feel the effect of the storm. The expected early vegetables and low prices, promised because of the lamb-like March, have given place to prom[illegible] such high prices for green foo[illegible] as have not obtained [illegible] indication of this upward [illegible]ces was found today in South Water street even before the extent of the damage was known, when rhubarb and other fresh stuffs jumped from 10 to 25 per cent. in the wholesale prices.

GREATEST LOSS.

South Water street men even then voiced their worst fears for the fruit and vegetable supply. While opinions among them differed, all agreed upon one point, that the Middle West would pocket the greatest loss it has ever experienced because of the storm and that high prices would automatically begin at once.

If anything remained to make the trouble of the farmers and growers complete, it was contained in the weather forecast of tonight. Continued snow flurries and cold are promised for Sunday and Monday, with the northwest winds that carried the freezing blast to the States that suffered most today.

The story of the storm is told best in the Weather Bureau reports that showed freezing temperature this evening in practically all of the points that have been touched by the storm. In the Northwest, however, a slight hint of warmer weather was contained in the upward movement of the mercury.

SOME TEMPERATURES.

In the central and southern districts of Illinois the temperature fell to a fraction below 25 degrees this morning, with the result that fruit growers announced that they had little hope of any [illegible] at all this season.

Growers said they would have to see the effect [illegible] a day or so of sunshine on the trees and bushes, but that to all appearances the signs indicated total destruction. Garden products which were up—radishes, lettuce and onions—for the most part were totally destroyed.

SNOW FALLS ALL DAY.

Snow fell all day, part of the time in little short of a blizzard. It melted rapidly but it is estimated at least two inches fell. Dirtcor William Burns of the United States weather bureau in Springfield, stated that reports of cold were general from stations in Illinois, except in the extreme southern part.

The hundreds of acres of apple, peach, pear, cherry and plum orchards in Michigan were laden with millions of fruit producing buds, or in full bloom, when the northwest gale and blizzard struck them. Every bud that was touched has turned black and has fallen from the trees.

From the present conservative reports from the various interior points in Michigan, the entire crop will be a total loss. Possibly thirty per cent. of the grapes, representing a crop of over 9,000,000 baskets last year, will produce fruit from a second bud.

Unconfirmed reports indicate that all the small vine fruits, except the late varieties of strawberries, not in bloom, is ruined. The uninjured percentage of the strawberry crop is estimated at forty per cent. of the total.

APPLES TOTAL LOSS.

South Water street merchants, whose fortunes are tied up in the district that may not produce a single bushel of fruit this season, kept in hourly communication with the orchard men. The continued cold, the predictions for more snow for tomorrow and the depressing reports received from their correspondents failed to allay their fears.

The merchants declared their confidential reports showed that Illinois's apple crop would be a total loss. Moreover, the spinach, lettuce, pieplant and asparagus crops have suffered a "setback" that will keep them off the market until late in the fall.

O. K. Earl of Earl Bros., No. 157 South Water street, said that he had been telephoning all day by long distance to fruit growers in Michigan and Wisconsin. In one place in the latter State, he said, the snow was one foot deep.

"At Benton Harbor," he said, "the nurserymen tell me that the greatest damage to fruit in that locality has been to the pear crop."

WITHOUT PRECEDENT.

Reports from every part of Indiana, with the possible exception of the extreme southern limits, showed weather conditions without a precedent in the memory of residents of the State. For three days the weather has been cold and blustry, with frequent snow flurries. In some districts the freezing temperature has ruined every shrub and plant, including leaves on the trees.

Fruit growers in Indiana have resorted to burning brush in their orchards, but the cold has been so continuous that the atmosphere around the trees could not be kept moderated, and the watchers have become discouraged.

Snow flurries succeeded each other almost hourly in the State today, and they were accompanied by biting winds and a temperature close to freezing. In Northern Indiana the damage is greater than in any other section, but it has been general over the entire State.

SNOWS HARD IN KENTUCKY.

Kentucky is also in the grip of the mid-winter blizzard and the prospects are that the fruit and early crops will be almost a complete loss there. A telegram received from Franklin, on the Southern border of the State, says that it is snowing heavily there; a Henderson dispatch reports the heaviest snow fall in six years, and there is little variation in the news that comes from other sections.

Long distance messages from the celebrated commercial fruit zones of Hardin and Tromble counties are to the effect that grave fears are entertained that this season's crop will be a complete loss.

Whatever crop damage has been sustained in Nebraska is due more to drought and high winds than to recent low temperature, according to Professor Pugsley of the University of Nebraska experimental farm.

Frost of the last two nights, however, practically has ruined the fruit crop and early gardens, according to L. M. Russell of the State Board of Horticulture.

STORM DAMAGE IN TEN STATES.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

CHICAGO, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Summary of appalling loss to Middle Western States by yesterday's and today's blizzard and frost:

Illinois—Greatest damage was caused by the blizzard that covered the entire State. Early vegetables on the truck gardens in the northern districts and berry patches, where buds had reached an advanced stage, are reported as total losses. Damage—$6,000,000.

Iowa—Storms in Iowa have continued with greater or less vigor for nearly a week, but the frigid atmosphere and snows of the last two days have done the greatest damage. Not only fruits and vegetables, but even the oat crop is threatened. Damage—$10,000,000.

Michigan—Fruit belt almost entirely gone for the season. All that remains, according to expert growers, is the grape crop, which has been damaged to a great extent. Damage—$4,000,000.

Indiana—Apple orchards and truck gardens that supply Chicago, greatest sufferers. Damage confined to the northern and central districts—$2,000,000.

Wisconsin—Estimated that 50 per cent. of the fruit crop and all of the early vegetable and green stuffs intended for the Chicago market have been killed. Damage—$2,000,000.

Kansas—Snow and low temperatures have killed the buds, and in many instances even the leaves on the trees. The corn crop, however, is safe. Damage—$1,000,000.

Missouri—Clouds and favorable conditions saved much of the fruit Friday night, but the clear weather and continued cold of last night completed the damage. Damage—$2,000,000.

Nebraska—Small gardeners and truck farmers were the heaviest losers in the storm that, it is believed now, has not damaged the early wheat. Damage—$1,500,000.

Ohio—Early fruit, particularly watermelon and other vines, have been killed by the snows and freezing weather. Grain has not been hurt. Damage—$500,000.

Kentucky—All the fruits and vegetables, as well as budding plants and flowers, have been damaged by the cold weather and flurries of snow, largely because of the fact that they had reached an abnormally early development. Damage—$1,500,000.

SIX DIE IN HOTEL FIRE.

Bodies of Two Men Recovered and Firemen Are Searching for Four Supposed to Have Perished.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CINCINNATI, April 23.—Fire which broke out in the Thomas Hotel, at Sixth and Walnut streets, at 11 o'clock tonight, practically destroyed that structure and threatened adjacent property, including two theaters. Several guests were taken from the hotel by firemen on ladders, and at first it was believed all escaped, but later two bodies were recovered, and it is now believed four more at least are in the ruins of the hotel.

The bodies of two men were found in the ruined upper story. Both were fully dressed and probably had been suffocated. They have not been identified.

The firemen are working to extricate the bodies of two women guests of the hotel, and the bodies of two missing employés are supposed to be in the cellar.

The fire destroyed the hotel, a six-story building. For more than an hour, adjacent property, including two theaters, was in imminent peril.

RECORD FRUIT YIELD SURE.

Washington and Idaho Will Send Out Largest Shipments of History. Everybody Busy.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA (Wash.) April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] From every part of Washington and Idaho comes news that present prospects indicate a record yield of peaches, apples, pears, apricots and small fruits and berries.

The Northern Pacific will ship daily a trainload of fruit in refrigerator cars from the Yakima Valley, begining in July. Contracts have been received by Puget Sound, Gray's Harbor and Willapa Harbor box and package factories for an aggregate of 200,000,000 boxes and other packages, to be furnished during the next few days.

At Raymond the W. W. Wood Company has ordered machinery and is planning to build another veneer plant to handle its increasing business. The present plant has received a large order for baskets, covering a contract for five years, during which time 100,000,000 baskets are to be delivered, at the rate of 20,000,000 per year. The new plant will represent a capital of $30,000 and employ over fifty people.

WAR STILL POSSIBILITY.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Active military preparations or a conflict with Ecuador are systematically going forward at Lima, Peru, according to official dispatches to the State Department received today, notwithstanding the fact that peace negotiations between the two republics are in progress. These negotiations, however, it is said, have had up to this time no satisfactory results so far as Peru is concerned.

GREAT DAM IS BURNING.

Couriers Warning Lowland Residents to Flee to Hills for Lives.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

DULUTH (Minn.) April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The great Weyerhauser dam at Brainerd is burning and if it goes out all the lowlands for fifty miles will be inundated. The city water plant was destroyed by incendiary fire early in the evening. Couriers are warning residents all through the valley to flee to the hills. The giant dam at Little Falls, thirty miles below Brainerd, will go out if the Weyerhauser dam breaks.

HEAD AND TAIL.

SKY HOBO IS CAUGHT BY LICK ASTRONOMER.

Wonderful Photograph Taken at Observatory Shows Halley's Comet in All Its Glory—Length of Tail Undetermined.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A photograph of the head and inner part of the tail of Halley's Comet, in which the length of so much of the tail as was recorded was 1,100,000 miles, has been taken at the Lick Observatory by Astronomer Curtis. The photograph was made with the Crossley reflector. The plate was exposed for thirty-five minutes.

The extreme diameter of the head, as shown in the photograph, is 196,000 miles. Yesterday morning a photograph, showing a tail length of nearly three degrees, corresponding to a length in space of more than 7,000,000 miles, was taken.

The following interesting, and, at the present time, very valuable communication from Director William Wallace Campbell of the Lick Observatory, together with the fine photograph of Halley's comet, which we reproduce, has been kindly furnished to The Times for publication. It was the first photograph taken by the observatory staff after the comet passed perihelion on the 19th of April, and gives a very effective idea of the immense body, 196,000 miles in diameter, which is now approaching the earth's orbit, and which will pass between the earth and the sun on the 18th of May.

EXPLANATORY.

LICK OBSERVATORY, UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, MT. HAMILTON, April 21.—The accompanying photograph of the head and inner part of the tail of Halley's comet was made on the morning of April 20, 1910, by Astronomer Curtis, with the Crossley reflector of the Lick Observatory. The plate was exposed for thirty-five minutes. The extreme diameter of the head, as shown on this photograph, is 196,000 miles, and the length of the tail recorded on this particular photograph is 1,100,000 miles.

A photograph taken on the morning of the 21st, showing the tail on a smaller scale, recorded a total length of nearly 3 deg., corresponding to a length in space of more than 7,000,000 miles. It must be remembered that these photographs were made, in part, when the comet was seen in projection on the illuminated morning sky.

DELIGTHS THE [illegible]

ROOSEVELT GUEST OF INTELLECTUAL PARIS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PARIS, April 23.—To use Col. Roosevelt's own words, today marked the crowning of his career as a man of letters. From noon until midnight he was the guest of intellecutal Paris, participating as a member at a session of the French Academy, delivering a lecture at the Sorbonne, which, as he said, was the foremost seat of learning in Europe before America was discovered, and remaining as the guest of the faculty for dinner and the grand reception given by the university in his honor.

Col. Roosevelt's reception at the institute and that at the Sorbonne were equally impressive, but in a different way. At the former he was introduced merely as a member, and he took a seat among his distinguished confereres, most of whom have grown old in the service of science.

After listening to the words of M. Boutroux, the president of the Academy of Moral and Political Sciences, who spoke eloquently of American ideals and character, of which he said, Theodore Roosevelt was the best exponent, the former President replied in French, his utterances arousing his venerable colleagues to unwonted applause.

ELICITS STORM OF CHEERS.

At the Sorbonne, no attempt was made to restrain the demonstrations. The facade bristled with American and French flags and fully 25,000 persons packed the streets and acclaimed Col. Roosevelt on his arrival. Within the building enthusiasm was unbounded, the vast crowd in the ampitheater interrupting again and again with storms of applause as the speaker defined the duties of individual citizenship in a republic, scorning the sluggard, cynic and idle rich, and preaching the gospel of work, character and the strenuous life.

Several times he interjected observations in French and after he had defined his attitude on the subject of hu[illegible]ts and property rights, he re[illegible] his in French, saying that it [illegible]ed the crux of what he had [illegible] he desired every one to un[illegible] him.

[illegible]ords in this connection were: [illegible]sition as regards the moneyed [illegible] can be put into few words. [illegible] civilized society property must be carefully safeguarded. [illegible]lly and in the great majority [illegible] human rights and property [illegible]re fundamental and in the long [illegible]ical. But when it clearly [illegible] there is a real conflict between them, human rights must have the upper hand, for property belongs to man and not man to property."

REPUBLICS STILL ON TRIAL.

He made his auditors clearly realize that he considered republican institutions still on trial, both in America and France.

The distinguished personages occupying seats on the Estrade, who included, besides the deans of the various faculties of the universities, Premier Briand and his entire Cabinet, and such men as Leon Bourgeois, former Premier; Anatole Leroy Beaucaul, director of the Institute of France; Jules Poincaire, Jules Claretl, Gabriel Hanotaux, Marquis de Seguer, the historian, and Paul Deschanel, were evidently quite as much impressed as the students and other auditors in front, joining heartily in the applause, especially when Mr. Roosevelt spoke against race suicide and the necessity for a nation to perpetuate itself as one of its principal duties.

Following the lecture, Vice-Rector Liard, in behalf of the university, presented Mr. Roosevelt with a bust of Jefferson, and two vases made at Sevres. A curious mistake had been made in the bust. A bust of Lincoln had been ordered from the government factory at Sevres, but in some SPEAKS IN THE SORBONNE.

ROOSEVELT'S IDEAL CITIZEN WORKS, FIGHTS AND MULTIPLIES.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PARIS, April 23.—Theodore Roosevelt, former President of the United States, delivered his eagerly-awaited lecture on "Citizenship in a Republic" in the Sorbonne this afternoon. His audience was composed of all of the members of the French Cabinet, students selected from the University of Paris, and many distinguished guests, by whom the occasion was regarded as the most important feature of the distinguished American's visit to France.

Mr. Roosevelt received a remarkable ovation in the Sorbonne. Every bit of room in the big amphitheater was occupied and the lecturer was repeatedly and enthusiastically applauded.

Outside the building fully 25,000 people acclaimed the former President as he arrived, and again when he took his departure.

At 3 o'clock he delivered his lecture in the grand amphitheater, where he was most cordially received. His remarks were followed with intense interest. He said, in part:

COL. ROOSEVELT'S ADDRESS.

"With you here, and with us in my own home, in the long run, success or failure will be conditioned upon the way in which the average man, the average woman, does his or her duty first in the ordinary, every-day affairs of life, and next in those great occasional crises which call for the heroic virtues. The average citizen must be a good citizen if our republics are to succeed. The stream will not permanently rise higher than the main source; and the main source of national power and national greatness is found in the average citizenship of the nation. Therefore it behooves us to do our best to see that the standard of the average citizen is kept high; and the average cannot be kept high unless the standard of the leaders is very much higher.

"It is well if a large proportion of the leaders in any republic, in any democracy, are, as a matter of course, drawn from the classes represented in this audience today; but only provided that those classes possess the gifts of sympathy with plain people and of devotion to great ideals. You and those like you have received special advantages; you have all of you had the opportunity for mental training; many of you have had leisure; most of you have had a chance for the enjoyment of life far greater than comes to the majority of your fellows. To you and your kind much has been given, and from you much should be expected.

CREDIT BELONGS TO DOER.

"It is not the critic who counts; not the man who points out how the strong man stumbles, or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs, and comes short again and again, because there is no effort without error and shortcoming; but who does actually strive to do the deeds; who knows the great enthusiasm, the great devotions; who spends himself in a worthy cause; who at the best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement, and who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory nor defeat. Shame on the man of cultivated taste who permits refinement to develop in a fastidiousness that unfits him for doing the rough work of a work-a-day world. Among the free peoples who govern themselves there is but a small field of usefulness open for the men of cloistered life who shrink from contact with their fellows. Still less room is there for those who deride or slight what is done by those who actually bear the brunt of the day; nor yet for those others who always profess that they would like to take action, if only the conditions of life were not what they actually are.

"I pay all homage to intellect, and to elaborate and specialized training of the intellect, and yet I know I shall have the assent of all of you present when I add that more important still are the commonplace, every-day qualities and virtues.

WORK, FIGHT AND MULTIPLY.

"Such ordinary, every-day qualities include the will and the power to work, to fight at need, and to have plenty of healthy children. There are a few people in every country so born that they can lead lives of leisure. These fill a useful function if they make it evident that leisure does not mean idleness. But the average must earn his own livelihood. should be trained to do so, and he uld be trained to feel that he occu a contemptible position if he d ot do so; that he is not an objec nvy if he is idle, at whichever social scale he stands, bu object of contempt, an object of de

"In the next place, the man should be both a strong an ave man; that is, he should b to fight, he should be able to his country as a soldier if the n rises. There are well-meaning ph hers who declaim against the un ous-ness of war. They are righ if they lay all their emphasis the unrighteousness. War is a ful thing, and unjust war is me against humanity. But it i a crime because it is unjust, be-cause it is war. The choice er be in favor of righteousness, is whether the alternative be r whether the alternative be w e question must not be merely, to be peace or war? The n must be, Is the right to preva the great laws of righteousne more to be fulfilled? And the from a strong and virile peopl be, 'Yes,' whatever the cost.

CHILDREN CHIEF BLESSINGS.

"Finally, even more important than ability to work, even more important than ability to fight at need, is it to remember that the chief of blessings for any nation is that it shall leave its seed to inherit the land. It was the crown of blessings in Biblical times; and it is the crown of blessings now. The greatest of all curses is the curse of sterility, and the severest of all condemnations should be that visited upon wilful sterility. The first essential in any civilization is that the man and the woman shall be father and mother of healthy children, so that the race shall increase and not decrease. If this is not so, if through no fault of the society there is failure to increase, it is a great misfortune. If the failure is due to deliberate and wilful fault, then it is not merely a misfortune, it is one of those crimes of ease and self-indulgence, of shrinking from pain and effort and risk, which in the long run Nature punishes more heavily than any other. If we, of the great republics; if we, the free people who claim to have emancipated ourselves from the thraldom of wrong and error, bring down on our heads the curse that comes upon the wilfully barren, then it will be an idle waste of breath to prattle of our achievements, to boast of all that we have done. No refinement of life, no delicacy of taste, no material progress, no sordid heaping up of riches, no sensuous development of art and literature, can in any way compensate for the loss of the great fundamental virtues, and of these great fundamental virtues, the greatest is the race's power to perpetuate the race.

"In short, the good citizen in a republic must realize that he ought to possess two sets of qualities, and that neither avails without the other. He must have those qualities which make for efficiency and he must also have those qualities which direct the efficiency into channels for the public good. He is useless if he is inefficient. There is nothing to be done with that type of citizen of whom all that can be said is that he is harmless. Virtue which is dependent upon a sluggish circulation is not impressive. There is little place in active life for the timid good man. The man who is saved by weakness from robust wickedness is likewise rendered immune from the robuster virtues. The good citizen in a republic must first of all be able to hold his own. He is no good citizen unless he has the ability which will make him work hard and which at need will make him fight hard. The good citizen is not a good citizen unless he is an efficient citizen.

"My position as regards the moneyed interests can be put in a few words. In every civilized society property rights must be carefully safeguarded. Ordinarily and in the great majority of cases, human rights and property rights are fundamentally, and in the long run, identical; but when it clearly appears that there is a real conflict between them, human rights must have the upper hand; property belongs to man and not man to property.

"There are plenty of men calling themselves socialists, with whom, up to a time point, it is quite possible to work. If the next step is one which both we and they wish to take, why, of course, take it, without any regard to the fact that our views as to the tenth step may differ. But, on the other hand, keep clearly in mind that, though it has been worth while to take one step, this does not in the least mean that it may not be highly disadvantageous to take the next.

"The good citizen will demand liberty for himself, and as a matter of pride he will see to it that others receive the liberty which he thus claims as his own. Probably the best test of true love of liberty in any country is the way in which minorities are treated in that country. Not only should there be complete liberty in matters of religion and opinion, but complete liberty for each man to lead his life as he desires, provided only that in so doing he does not wrong his neighbor."

GIVEN BUST OF JEFFERSON.

Following the lecture, Vice-Rector Liard, on behalf of the University, presented Mr. Roosevelt with a bust of Jefferson and two vases made at the celebrated government porcelain factory at Sevres.

Mr. Roosevelt spent today in the old Latin quarter across the Seine, which for centuries has been one of the intellectual centers of the world. At 1 o'clock this afternoon, in his capacity as a foreign member of the French Institute, he attended the regular session of the Academy of Moral and Political Sciences in the conference hall of the old Mazarin palace, which is now the home of the institute. This room was selected instead of the smaller room, in which the Forty Immortals met, in order to permit the public to enter, and because it is the usual meeting place of three academies—the Academy of Fine Arts, the Academy of Inscriptions and Literature, and the Academy of Moral and Political Sciences.

Although Mr. Roosevelt is entitled to wear the green brocaded uniform of an academician, he appeared today in his familiar frock coat dress.

CONTESTS JUDGE'S CLAIMS.

Government Sues to Recover Lands Entered by Federal Jurist—Non-Mineral, Alleged.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TACOMA (Wash.) April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Judge Edward Whitson, of the Federal Court for the eastern district of Washington, is one of the claimants to coal claims in the Cowlitz Pass, Cascade mountains, against whom the government has brought suit to recover the lands in question, based on a report from a Federal geologist that the lands are not valuable for coal.

Final receipts have been issued to the claimants and they were awaiting patents when the government contested the claims. Judge Whitson takes the stand that the government has no jurisdiction, because he has complied with all conditions, made full payment and received final receipt. Other claimants make a general denial of the government's charges that the lands are not valuable for coal.

Judge Whitson and other of the claimants filed on these coal claims years ago, before the former was appointed to the bench by President McKinley. The existence of coal on the Cowlitz Pass has been known for half a century. The surveys of the North Coast Railroad pass through this coal field.

WEZLER CONFESSES.

Extradited Man Breaks Down and Tells How and Where He Killed His Mother-in-Law.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

TACOMA, April 23.—Completely unnerved and weeping hysterically, Charles J. Wezler, extradited from San Francisco Friday, in connection with the murder of Mrs. Frederick A. Schulz at Gig Harbor, April 4, made a lengthy signed confession this evening.

Constant brooding over the loss of his two children, who were taken away from him a year ago, when his wife obtained a divorce in Seattle, is given by Wezler as the primary cause of the murder. In a 1500-word statement he blames Mrs. Schulz, his mother-in-law, for having helped keep his children from him.

Wezler lured Mrs. Schulz to Gig Harbor with a decoy letter, in order that he might make an appeal for his children. He says Mrs. Schulz refused to make any arrangements and demanded $2000 alimony for her daughter. When she refused decisively to argue with him, Wezler says he lost all control of himself, and shot her down with a revolver.

AN UNPARDONABLE CRIME.

Abbot Janssens's Call on Roosevelt Said to Be Reason of Resignation. Discharge Threatened.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

BRUSSELS, April 23.—The circumstances surrounding the retirement of Abbot Lawrence Janssens from the post of Secretary of the Congregation of Religious Affairs are given a somewhat different color in reports received here where much interest has been excited because of the fact that the abbot is a Belgian.

According to these reports, the secretary did not willingly resign his office until he was summoned by Cardinal Merry del Val and threatened with dismissal if he did not resign at once. The abbot's offense is said to have been found in the call which he made on Mr. Roosevelt following the latter's decision not to visit the Pope.

STILL FARTHER IN THE LEAD.

Another lap gained in the month of March!

Los Angeles held her own, yes, and increased her lead over the rest of the world.

Not only did the volume of advertising in The Times exceed that printed by any other newspaper in the country; the gain of The Times for March, 1910, over March, 1909, was greater than that registered by most other newspapers of the country.

The following authentic figures tell the story. The first table shows the number of columns of advertising printed in the foremost publications of the United States in March last, only the papers making the largest record in each city being named:

The Times' unbroken record of success goes on and on and on, week after week, month after month, and year after year—yes, on, in the face of the continued shrieks of the allied agitators and the persistent lies and curses of hypocrites and fake reformers.

Some of the people are vicious, and some of the people are fooled some of the time, but most of the people are sane, sensible and practical all of the time. See?

way one of Jefferson had been made. M. Jusserand, the French Ambassador, has arranged to have the original order executed.

In replying to M. Boutroux before the Academy of Moral and Political Sciences, Mr. Roosevelt spoke in French. He said that he would not dare to do so if he were not among confreres, for he was certain of their indulgence.

CROWNS CAREER OF LETTERS.

"I cannot express how much I have been touched by the honor you have paid me," he said. "It is the crowning of the career of a man of letters."

M. Boutroux, he said, had defined his moral conception of life better than he could himself and he continued:

"I have always tried to translate into action the moral principles which must inspire the life of men and nations. There can be no economic civilization without morality. Genius is not essential, but only courage honesty, sincerity and common sense. Men of genius without these qualities are a curse to a nation. They do more harm than good."

Col. Roosevelt told of how he had received the news of his election to the academy while hunting white rhinos at the Equator.

"I was living among naked savages," he said, "hunting for an animal which was the survivor of the long-haired rhinoceros that existed here in France when France was inhabited by naked savages."

He had received the first news in letters which came simultaneously from two members of the academy, one in Mexico and the other in Brazil.

"Mr. President and dear colleagues," he concluded, "I thank you once more from the bottom of my heart."

Col. and Mrs. Roosevelt were entertained at dinner tonight by Vice-Rector Liard, the guests also including Ambassador and Mrs. Bacon, Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, Premier Briand, M. Doumerque, Minister of Education, and the deans of the faculties.

STUDENT SPLIT REACHES CRISIS.

EDITOR OF "SEQUOIA" THROWN INTO THE LAKE.

News of Probable Suspensions of Harry Horton and "Babe" Crawford Revives Factional Warfare at Stanford—More Suspensions Expected and Serious Canditions May Result.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The storm that has been brewing between two factions in the student body for three months broke shortly after midnight this morning, when a hundred of more men, led by several prominent athletes, seized Earle M. Leaf, 1910, editor of "The Sequoia," and threw him into Lake Lagunita.

Leaf was attired in evening clothes and was left to get out of the cold water as best he could. One of Leaf's friends drew a gun on the crowd, but when accused of cowardice, dropped it and offered to fight anybody in the crowd. A "husky" stepped forth and knocked him out.

The immediate cause of the uprising was the announcement made last night that Harry Horton and "Babe" Crawford, Stanford's greatest athletes of the present generation, would be suspended Monday. In "The Sequoia" R. J. Miller, 1911, of Hanford, has been attacking alleged evils in the management of student affairs and in one article stated that Horton and Crawford had attended a "beer bust" in the men's dormitory.

The Student Affairs Committee investigated the matter and found this statement to be true, withtheresult that it decided to suspend the two men for the remainder of this semester. The suspension was delayed until Monday, as Horton is president of the Interscolastic Association, which conducted the annual invitation meet today.

A. B. Clark, chairman of the Student Affairs Committee, rushed to the scene of the disturbance this morning and the matter is now being considered by the university authorities. That several of the ringleaders of the uprising, at least, will be suspended from the university, is very likely.

The upheaval, while it probably will not reach the proportions of the crisis of 1908, is very serious. A split in the student body that will require a long time to be healed is imminent.

Leaf was waylaid while returning from escorting a young woman home from a dance. The attack was premeditated and well planned. A photograher was on hand to snap shot the proceedings. The crowd, after roughly handling Leaf, started after Miller, but some of the leading men in Encina Hall held the crowd at bay and refused to allow it to go to Miller's room.

The supporters of Horton and Crawford are bitter toward Leaf and Miller, who are also backed by a large number of students. The trouble apparently is not yet over and some of the students fear that if the Student Affairs Committee suspends any of the men who were in the uprising last night, further clashes will occur.

The trouble was started by an article in "The Sequoia," by Miller charging that a secret society named "Scaraboea" was dominating student politics. Counter charges and more charges, constantly growing more bitter and personal, followed, occupying much space in the university publications. "Bugs" and "anti-bugs" were the names applied to the opposing factions, and the students, lining up on one side or the other, created a bad situation.

During the two weeks that preceded the intercollegiate track meet, it seemed as if interest in the matter was dying out, and at the track rally the best of feeling prevailed, but the that Horton and Crawford were to be suspended, revived the ill-feeling and brought things to a head.

Horton and Crawford stand preeminent among Stanford's athletes now attending the university. Horton was a 'varsity tackle in his freshman year, and won fame on the track from the start. He took many points in the hurdle events and shot-put and he was captain of the track team in 1909. Last fall he re-appeared on the football field and played front rank on the 'varsity. He is a member of many societies.

Crawford is a four-star 'varsity football man, captaining the team in 1908. He holds the Stanford record for the shot-put and hammer throw, and for several years has been good for ten points in all intercollegiate meets. He won ten points in the Western Conference meet last year. Both men were candidates for graduation this year.

POISON CASE IS MYSTERY.

Stockton Authorities Have Evidence That Murder of Woman Was Previously Attempted.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STOCKTON, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The latest investigation into the death of Mrs. Katherine Caligari, who died suddenly on the 4th inst., under most peculiar conditions, has resulted in the officials being more at sea than at any time since they took charge of the body. The State Chemist's report showed strychnine in the stomach and county officials went to the home and questioned the relatives and neighbors, but it was impossible to bring out anything on the case until today, when a new lead was secured.

The District Attorney's office was informed that about a month ago an attempt was made to murder her. A bullet was fired into her bedroom just about the time she had retired and the leaden missle struck in the woodwork near the door casing. It is believed the would-be murderer aimed at Mrs. Caligari, but proved a bad marksman.

Though the officers have made an extensive investigation, they say that they cannot in any way connect any one with the poisoning of the woman and the case still remains a mystery.

STOLE FIRST IN CHURCH.

Lad Ringleader of Daring Sacramento Burglar Band Was Treasurer of Sunday School.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Arthur Podd, ringleader of the three young thugs, who have confessed to half a dozen daring robberies which have terrorized Sacramento, was treasurer of the Trinity Episcopal Church Sunday-school and until recently was a leader in church work among the younger set.

It was in church that Podd first became a thief, according to information given to the police today. Several weeks ago he stole a pair of gloves from a young woman kneeling at prayer. Again a feather boa was missing and the theft was charged up to Podd, who comes from an old-time, respectable family and is the son of a former employé of the State printing office.

Podd was recognized as the moving spirit in all church picnics and entertainments.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SACRAMENTO, April 23.—Gov. Gillett will grant reprieves of six months each, on Monday to Charles Carson and Francisco Quijada, convicts at Folsom, under death sentence for attempting a prison break a few years ago. Carson was to hang on May 6, while Quijada was given until May 13 to live. The new date will be October 7. The reprieve is made necessary on account of the appeal pending before the United States Supreme Court in the case of J. W. Finley, jointly charged.

FREEDOM FOR MAY YOHE.

DIVORCE EXPECTED SOON.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OREGON CITY (Or.) April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It is expected that Judge Campbell, in a few days, will hand down a decree freeing May Yohe from the marital ties that bind her to Putnam Bradlee Strong, son of the late Mayor Strong of New York. Some weeks ago the ex-actress, who says she is about to return to the stage, filed suit for divorce on the grounds of desertion. The suit was filed in Oregon City, twelve miles from here.

"That was the most decent charge I could bring," said May Yohe, "and I don't want publicity. I've had enough of that in my day."

This morning an order of default was entered in the suit, which was brought by the former Lady Frances Hope under the name of Mary Augusta Strong. Strong filed a demurrer to the complaint, which was overruled, but, aside from this, he made no effort to contest the suit.

POSTUM FOR MOTHERS

The Drink That Nourishes and Supplies Food for Mother and Child.

"My husband has been unable to drink coffee for several years, so we were very glad to give Postum a trial and when we understood that long boiling would bring out the delicious flavor, we have been highly pleased with it.

"It is one of the finest things for nursing mothers that I have ever seen. It keeps up the mother's strength and increases the supply of nourishment for the child if partaken freely. I drank it between meals instead of water and found it most beneficial.

"Our five-year-old boy has been very delicate since birth and has developed slowly. He was white and bloodless. I began to give him Postum freely and you would be surprised at the change. When any person remarks about the great improvement, we never fail to tell them that we attribute his gain in strength and general health, to the free use of Postum and this has led many friends to use it for themselves and children.

"I have always cautioned friends to whom I have spoken about Postum, to follow directions in making it, for unless it is boiled fifteen to twenty minutes, it is quite tasteless. On the other hand, when properly made, it is very delicious. I want to thank you for the benefits we have derived from the use of your Postum."

CRISIS WILL COME TODAY.

Binger Hermann's Physicians Look for Decided Change in Patient's Present Condition.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ROSEBURG (Or.) April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Binger Hermann's condition continues about the same as last night, according to a bulletin issued by Dr. K. L. Miller, the attending physician, late today.

At an early hour this morning the aged statesman showed evidence of improvement by conversing with members of his family for the first time in several days. This encouraging symptom was offset later in the day, however, by a bloating condition about the spleen and limbs which the physician considered dangerous.

Dr. Miller says that a change for either the better or worse will probably take place tomorrow, which will be the ninth day of his illness.

The Hermann home was unusually quiet today, all persons, with the exception of physicians and immediate members of the family, being refused admittance.

FREAK HEN.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

CHICAGO, April 23.—Guests and employés of a down town hotel last night were interested in a white hen that has features of a human being—a early defined nose and lips in place f the beak and mouth of a chicken, nd feet like knobs instead of claws. "The chicken is nine months old," said Mike Singer, one of the hotel porters, who owns the fowl, "and is compelled o eat from the hand of a person, being nable to pick up food like other chickns. It cannot scratch and does not cackle, nor make other noises like a chicken. It has laid two eggs, both of which were flat on one side, and of extraordinary size."

A State-wide investigation of all establishments employing women or girls was begun yesterday by the twenty-five assistant inspectors. The clocks, which register the exact number of hours the women are compelled to work, will be seized by the inspector and produced in court as evidence.

GREEN MILLIONS TO GO TO SYLVIA.

DAUGHTER WILL SOON FINGER RICH MOTHER'S COIN.

Shrewdest Business Woman in the World Is Becoming Feeble and She Will Probably Turn Over Management of Her Interests to Married Offspring—Son Disappoints.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Hetty Green, celebrated for years as the richest and shrewdest business woman in the world, will soon retire from active business life, it is understood and will turn over the handling of her immense fortune, estimated at $50,000,000, to her daughter, Sylvia, now Mrs. Astor Wilks.

For months it has been rumored that Mrs. Green's health is failing and the rumors have been partially substantiated during the last few weeks by the irregularity of the aged woman's visits to her office in the Chemical National Bank, and her feeble appearance when she does materialize there.

Among the few persons in close touch with Mrs. Green, it is understood that, for years, she has been quietly training her daughter to successfully manage her immense fortune, and that, since her daughter's marriage to Mr. Wilks, with its accompanying possibilities of an heir, this training has been increased. It is rumored now that the transfer of the active control of Mrs. Green's millions to her daughter for management is only a question of a few weeks at most.

Hetty Green is seventy-three years old. Her age, coupled with her monotonous business routine has begun to tell upon her. One of Mrs. Green's greatest disappointments in life, it is said, has been non-inclination of her son, Edward H. R. Green, who lives in Texas, to become as famous a financier as herself. At one time she put $20,000,000 into southwestern railroads for her son so that he might become a railroad magnate. The accumulation of wealth is not a fad with Edward, however, who is content to live well and carry on sufficient business at the same time to keep his mind occupied.

Sylvia, the daughter, takes more after her mother and it is on this account that the control of her mother's enormous fortune will soon be turned over to her.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

FAIRFIELD (Ct.) April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Miss Frances Robinson, a well-known horsewoman, daughter of the late J. Kelly Robinson, formerly president of the Diamond Match Company, was probably fatally burned here today in a terrific explosion of acetylene gas.

The explosion occurred while the young woman was investigating the cause of the poor working of the gas lighting plant of the magnificent Robinson country estate.

It is feared that, even if she recovers from the shock, she may lose her reason. It was necessary to cut off much of her hair in order to apply the treatment ordered by the physicians.

New York Association Invents Card Game for Advertising Their Campaign.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

NEW YORK, April 23.—"Play Cards" is a new motto of the New York State Women's Suffrage Association. The cards, which are expected to play an important part in the organization's summer campaign, are played like the old-time game of "authors."

They were devised by one of the association's presidents. As in authors, the cards are arranged in groups entitled "Doubling the Vote," "Woman Suffrage and the Home," "Saloon vs. Family," "Two Cardinals," etc.

In the cardinal group one card will ask: "What does Cardinal Gibbons say of equal suffrage?" the answer being, "He says it would be the death blow with the question: "What does Cardinal Moral of Australia say?" and the answer is, "He says the woman who thinks she would make herself unwomanly by voting is a silly creature."

FROM STOCKCAR TO STAGE.

Famous Baritone, Clarence Whitehill, Reached Chicago as Cattle Tender.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] When the curtain rings up tomorrow for the long-promised production of "Parsifal," the spectacle will be presented of the public paying homage to a young man who only a few years ago rode into Chicago in a stockcar in charge of a shipment of cattle. It will also pay $7 a seat to hear him sing.

This young man is Clarence Whitehill, the baritone, who will appear in the role of Amfortas.

Whitehill was an Iowa boy, born and reared at Marengo. Nineteen years ago a mere lad, he left the village to make his way in the world. Chicago loomed up on the horizon as the great center of opportunity. A neighbor who was shipping cattle gave him his transportation by allowing him to care for the stock en route.

WIRELESS SERVICE RESUMED.

Reduces Trans-Atlantic Cable Rates. Experiments in Transmitting Photographs the Same Way.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Great interest in London commercial circles is manifested today in the reopening of the trans-Atlantic Wireless Telegraph Service, which was suspended last year because of the burning of the Marconi Station at Glace Bay, Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia. The cost of messages will be 33 per cent. below existing cable rates. The distance traveled by messages through the air between Clifden, Ireland, and Glace Bay, is 2450 miles.

For the present the messages must be filed at the Marconi headquarters in London, but arrangements are shortly to be completed with the postoffice, whereby they may be filed at any telegraph office in the United Kingdom. The rate for Eastern Canada will be 15 cents a word and other places on the North American continent 9 cents less than the rates quoted in the postoffice guides.

"We shall be able to handle from 20,000 to 25,000 words every twenty-four hours," said the manager of the Marconi company. Americans now on their way to England are using the wireless to engage seats in London theaters while still aboard ship in the mid-Atlantic. Prof. Arthur Korn is experimenting with two new instruments with a view to transmitting photographs from New York to London. Photographs are now regularly transmitted between London and Paris by the telectrograph.

SALEM (Neb.) April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Fire which started from an overheated stove in the kitchen of Mrs. C. M. Coffee communicated with the building, spread, and, getting beyond control, fanned by a wind that was almost a hurricane, practically destroyed the business portion of this town and burned sixteen residences. The loss will approximate $300,000.

Salem is without waterworks, or means of fighting fire, and all the citizens could do was to stand around and see their property burn. Blazing boards were carried for blocks, and dropping, started fires in many places in the town.

Wade Whitten's $10,000 farmhouse, one mile from town, was burned by sparks dropping upon the roof. A number of persons were injured, but no one seriously.

mountain laurel, emblem of immortality, picked from the Tamarack hills. Dan Beard, his old friend and neighbor, who illustrated many of his books, had stumbled over the rocks and roots in the dark to pluck the laurel the night before and had sat up into the small hours to weave them with his own hands.

The train began to draw out of the station, and as it gathered way a farmer on the platform said, slowly: "There goes a man the country knew as well as George Washington."

NURSE'S SORROW.

There was no sign that anybody at succeeding stations through which the train passed knew what burden it bore. The family party occupied an apartment. Old Katie, the housekeeper, sat in a corner and wept silently.

"I made him comfortable," she said, "just before he sank to rest. The nurses could not please him but he rested when I eased him and 'thank you, Katie, you do everything just right,' he said.

"The day before he had Miss Clara into his room to sing 'Flow Gently, Sweet Afton,' he asked for, and she sang the old ballad for him. He took real pride in his daughter's voice and it is a mistake to think, as some have said, that he was opposed to her career."

F. A. Duneka and Maj. Leigh, of Harper Brothers, met the party at the Grand Central station. Still, without attracting attention, the hearse crept slowly through the crowded streets to the church.

There was a crowd at the doors before they opened, but no crush and no disorder. Among those who attended were:

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, Robert J. Collier, Peter F. Dunne (Mr. Dooley,) Robert Underwood Johnson of the Century Magazine; Prof. Brander Mathews, W. D. Howells, James Lane Allen, Carol Bridges, the poet; E. S. Martin, the essayist; John H. Finley, president of the College of the City of New York; H. H. Rogers, Jr., James Choate, Col. D. Appleton, Thomas Wentworth Higginson, and delegations from the Authors, the Lotus, the Century and the Players' Clubs.

COMMENTS IN LONDON ABOUT MARK TWAIN.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

LONDON, April 23.—In their editorials on Mark Twain, many English papers dwell as much on the nobility of his mind and character as on his preeminent qualities as a writer and humorist. The Times today remarks it was only during the last decade that his personality was fully revealed.

Opinions differ as to his exact position in the realm of letters. The Saturday Review says he was irresistibly comic, but not a humorist. The Spectator, on the other hand, says the world loses not only an original humorist, but also a great humanist, who never wrote a line that he had cause to be ashamed of.

TWAIN ASKED THANKS OF CONGRESS—QUICK.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The death of Mark Twain has recalled the incident of his writing a letter to Speaker Cannon in 1906 when he was engaged in working for a bill, "In the interest of literature," as he expressed it.

In his communication he asked for the privilege of the floor of the House. The original letter was found today in Speaker Cannon's files and appears below. Mr. Twain asked the thanks of Congress, as that action by Congress carried with it the privilege of the floor.

The humorist's request caused much amusement at the time among members of the House, but it was not acted upon. The letter follows:

"Washington, D. C., Dec. 7, 1906.

"Dear Uncle Joe: Please get me the thanks of Congress—not next week, but right away.

"It is very necessary. Do accomplish this for your affectionate old friend; and right away! By persuasion, if you can, by violence if you must. It is imperatively necessary that I get on the floor for two or three hours and talk to the members, man by man, in behalf of the support, encouragement and protection of one of the nation's most valuable assets—its literature. I have arguments with me—also a barrel with liquid in it.

"Get me a chance. Get me the thanks of Congress. Don't wait for the others. There is not time. Furnish them to me yourself, and let Congress ratify later. I have stayed away and let Congress alone for seventy-one years and am entitled to the thanks. Congress knows this perfectly well, and I have long felt that this quite proper and earnest expression of gratitude has been merely felt by the house and never publicly uttered.

"Send me an order on the sergeant-at-arms.

"Quick! !

"When shall I come?

"With love and benediction, Mark Twain."

TWAIN'S FIRST PAY FOR LITERARY WORK.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

ST. JOSEPH (Mo.) April 23.—George Rees of St. Joseph was the first person to give Samuel L. Clemens literary employment. Clemens was a typesetter in the Keokuk (Iowa) Daily Post, when one day Rees, who was publisher of the paper, told him he thought he could make more money writing.

"Mark Twain was always a lazy fellow and wasn't fast enough to set type," said Mr. Rees, "so I suggested he travel in the country around Keokuk and write letters for the paper. He wrote as a sample of his work, 'My First Visit to a Theater.'

"It was a humorous description of the play 'Julius Caesar.' We sent Twain out. He asked $5 for his first letter, which we paid. For his second he wanted $10. We paid that. He asked $15 for the third letter. We flatly refused to pay. He soon left us and went on the river. He signed the name of Thomas Jefferson Snodgrass to the letters he wrote for us."

Epitaph Not Twain's.

ELMIRA (N. Y.) April 23.—Mr. Clemens did not compose the epitaph that is the marker over the grave of his wife, "Warm summer sun, shine kindly here," which was credited to him. At Mr. Clemens's demand, the epitaph was inclosed in quotations, and the name of the author, Richardson, chiseled immediately below.

REMINISCENT.

ALMOST BROKE UP A MEETING.

TWAIN QUESTIONS A SPIRIT MEDIUM.

That Was Years Ago in San Francisco When the Great Humorist Was Not So Well-Known—Amuses Audience in Hall, for Which He Paid no Rent.

BY. MRS. J. U. NAZRO,

No. 945½ Grattan street, Los Angeles.

It happened in San Francisco in the spring of 1866. "A spirit medium and demonstrator," as she advertised herself, was holding forth in a hall on Bush street, creating much interest and no little excitement. Each morning the papers were filled with accounts of her marvelous performances of the night before.

On this particular evening the climax of interest seemed to have been reached. The hall was packed and jammed, not only with the people usually attending such places, but most of the prominent people of the city were there—lawyers, doctors, ministers, and last, but by no means least, Mark Twain had a seat in the audience.

Looking over so large an audience, Madam, the medium, had reason to feel elated at her success, as she evidently did. After the usual introductory part the tests were to be made. The medium requested the audience to select three gentlemen to come up on the platform to see that there was no trickery and to ask any desired questions.

Mr. Clemens was one of the men selected. He and the other two marched seriously up and were seated upon the platform. The fame of Mark Twain was then not so world-wide, and the "spirit medium and demonstrator" evidently had no knowledge from this world or information from any other of the identity of the man with whom she had to deal. As she took the little bits of paper from the hat that had been passed around through the crowd for their collection, and without looking at them gave the names written thereon, with some facts concerning the lives and deaths of the departed owners of the names. The assumed expression of wonderment and interest upon Mark Twain's face was comical in the extreme. When the time came for asking questions, Mr. Clemens was made spokesman. Moving his chair a little more forward, and putting on an expression of even greater interest, he began far back, asking first:

"Do the great public men of former times, like Caesar and Napoleon, take any interest in the progress of the world?"

The answer seemed satisfactory. The next question was a little harder. He asked: "Does Gen. Washington, the father of his country, know anything about what has been going on the last four years, and has the war troubled him much?"

After a few such questions, to the increasing amusement of the audience, the climax of uncontrollable mirth came when he asked, in the same slow, serious drawl: "If I was going down Montgomery street some evening, and the spirit of a b-e-a-u-t-i-f-u-l girl was coming up the street, in a direct line with me, and if, as she approached, I opened my arms thus (suiting the action to the words,) if the spirit of that beautiful girl came on in that direct line, nearer and nearer, till it was within my arms, if I then clasped them like this, would I have her—the spirit of that beautiful girl?"

Holding his arms in a tight embrace, as though he did indeed "have her," he looked anxiously at the medium, as if the happiness of his very soul depended upon the answer.

The audience could stand no more, but clapped, stamped and roared with laughter.

Twain never changed his position as he waited anxiously for his answer, which never came, for the medium at last felt the situation, and jumping up in a fury of excitement, said, or, rather, yelled:

"I do not know who this Mr. Clemens is (whereupon the audience clapped and laughed more,) or what amuses the audience so, but I want him to understand that I have hired this hall for my own use, and not for him, and either he or I will have to step down and out."

Mark rose gravely and politely, saying: "Neither do I know what amuses them so, but I know I did not hire the hall, and I beg you to keep the platform. I will step down."

So saying, with perfect gravity, he left the platform, followed by the other two men, amid the uproarious mirth of the audience. The meeting could not again be brought to a very serious status, though it was closed with decorum and due regard to the fact that the "spirit medium and demonstrator" and not Mr. Clemens had hired the hall.

COMET.

length of the tail cannot be made until the comet is far enough away from the sun to be visible against the dark sky before dawn, and after the present moon has waned. There is little doubt, though not absolutely certainty, that the tail is fully 15,000,000 miles in length. It may be even longer.

Astronomer Wright is observing the spectrum of the comet from morning to morning. As the comet approached perihelion, that is, the point of its orbit nearest to the sun, the continuous spectrum increased more and more in proportion to the bright bands due to carbon and cyanogen. The continuous spectrum probably owes its origin to sunlight reflected from the materials in the comet. It is probable that the strength of the continuous spectrum will decrease in intensity relatively to the strength of the carbon and cyanogen bands as the comet recedes from the sun.

UNFORTUNATE HERE.

It is well known that the head of the comet is due to pass between us and the sun on the evening of May 18. The sun at this time will have set for European observers, and all American observers east of Nevada, and the transit will occur with the sun so near the western horizon, for Pacific Slope observers, that observations cannot be made advantageously.

Emerson McMillin, a wealthy gentleman of New York City, founder of the McMillin Observatory of the Ohio State University, is sending the astronomers of that institution, Profs. Lord and Coddington, to the Hawaiian Islands for observations of any transit phenomena that may occur.

The passage of the comet between the earth and sun means that the earth will pass through the tail of the comet, if the tail is of sufficient extent to reach to the earth. We know absolutely that the head of the comet will be slightly more than 14,000,000 miles from the earth at this time. The tail is probably long enough to pass out beyond the earth's orbit.

We read occasionally statements by some popular lecturers on astronomy, whom real astronomers have never heard of before, and statements by some newspaper and magazine writers that there is an element of danger in our passage through the tail. Why these statements are made is beyond our comprehension, unless they assist in drumming up an audience or in selling manuscripts.

NOT UNUSUAL.

Tails of comets are certainly attenuated almost beyond conception, and the earth's atmosphere forms a perfect blanket of protection against any encounters such as collisions with matter more or less finely divided, which may occur.

The earth passed through the tail of the great comet of 1861, on the night of June 30, 1861. Several observers reported the existence of a faint glow, resembling an auroral light at that time. There was not even a meteor shower, and we have no strong reason to expect that our senses will note any effects other than a possible faint glow in the night sky. Even this glow is not definitely predicted. Undoubtedly the earth has passed through the tails of scores of comets in past centuries. Astronomers favorably situated will be wideawake to note any phenomena which may transpire.

MORE PHOTOS TAKEN OF HALLEY'S COMET.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

COLORADO SPRINGS (Colo.) April 23.—Photographs of Halley's comet were obtained here this morning by C. E. Paquin and W. N. Bird at the observatory of F. H. Loud, emeritus professor of astronomy of Colorado College.

The photographs were obtained by a twenty-minutes' exposure with a stellar camera.

FRESNO GETS FIRST GLIMPSE OF VISITOR.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

FRESNO, April 23.—Halley's comet became visible to the naked eye in Fresno this morning for the first time. The discovery was made by W. S. Cranmer, a local student of astronomy, degrees north of Venus. As yet the comet, as seen from here, is but a mere blur in the sky, and its tail, which is pointed south, can only be seen by persons when standing in certain positions. Cranmer states that there is no mistake about his discovery being Halley's comet, as he knew just where it would appear and had been watching for it for several mornings past. Other persons also saw the comet after it had been pointed out to them.

FIRE DESTROYS MILLION.

Flames Cut Swath Through Heart of Lake Charles, La.—Takes Two-thirds of Town.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LAKE CHARLES (La.) April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] In three hours this afternoon, fire originating in an outhouse in the rear of a frame building on Ryan street and spreading thence to the immense two-story frame building which was formerly the Lake Charles Operahouse, destroyed two-thirds of the business section and wiped out property conservatively estimated at $800,000 to $1,000,000.

A brisk wind blew from the west. Fifteen minutes after the fire started flames reached Ryan street and caught in a similar cluster of old buildings just north of the Catholic Church property on which was located all of the church and school buildings belonging to the Catholic congregation and destroyed them in a twinkling.

First the rectory went, then one of the school buildings in the rear, then the big convent building, the church and finally the new brick school building. Across Bilbo street the flames caught the St. Clair Hotel. By this time the wind shifted to the northwest and the big Callasieu Courthouse, located on the block just south of where the fire originated, and the City Hall on Kirby street, across from the Catholic Church property, both caught fire.

In the meantime all of the sawmills sent men and fire equipment to the center of town and a telegram was sent asking Beaumont and Jennings for aid. The fire steadily raged its way south and east until it made a pathway through the center of the city.

SPECULATION.

WILL HUGHES TAKE PLACE?

Offer of Supreme Court Seat Probably Made.

President Taft Has Written, It Is Believed.

Governor's Friends Think He Will Refuse.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It is practically certain that the President has written to Gov. Hughes asking him if he would consider an appointment to the Supreme Court bench in the place made vacant by Justice Brewer's death. No formal offer of the place, it is understood, is made in the letter, but there is little doubt that Gov. Hughes can have the appointment if he will take it.

President Taft's friends are under the impression that the letter went direct from President Taft to Gov. Hughes within the last few days and that Gov. Hughes has not yet answered it. It can be said that President Taft approached Gov. Hughes on the subject of positive appointment to the Supreme Court bench even before the death of Justice Brewer. The talk between the President and the Governor on this subject occurred while the President was visiting the Governor at the executive mansion in Albany about the middle of March, and the Governor, it is known, told the President at that time that he did not feel that he could afford to accept a place on the bench if a contingency ever arose in which he might be regarded as available timber.

No one in Washington seems to know definitely at this time what the Governor's feelings are on the subject, but his friends in the New York State delegation in Congress doubt if he will accept.

It is said that Gov. Hughes would be very acceptable to members of the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, which will be called upon to pass on the nomination. The general impression among Senators and some of Mr. Taft's advisers is that the Hughes appointment would be the most acceptable to the country at large that the President could make.

SCHOOL CHILDREN ACT.

They Vote for Sane Celebration of the Fourth in New Jersey City.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

BLOOMFIELD (N. J.) April 23.—The pupils of the public schools here have voted, by a majority of 186, to abolish fireworks, firecrackers and the other noise-makers on July 4.

Most of the girl students voted for a sane fourth, and their votes carried the day, although there was strong opposition among the boys.

TO DEBATE SUBJECT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

MONTCLAIR (N. J.) April 23.—The vote of the Montclair school children on the question of a noiseless Fourth of July will not be taken until the matter is thoroughly discussed from all points of view. All the English classes in the High School will debate the question next week and similar debates are to be held in the grammar schools. The vote will be taken within a fortnight. A secret ballot, similar in form to that used in State elections, has been prepared for the occasion.

READY TO BUILD WATER SYSTEM.

EL CENTRO BONDS APPROVED BY PURCHASER.

Work on Improvement Will Not Begin, However, Until Cooler Weather Arrives—Club Women Raise Sum for Building Site—Cantaloupes from Imperial Valley Will Be Early.

EL CENTRO, April 23.—City Attorney Smith has received notification from Adams & Company, Los Angeles bond buyers, that the El Centro municipal bonds for $60,000, for the purpose of installing a new water system, have been approved and are now being printed. This places at the disposal of the El Centro City Trustees ample funds to purchase the water stock applied to the land of the El Centro townsite, and to construct a water system that will give first-class service to the entire town. As proceedings in the matter of bond selling have been so long delayed, it is possible that the actual construction of the system will not begin until fall, as it could not be carried on profitably during the summer weather.

TEN THOUSAND CLUB.

The El Centro Women's Ten Thousand Club this week elected officers for the ensuing year as follows: President, Mrs. A. W. Swanson; vice-president, Mrs. Mary Garren; secretary, Mrs. C. E. Sprouse; corresponding secretary, Mrs. R. B. Valle; treasurer, Mrs. J. W. Lindsey; directors, Mrs. C. E. Paris, Mrs. J. C. Blackinton, Mrs. R. B. Moore. The club is endeavoring to raise funds among its members for the purpose of purchasing four lots on State street for the site of a proposed clubhouse, and at this week's meeting a report was made that more than half the total sum required had been pledged. Fifteen new members were admitted. This club is taking an active part in the civic affairs of El Centro. One of its latest moves is to coöperate with the school trustees in beautifying the school grounds.

CANTALOUPE PROSPECTS.

From all parts of Imperial Valley come the reports that cantaloupe marketing will begin fully ten days earlier than last season, and that the first-class acreage is very large. It is estimated that not more than 3500 acres of melons have been planted this season, so there is little prospect of the market being overcrowded. All melon contracts made by the Semi-Tropic Fruit Company with the El Centro Cantaloupe Growers' Association members for this season, have been turned over to J. Friedheim & Company, commission dealers of Chicago. These contracts cover about 400 acres of melons in the El Centro district.

Growers outside of the old association have made contracts with Crutchfield & Woolfolk on terms more satisfactory than heretofore, as the advance to the grower is net and the distributor assumes all costs if the returns do not cover them. Detailed accounts of sales are to be rendered to the grower, with the names and addresses of purchasers, so that the grower can follow up his shipments and check the returns if he so desires. The distributing firm has given a bond of $10,000 for faithful performance of the contract.

The El Centro creamery is now turning out more than 1000 pounds of butter each day. Most of this butter goes to Los Angeles and San Bernardino, but a considerable quantity is shipped to the larger cities of Arizona, from which there comes a constantly growing demand for Imperial Valley products. Never before were home-laid eggs so plentiful in Imperial Valley. Hundreds of dozen are shipped out each week to the Los Angeles and Arizona markets, besides the large quantities used to supply the local demands in the five valley cities.

'An Incident of the Homeseekers' and Sightseers' Trip to Imperial Valley.

Members of The Times' Excursion party resting at the California-Mexico Land and Cattle Company's "Home Ranch," near Calexico.

PPRECIATION OF "AMERICAN NILE VALLEY."

Homeseekers' Excursion Party to Im- Impressed by Trip Through That Won- —What Was Seen and What Was Done

BY SAM G. AUSTIN.

the park and trees grew from soil that once was considered desert.

In the brief informal speaking that followed, a bale of cotton was the platform on which the speakers stood. Col. W. H. Holabird and Attorney John H. Foley considered this fact significant. They expressed their conviction that cotton will be one of the great crops of the valley in years to come.

Brawley men welcomed the party most cordially. They said it was good to have persons come there to inspect and report to their friends. They declared they desired the closest investigation.

"We do not want any dissatisfied persons, or disgruntled citizens," said one of the speakers. "To build up a new community, every man must put his shoulder to the wheel. We are confident that any able-bodied man can make a living here for himself and family. Nature has done much for this section. Man has brought water here to make the 'desert blossom as the rose.'"

WONDERFUL POSSIBILITIES.

The California Development Company has constructed—one might truthfully say created—a system of canals that furnishes water to all that thirsty country. It has made it possible to reclaim 250,000 acres of land that ten years ago was practically worthless. It has now an average value of $100 an acre. The same system can be extended so as to irrigate 250,000 acres more.

"Does the valley have electricity?" asked one of the party on the way down. He was told that the Holton Power Company at Holtville is developing electricity for light and power for the five principal cities of the valley. The power plant is to be enlarged to meet the constantly increasing demand for electricity.

Looking over the country from the roof of the Oregon Hotel at El Centro, one saw the glimmering electric lights flashing from Brawley, Imperial, Holtville and Calexico. El Centro is also brilliantly lighted at night.

Another passenger—a woman—asked if saloons were permitted in Imperial county. "We have a family of boys," said she, "and if we decide on settling in the valley, that question alone might override all other considerations."

She was told that saloons are prohibited; that liquor cannot be legally purchased at hotels, clubs or drug stores. The only exception is the sale by druggists under physicians' prescriptions.

ITS VARIED CROPS.

The question of what crops may be raised was asked by many of the homeseekers. When the valley was first settled, the ranchers put in a lot of grain and sowed alfalfa. Cattle were shipped in to fatten on the grain and alfalfa and were reshipped to market. Hogs were also found to be profitable.

Later, the farmers began to turn their attention to vegetables and fruits. Cantaloupes were found to be very profitable. Brawley has been especially famed for her fine melons. This year's crop will not be as large as last year. The Southern Pacific commercial agents believe this will result in better prices and a surer market. While they have used every means for getting the melons to the markets in good condition, the short season and the necessity for quick shipments has made it advisable to limit the production for a time at least.

Asparagus has yielded large returns. Early grapes are attracting much attention. Vineyards are being planted in localities considered especially adapted to grapes.

In cotton, many of the most conservative ranchers, believe they have found an ideal product. At Brawley, Imperial, El Centro and Holtville, cotton is being "talked up" by those who have made a study of the proposition. The short staple variety has been successfully grown and today there are only a few specimen bales of cotton in the valley; all the rest has been sold at top prices. It is expected that the Egyptian cotton will be a great money-maker in time to come. While the industry is yet in its infancy, everything points to cotton as one of the great staples of this wonderful valley. It is variously estimated that from fifteen to twenty-five thousand acres will be planted in the valley this year.

QUESTION OF LABOR.

On the trip from El Centro to Holtville the train was stopped near a cotton field. The passengers alighted to see the young plants, which show a remarkable growth. The ranchers expect to get Indians to pick the cotton. The advantage of employing Indians is that after the crop is picked, the hands will return to their reservations. If the Geary Exclusion Act could be modified so as to permit the limited immigration of Chinese laborers, the problem of getting the right kind of cotton pickers would be easily solved. Chinamen would also make ideal house servants, the business men declare. As in every new community, the question of getting the right kind of help is a vexing one. But like other things this will adjust itself in time.

The temperature here yesterday naturally suggests the subject of alleged excessive heat in the Imperial Valley. "I expected to suffer from heat," said Attorney Foley, "but somewhat to my surprise, I found that the thermometer is no indication of a person's feelings in the Imperial section. Though I pass most of my time in my office in Los Angeles, and seldom get out in the sun, I have found that the trip through the valley has been most enjoyable. Heat is felt in Pullman cars if anywhere, yet the trip has been absolutely without discomfort. It is easily explained. Any doubter can try it for himself.

"The dry air induces a constant evaporation from the body. The thermometer may register above 100 deg., yet one will feel cool. This is no dream, for we have passed three days in the sun under conditions that would be trying elsewhere. No one need fear any excessive heat in the valley."

HEALTHFUL CLIMATE.

The dry atmosphere makes the valley an ideal place for those suffering from rheumatism and kindred ailments. Several brawny men who met the excursionists at Imperial assured their guests that they came to the valley as a last resort. "Look at me now," boasted one of the Reception Committee. "I am in perfect health and ought to be good for twenty years. Yet a life insurance company declined to take my risk a year ago."

The men and women in the valley dress sensibly. Instead of trying to look "citified" in starched shirts and collars, the men wear soft shirts, open at the neck and roll up their sleeves. This results in bronzed faces and arms, but the tan is attractive, even on the cheeks of the gentler sex. The women wear white, and even in the months when Los Angeles seeks the sea breezes, these ladies take oath that they can live in perfect comfort on their ranches in the Imperial country.

One of the most enjoyable jaunts of The Times' party was to Holtville. The artesian well located a short distance from the railroad tracks was seen pouring out the finest kind of soft water. A natatorium is being constructed near the well and the water will be partly utilized for keeping the plunge filled. The residents of Holtville are naturally very proud of this water and the success obtained in sinking two wells will result in boring for water at other spots. Well-informed persons believe the strata which contains water extends over a considerable section of the valley and that ultimately artesian water will be in common use for domestic purposes.

EXCELLENT WATER.

The Colorado River water, however, is excellent for drinking purposes, even if not filtered. It is soft and absolutely pure, although containing a slight sediment that is removed by filtering. If artesian wells could be sunk in sufficient numbers in this city, no doubt many would prefer the water to that which comes from the municipal supply, yet Los Angeles water is exceptionally pure. The same argument applies to the Imperial Valley. The residents will be glad to have artesian wells, but they are not losing any sleep over it.

Imperial is a city that boasts of fine business blocks, a Carnegie library in course of construction; a beautiful High School building and numerous enterprises. Several members of the party secured carriages at this point and drove through a section not easily reached by the railroad. When they rejoined the rest of the party at Calexico they were enthusiastic over the stretches of alfalfa, vegetables and other growing things.

"Some of the finest ranches in the valley are far from the railroad," one of the explorers remarked. "The only way to see them is to travel across country. Any one who thinks of settling in this matchless valley ought to drive for several days looking into the out-of-the-way places. It will repay any one for the trouble."

All the residents of the valley towns are hospitable. It seems to be a part of their natures. Five minutes after meeting one of those genuine men, he will invite you to his house. The Times excursionists were treated with the utmost consideration everywhere they went.

From a creamery came a can of iced buttermilk. It was soon drank by those who found the can first. The others had the pleasure of hearing how nice the ice-cold buttermilk tasted.

GENUINE HOSPITALITY.

• Passing along the main street of El Centro, a group of the excursionists stopped in front of a fruit stand. The proprietor noted the yellow silk badges with the words, "The Times Imperial Valley Excursion Party" inscribed thereon. "Here, have some of our oranges," he insisted. "Fill your pockets and carry back some fruit to your train." This same spirit was in evidence everywhere the sightseers went.

The commercial bodies extended a series of receptions and informal entertainments. The best was at the disposal of the visitors. At the hotels, the regular guests cheerfully gave up their places to the excursionists.

The only person who is not welcome in that cheerful, happy valley, is the man or woman who cultivates a perpetual "grouch." The kind of persons who have made a success from small beginnings and who are filled with the open-hearted spirit of the typical pioneer, do not like the complainers, and disgruntled and fault-finders. Who can blame them?

The excursionists were especially gratified at the readiness with which the business men and ranchers gave up their automobiles and vehicles in order that the travelers might see the country. At one town, after most of the party had been provided for, four men were left without conveyance. A farmer driving by asked what was the purpose of the excursion. He said: "Here, use my rig. I can just as well get around on foot this afternoon. When you get through with the horses hitch them in front of the hotel and I will call for them."

PLAN PROTECTION.

Citizens of Brawley, Imperial and El Centro gave up their business affairs to accompany the party and several sent their automobiles to Calexico to help transport the crowd to the California-Mexico Land and Cattle Company's ranch.

A matter barely touched upon in the special dispatches is the great project of putting up a levee to protect the Imperial Valley from possible changes in the course of the Colorado River. The dikes could not be readily seen from the car window, but C. K. Clark, assistant general manager of the California Development Company, explained what is being done.

He said the present protective levee begins at the end of the river levee begun in 1807, the time of the flood. It will extend for about twelve miles. One hundred and fifty teams from the "C. M." ranch are being utilized in its construction. The dike will be completed about May 15. The levee is about four and a half feet in height and has a base of ten feet with a "three to one" slope on the river side. The levee will prevent the flood waters from escaping into New River and thence into the Salton Sink. New River now has only the seepage and waste irrigation water.

The Colorado River reaches its crest of high water any time between the last of May up to July. During the last freshet the river changed its course from what is known as the East Channel to the Bee Channel. If the Colorado River should flow into New River the flume that carries water to the western section would be endangered. This section is supplied by the Nos. 6, 8 and 12 mutual water companies. The flume is 1300 feet long at the New River gorge.

SACRED DUTY.

The California Development Company is expending considerable money at the present time in safeguarding its splendid system of canals that furnish water for irrigating more than 250,000 acres of rich land. Whatever the ultimate outcome of the present receivership, the officers of the company declare they regard it as a sacred duty to protect the ranchers of the Imperial Valley in every possible way. The courts have shown great sympathy with this policy and have sanctioned all necessary expenditures. Money is being raised for necessary expenses by issuing receiver's certificates—a form of investment that has met with much favor among conservative bankers.

A former Los Angeles newspaper man is now engaged in writing a history of the Imperial Valley. But history is being written every day in that valley. Statistics of yesterday become obsolete today. New lands are being planted so fast that even the assessor hasn't time to count the taxable acreage.

All agree that Imperial Valley is but in its first stage of development. The days of pioneering are over. Land will naturally become more valuable. The issuance of patents will enable ranchers to borrow more money for improvements. Banks and insurance companies will be glad to loan their surplus funds there. Prosperity is written upon the pages of each thriving Imperial city; contentment is inscribed upon the faces of the farmers.

FIRE DESTROYS THREE HOUSES.

GASOLINE STOVE EXPLODES IN COTTAGE.

Willing Workers Save Much Furniture in Some of the Doomed Buildings and Arrival of Fire Department Stopped Blaze When It Attacked the Fourth Structure.

Fire spreading from a gasoline stove explosion, about 8 o'clock last evening, destroyed three cottages on North Breed street, near City View, and damaged a fourth, causing a loss of about $7000.

Mrs. William Lindsey of No. 622 Breed street was sitting on her porch, after having put the evening meal on the fire, when Mrs. G. Quijada of No. 626 North Breed called to her that there was smoke issuing from her kitchen.

Mrs. Lindsey ran to the rear of the house, but the flames had already gained considerable headway, and although she was joined by many willing workers from the neighborhood, the fire quickly communicated to the homes of Mrs. Quijada, on one side, and Mrs. A. Bota, No. 620, on the other. When the fire department arrived, the blaze had reached the home of A. Finstein at No. 616 North Breed street, and was threatening the destruction of several of the many bungalows lining the street.

Mrs. Lindsey was the heaviest loser, none of her furniture having been saved, and her loss is estimated at $1500 on the building and $1000 on the contents. Mrs. Bota's loss was estimated at $1500 on the building and $600 on the contents, the figures representing about the loss on the Quijada home. Two or three hundred dollars will repair the Finstein house. All of the losses were covered by insurance.

CAR JUMPS AT SWITCH.

Wheels Go on Wrong Rails and Employee of Railway Company Is Injured.

Traffic at Second and Broadway was blocked for about thirty minutes last night by the derailment of the second coach of a two-car Redondo train. William Kerr of No. 724 Merchant street, was injured in the accident.

The train was on its way to Redondo when, presumably through the conductor letting go the switch chain too soon, the rear car rode the switch and fell into the track leading up Second street. Kerr, who is the foreman of one of the Los Angeles Railway construction crews, was in charge of the work of replacing the derailed car on the track. One of the jacks slipped from under the car and struck him over the right eye, making a deep cut two inches in length. He was sent to the Receiving Hospital.

While the derailed car was quickly re-tracked, the switch had been split by its weight, and traffic was seriously interferred with throughout the evening.

TAKE PRIZES ON SKATES.

At the Out-of-Door Rink, Twenty-first and Main streets, last night, a large crowd witnessed the awarding of prizes. That for the most graceful couple was won by Miss Calista Hopkins and J. C. Knox. The lady's prize was a hat from Truitt's, and the gentleman's a pair of shoes from the Packard Shoe Company. This rink is unique from the fact that it is in the open air and under beautiful shade trees.

SEVERE CASE OF CATARRH OF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER CURED BY PE-RU-NA.

"Peruna cured me from what the doctors were afraid would turn into Bright's disease, after I had suffered with catarrh of the bladder and kidney trouble.

"Peruna is a blessing to a sick man. Eight bottles made me a well man and were worth more than a thousand dollars to me.

"I cannot speak too highly of it. It is now four years since I was troubled, and I have enjoyed perfect health since."

CATARRH of the kidneys—that is what makes people have weak backs. It is catarrh of the kidneys.

The kidney is being gradually destroyed by this derangement.

The mucous membrane lining of the kidney is inflamed—ulcerated.

The catarrhal products are irritative, and are sapping away the vitality of the kidney, which makes the back weak.

This causes people to become old before their time—holding on to their backs—unable to stoop over without pain—and having sudden cramps in the muscles of the back.

Catarrh of the kidneys—that is what is ailing them.

A course of Peruna is what they need before the kidneys have become permanently destroyed.

WASHINGTON.

CONGRESS TO QUIT IN JUNE.

Will Hasten Action on Administration Bills.

Anxious to Get Home for the Fall Elections.

Postal Savings Bank Measure in Danger.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Congress will adjourn before the middle of June and possibly by June 1, it is believed by President Taft and the administration leaders. And before that time it is expected most of the so-called administration measures now before Congress will have been passed, or if not they will be in such shape that they can be enacted into law soon after Congress meets in December.

Operating in favor of the early passage of the five administration bills—the railroad bill, the Statehood bill, the postal savings bank bill, the conservation bill, and the anti-injunction bill—are two factors. One is the fact that a number of Republican members of each House wish to get back home as soon as possible to prepare for the coming Congressional elections. Another is that the passage of the measures advocated in the Republican programme is the surest way, the leaders believe, of preventing further Democratic Congressional inroads.

The Statehood bill has passed the House, one conservation bill has passed the Senate and the anti-injunction bill is almost ready to be reported favorably to the House.

Of the five measures the postal savings bank bill, the President has been told, is in the greatest danger, for although it has passed the Senate, it will have a rough time, it is said, in the House Committee on Postoffices and Postroads.

IMMIGRATION STATISTICS.

Figures of Aliens Arriving in This Country This Year Promise to Reach Million Mark.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, April 23.—According to present indications immigration to the United States for the fiscal year 1910 promises to reach 1,000,000 people, if the record for the nine months of the year is maintained.

The March arrivals were 136,745, and for the nine months of the fiscal year, 667,949. It has been several years since the immigration figures reached the million mark, the last year being 1907, when 1,285,349 aliens were admitted to the United States.

Of the immigrants who were admitted during March, 110,207 were male, and 26,539 female. Of these, 8160 were Germans; 31,806 from the south of Italy; 2203 were Polish, and 5966 were Greek.

For the first seven months of the fiscal year, that is from July to January last, inclusive, 102,209 immigrants were debarred. Of these 209 were kept out because of insanity or feeble mentality in some form; 1665 beause they had a loathsome or dangerous contagious disease; 7768 because they were liable to become a public charge, and 853 because, it was charged, they were contract laborers.

The immigration laws provide that, for good cause, immigrants who have been in this country for some time, may be sent back. In that category, the Immigration Bureau, for the seven months, returned to the country whence they came, 422 persons because of insanity or other mental conditions.

AGAINST POSTAL BANK BILL.

MINORITY'S ATTITUDE HOSTILE.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, April 23.—In view of Republican division on the subject of postal savings banks legislation, the attitude of the Democratic minority of the House on the subject has become of interest. Representative Champ Clark, leader of the minority, was asked today what the Democratic position would be. "The Democrats will never stand for the Senate postal savings bank bill," he said. "It looks, also, as if the Republicans were not going to stand for it, either. Postal savings banks were favored in the Democratic national platform, but only in the event a guarantee of bank deposits by the government was found impossible to accomplish. When we find out what sort of a bill the Republicans on this side are going to bring in, we shall then be able to determine what our attitude will be regarding it."

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Friends of John Benson, whose term in the penitentiary will end in about two weeks, have been busy working for his pardon. The matter was submitted to the Attorney-General, who has just decided that, inasmuch as Benson had been previously tried for conspiracy to defraud the government of lands, he is an old offender and so is not entitled to executive clemency.

PERSICH FREED ON BAIL.

Man Accused of Larceny of Heinze Stocks May Escape Further Trial on Technicality.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, April 23.—Donald L. Persich, recently tried on a charge of larceny in connection with Windsor Trust Company loan case, was admitted to bail today, and, according to his counsel, will never again have to face a court in connection with the alleged offense, as the jury which tried him, they claim, was prematurely discharged. A surety company furnished the bond of $50,000 demanded.

Persich was indicted for grand larceny on complaint of Matthew M. Joyce, acting as broker for Augustus Heinze, who claimed that Persich and others fraudulently obtained from the Windsor Trust Company $110,000 worth of copper stock on which Heinze had borrowed $50,000. His trial a few days ago resulted in a disagreement of the GALVESTON (Tex.) April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The citizens of Galveston have inaugurated a movement to erect and dedicate a monument to the old negro "mammy" of the South. It is planned to build a marble monument of appropriate design, to cost about a half million dollars, by public subscription, nearly half of which is already pledged. The sentiment is expressed in resolutions adopted which say:

"Rapidly passing from the stage of events in the South are the few remaining representatives of one of the grandest characters which the history of the world records. Indeed, so high above all chronicles of pure, unselfish and unfaltering devotion, noble self-sacrificing and splendid heroism, do they stand that they may be almost denominated a race in themselves."

Former Presidential Candidate Says Tennessee and Alabama Will Go "Wet"—Liquor Brought in by Carload from Outside States—Solution Lies With Congress.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW ORLEANS (La.) April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Eugene W. Chafin, candidate for President on the Prohibition ticket at the last election, today made the startling prediction that Gov. Patterson of Tennessee would be reëlected and that both Tennessee and Alabama would lose the prohibition laws now in effect.

"The laws have been broken down by the shipment of liquor into the States," said Mr. Chafin, "and Gov. Patterson is manipulating things so that he will apparently have an easy time of it.

"The solution of the liquor traffic now lies in having a bill passed by Congress that will prohibit the shipment of liquor from one State into another.

"It is with this view that I have come South with Charles R. Jones, the national chairman of the Prohibition party, and we are going to try to have a candidate nominated in every Congressional district in the United States for the coming elections.

"In Tennessee and Alabama the prohibition laws are absolutely disregarded, because liquor is shipped there by the carload and on account of this I believe the laws will be lost."

Mr. Chafin and Mr. Jones have covered all the Southern States and after spending Sunday here will leave for Baton Rouge and then for Kansas.

OPERA SINGERS TESTIFY.

Salary Secrets Made Public in Suit Started by Paris Agent Against Publishers.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

CHICAGO, April 23.—Lesser lights of the grand opera reluctantly disclosed the secrets of their salaries before United States Commissioner Humphrey yesterday.

The depositions are to be used in the trial in New York of a suit for $25,000 damages started by Gabriel Astruc, Paris representative of the Metropolitan Opera Company, against a publishing company.

Georges Regis, a French lyric tenor, produced his contract to show he received $7000 for a season of sixty-six performances. George Bourgeoise, basso, also French, reluctantly admitted his return for singing was about $6000 for a season, and Paul Ananian, who is a Turk, said he did not receive more than $10,000. Five more singers are to be examined Monday.

The suit in which the depositions are to be used was started by Astruc because of a story that he operated "an opera agent" trust in France, securing singers more because of the commissions they could pay than because of the quality of their voices. The singers who testified yesterday said they paid Astruc 5 per cent. of their salaries.

DEAF MUTES "SING" HYMNS.

Jewish Synagogue for Afflicted Opens With Full Church Accompaniments.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

NEW YORK, April 23.—The first church organization of deaf mutes in the United States for Jewish worship, has been established here with a membership of 200. The congregation will have a synagogue and clubhouse of its own, and expects to interest most of the 1000 deaf mutes in New York City.

At the opening service last night there was the regular Sabbath night prayer, a sermon and the singing of hymns after the deaf mute fashion. The prayers and sermon were interpreted to the congregation in sign language as they were spoken by the preacher. Three young women formed the choir and "sang" the hymns in sign language. They were attired in white gowns and interpreted the words, music and spirit of the hymns in gestures of the arms and hands.

Enjoy Your Meals

By Simply Eating a Little Pleasant Tablet After Each of Them.

A Tablet Digests a Meal. Trial Package Free.

When digestion is perfect the fluids necessary to this process come naturally to the aid of the stomach. They are of right proportion and do their work speedily and well. When indigestion and dyspepsia are prevalent, these same juices come slowly if at all, are weak and insufficient or are filled with strong acids and alkalies.

When such a condition exists each meal is a hardship upon the digestive organs. The meal should strengthen the juices, but on the contrary it weakens them, so that man by the very act of eating causes conditions to arise which of themselves bring him pain and loathing for the next meal.

By eating one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets you mix the tablet with your saliva and it goes into your stomach a strong, vigorous fluid, many times more powerful than the natural digestive juices. These tablets are made up from natural vegetable and fruit essences and are composed of Hydrastis, Golden Seal, Lactose, Nux, Aseptic Pepsin and Jamacia Ginger. There is the formula and one grain of it will digest 3000 grains of food in any stomach. Beside digesting the food it will give the blood the power to enrich the digestive fluids so after a time nature will take care of itself. Though you have no stomach trouble, one of these tablets after each meal is a powerful assistance to nature and is an excellent habit to make.

Go to any druggist and ask his opinion of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. We will abide his answer if he is an honest man. They sell for 50c per package. Send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

RAILROAD RECORD.

FOLLOWING UP THREE LINES.

Illinois Central Investigations Broadening.

Harahan Aimed at by Some Stockholders.

Disclosures May Lead to Federal Inquiry.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Three lines of investigation are now being carried on into affairs and transactions involving the Illinois Central road and some of its officials and employés, according to disclosures made today. In addition to the inquiry conducted by President Harahan through the Burns & Sheridan Detective Agency, there are two other investigations which threaten to precipitate sensational disclosures in Illinois Central affairs.

The McGuire & White Agency was discovered to be at work on an investigation in which it seeks to make President Harahan and some of his friends targets. The heads of this agency declare that they are retained by some stockholders in the road who are anxious to get at the bottom of the various reports that President Harahan is interested as stockholder and financial backer in several outside companies which have had business dealings with the road.

The third inquiry is conducted by detectives, whose employers have not yet shown their hand. This third inquiry is carried on along extensive lines and some information which is being secured might be of use to the Federal authorities. The relation between the road and certain shippers, its interest in certain legislative enactments, its dealings with the city and public officials within the city and State and other subjects are being looked into.

OFF TO INSPECT THE NORTHWEST.

TWO MORGAN MEN TRAVELING WITH J. J. HILL.

Latter Says He's Going Fishing, But Report Has It Party's Object Is to Investigate New Railway Projects—Trip in Line With Rumors of Hill-Clark Alliance.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Important developments affecting the future of the Hill railroad properties in the west, and especially concerning new construction projects in Oregon and the Puget Sound district, are expected to result from the tour of inspection over the Burlington, Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads, started today from Chicago by James J. Hill and two of the principal eastern capitalists who are interested in the roads controlled by Hill.

The eastern financiers are George F. Steele, of J. P. Morgan and Company, and Charles N. Baker, president of the First National Bank of New York, allied with the Morgan interests. They came to Chicago this morning and were met in the office of President Miller by Mr. Hill. The party left in a special car and will go to the coast over the Great Northern and return via the Northern Pacific.

It it understood that one of the main purposes is to inspect the Spokane, Portland and Seattle road, which was placed in operation late last year from Portland to Seattle along the Northern bank of the Columbia and the Oregon Trunk Line Railroad, which now is under construction south through the center of the State. It is also understood that Mr. Hill, together with former Senator Clark, has other important construction plans in view.

"I haven't any news to give out," said Mr. Hill. "We are going fishing. It is just about time for the beginning of the trout season."

"I think all I can say about it is that for about two weeks and see something of the country," said Mr. Baker. "I am not a railroad man. We are simply going to look over the properties."

Darius Miller, president of the Burlington, was in conference with the three men and accompanied them to the train.

WISCONSIN TO RETIRE.

Battleship Makes Last Visit to New York—Crew to Man the New Delaware.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

NEW YORK, April 23.—The battleship Wisconsin, whose sailors have made themselves famous as the publishers of "The Badges," is anchored in the Hudson today for what will in all probability be her last visit to New York.

Not quite ten years ago the Wisconsin was launched at San Francisco. When she leaves New York next week, she will go into retirement from active service in the navy yard at Portsmouth, N. H. Most of her men will be transferred to serve the rest of their time on the battleship Delaware, one of the new Dreadnoughts.

The principal event of the Wisconsin's stay in New York will be a farewell reception on Tuesday night, to "Murphy," the Wisconsin's kangaroo and perhaps the most famous mascot in the American navy. Murphy will go with the long term men to the Delaware.

BRYAN BACKS MARSHALL.

Commends Governor's Efforts to Have Convention Name Democrat for Senate—Taggart Opposes.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

INDIANAPOLIS, April 23.—It was learned today that William J. Bryan had written Gov. Marshall, indorsing the Governor's efforts to have the Democratic State convention next week propose a candidate for the United States Senate.

The proposition to the convention endorsing a candidate for the Senate is being led by Thomas Taggart, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, who is a Senatorial candidate.

NEWS REPORTS FROM CORRESPONDENTS OF THE TIMES.

PASADENA.

SEEK SUMMITS TO GET COOL.

People Rush to Mountain Resorts in Droves.

Swift Auto Driver Leaves Bail With Police.

Schiffman Party Back from Visit to Manila.

Office of The Times, No 26 S. Raymond Ave.

PASADENA, April 24.—The exsissive heat of the past three days has started people to the mountain resorts in droves. While the thermometers in Pasadena yesterday stood at the 100 degrees mark for several hours, the air was cooler than on Friday, and no one suffered particularly from the heat. The humidity was below 12 per cent. and comfort was easily obtained in the shade. Early dispatches told of the severe snow storm in Chicago and the Great Lakes region, which made the heat of Southern California much more pleasant, and many really enjoyed the pleasant summer day.

The travel to Mt. Wilson was so heavy late yesterday afternoon that the hotel ran out of accommodations and the late arrivals made so much noise that word was sent down the trail at 8 o'clock to allow no one up until daylight. The people are seeking the mountains for two reasons. The main reason is get the excellent view of Halley's comet, which is obtained there. Saturday morning it could be easily seen with the naked eye. Every one at the mountain resorts last night left calls for 3 o'clock this morning so they could be up and dressed before the comet put in its appearance.

Preparations are being made for still heavier travel up the mountain trails today.

FAST DRIVER.

Frank R. Strong, who stated he is a real estate man with offices at No. 147 South Broadway Los Angeles was arrested yesterday afternoon charged with exceeding the speed limit while driving his automobile on Orange Grove avenue. He was taken to the police station, where his bail was fixed at $50 for his appearance in Police Court Tuesday morning.

BACK FROM ORIENT.

Dr. Rudolph Schiffman and party arrived home yesterday from Manila and other oriental points, after absence of six weeks. The party spent several days in Japan.

Will Carr, a colored lad 17 years old, was arrested yesterday morning charged with stealing a sack full of new clothing from the Lewis N. Merritt store, Friday night. The lad was seen early in the morning sneaking along in the alley with the gunny sack over his shoulder. He was stopped by a policeman. As the officer started to pull out new neckties, suspenders, collars, handkerchiefs and other articles the lad broke and ran. After a hard chase he was overtaken. He confessed to stealing the goods and was sent to the Detention Home.

SHOOTS AT CAT.

Jim Griffin, a colored man living at No. 201 Clay street, was arrested yesterday on a warrant sworn out by his neighbor named Philbe, charging him with attempting to shoot a cat. Griffin was enraged because the animal meowed loud and long in front of his door. He grabbed a 22-caliber gun. At the first shot the cat ran under the house of Philbe. Griffin fired a second time at the hole where the cat disappeared and the bullet plowed a hole through the domicile of neighbor Philbe, wherefore the warrant was sworn out and Griffin was arrested. Upon promising never to shoot at another cat, he was golden ruled.

SUBSCRIPTION DANCE.

Delightful was the subscription dance at the Valley Hunt Club last night, for the children of members. The arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Henry Sherk and Mrs. Wotkyns. The club rooms were beautifully decorated with roses and ferns. The patronesses were Mmes. Robbins, Sharp, Staats, Stimson, Wotkyns, Wright, Barry, Bailey, Welch, Sherk and Cruickshank. Those present were Genevieve Torrey, Dorothy and Florence Bailey, Joe Wadsworth, Chambliss Lowther, Otto Behr, Allan Sharp, Theodore Robbins, Elizabeth Wotkyns, Isabelle Watson, Janie Stimson, Fred High, Justin Barker, Chester Alcutt, Drynen Berry, Elsa Morse, Grosvenor Morse, Westlake Morse, Martha and Mildred Smith, Marjorie Palmer, Helen Shinn, Herbert and Libby Childs, Harry Collier, Dorothy Gilby, Dorothy Vandevort, Janet Christy, George Girouard, Fred and Richard Gartz, Lorraine Warden, Laura Elliot, Mahlon Stambach, Robert Smith, Katherine and Lewis Collins, Bryan Welch, Tom Vincent, Henry Wetherby, Katherine and Howard Wright, Waldron Green, Eliot Bandini.

A charming society event of yesterday was the afternoon tea given by Mrs. Catherine Warden at her home on St. John avenue in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Howard Dews. The hostess was assisted in receiving by Mrs. H. Page Warden, Mrs. Arthur A. Libby and Mrs. Edgar A. Bright of New Orleans. About sixty society women were present.

W. B. Gard, who is connected with the Sheriff's office in Los Angeles, will address the men's meeting of the Y.M. C.A. this afternoon at the First Baptist Church on the subject "Investment."

WILL BLESS STATUE.

Bishop Conaty Will Officiate at Ceremony at Hollywood Convent. Rattler Killed.

HOLLYWOOD, April 23.—At the Convent of the Immaculate Heart, Monday evening, Bishop Conaty will officiate at the blessing of the statue of Jeanne d'Arc, which was presented to the college by Miss Anna McDermott. The programme will open at 7:30 o'clock.

A. G. Bartlett's new pipe organ has arrived from Chicago and is being set in place at Vista Del Mar by expert workmen. It cost $10,000 and has twenty-seven stops and two manuals. Mr. Bartlett plans to open it with a large recital.

A rattlesnake four feet long and having six rattles and a button, was killed near the kitchen door of the McMillen residence on North Vine street, Friday. Miss McMillen observed the reptile as it coiled itself, and ran indoors to call her mother. She was not aware that it was a rattlesnake, but thought it was making a funny noise. Her brother shot it.

Ninety-seven degrees was registered here today and the wind prevailed from the north nearly all day, making a very disagreeable combination. Last night was oppressive until after midnight, when the wind freshened.

Gen. George B. Rodney has purchased the E. B. Kellogg place on North Sycamore, one of the most artistic pieces of property in the valley. The lot is 120x240 feet deep; consideration not stated.

A public meeting will be held Monday evening in the M. E. Church, South, corner Hollywood avenue and Vine street, at 8 o'clock. Rev. Dana W. Bartlett of the Bethlehem Institute will speak on "The Better City."

GATEWAY TO RESORTS.

Glendora Will Become It by Means of Mountain Road to San Gabriel Canyons.

GLENDORA, April 23.—With the construction of the projected mountain road and the completion of two miles of a combined trail and fire break, twenty feet wide, Glendora will become the gateway to the San Gabriel River summer resorts, and mining district, and of the Cold Water Cañon at the base of Mount San Antonio. The survey of the mountain road has been made and a force of men is now engaged building a trail and clearing the route surveyed of the dense growth and underbrush, preparatory to active road building.

The expense of building the two miles of firebreak and trail, about midway between Glendora and the Cold Water Cañon, necessary to connect the two plans, will be borne by the citizens of Glendora, and the county. The estimated cost is $275, of which the Supervisors will contribute about $200, and the citizens of Glendora $75. This work will be pushed to completion without delay by the forest service. The Glendora end of the trail was extended several miles by the forest rangers last year.

S. Webber, who conducts a health resort in the Cold Water Cañon, has constructed several miles of trail from the cañon in the direction of Glendora and from the same location to the summit of Old Baldy.

When this trail, to be known as the "San Gabriel divide trail," is completed, those desiring to do so, may ride a saddle horse with safety from Glendora to the summit of Mt. San Antonio.

The initial steps were taken to build the Glendora-Cold Water Cañon trail by Mr. Wemer and over 100 miners, prompted by a desire to eliminate a distance of fifteen miles to a base of supplies which they could easily do by opening communcations more directly with Glendora.

The Cold Water Cañon is considered by mountaineers to be the finest in the San Gabriel mountain district, and now that easy access will soon be established will attract wide attention as a surpassingly beautiful health resort.

SOLDIERS' HOME.

SOLDIERS' HOME, April 23.—General Orders No. 16, announces the "honorable discharge," as their own request, of Obed W. Barnard, Jacob Biedler, Thomas J. Blackburn, S. R. Chamberlain, Charles E. Cochrane, W. W. Crawford, F. A. Curtis, G. A. Dills, J. W. Fisher, E. H. Gibbon, Soloman Gillaspie, H. K. Goodwin, J. W. Green, C. S. Harrington, L. M. Head, Emil Heinig, A. H. Hodge, C. R. Hoogs, S. S. Householder, William Jammas, G. J. Kauffman, Samuel Maetrenia, H. J. Mattern, Henry Moulder, J. R. McDowell, John Pickering, Samuel Pollock, Ginsippi, L. F. G. Romanello, M. J. Rosky, Frank Siegert, C. B. Smith, James Sweeney, A. R. Wall, James West, L. S. Wheeler and S. H. Wood.

The Marverick Baseball Club, of Los Angeles, put it over the Soldiers' Home team in good shape today. The latter in addition to being handicapped in the battery—Kellie failing to show up—did a scandalous lot of muffing, whereby five runs were added to the score of the Los Angeles boys. The score at the close of the game stood: Mavericks, 9; Soldiers' Home, 5.

REDONDO BEACH.

REDONDO BEACH, April 22.—A committee from the Woman's Club composed of Mmes. Harrington W. Hyde W. A. Anderson and W. A. Galentine, met yesterday afternoon to make final arrangements for the annual social meeting of the club. It was decided to have a luncheon at Hotel Redondo Saturday next at 1 o'clock. There will be toasts and after-dinner speeches by club members, also music by a stringed orchestra. One of the parlors will be reserved for the afternoon and cards will be played.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cate of No. 207 North Catalina street and their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Cate, son and daughter, and Mrs. Sims are here from Illinois, and were extensively entertained this week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Thompson have returned from a pleasant vacation trip about Southern California. Mr. Thompson is manager of Hotel Redondo.

VENICE.

VENICE, April 23.—Officers of the Chamber of Commerce have been informed by the highway commission that bids have been opened for the building of the Washington road link of the good roads boulevard that is to connect Los Angeles with the sea. The plans have been accepted and the decision reached as to the award of the contract. This action will be ratified Monday, and the promise is made that

ANXIOUS.

FEARS BEING BOTTLED UP.

Application Has Suspicious Look to Council.

Pacific Electric Asks for Valuable Franchise.

Long Beach Worked Up Over Harbor Problem.

LONG BEACH, April 23.—What is regarded by many as an attempt to "bottle up" the municipal docks in the interests of the Pacific Electric and Southern Pacific and thus control the shipping out of Long Beach is before the City Council in the form of an application for a franchise for spur track extension. The application was made under the provision for steam road franchises and presented to Council last night at a few minutes before midnight by Attorney E. C. Denio, representing the Pacific Electric interests. It is innocent enough on its face, as it asks for a franchise to start from the intersection of Riverside Drive and Third street, run south and southeasterly across a private right of way on Riverside Drive to Water street and thence to Second street, with privilege of double or single track and all necessary switches and turnouts. The Pacific Electric officials say they ask for the franchise to enable them to be able to reach the Craig ship plant and the municipal docks, with a view of handling their share of the freight traffic. They say the interstate commerce law would compel them to handle switching business of other roads and also allow other roads to cross their tracks, while the city would have absolute power to fix maximum freight charges on its docks.

But Councilmen, who have been expecting a move of this kind and have investigated the matter, say that the route selected is the only available entrance for other roads to the docks and to grant the franchise would place the city at the mercy of the railroads so far as charges are concerned. The result would be that even with free wharfage, rates could be fixed that would destroy all this advantage to shippers. The general idea of the Council heretofore has been for the city to build its own railroad tracks from the wharf along the route indicated and allow all roads to use them without preference.

The Council took the application under advisement and intimated to the Pacific Electric that before it was further considered there were some concessions which would be asked for in the way of 5 cent fares within the present city limits, parking the bluff along the right of way on the Alamitos Bay line east of Bixby Park, a time limit on the new building at the foot of Pine avenue, and several other small matters, concerning which the road has heretofore turned a deaf ear.

TITLE CONFERENCE.

After a two days conference between attorneys, some of them specially interested on the subject of tide line titles, the point raised by Attorney Trowbridge of the Edison Company, relative to the validity of the titles held by the Dock and Terminal Company on the inner harbor has been satisfactorily settled. The agreement for the Edison site on the harbor is now in escrow as are also the contracts between all the parties concerned. The only thing to delay the passing of the deeds is the release by the Salt Lake of its bonded indebtedness on the land to be bought from the railroad, which will require about two weeks.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.

Olney Lynn, aged 17, is in a critical condition, from a bullet wound in the left temple, accidentally self inflicted. Last night, while at home alone, he found an old 32-caliber revolver. While examining it a mouse ran across the floor. Thrusting the revolver away to get a better view of the animal his finger pressed the trigger and the revolver was discharged. The bullet took a diagonal course upward along the skull and lodged in the back of the head. The lad was found unconscious by the family and had lost a great deal of blood. He was unconscious until this morning.

Word has been received here that Marco Vessella, for several years director of the municipal band and lately head of a big traveling organization, is suffering with tuberculosis and is in Southern Texas in a critical condition.

The Council last night decided that as the Civil Service Commission and City Attorney could not agree upon the status of Capt. Clayton McCord, of the police force, whose office was abolished, that to avoid a lawsuit the office be restored. It began legal steps to that end.

Fred T. Stremberg died this morning at his home on Anaheim street. He was a native of New York and 28 years of age. He leaves a widow and one child.

FALLS ON HAIRPIN.

The two-year-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Parkinson, living on Pacific avenue, while playing this morning fell upon a large sized hairpin which had been partially straightened out. The point entered the roof of the mouth, penetrating an inch. The injury though painful will not result seriously unless blood poisoning sets in.

Mrs. F. B. Sims of Natchez, Miss., has written the police asking them to locate her son, B. F. Campbell, who is supposed to be in the city. He wrote his mother February from San Francisco that he had been honorably discharged from the navy and would be home in a few days. Nothing more was heard from him, but a few days ago Mrs. Sims received a wedding card from a Mrs. Liebig of this city, announcing the marriage on March 5 of her daughter to Campbell. So far neither Campbell nor Mrs. Liebig have been located.

The Seaside Investment Company directors this morning decided to install thirty-two bathrooms in the basement of Hotel Virginia.

The City Council last night by ordinance ordered the removal of all telephone and telegraph poles from the streets of the business district and the placing of all wires underground.

FIRE ALARMS LORDSBURG.

Blaze Which Destroys Barns for a Time Threatens Large Packing-Houses.

LORDSBURG, April 22.—Three barns, ten cords of wood and some automobile supplies, of a total value of $2000, were destroyed by fire of unknown origin this afternoon. The blaze

Oscar Keiser, where a goat was burned to death.

The automobile chemical engines from Pomona and San Dimas, telephoned for, arrived in time to confine the fire to the barns. For a while, before they reached here, it looked as if the large packing-houses belonging to Valentine Peyton and the La Verne Orange Growers' Association would be destroyed.

Great difficulty was experienced in getting enough water to run the chemical extinguishers. Residents had to be requested to turn off their garden hoses before the engines could be started.

WIFE STAYS IN HUBBY'S CELL.

POMONA MAYOR FINDS WOMAN IN CITY JAIL.

Marshal Will Be Asked to Explain Why Rules Are Allowed to Be Broken—Lad Escapes from Detention Home, But Is Captured by Constable.

POMONA, April 23.—Local residents have been greatly stirred today over the discovery by Mayor Firey night before last of the presence in the City Jail of Mrs. Frank Smith, wife of one of the men serving six month sentences in the local bastile for violating the city liquor ordinance.

The woman was admitted to the jail by City Marshal Wright last Sunday. When asked regarding this, the officer attempted an unsatisfactory explanation. It is alleged that other women have been admitted to the jail during the confinement there of the six "blind pig" proprietors, with the knowledge and consent of the city marshal and Nightwatchman Thomas.

Mayor Firey received information of conditions during the week and determined to do some investigating on his own account. Accordingly, in company with one of the night watchmen he unlocked the jail about midnight and went in. Although the place was dark, there was some scurrying and the slamming of a cell door.

In bed, in her husband's cell, Mrs. Smith was discovered. She was ordered out, but at first feigned illness. It later developed that she had been there since Sunday. The discovery has caused a sensation here, and the matter will be taken up at the next session of the City Trustees.

BOY IS RECAPTURED.

Willie Seagoe, the young incorrigible who was before Justice Barnes here this week for breaking into a grocery store, bound over to the Juvenile Court and from there sent to the Detention Home, escaped from the latter place Thursday night and returned here on a freight train. He has been again captured by Constable Slanker and was today returned to the authorities in Los Angeles.

HIGH SCHOOL GIVES PLAY.

The play "Esmeralda" presented by students of the senior class of the local high school at the Fraternal Aid Theater last night, was greeted with a crowded house, the young actors acquitting themselves well. Credit for the production is due Miss G. B. Metkiff, of the high school faculty, who directed the cast.

WAVE PROPERTY SOLD.

Ocean Front Land and Building at Santa Monica Has New Owner. Pier Improvements.

SANTA MONICA, April 23.—A real estate transaction closed today was that of the sale of the "Wave" property at the corner of Pier avenue and the ocean front. The purchaser is William Saulsbury, who bought from James Henderson, the stated consideration being $32,000 cash. This property, which has as an improvement a two-story frame building, has an ocean frontage of fifty feet and extends on Pier avenue to the Speedway alley, a distance of ninety-five feet. Another sale consummated today was that of an ocean front lot, midway between Pier avenue and Marine street, to Judson L. Packard. Robey Moore was the seller and the price said to have been paid was $12,000. The lot has a frontage of twenty-five feet and a depth of ninety-five. No improvements figured in the deal, although the lot is occupied by a three-story brick building. This was recently completed and holds the property on a long-time lease.

Improvements costing $1500 are to be made at once by Lycurgus Lindsay to the Hollister avenue pier. This work will consist of rebuilding the south wing to the entrance, which was recently so badly damaged by fire that it had to be torn down.

At the corner of Fifth and Hill street C. Cannell has commenced work on a $2000 residence.

OCEAN PARK.

OCEAN PARK, April 23.—A. S. Hickey reports the sale of two lots at the Center street corner of Trolleyway for a stated consideration of $10,000. A frame apartment house covers the lots.

A. W. Layne, inventor of the "Big Gun," says he will begin work within a few days on an amusement device to be located on the Marine street pier. The gun is to be fashioned after a coast defender and with breech near the auditorium and muzzle pointing toward Catalina it will stand guard over the bay. It will stand twenty-five feet high over all and have a length of more than 100 feet. It will have a passenger-carrying capacity of ninety. The trip consists of all the things which might happen to a party being fired as seated in a giant projectile and hurled through space, to Mars or the Halley comet. Mechanical devices will supply the thrills, while a moving picture mill will grind out the scenes en route and at the landing place. After the passengers take their seats in the projectile it is rolled into the gun, which is fired, and then the fun begins. The toy cannon will represent an outlay of $5000 and additional piling will be driven to support the device.

GAVE LIFE FOR CHILD.

CHICAGO, April 23.—Nelson Harrison, 43 years old, was burned to death today in a fire at his home, while trying to rescue a neighbor's child, which he supposed was sleeping on the second floor. His wife was badly burned and probably will die.

NATUROPATHS MEET.

Physicians' Association Holds Affair at Which Addresses Are Made and Programme Is Enjoyed.

Several hundred members and friends of the Association of Naturopathic Physicians held their annual celebration last night in the Gamut Club Hall, No. 1030 South Hope street and enjoyed instructive talks and musical entertainment.

The votaries of natural methods of treatment for disease were strong in their denunciation of the alleged "Medical Trust of California." They told of their struggle to gain recognition here, and their battle to obtain practitioner's licenses.

Dr. Carl Shultz was the principal speaker of the evening. The members of the society took a back-handed method of paying their respects to Dr. Shultz by presenting his wife with a diamond pin in appreciation of her loyalty to her husband during the trying periods of his career.

State Senator Hurd, gave a short talk endorsing Naturopathic methods in which he told why he had supported their cause. He called attention to the alleged "Medical Trust" and said that the dignitaries of this organization had tried to make Dr. Murphy, inventor of "Murphy's Button," undergo their test in order to disgrace him by undermarking his examination papers.

Although his talk was radical, he ended by advocating harmony among all the branches of the medical profession and took the Roger De Coverly method by saying that there was much to be said on both sides of the question.

Dr. Margaret C. Goettler spoke on the "History of Naturopathy." One of her statement, which paraphrased one of the ancients, was "one button hole banquet for the living is worth more than a thousand wreaths and laurels on the casket of the dead."

Several of the speakers were enthusiastic in praising the Golden State which is the first to grant licenses to the Naturopathic practitioners.

PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATIONS.

Four Million Acres Taken from Forest Reserves and Made Available for Homesteaders.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, April 23.—President Taft has signed the first of the proclamations providing a reclassification of the lands in the National Forests, which will throw 4,000,000 acres out of the forest reserve and make them available for homestead entry. At the same time, some lands not arable will be added to the forests.

More than 30,000 acres are ordered out of the Pecos National Forest in New Mexico and nearly 130,000 acres are added. In the Graces forest in Arizona 53,000 acres are thrown out.

The reclassification was one of the last things planned by Gifford Pinchot before he was deposed as forester. The proclamations are President Taft's first for the forest service.

MISCHIEF MAKER
A Surprise in Brooklyn.

An adult's food that can save a baby proves itself to be nourishing and easily digested and good for big and little folks. A Brooklyn man says:

"When baby got about eleven months old he began to grow thin and pale. This was, at first, attributed to the heat and the fact that his teeth were coming, but, in reality, the poor little thing was starving, his mother's milk not being sufficient nourishment.

"One day after he had cried bitterly for an hour, I suggested that my wife try him on Grape-Nuts. She soaked two teaspoonfuls in a saucer with a little sugar and warm milk. The baby ate so ravenously that she fixed a second, which he likewise finished.

"It was not many days before he forgot all about being nursed, and has since lived almost exclusively on Grape-Nuts. Today the boy is strong and robust, and as cute a mischief-maker as a thirteen-months-old baby is expected to be.

"We have put before him other foods, but he will have none of them, evidently preferring to stick to that which did him so much good—his old friend, Grape-Nuts.

"Use this letter any way you wish, for my wife and I can never praise Grape-Nuts enough after the brightness it has brought to our household."

Grape-Nuts is not made for a baby food, but experience with thousands of babies shows it to be among the best, if not entirely the best in use. Being a scientific preparation of Nature's grains, it is equally effective as a body and brain builder for grown-ups.

GUSHER AT FULLERTON.

Union Oil Company Brings in Well on Bastanchury Ranch.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

FULLERTON, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Union Oil Company brought in a well this afternoon on the Bastanchury ranch. The well is a gusher, though what capacity it is too early to tell, but the prospect is fine. This is the first well on this lease and means much to Fullerton, as practically all the territory is within the city limits. The people are greatly interested in the development of this lease.

SENSATIONAL.

SAYS OSTEOPATH BLIGHTS LIFE.

SANTA ANA WOMAN FILES SUIT FOR DAMAGES.

She Alleges That Attack Is Made Upon Her While on Operating Table in Her Home and That Fear of Disgrace Caused Her to Hide Truth. Marriage Licenses.

SANTA ANA, April 23.—Mrs. Frances M. Marshall of Anaheim today brought suit for $10,000 damages against Dr. Walker W. Adams, an osteopathic physician of Anaheim. Mrs. Marshall alleges that Dr. Adams has ruined her life. The complaint is one of the most sensational filed in this county for many months.

It alleges that in July, 1905, Dr. Adams had rooms rented from Mr. and Mrs. Henry Marshall at Santa Paula as a branch office, his headquarters being at Oxnard. Mrs. Marshall took treatments from the osteopath. On July 25, while the husband and three children were absent, and while Mrs. Marshall was upon the operating table, the physician is alleged to have forced criminal intimacy. The complaint states that he then told the woman that he would swear she was to blame if she dared tell any one.

At the first opportunity, the woman started to tell her husband, who flew into a passion, declared that his wife was in love with Dr. Adams, shook her, refused to hear the story, and in end compelled her to leave him. Later Mrs. Marshall secured a divorce, and was earning her own living when Dr. Adams by threatening her with exposure at Santa Paula compelled her to move to Los Angeles to be near Dr. Adams who had moved to Anaheim.

Continually fearing disgrace the woman says she submitted to mistreatment by Adams. Several times she fled to be rid of him but each time he discovered her whereabouts she says. Thus Mrs. Marshall moved back to Santa Paula, then to Los Angeles, then to Garden Grove. While in Los Angeles she studied at the Osteopathic Medical College. To avoid disgrace she asserts she moved to San Diego then to South Kansas City, Mo., and finally back to Anaheim.

The complaint alleges that the plaintiff had been so impressed with the belief that no one would believe in her innocence that she submitted to Adams and dared tell none until she told her attorney E. E. Keech and her daughter.

The complaint further alleges that the defendant in order to more completely discourage her from revealing the truth told her she was only one of many respected and pure women he had forced into intimacy, that he selected that class because fear of disgrace would keep them from disclosing their wrongs.

WILL GET DAUGHTER.

Mrs. Dolores Martinez of Los Angeles is to receive her 6-year-old daughter Alvina, next Monday, according to the order of the Superior Court. The mother, a penniless widow, gave the child over to Manuel Tapia and his wife of Anaheim several years ago. The child was afflicted with blindness, and Tapia asserted he spent a large sum for the care of her eyes, and she finally regained her sight. Recently the mother was married and is now able to care for her daughter. Habeas corpus proceedings were instituted a few days ago. Tapia was ordered to bring the child to court yesterday, but failed to do so. The mother testified she had given the child to Mrs. Tapia only, and that Mrs. Tapia is now dead. Judge West issued an order that Tapia bring the child to court Monday to be given over to the mother.

LAUNDRY BUILDING BURNS.

Loss of Fifteen Thousand Dollars Is Caused by Blaze in a Redlands Establishment.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

REDLANDS, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] One of the buildings of the Redlands Steam Laundry Company burned to the ground this afternoon. The loss is about $15,000, insurance $5000. Employés noticed a sound like that coming from an exhaust pipe, but paid no attention. Soon men from a neighboring packing-house rushed in shouting "the laundry is on fire." Several employés had narrow escapes, so quickly did the building burn.

The fire department was on the scene in three minutes but could do nothing. Much linen was in the laundry, particularly hotel work. The owners, W. M. McIntosh, W. P. Mc-

Orange Growers Concerned at Too Much Heat.

Walnut Trees Benefited in the Santa Ana Valley.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RIVERSIDE, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Riverside experienced today one of the hottest April days ever known here. The mercury made a jump from a minimum temperature of 52 early this morning to 103 at noon. At 6 o'clock this evening the temperature stood at 90 degrees. Orange growers feel some concern over the unseasonable heat, as they fear it may injure the coming navel orange crop. The trees are blooming freely just now and the earlier blossoms are setting, hence the hot wave comes at a critical time.

NO BLISTERS.

WEST WIND STIRS AIR.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN BERNARDINO, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] From 48 degrees, the minimum temperature reached last night, to an altitude of 102 degrees today, the premature summer season completed a stunt in high vaulting not before accomplished in forty years. But San Bernardino Valley neither sizzled nor blistered, for a west wind, coming in from the sea by way of Chino Valley, kept the air astir, noticeably breaking the force of the high temperature. The hot wave has forced the irrigating of orange groves in many sections a month or more earlier than usual, but though the drain on the artesian basin thus commences in advance of any previous records, the prediction is freely made that the water supply is more than sufficient to meet the demands upon it. Heavy rains during the past winter have brought the water level in this valley so near the surface that artesian wells which ceased many years ago have had to be capped to prevent their flowing. A feature of today's hot spell was the sudden dropping of the mercury after 4 o'clock, the temperature falling two degrees every fifteen minutes, and by 6 o'clock 75 degrees was reached. Local weather sharps make Halley's Comet and Venus responsible, Venus having outshone the sun at mid-day, the phenomenon attracting attention throughout the valley.

FREQUENT FIRES.

NO SERIOUS DAMAGE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Today's highest temperature was 96, reached at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The minimum was 64. At noon the temperature stood at 91. Hot winds ran it up to 96, but by 4 o'clock cooling breezes caused the mercury to travel downward, 36 degrees being registered at 5 p.m. This is the hottest day recorded in recent years. Grass and grain fields are withering rapidly and frequent fires are started, but so far no serious damage is reported.

SUCH A CLIMBER.

UP GOES THERMOMETER.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SANTA BARBARA, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Santa Barbara experienced the hottest day of the season thus far, when the therometer climbed to 95 at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon and remained there for one hour. As there was an eight-mile breeze blowing and the humidity very low, 28, the heat caused little suffering. The minimum temperature was 50 deg.

SLIGHT BREEZE.

ZEPHYR HELPS VENTURA.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

VENTURA, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The weather has been exceedingly hot at this place for three years, hotter than in any April for years. Today the maximum temperature reached 98, minimum 60, the highest being at 2 p.m. It was slightly warmer yesterday, there being just a slight breeze blowing from the sea most of today. So far no damage is reported to the growing hay or beet crops, though neither could stand many days of such weather. A haziness over the sea this afternoon is thought to presage cooler temperature tomorrow.

HEAT BENEFICIAL.

WALNUTS RID OF BLIGHT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SANTA ANA, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Temperature today, maximum 99, minimum 63.

According to the records of Justin Copeland on Sycamore street, the maximum was reached at 2 o'clock. In the foothills the hot weather has damaged bee and stock feed somewhat. In the valley pumping plants and ditch systems are offsetting much of the dryness of the spell.

There being fear expressed that some damage may have been done to the tender walnuts, A. C. Tiede secretary of the Santa Ana Valley Walnut Growers' Association, was questioned and said: "I think no damage has been done the walnuts. Instead good has been done if anything."

One grower said that this hot spell has rid the orchards of blight, that had begun to show up as the result of damp weather.

Bean growers are busy harrowing to keep their ground in shape.

SEVERE ON CROPS.

HUNDRED IN SHADE.

EL MONTE, April 23.—The exceptionally hot weather of the past two days has been severe upon growing crops, but as yet no great damage has been done. The thermometer stood 100 deg. in the shade part of today.

WARM PERIOD TO CLOSE.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23.—The warm period will come to a close, Sunday says the Weather Bureau observer. The pressure has fallen steadily over the intermountain section. Maximum temperatures today were: San Francisco, 87; Fresno, 100; Los Angeles, 100; San Diego, 96.

War practice, which will continue throughout the summer in Narragansett Bay, R. I., began before dawn yesterday, when Fort Adams and Wetherill were attacked by small steamers, theoretically designed as battleships. The forts quickly located

San Diego Detective Found to Have Been Indiscreet, Is Asked to Resign—La Jolla Threatened by Brush Fire—Citizens Keep Flames from Their Handsome Homes.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Although exonerated by the City Council of the charges preferred against him by a former fellow officer, Detective Marshal Smith was asked to resign, which request he complied with.

Hearing of the charge occupied the entire day. The specific complaints made by former officer H. M. Stanley were that Smith had assaulted Stanley's wife, that he had accepted $50 from a woman of the red light district as a loan to pay his attorney's fees and that he had been paid bribe money by Chinese lottery keepers. The Council found Smith not guilty of these charges, but said that the officer had been indiscreet in his conduct and that for the good of the service he should resign. Smith says he will leave San Diego.

LA JOLLA THREATENED.

Threatened with the loss of their homes as a result of a brush fire of unusual size, the people of La Jolla, San Diego's noted seaside suburb, have fought the blaze all morning. The fire started early and it was only by hard work on the part of a majority of the male residents that the flames were driven back.

BREVITIES.

The majority of people are suffering from eyesight affections. Headaches, the eyes, inability to see clearly, are th eeyes, inability to see clearly, are evidences of existing eye troubles—eyestrain of some character. Cataracts and final blindness have their foundation in eyestrain, the result of wrongly-fitted glasses or a failure to wear glasses when needed. Inability to see clearly should be recognized as a danger signal, and its cause at once investigated. Few opticians pay any attention to the internal conditions of the eyes. They sell glasses about as a grocer sells breakfast foods, and the trusting public is the sufferer. Only a trained specialist who investigates all the conditions of the eyes should be consulted when one is suffering from headaches, nervousness, or indistinct vision. Years of study and experience enable me to determine the real cause of defective eyesight conditions and correct the same, either by proper treatment or by correctly-fitted glasses. All work done is guaranteed correct. Dr. McCleery, specialist and optician, 455 So. Broadway, over Owl Drug Store.

PLAYGROUND RECEPTION.

Commission Members Are Guests at Affair Given by Residents Near Slauson Avenue Place.

Delighted parents and patrons of the Slauson Avenue Playground, which the city established recently near the Junction of Slauson and Long Beach avenues, gave a supper and informal reception last evening in honor of the members of the Playground Commission, and it was attended by almost every resident of the vicinity. The event had been planned by the women of the neighborhood, and the men were pressed into service when needed.

The supper was prepared entirely by the mothers and sisters, and cousins and aunts, of the little folks who find fun and recreation at the playground. The big frame building, which is the playhouse and entertainment hall for the boys and girls, was attractively decorated for the occasion and the Polytechnic High School orchestra was in attendance.

Mrs. Willoughby Rodman, president of the commission; Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Lamb and Miss Lamb; Miss Bessie Stoddard, the secretary, and C. B. Haitt, superintendent of the city's playgrounds, were present, and joined in the general speechmaking that followed the elaborate repast. There were many interesting features in the informal entertainment provided.

GETTING WISE.

VALUABLE FRANCHISES MAY BE INVALIDATED.

Grand Jury After Public Utility Corporations Which Have Ignored Their Duty to County—Large Sums Due to Local Treasury.

ALL CORPORATIONS and individuals holding franchises granted by the Board of Supervisors, wherein are embodied conditions calling for the payment of specific sums of moneys, or the rendition of certain service to the county free of charge, are to be compelled to fulfill all the obligations imposed upon them if the law can reach them.

Just how many franchises of this character have been granted in Los Angeles county is not definitely known, but it is roughly estimated that there are 100. In many instances it is a condition of such franchises that they shall pay a stated percentage of their gross earnings into the county treasury every year; in some instances service of some sort is to be rendered.

Nothwithstanding these requirements, only one corporation holding one of the these franchises, and not a single individual likewise favored, has ever paid a dollar to the county. This statement is made by Clarence Mallard, chief deputy to County Auditor Dow, who has been connected with that office for many years. The one exception is the Union Oil Company, which recently paid over approximately $2000 as the amount due, being 3 per cent of the gross earnings of certain subsidiary companies holding franchises in this county.

LARGE SUMS DUE.

While it is practically impossible to estimate with any degree of accuracy the aggregate amount of money due this county from these sources, it is conceded by all officials interviewed yesterday that the sum must be very large. The grand jury has taken the matter up, and an investigation has also been under way from the District Attorney's office.

Official notices have been sent to many of these franchise holders, and they will be sent to all of them, for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are operating under the franchises or not.

In this connection an interesting legal question has been raised. The Pacific Light and Power Company, has refused to recognize the provision of its franchise whereby it is directed to pay into the County Treasury annually 3 per cent. of its gross earnings. The corporation maintains that this feature of the contract is illegal on the ground that the county has no authority to demand this 3 per cent., because the State law on the subject did not, at the time the franchise was granted, extend to other than municipalities.

It is contended that boards of Supervisors had authority only to exact 2 per cent.; that inasmuch as the Supervisors exceeded their authority all the provisions of the franchise are invalid.

Other questions that tend to complicate the situation are found in cases where franchises were granted in districts that were at the time in incorporated sections, but are now incorporated in the city of Los Angeles. As a general proposition, Deputy Dist.-Atty. Shaw, who has the investigation in hand for the District Attorney's office, says he is of the opinion that the provisions of the franchises are still enforceable.

OWNERSHIP CHANGES.

Many changes have taken place in the ownership of these franchises. For example: A franchise granted to A. W. Burt in 1900 is now utilized by the Pacific Light & Power Co. Another important change is found in the case of the Kern River & Los Angeles Electrical Power Co., which obtained a franchise February 13, 1896, and is now operated by the Kern River company.

While the District Attorney's office was delving into the later records The Times was going back into earlier county history. In Book of Franchises No. 1, which dates from January 6, 1874, there is found Ordinance No. 138 (old series) granting to the Kern River & L. A. Electrical Power Co., the right to maintain and operate an electric transmission and distribution system over the public highways of the county for fifty years.

It is provided that the company "shall, from, and after twelve years from the passage of this ordinance, furnish during the remaining thirty-eight years of the term of this franchise, free of cost to the county of Los Angeles at the power station of said company near the city limits of Los Angeles, electrical energy for the use of said county not to exceed, however, at any time, the equivalent of fifty horse power."

Ex-Supervisor James Hanley, who was a member of the board that granted this franchise, said when seen by a Times reporter, that it was the understanding at the time the franchise was granted that the company was to light the County Courthouse free of charge; that this was the purpose of requiring the free supply of electrical energy up to fifty horse power.

It costs Los Angeles county annually about $6500 for gas and light, and County Auditor Dow says that less than $100 of this sum is paid out for gas.

LAW IS IGNORED.

During the last ten years, or since the adoption of the New Series of Ordinances, which began in 1900, fourteen ordinances have been enacted by the County Supervisors, in each case granting a franchise that called for the payment of funds to the county in consideration of the privileges bestowed. In not a single instance, says Deputy Dist.-Atty. Shaw, has a single dollar been paid into the county treasury on account thereof.

In this connection, however, it is assumed that several of the corporations named herein have gone out of business, some never engaged in the enterprises for which they secured the franchises, and the others are now receiving the attention of the grand jury.

In each and every case it is a condition of these franchises that 2 or 3 per cent. of the gross receipts shall be paid to the county, with specified restrictions in a few instances as to franchise privileges outside of incorporated municipalities, receipts inside and outside of cities, and as to whether sworn statements of receipts were to be required or not. In each case, however, it was clearly set forth that such payments were to be made.

The official list is as follows:

Ordinance No. 27, adopted September 12, 1900—Franchise to Arthur W. Burt for electric power line for forty years, from San Bernardino county through Los Angeles county, guarantee to pay on July 15, 1906, and every year after, 3 per cent. of gross receipts from all sources outside of municipal corporations. Statements of revenues to be furnished.

Ordinance No. 28 (N. S.,) adopted December 14, 1900—To Artesian Water Co., for fifty years for water pipes on roads in Ranchos Sausal Redondo, La Balona, Rincon, De Los Bueyes, Los Cienegas, Cienega De La Tijera, and Centinella, to pay on July 15, 1906, and every year thereafter, 3 per cent. of the gross receipts.

Ordinance No. 29 (N. S.,) adopted December 26, 1900—To D. H. Thomas for thirty years for electric railway from Whittier to Los Angeles, at Stephenson avenue, payments to begin July 15, 1906.

Ordinance No. 41 (N. S.,) adopted June 18, 1901—To East Pasadena Land & Water Co., for thirty years for water pipes in all roads in Ranchos San Pasqual and Santa Anita, payments of 3 per cent. to begin July 15, 1906.

Ordinance No. 54 (N. S.,) adopted June 4, 1902—To Pacific Light & Power Co., for fifty years for electric pole and wire line in and about Hollywood, payments of 3 per cent. to begin July 15, 1908.

Ordinance No. 58 (N. S.,) adopted June 30, 1902—Duplicate of Ordinance No. 54 to meet technical errors in original ordinance.

Ordinance No. 61 (N. S.,) adopted October 21, 1902—To Mission Transportation & Refining Co., for fifty years for oil pipe line from Orange county to point on Salt Lake Railroad near mouth of San Gabriel River; also Norwalk to Los Angeles; also to erect telephone line for private use over same route; 2 per cent. payments to begin July 1, 1903.

Ordinance No. 63 (N. S.,) adopted December 2, 1902—To F. A. Powell for thirty years for electric power line over certain roads in Maclay Rancho and all roads in town of San Fernando; 2 per cent. payments to begin July 15, 1908.

Ordinance No. 82 (N. S.,) adopted August 4, 1903—To Edison Electric Co., for thirty years for electric power system over all streets in Lordsburg and Claremont, and Harrison street, Pomona; 3 per cent. payments to begin July 1, 1904.

Ordinance No. 86 (N. S.,) adopted October 6, 1903—To United Electric Gas & Power Co., for thirty years for electric system from Santa Monica to San Pedro; also to Soldiers' Home, Long Beach and Redondo Beach; 3 per cent. payments to begin October 15, 1908.

Ordinance No. 97 (N. S.,) adopted February 8, 1904—To Downey Electric Light & Power Co., for pole and wire system on streets in the vicinity of Downey, Clearwater, Hynes, Rivera and Santa Fé Springs; 3 per cent. payments to begin March 15, 1909.

Ordinance No. 110 (N. S.,) adopted June 27, 1904—To E. V. Baker for thirty years for electric pole and wire system on streets in vicinity of Huntington Park; 3 per cent. payments to begin August 15, 1909.

Ordinance No. 115 (N. S.,) adopted October 18, 1904—To Pacific Electric Railway Co., for electric pole and wire line on Hill avenue near Long Beach; and on Los Felis Road from Los Angeles city to Griffith Park; 3 per cent. payments to begin July 15, 1909.

Ordinance No. 113 (N. S.,) adopted August 23, 1904—To Salt Lake Oil Co., for thirty years for oil pipe line on First street and other streets west of Los Angeles; 3 per cent. payments to begin July 15, 1909.

A different condition attaches to a franchise granted to W. D. Larabee, and his assigns, but the clause regarding payment of money to the county was part of it, nevertheless. Ordinance No. 105 (O. S.) which became effective October 20, 1893, gave him a franchise to construct and operate an electric railway over Pasadena avenue from the north boundary line of the city to the south boundary line of South Pasadena:

"Upon the further condition that the said grantee, his successors or assigns, shall pay to the county treasury on the first day of December of each year, one-third of the cost of sprinkling said highway, over which said railroad runs, for the entire length of said highway occupied by said railroad for the year ending on December 1, said cost to be ascertained and determined by the Board of Supervisors for said county; but said one-third of the cost thereof shall not exceed $300 in any one year."

"No payment has ever been made, to my knowledge," said Auditor Dow.

"Whose duty is it to see that the provisions of these franchise ordinances are enforced?" was asked.

Secretary McPherran of the Board of Supervisors thinks it is in the office of the District Attorney.

Inquiry at the Auditor's and Treasurer's offices met with less light—neither department was informed on the subject.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Shaw, however, was not at loss for an answer, when the inquiry was addressed to him. Taking up the Polical Code of California, he turned to Section 4001, pertaining to county government, and read: "Counties—Their powers can only be exercised by the Board of Supervisors, or by agents and officers acting under their authority, or authority of law."

PICNIC MAY MEAN DEATH.

Schoolgirl Terribly Injured by Fall of Few Feet from Swing in Park Yesterday.

A fall from an iron swing at Sycamore Grove Park yesterday morning may cause the death of Elsie Hicks, thirteen years of age, in the sixth grade of the Euclid avenue school.

That the child should have been so terribly injured seems almost incredible, because she dropped only a few feet.

It was a picnic day for the school children. Under the guidance of Principal Fox they went early for the park. Many were accompanied by their parents. This was the case with the Hicks girl, whose mother and two little sisters were with her.

The youngsters were playing games and enjoying athletic events when Elsie went over to one of the large swings. With shouts of laughter she swung to and fro, her companions joining in the sport. Whether she became dizzy or was affected by the heat cannot be determined, but she suddenly fell forward on her head. Her companions did not think that she was any more seriously injured than a hard bump, but when she did not recover consciousness, a hurry call was sent to the Receiving Hospital.

There an examination showed that the injuries might prove fatal. The child had sustained a probable fracture at the base of the brain. The femur bone in her right leg was fractured. A front tooth had been torn out by the fall, she was scratched and bruised, and had a deep laceration over her eye. There were other lacerations and probable internal injuries. She is now in the County Hospital.

"SOONERS."

EARLY CROP OF TROUBLE.

Settlers Go to the Land Office Protesting.

Palo Verde Valley Claims in Strange Mix-up.

Gun Men Bold and Riddle a Country Store.

Many of the hundreds of locators in the Palo Verde Valley who had just received notification of the suspension from entry of lands upon which they have squatted, yesterday sent in strong protests to the land office against the action of the United States surveyor-general, who issued the edict. This withdrew from entry all lands restored thereto last January included in the application of the State of California to have certain sections declared swamp and overflow.

Although the local land office posted notice of the suspension of the Palo Verde lands last Monday, valley locators did not know it until Friday, and yesterday many "sooners" returned to Los Angeles and voiced their objections. The order is taken to mean that the work of the locators may be all for naught. Not until after June 15 will the question of restoring the lands to entry be decided.

The hearing on that date in the local land office before the United States Surveyor-General will determine whether a large tract of land in the Palo Verde Valley is overflowed land. If the land under suspension is proved to be swamp land the State of California will lay claim to it, otherwise it will be open to entry under the government land law. These same sections in the Palo Verde Valley were declared open for filing May 18, and open to settlement April 18.

"SCOUTS" DISAPPOINTED.

Prior to April 18, several hundred land locators rushed into the Palo Verde Valley to "scout out" the good pieces open to settlement, and be on hand for the "run," which was officially set for one minute after 12 o'clock, Monday morning, the 18th inst. A great many sections were clouded by contests on relinquished claims, and the amount of land absolutely free from contests was much less than the number of sections advertised by the land office.

In consequence about three out of five applicants for land were unable to settle, or had the alternative of sharing their chances to get a quarter section with from three to eight other applicants. On top of this disappointment was piled the latest order suspending a large portion of the lowlands from entry till the hearing on June 15, which will determine the nature and ownership of the land.

Whether the settlement effected since lost Monday is void has not been announced as yet by the land officials. Providing the settlers now on the land are allowed to remain a large majority of them will be greatly inconvenienced, because they planned to remain only until May 18, while they must remain until June 15, pending the outcome of the hearing.

Some of the locators assert the action of the Surveyor-General has been occasioned by the interference of certain local land agencies which operated in the valley two years ago, and which are now endeavoring to protect their clients from the settlers who rushed in Monday. Two years ago a concern operating here took land prospectors to the valley and "located" them at $1 per acre, claiming to give the purchasers a clear title.

FOR IRRIGATION SYSTEM.

The valley was withdrawn from settlement originally in 1903, when the government planned to build a dam across the Colorado and outlined an irrigation project which would water the entire region. Last January the government gave notification of the reopening of the land after last Monday. The concern referred to operated when the land was withdrawn from settlemet, and now proposes to cause trouble for new locators, according to the latter.

The contention that the land can be declared swamp and overflow is a CHANCE FOR CONGRESS.

Playground Association of America to Be Invited to Come to Los Angeles Next Year.

The Los Angeles Playground Commission is deeply interested in the Fourth Annual Congress of the Playground Association of America, which will convene in Rochester, June 10. It is unlikely that a representative will be sent to take part in the proceedings. There seems to be a diffidence on the part of the officers to ask the Council for an appropriation to cover the expenses of the trip for a delegate, and the department will rely upon some public-spirited citizen attending and unofficially representing Los Angeles. An invitation will be extended the Congress to meet in Los Angeles in 1911.

Many cities, however, will be represented at the Congress. A special meeting of municipal delegates will be held to discuss the whole question of the celebration of the Fourth of July. A committee of the association is now making a study of what different committees have done, and this committee will report at the Rochester meeting. For the preparation of its report, information is being gathered from nearly nine hundred cities.

Among the suggestions which the committee has received for a sane celebration of the Fourth are celebrations in each park, and hundreds of small celebrations throughout the city; the singing of patriotic songs by the children in the open; scores of parades with bands at the head; kite flying contests all over the city, and motion pictures of American history shown in the small parks in the evening. A unique idea which will arouse the enthusiasm of the children is that at noon on the Fourth, each child release a toy balloon with an American flag attached; also that all the church bells ring and that whistles blow.

LAST DAY OF GRACE.

Taxpayers Who Do Not Pay Tomorrow Will Have to Put Up Penalty for Lateness.

Taxpayers who do not wish to let go of their money until the last moment will flock to the County Tax Collector's office in scores tomorrow, the last day of grace. As a special dispensation for the tardy ones, funds will be received until 6 o'clock. After tomorrow all who have not paid will be branded delinquents, and will have to add the penalty.

It is apparent that the deficiency this year will be greater than last, although the per cent. will be less, as the taxes were increased more than $2,000,000. How great the deficiency will be will not be known until the middle of the week, as many persons will transmit their money by mail and it will take several days to check up all of the receipts.

A Woman Honored.

Mrs. Clara Shortridge Foltz, who was appointed deputy District Attorney yesterday.

INNOVATION.

FIRST WOMAN PROSECUTOR!

MRS. FOLTZ APPOINTED DEPUTY DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

Given Commission at Solicitation of Various Organizations of Weaker Sex, But Says She's Ready to Prosecute Men as Well as Children, if Assigned.

This city now has probably the only woman deputy district attorney in the country. She is Mrs. Clara Shortridge Foltz, who received a commission from Capt. Fredericks, yesterday, and will take the oath of office tomorrow.

The appointment came as a result of a request from the various woman's clubs and organizations, which petitioned the District Attorney for representation on his staff. He has had the position under consideration for several weeks, and decided that it has merits worth trying.

Women have frequently played important parts in criminal proceedings in this county, but heretofore they have been on the side of the prisoner. Their development in legal lines in this State seems to have reached a higher degree than in other parts of the country.

The primary purpose of a woman as a memer of the District Attorney's office is to have her assist whenever children or women are caught in the toils of the law. It has been a theory that men are but clumsy prosecutors when they have to deal with those who are weaker than themselves.

Mrs. Foltz, who might be termed a mild suffragette, has been a pioneer among the members of her sex in attaining prominence in public positions. She is the first woman who ever served under the appointment of the Governor as a member of the board of trustees of a State Normal school, and is the first woman member of the State Board of Charities and Corrections. Through her efforts the prison parole system in California was introduced, after she had gained data from the keepers of the largest penitentiaries and reformatories in the country.

Mrs. Foltz early sprang into prominence through her efforts to get a legal education. She was a student at Hastings when it was decided that it was not desirable that the university should be coeducational. She brought mandamus proceedings and won. Her case was taken to the Supreme Court on appeal, and is reported in volume No. 54 of the decisions.

The services which Mrs. Foltz will give to the county will be entirely gratis, as her appointment does not carry any salary.

Although it is likely that she will be assigned entirely to cases which concern children and women, Mrs. Foltz declares she is perfectly willing to take up the prosecution of men, if she should be so assigned by the District Attorney.

"I look at the field from a broader standpoint than my sisters do," she said yesterday. "When they advocated my appointment they were thinking only of the women and little ones. But the law appeals to me broadly and I will do whatever is given me by Capt. Fredericks.

"He long ago told me that it was his purpose to find out the truth. He said he did not want to prosecute anyone who was innocent, and I know this has been his policy.

"I will adopt this purpose myself, when I become a prosecutor. I believe it is true that a woman can better find out the truth when unfortunate women or girls get in trouble.

"There are times when there is a real good excuse for them being in trouble and they do not deserve punishment. It will be my duty to look into such cases as these and find if they are worthy of sympathy and lenience.

"I say spare the innocent, but prosecute the guilty. I do not believe that because a woman is a woman she should not be amenable to the laws. I am a lawyer and I believe in law. If I find a woman who should pay the penalty for her acts, you will find that I will be a vigorous prosecutor."

HEAT KEEPS FIREMEN BUSY.

Seventeen Blazes Occur During Day and Tailor Suffers Heavy Loss When Stock Burns.

The heat of yesterday is supposed to have been responsible for seventeen fires reported to the departmnt between the hours of 11 a.m., and 3 p.m.

Practically the last blaze of the day destroyed a portion of the tailor shop of A. Allegretti at No. 425 West First street, on the first floor of the Auditorium building.

The fire was put under control with difficulty. The damage to the stock amounted to $3500 and about $1500 to the store and fixtures.

The home of J. W. Walker at No. 401 West Adams street was slightly damaged by fire shortly before noon, yesterday. Flames were discovered beneath the eaves, probably caused by the extreme heat. The fire was quickly put out.

Slight damage to a building at Thirty-eighth and Alameda streets and numerous grass fires marked the remaining calls o fthe busiest day the Growing Towns Necessitate Railway Additions.

Four Tracks on Main Line for Extra Traffic.

Since the announcement of the building of the extension of the La Habra line to Olinda, a distance of seven miles, the price of land in the district to be served has trebled in value, and what formerly could have been purchased at about $100 an acre now is held at $300.

This is entirely outside of the value of the Olinda land, which may contain oil, and which is held at a high price by the Union and other oil companies.

At La Habra, the new town that has sprung into life since the completion of the La Habra line, buildings have gone up and land that formerly was used only for barley crops, is now turned into orange, lemon and olive groves.

At the end of the La Habra branch a line drawn north and south through the valley shows to the eastward land that is rapidly being set to fruit and orange trees, with beet sugar fields and truck farms, while west of the end of the line there has been little or no attempt to raise anything but barley.

Since the exclusive announcement in The Times of the Olinda extension new homes have been built and ground is being cleared for further cultivation, while water for irrigation purposes has been developed and fully twenty new orchards and groves have been started.

Up to this time only the oil industry at Olinda has served to call attention to this valley, which is in reality one of the most fertile in the southwest.

Of the 51,000 immigrants which entered the port of New York last year booked for Southern Pacific points over the Harriman roads, nearly 13,000 stated that they intended making California their homes, and to a great extent it is this class and eastern colonists that take up farming lands.

The subdivision of great ranches in the Southwest permits the building of homes on small farms, which, while orange groves and olive orchards are being brought to a state of bearing, support the owner through the raising of short crops between the rows of planted trees.

Practically all of the young orchards in the La Habra Valley are thus set out, and in more than one case the land has been paid for by the planting of yearly crops before the orange, lemon and walnut trees have been brought to a state of bearing.

For the purpose of handling the immense business of the south country and the harbor business, the Pacific Electric has been forced to install a four-track system on the Long Beach line to the branching points. Beyond that, the spurs carry doube tracks for the distance demanded by the progress of the country, while beyond the populous points, single tracks are put in with grading for double trackings later.

"O MUSE OF HUMOR, BOW THY STRICKEN HEAD."

MARK TWAIN, DIED APRIL 21, 1910.

O Muse of Humor, bow thy stricken head
And, silent, lay a wreath upon the bier
Where lies a body, shadow upon thin and sere,
From which but yester-eve the spirit fled Past hours of agony, until death led Him gently through the Gate to landscapes clear
Where there awaits him only love and cheer—
For, lo, the Prince of Humorists lies dead.

And yet he is not dead—He cannot die;
So long as men love gentleness and truth,
And hate the painted sham and sugared lie,
Revere a star, bright honor, tender ruth
That hears the homeless orphans faintest sigh—
Think you that such a one can die, forsooth?

CLAUDE CALMAR LUCE.

THE POLITICAL WATCH TOWER

The one candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor who is making noticeable headway, is Phil A. Stanton. This statement summarizes the views of many men who have been in touch with the trend of political affairs in various sections of the State during the past few weeks. It is emphatically true in Southern California, and was demonstrated in all parts of the Imperial Valley and San Diego county during the past ten days. A repetition of this enthusiasm for Stanton's candidacy may be looked for in the San Joaquin Valley, which he will tour in a few days.

In the northern section of the State the Stanton boom has been assuming proportions that have more than surprised his opponents. Charlie Curry, who is now in Los Angeles, admits that the Southern California candidate is more of a factor than he had expected to see him prove; Alden Anderson and his friends have taken the same view, and even Hyrum Johnson's egotism has been penetrated and he is not claiming to have such a walkaway as he had been telling himself he would have.

With the advent of Curry in Los Angeles yesterday, accompanied by Jesse Dorsey, former State Senator from Kern county and now manager for Curry in the San Joaquin, there came a story of a recent incident at a Vallejo theater that gives an indication of how the Stanton campaign is progressing in Solano and other northern counties. Pictures of various candidates were being shown on the big canvas and were being received with no particular evidence of interest, until Stanton's face was presented.

"In a town where lots of people think Curry has a walkover and Stanton is by these same people supposed to be unknown," said a Curry man, who witnessed the incident, "the people in that theater just went up in the air over Bill Stanton's picture and shouted. It is certainly Stanton around Vallejo."

Further interesting gossip from the north is to the effect that the Link-Rooster are all shot to pieces in both San Francisco and Oakland. The "People's Lobby" deal put a quietus on the fake reformers in the bigger city, and they have been most effectively eliminated from politics there. Over in Oakland the scrap has been between Mayor Mott and the fakirs, and Mott has won with ease. As Oakland's popular chief executive is training with the Republican "regulars," the L. R. kickers have little opportunity to do more than wail.

There is one very amusing feature in the Oakland political situation today that has a Los Angeles end to it. Meyer Lissner, the man who gives orders to E. Toopious Earl and others, has been trying to break into the Oakland field. This of itself may occasion no surprise, that is, occasion no surprise that Mr. Lissner should attempt to break in anywhere; but the humor of the anouncement is found in the fact that he has been trying to convince the northern Republicans that he, M. Lissner, is the boss of the union totemite labor agitators in Los Angeles.

As the story goes, Lissner made representations that he controls the union labor vote in this neck of the woods; that he has Arty Hays, et al., backed over into the Arroyo Seco in this respect. And the reason for these representations is to be found in Lissner's anxiety to have Friend Richardson, editor of a Berkeley newspaper, indorsed for State Printer by the Oakland and Alameda county labor and typographical unions. As the situation now stands in the State Printer fight for the Republican nomination, Billy Shannon, the incumbent, has been indorsed by the Sacramento typo unions for another term; the San Francisco unions have endorsed one Philips, of that city, who has a brother, Emmet Phillips, proprietor of a weekly publication at the Capital City; C. F. McDonald has received the endorsement of the Los Angeles union; and Friend Richardson has been endeavoring to corral the Oakland bunch, but up to date without success. Meyer Lissner went to his rescue but even his hypnotic spell failed to awe the printers of Oakland and Richardson is still without the union indorsement that he is so anxious to plaster on himself.

A circular supposedly emanating from San Francisco has been disturbing the equanimity of the Link-Rooster shouters for Hyrum Johnson. The circular reads as follows:

DOWN WITH JOHNSON'S CAMPAIGN.

1. Because he is against organized labor.
2. Against saloon men.
3. Against big corporations.
4. Against small corporations.

Mr. Hiram Johnson is a society man, and will put California twenty years behind the times if elected. But the people of California are not stone blind. Mr. Johnson will fight the laboring class of people from head to foot, which he is now doing. Says all railroad men are under the foot of the S. P., and have no brains and fear for their jobs.

NO, WE DON'T WANT JOHNSON FOR GOVERNOR.

COMMITTEE.

All political parties must make arrangements for the election of members and the formation of new State and county committees immediately following the August primaries. This is a provision of the State Primary Law and is mandatory. In detail it provides for the election of delegates to county conventions, which shall name committees to adopt platforms; and delegates to State conventions to take like action, or in other words to prepare a platform upon which the candidates previously named at the August elections shall stand upon. At the same time the State Central Committees must be chosen.

It is evidently to be a three-cornered fight for Coroner. Cal Hartwell, the Pasadena incumbent, is out in the open as a candidate for the Republican nomination for a full term, he having been appointed to fill the unexpired term of Dr. Lanterman, who resigned. Dr. A. C. Pratt, chairman of the Organization Committee of the Democratic County Committee, is after his party's indorsement for the same office, while Dr. Sherwin Gibbon, member of the City Board of Health and a Goo-Goo chieftain, wants the Link-Roosters combination to see that he gets the job.

In political circles they are saying: "Good morning, have you been mentioned yet for United States Senator?" "Among those mentioned" for this high honor are Gov. Gillett, Congressman Smith, of Bakersfield; E. A. Meserve, of this city; Frank Miller, Riverside; T. E. Gibbon and George S. Patton, Los Angeles, the latter two in the forlorn hope of a Democratic Legislature.

A Famous Paint
FOR TIMES READERS

It is universally conceded that, as an animal painter, Rosa Bonheur was the greatest the world has ever known. So conscientious, so devoted to the real in art, it was her custom when portraying the death struggle of an animal to visit the slaughterhouse and there patiently observe the final twitching of the muscles as life became extinct. The results of her painstaking efforts soon made her a world-renowned figure in this most difficult line.

HER MASTERPIECE....
"The Horse Fair"

In 1853 this wonderful painting was exhibited for the first time and created general astonishment. In order to obtain material for this picture, Mme. Bonheur adopted masculine dress, which she never discarded.

"The Horse Fair" was originally the property of the "merchant prince," the late A. T. Stewart, but was acquired by the Metropolitan Museum, where it now hangs, and is viewed daily by hundreds of visitors.

Eastern capitalists represented by H. P. Wilson will reorganize the California Safe Deposit and Trust Company, with a capital stock of $5,000,000. Bank Superintendent Anderson is reported to favor the plan. Patient depositors see a ray of sunshine, and hope soon to realize something after years of delay.

Perhaps it might be just as well ten years from now, when the census is taken again, that women be not compelled to tell their ages, and be legally acknowledged as the head of the house when they insist on it.

The men of San Rafael have a keen appreciation of the humanities. Charles Pool quarreled with Joseph Semini, and, when he advised Joseph to go away, Joseph went. Charles then emptied his revolver into the ice chest, and pleaded not guilty when arrested for attempting murder.

The editors of one of our dailies, inspired by Halley's comet, dropped into verse last week, and this week, fired by a news item from New York that the average schoolgirl there spends $900 a year on dress, he writes:

"A plus B may equal C,
Noun and verb perhaps agree;
Much I care for all of that—
See my twenty-dollar hat?

"Spelling is an awful bore,
Grammar pains me more and more,
History's an awful joke—
How d'you like my opera cloak?"

The worst of it is that he puts "M. G." (Must Go) on the copy, and the copy desk sorrowfully submits.

Besides causing an editor to drop into verse, Halley's comet is causing suicides here at the rate of four a day. At least that is the cause given by the newspaper reporters, who wouldn't tell a lie, even if they lost their jobs. Fortunately, most of the census figures are in, and Census Director Baldwin kindly asks those who contemplate self-murder to send in their names first.

It is strenuous work collecting $75,000 in five days, but that is what the Y.M.C.A. did, and none of it was tainted money or bad debts. The East gave us $500,000 for a new Y.M.C.A. building, and Secretary McCoy asked us for only $75,000 to buy a few rocking chairs and desks to put in it.

Prize-ringpatrons who like to see the blood spurt at every blow are knocking Joe Choynski for teaching Jeffries art and literature, instead of uppercuts and left hooks. They propose to put their coin on Jack Johnson, who doesn't know psychology from a Venus de Milo.

Like Horatius on the bridge, five high-school girls defied the Board of Education to the bitter end, and refused to resign from the sororities. The board fearlessly decapitated them, and a new crop of secret societies is expected soon to spring from the seed of the martyred fire. PLUTO.

When completed the church will present a very artistic and pleasing appearance.

Clinton J. Platt is improving his recently-purchased property west of town. He is building a dwelling house, sinking a well and will shortly install a pumping plant.

In the winter country they have a saying that June is the month of roses, but here in California we cross out June and insert the name of April.

It is a pity that the life of the ragged robin rose is so short. Next to the flaming cannas they are the bravest and the brightest flowers that grow.

It is astonishing how many people emigrate to Canada and Mexico from the United States every year. And still our population continues to increase.

The fact that Mark Twain made money in literature merely emphasizes the other fact that there are only a very few people in literature who make money.

We are often inclined to the conviction that there is an unwritten agreement in this country among the people for the conservation of our natural excitements.

We do not think that the return of May Yohe will elevate the stage. May is pretty fat now, and she is more likely to bear the stage down than to elevate it.

We suppose now that the interest in the return of Col. Roosevelt will be so great that the public will even forget to inquire about the baseball scores on the day he lands.

Sometimes we think that the old Phoenicians with hollowed log and a rag for a sail had more fun on the water than the rich man of today in his princely yacht.

We do not know whether more frosts are due to strike the East this spring, but we do know that those people back there are very foolish to take the chances when they might just as well be in California.

The beauty about California of the South is that it lends itself admirably to the building of palaces, while at the same time a man may surfeit himself in beauty, although he may have no other home than a pair of blankets.

ACTUAL HARBOR WORK.

In another column The Times today publishes the news that the first steps toward the city's improvement of the harbor will be taken this week. The announcement should strike a note of rejoicing and pride among the citizens of Los Angeles. The moment the bonds are voted, even before they are sold, the foundations of the new harbor are to be laid. This is the Los Angeles way of doing things, a way that has attracted the attention of every careful observer of municipal affairs who has come to the West.

There is a tendency in municipal affairs to dally, to waste more time in deciding who shall occupy the front row of chairs, than in getting out the pick and the shovel. The citizens of Los Angeles have their political differences, but fortunately they do not interfere with the community spirit of pushing hard on whatever is of public moment. That is why we get there.

The first direct move will be the condemnation of a thoroughfare through San Pedro and Wilmington so that the city will be assured of access. This is a more important step than the driving of the first pile for a city wharf. It means the free public harbor that the people of Los Angeles began to fight for fifteen years ago. Once give the trade of Los Angeles free access to the Pacific Ocean and the commerce of the ocean free access to Los Angeles and the great object of all this work is accomplished.

It is pleasing to note that, in so far as the plans are made known, there is no tendency to heed the desires of political syndicates interested in real estate about San Pedro harbor. The bonds were unanimously voted; the money will be contributed by every property owner in the city; and there should be no spoils for machine administration or corporation. Build the harbor as honestly and judiciously as it has been won, and we shall have a new cause for civic pride.

The harbor has been properly planned. City Engineer Hamlin has been thrown upon the technical resources of his profession and not upon the mock-wisdom of a board of political advisers, as often happens. His plans are not yet made public, and it is too soon to discuss their perfection or possible flaws. But it is safe to assume that they are honestly and independently worked out. Gen. Chaffee and Stoddard Jess are at the head of the two boards which will pass approval upon them. This promises well again.

The building of Los Angeles harbor is evidently very close at hand. It is a situation that has been so much a vision for years it will be difficult to realize. With a brief pause for mutual congratulations, however, let us put our shoulders again to the wheel. Vigilance has always been the harbor watchword. It still stands.

GILLETT FOR SENATOR.

The movement to induce Gov. Gillett to become a candidate for United States Senator, to succeed Senator Flint, meets with favor all over the State among true-blue Republicans devoted to the State's best interests. The candidacy of ex-Councilman Works of this city is making no headway whatever; he is too small and so recognized; and there is a general demand for a full-sized statesman for this job. Everybody who knows Works and who has watched his career knows that he would be conspicuously ineffective and fatally impotent in Flint's seat; and those who are awake to the situation realize that California will lose enormously if she sends to the Senate chamber any but a large, experienced and high-minded man who has the skill, the energy, the temper and the know-how to stand fast for what California wants and to get it, while according a broad and patriotic consideration to the needs of other parts of the country.

Gillett is the man who sizes up to the specifications. He is the man for the place. He is the man whom the office is seeking, not one seeking the office. His sturdy independence, his splendid common sense, his fine appreciation of the needs of our people, his high standing in Washington won by a successful and honorable career in Congress, his admirable record as a Governor, and his sympathy with the aspirations of the South as well as with the ambitions of the North—all these qualifications present him as the ideal candidate for Senator, the man upon whom Republicans all over the State should unite in the interest of all-California. Gillett is bigger than any section. He covers the ground and towers over all competitors.

If any section of the State insists upon a sectional candidate rather than a State-long, State-wide candidate, it will simply be a campaign for a middling-piddling job-chaser like ex-Councilman Works or Jim McLachlan. In what shape would the stupendous projects of Los Angeles be today if we had been represented in the upper house at Washington by some little fellow like that, some man only fit to represent a ward, instead of a Flint? Yes, men and brethren, we of California have so many things to be done that we must not send a boy; we must send a great, strong, war-seasoned MAN, who can do things. Gillett is the man. Who has suggested his match? Has there been suggested, or can there be suggested, a candidate upon whom the Taft Republicans of all California can more readily, more enthusiastically, or more profitably unite?

STOP THE UNSEEMLY FARCE.

One of the muck-raking magazines which has pursued Hon. R. A. Ballinger as a wolf follows a trail of blood, recently characterized the Secretary of the Interior as a "shyster." The bar association of the city of Seattle took cognizance of this matter and passed a series of resolutions highly eulogistic of their former associate. These men have known Mr. Ballinger as a citizen and as a lawyer for many years, and their commendations of him both as a man and as an attorney are unqualified.

In Washington, the Federal administration has appealed to the investigating committee to bring the matter to an end as speedily as possible. Now let no yellow journalist lift up his nose and yelp that the plan is to cover up anything. The administration specifically makes the proviso that nothing shall be done to keep any witness from testifying to any facts he may have within his knowledge, either for or against the Secretary of the Interior. The reverse of this was the vicious charge of Attorney Brandeis, who represents Louis R. Glavis, in which he charged the administration, particularly the Department of Justice, and indeed including the President, with "jockeying" the investigation.

When the charges against the Secretary of the Interior were first made public property, The Times exercised due restraint in its judgment. It refused to find the Cabinet officer guilty of gross malfeasance in the office he was holding or in any other office he had previously held until an opportunity was given to present the testimony against him, and allow him to make his defense—then to weigh the matter judiciously. We asked that the public suspend judgment until they had some basis on which to form a just judgment, pro or con the person charged.

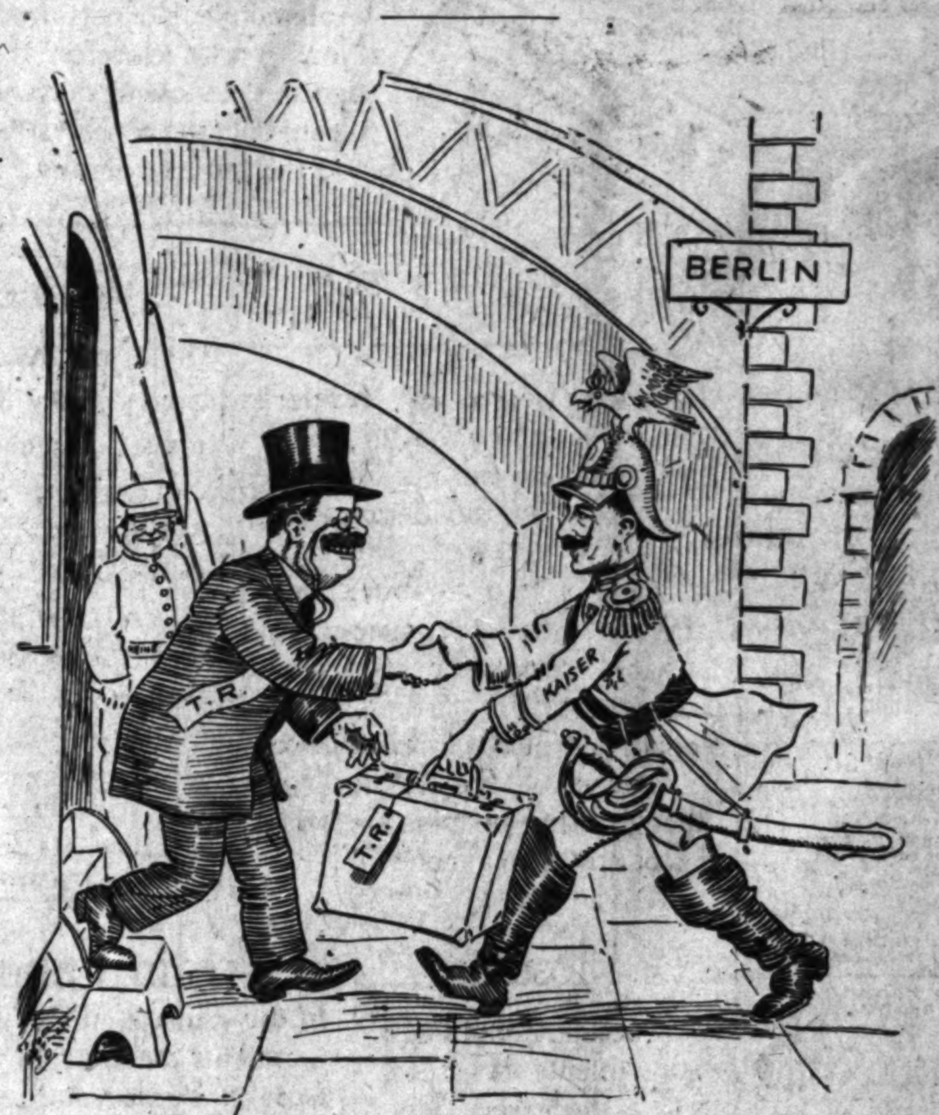
As the investigation proceeded it became every day more evident that there was no specific fact to be produced sustaining the charges made against Judge Ballinger. The whole proceedings up to this time are now public property, and we challenge the bitterest enemy that Hon. R. A. Ballinger has in all the world to lay his finger upon one specific act of his which violated his oath of office or marked him as an unworthy citizen in any possible respect.

We have followed this whole investigation from beginning to end with as minute care as perhaps any person in the country outside of the committee room where the investigation has taken place, and we stand in the face of the world and declare as our honest, firm conviction that Glavis is unworthy of public confidence; that no witness against Mr. Ballinger has been able to produce a single damaging fact in his administration of any office; that Mr. Pinchot's administration of his office was in important respects illegal, and the conduct for which he was dismissed from office was gross insubordination utterly unendurable in the public service; that Mr. Garfield is simply an incoherent echo of popular clamor in its most demagogic, unfair and yellow note. On the contrary, with the full knowledge of this investigation before us, we challenge any enemy of Mr. Ballinger (not to confine ourselves to fair-minded citizens) to bring forward a specific charge sustained by a single important fact which in any way proves any incapacity, any lack of earnest interest in public affairs, or any smallest taint of dishonesty in the public career of Hon. R. A. Ballinger.

So the case stands today. The investigation is not quite ended, but we think the administration is entirely right in asking that all possible dispatch may be made in bringing what so far has been an unseemly farce to an end. If there should be deduced at some future time specific facts condemnatory of the Secretary of the Interior, our readers may be assured that The Times would be the first journal in this part of the country to give them the truth. Whenever the proof is adduced which will form a basis for condemnation our readers may be sure The Times will be the first, however reluctantly we may do it, to give judgment where truth and righteousness lie.

Meantime it has been disgusting and lamentable, the wolf's howl for blood that has followed the track of the Secretary of the Interior ever since Glavis's unsupported falsehoods were first given to the public.

UNHEARD OF TILL NOW.



THE WHOLE WORLD LOVED HIM.

Do you know it is worth while taking a quiet fifteen minutes and thinking carefully over the life and character of "Mark Twain" and the impression he has made upon his fellow-men?

Ella Wheeler Wilcox's little poem expresses exactly the thoughts that arise in one's mind when he considers this subject: "Laugh and the world laughs with you; weep, and you weep alone." If sorrow fails to enlist general sympathy it is a thousand times worse with the "kicker." He may be a very great man. He may occupy a very distinguished place. He may do things of very great importance. But unless he is genial, companionable, and full of good-fellowship all his achievements and traits of character go for very little with the world.

"Mark Twain" did very little for the world except to give it a half-hour's laugh of a very hearty kind now and then. The charm about the man was his own deep and very tender sympathy with the aspirations, hopes and even foibles of human nature. He was so kindly to our faults and so indulgent to our virtues. Men have amassed immense fortunes and given largely of these for the public good who have passed away and been forgotten, and others will meet the same fate. But for the next half-century there will be men and women who have sat with "Mark Twain" for an hour, whose eyes will dim every time his memory rises in their minds.

CHOOSING THE QUEEN.

It is a pleasure to note that the coming centenary of San Bernardino is attended by a lively contest for the selection of a young woman to be Queen of the Carnival, only in this instance the young lady to be honored will be designated as a Princess.

This beautiful custom of selecting a pretty girl or handsome woman to preside over carnivals and allegorical celebrations in California is not observed as much as it was in the brave days of old. The revival of the custom is a consummation devoutly to be wished and the people of San Bernardino county are to be commended in their efforts to bring back to life this delightful observance.

There are several objects to be attained in the selection of a carnival queen. In the first place, no feature of any carnival could possibly prove so great an attraction to the public as the enthronement of the prettiest girl or handsomest woman of the community to preside over the destinies of the event. Men and women will travel far to see a pretty or handsome face and figure when they could be attracted by no other allurement. In the second place, it is the observance of a custom like this which makes tradition in a community. The young woman selected to be the Princess of the San Bernardino Centenary will go down into the history of the old gray town and that lovely valley lying under the glow of the great mountain of the Arrowhead as one who was a Princess, indeed, though it were only for a day. Her children, yea, and even her grandchildren—and we trust she will have many of them—will point to her picture on the wall and call the attention of the wondering generations of the future to the eyes and nose and lips and brows of their great-grandmama who was chosen from among the lovely daughters of the Vale of St. Bernard as the loveliest of them all.

And a thing like this is worth while. It is more worth while, indeed, than silver and gold and trade and traffic and the sordid triumphs of grimy marts. For "a thing of beauty is a joy forever." And while God has made many things of beauty—the flowers, the green fields, the waters, the red-winged blackbird, dawns and sunsets and all, still the acme of all His creation is a lovely woman.

Let us hope that the carnival spirit in California will not only never die out, but that it will be revived to even a greater life than it has ever before enjoyed, and let us in all our various communities each year select one from among the vast number of pretty girls and handsome women to bear upon her brows the laurel wreath of preëminent beauty and perfection.

OH, THE TIMES ARE GOOD!

Be sure to scan the real estate department of The Times this morning, and above all things the building record for the month. The highest figure for the cost of building for a month ever known in Los Angeles heretofore was that for the month of June, 1906, when our people spent about $2,300,000 on new construction. April is only three-quarters of the way spent, and already we have a record of over $3,000,000.

Turn to the financial page of The Times and read at the top of the first column the bank clearings. Three days show a record of over $3,000,000 each, and the other days run to records of $3,000,000 each.

Population here is growing at a more rapid pace than before, and the newcomers are bringing in a very large amount of new capital as well as new enterprise.

The oil production of the year promises to run to about 80,000,000 barrels, making California the leading oil-producing section of the world. The addition to the permanent wealth of the community flowing from these wells in the year will be about $50,000,000.

Orange groves, dairies, grain farms, and all kinds of soil tilth add their hundreds of thousands and millions annually to the wealth of the people. The greater part of the surplus will sooner or later go into real estate of some kind somewhere in Southern California, and never let it escape your mind, Mr. Business Man, that the metropolitan city of the Great Southwest now and for all future time, Los Angeles, will get the lion's share of this accumulated wealth. It may be that speculation in oil will divert a little of this for the time being from real estate, but it will come back to permanent investment in "dirt" sooner or later.

SOME THINGS LIKE IT.

For April the weather of the past week has seldom been so torrid in the whole history of Los Angeles.

The discomfort was a little oppressive to human beings, but let us not complain. The heat was not a detriment to Southern California.

Look at your roses in the garden. They like it. Listen to the song of the mocking bird. He does not feel the temperature oppressive. Go out among the blooming orange trees and talk to the orchardists. They are not complaining of the heat from the horticultural point of view. The late rains left the ground in excellent condition to bear a little hot weather. The orange trees are vigorous in their abundant life. They are blooming now, or about over that stage, and the orange tree is very partial to a good high temperature, providing the roots are only kept moist and the caloric does not become too intense, a case seldom experienced in California.

A considerable percentage of the population has had a very uncomfortable fit of "hay fever." It may give us a "grouch," but this is only a blessing in disguise. The healthiest of us, if "hay fever" attacks us, had something deleterious in the system which ought to be got out. The heat is getting it out, and we will be all the better after it is over.

Then what people so happily situated as we are? We have fifty miles of the loveliest ocean beach in the world to fly to, and we have mountain-tops among the pines where the breeze is cool. The beaches and the crags are both reached by comfortable electric cars. The cost is half a dollar or so, and it takes only about an hour of our time.

He says that Harrison was a "pouter pigeon." His bitterest chapter is devoted to Gov. Hughes. He says that Hughes was named by Roosevelt when it was feared that Hearst would be elected Governor of New York, and that Elihu Root was sent to Albany to see that the programme was carried out. He declares that Hughes, while pretending to fight bossism, became the biggest boss ever at the State capital, and tried to turn the members of the State Legislature into mere rubber stamps.

A Gem.

Behold, I rescue a rare work of literary art from oblivion. It is a mere humble circular printed in red ink and advertising a bullfight in Mexicali, a little Mexican town in the Imperial Valley.

They say that Spanish authors are given to ornate circumlocution, but Señor José Valverde seems to fairly jump on the point with both feet. Also he has a magnificent scorn of the man who wrote the dictionary:

"A most magnificent exciteng BULL FIGHT will take place in the MEXICALI BULL RING, SUNDAY APRIL 17th.

The new management wish to announce that the bull figths that have been given in the past year have been fakes.

Learning that the American Public objects to the death of bulls the bull fighters will only use the cape and banderillas with out killing the bulls and with out cruelyty. I also promise change of the program in all performances, great novelties will be presented that are rally worth seeing, so the public will not be disappointed. (owing to the fact that the public have been deceived I wish to announce that the governor of Ensenada anever has overcharged in bull fight licenses as has been claimed, by the other promoter) I will not collect money from any body for the management does not think it righ also will say that Mr. A. Starving Indians.

The fussy old parties in the Indian Bureau are in a great state of excitement.

They have achieved a great triumph in getting the authorities in Washington to make over the names of some of their charges, so that Big Eagle becomes Frank B. Eagle and Yellow Robe becomes William Y. Robe.

The main consolation to Mr. Eagle and Mr. Robe is that they can have a white man's name over their tombstones, for the strong probability is that they are both starving to death somewhere.

Like every other Indian policy, the last one seems to be a failure. Down in the Yuma reservation our agents have benignly and tenderly assisted the Indians into the ways of frugality and economy by interfering with their ancient religious rite of casting all their property into the funeral fires of their friends. Then stripped them of their lands.

We are certainly dandy guardians.

I am not an Indian sentimentalist. Far from it. It was necessary that the Indian should go and the white man should take his lands. What I object to is the pious, sniveling tone of voice with which we have robbed them—our pretense of having looted them for their own good.

It would be much more decent if we told them honestly and squarely that we intended to rob and cheat them and throw them off their property and take it for ourselves. We come of a race that has always done that and always will as long as there is anything worth breaking a head to get.

There is no reason why we should complicate matters by lies and broken treaties. THE LANCER.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

Judge Wilbur yesterday granted a temporary order restraining the board of directors of the Hamilton Mining and Milling Company from electing a new board.

AT THE CITY HALL.

GRAB "SPOILS" OF PATRONAGE.

COUNCILMEN IGNORE POWER OF BOARD OF HEALTH.

Latter Has Right to Appoint Police Surgeons and Nurses, But the Reformers Keep the Fat for Themselves and Friends — Hunting Through the Charter.

A charter provision which gives the Board of Health the power to appoint and dismiss physicians and nurses for the Receiving Hospital has been grabbed boldly by the Council, without any attempt on the part of the board to exercise this right.

Section 131 of Article 13 of the charter provides that: "The Board of Health may appoint and remove at pleasure a physician and nurses for the hospital or hospitals of the city when in their judgment it may be necessary. The salary for the city officers shall be provided for in a similar manner as for other officers of the board."

It seems that the past Councils have usurped the right to name the police surgeon at the Receiving Hospital, considering it in the light of patronage to be handed out, and the Goo-Goo Council has fallen into step and marched on with the procession. When the irregularity was pointed out to them yesterday there was a general expression of ignorance and a hurry call on the City Attorney to ascertain if the charter did not contain some other provision making the action of the Goo-Goos square.

The Board of Health isn't saying anything about this grabbing of patronage, but there is evidence of restlessness which may break out into a mild protest some of these days.

TO SELECT SITE.

GARBAGE STATION MENACE.

Inspector Humphreys, of the Board of Public Works, made it very plain to the Streets and Boulevard Committee of the Council, yesterday morning, that if the loading station which Alexander, the garbage collector, has established at Anderson and Aliso streets, must be done away with the new location should be such that the city can stand back of him.

The loading station has been the cause of numerous complaints, more especially from citizens living in the neighborhood, but yesterday a very loud howl went up from TT. J. Lickley, of the Los Angeles Presbytery, who is interested in the Spanish school conducted close to the loading station. It was declared to be a menace to health.

In this contention, Dr. Sherwin Gibbons, of the Board of Health, agreed that the conditions are not good. He said the bodies of the garbage wagons are not tight and allow the garbage to leak, and that millions of flies collect around the station and spread disease. He suggested that back of the incinerator would be a good location.

Dr. Gibbons further stated that this garbage is not proper to feed to hogs, that there is a great difference between private garbage which is fresh and garbage which is allowed to stand. This point seemed to interest Chairman Gregory, but it was passed over to hear what Inspector Humphreys had to say. The latter said the board wanted Alexander to move the station and that he had promised to get a new location. The contractor, he said, is doing everything he can on a temporary base.

H. H. Goudge, attorney for Alexander, argued that without permanent improvements the station was carefully conducted. It was not as objectionable as the manure loading station near by. This statement brought out the remark from Chairman Gregory that the latter station would receive attention. Goudge then declared that Alexander is willing to move the station to any point on the Pacific Electric lines. Accepting this proposition, the committee decided to personally view various locations and select a site.

MORE PROTESTANTS.

SUNSET BOULEVARD PEOPLE.

The advance guard of what is thought will be a small army, protesting against the assessments to cover the cost of widening Sunset boulevard, reached the City Clerk's office yesterday. Frances X. Cabrini, in her protest, claims that the assessments are unjust, irregular and inequitable, that the entire proceeding shows bad judgment and asks that it be abandoned. She states that her property is assessed at the rate of $50 a front foot on the east side, while parties on the west side are only assessed at the rate of $4.

The second protest was filed by the Los Angeles Pacific Railway, which is assessed for $5000 for rails, tracks, poles, ties and wires on Sunset boulevard from Angeleño Heights to Buena Vista street. Through its attorney, Gurney E. Newlin, the charge is made that the assessment is illegal and void, without warrant of law and should not have been included in the assessment list by the Board of Public Works.

In the opinion of Newlin, the assessment is upon nothing more than improvements on real property and is unlawful for the reason that improvements upon real property are not assessed against other property unless within the assessment district; also, that no assessments are contemplated by the statute under which the proceedings were taken.

THEIR LITTLE JOKER.

"RAILROAD" NOT ENOUGH.

When the Council speaks of a railroad, does it mean a steam railroad or a street railway? If "railroad" applies to any road, whether steam or electric, then somebody has been laughing up his sleeve ever since Ordinance 9682 was approved, which was July 8, 1904. This ordinance, which repealed the water sprinkling ordinance, an ordinance, by the way, which the street railways paid no attention to, purports to provide a fine of $250 a day if the space between the tracks and for two feet on either side are not oiled in order to effectually lay the dust.

The joker in the ordinance is the word "railroad." Whenever City Attorney Hewitt prepares an ordinance relating to corporations, he is careful to distinguish trolley from steam by using the words 'street railway, but Ordinance 9682 ,very probably was not prepared by the City Attorney, and while intended to apply to trolley lines operating in the city, in reality is confined to steam roads. Hence, when the Goo-Goo Council looked over the ordinance, a large expression of joy flitted over the faces of the Legislation Committee. It was figured out that by the non-observance of the ordinance, the street railways owed the city in fines something like $3,000,000, a tidy sum to tuck away in the treasury.

But alas! some one tipped it off to the Council that nowhere in the ordinance were the words "street railway," without which the ordinance could not be enforced. City Attorney Hewitt was at once consulted and asked to define the ordinance. It is possible that he may take a broad view of the matter and say "railroad" covers those lines using electricity on the city's streets. If he does not, then Ordinance 9682 will be 'repealed and a new ordinance passed. Meantime, complaints continue to pour in about dusty streets, and there is nothing doing.

BONDS ARE SAFE.

COUNCIL CANVASSES VOTE.

The official canvass by the City Council yesterday of the votes cast in the harbor and power bonds election Tuesday, show a majority in favor of the harbor bonds of 11,303, and 10,597 in favor of the power plant bonds; necessary to a majority, harbor, 9362; power, 9290. The official vote is as follows:

	For.	Against.
Harbor	12,672	1369
Power	12,266	1669

The Council passed a resolution declaring that more than the necessary two-thirds majority had been cast in favor of the issuance of the bonds.

That Aqueduct Trip.

The itinerary of the Owens Valley trip by the members of the City Council has been arranged by Gen. Chaffee and covers practically five days. The party will leave Los Angeles next Tuesday evening at 9:30, a sleeper being attached to the regular train at that hour. At Mojave, the car will be coupled to the California-Nevada train, arriving at Olancha at 5 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, from which point automobiles will take the party to Independence. The aqueduct will be inspected from Olancha to Cinco, Thursday and Friday, the party stopping at Cinco Friday night. Saturday, the Jawbone division and the cement plant will be inspected; and working back along the aqueduct, the Councilmen will reach Los Angeles some time Sunday.

Real Appreciation.

A check for $25 from R. B Young & Son was received by the Mayor yesterday for the benefit of the family of Policeman David Brooks, who was shot and killed by footpads on the night of April 8. With a previous contribution of $7, the fund now amounts to $32.

AT THE COURTHOUSE.

DIRECTORS ARE NOT VOTED OUT.

JUDGE PREVENTS STOCKHOLDERS FROM ACTING.

Purchaser of Shares in a Mining Company Alleges That Other Interested Persons Cause Treasury Certificates to Be Distributed Among Themselves to Defraud Him.

The troubles of the warring stockholders of the Hamilton Mining and Milling Company reached the courts yesterday, when Judge Wilbur granted an order temporarily restraining E. M Hamilton, Elsie E. Hamilton, Truman W. Hamilton, Fred W. Hamilton, W. Lester Hamilton and Sherman Page, from voting 400,000 shares of the capital stock of the corporation at a meeting of the defendants to be held at the office of the company at rooms 340-342, Wilcox building, this city.

The difference between the rival owners has been in evidence for some time, and a week since A. E. Wiley brought an action against the Hamiltons, alleging false imprisonment and malicious arrest, asking a large sum in damages. The action at bar has Wiley as plaintiff, and the defendants, the Hamiltons with Sherman Page, as defendants.

The petition declares that the capital stock of the company is $1,000,000, with 1,000,000 shares at $1 each, and of this amount 400,000 shares are treasury stock, the property of the corporation. All of the defendants are alleged to be stockholders of the company, and the 600,000 shares of the capital stock were divided between them. On February 1, 1910, it is alleged Wiley purchased from the Hamiltons 400,000 shares, the entire amount of the capital stock standing in their names, the purchase being made by the plaintiff as trustee of the Antelope Valley Gold Mining Company, which action was ratified by the board of directors of the last named company. On February 28, the stock was turned over to Wiley, it is asserted, on the books of the Hamilton Mining and Milling Company.

On February 9, 1910, a meeting of the board of directors of the Hamilton Mining and Milling Company was held, and a resolution was adopted authorizing the issue to the defendants in equal portions, all of the treasury stock, 400,000 shares, and pretending to authorize the officers to issue a certificate of stock to the defendants, which was done. It is alleged that the division was made without consideration, and for the purpose of defrauding the plaintiff and the Antelope Valley Gold Mining Company, by depriving them of their purchase of the 400,000 shares of the capital stock of the Hamilton Mining and Milling Company.

It is further said that a meeting of the stockholders of the Hamilton Mining and Milling Company was to have been held at the office of the company, at which it was the intention of the stockholders to remove from office the existing board of directors. This was the meeting enjoined by Judge Wilbur.

Wiley asks that he be given judgment for the cancelling of the stock issued to the defendant, that it be returned to the treasury of the company, and that the defendants be restrained from voting the 400,000 shares of treasury stock or disposing of it.

FAVOR FOR FRIEND.

JUDGE RIVES TIES KNOT.

The only business transacted in Department Two yesterday was the ceremony uniting James T. Marr, aged 31, and Laura Wilson, aged 16. It took place in the chambers of the department, in the presence of a few friends.

Judge Rives does not perform marriages as a rule, but the court is a friend to the father of the bride, Robert Wilson. The Wilsons, father and daughter, have been in Los Angeles for several years, coming here originally from Columbus, O., where Wilson was engaged in business. About two months ago Wilson was plaintiff in a divorce action, but Judge Moss refused to grant the decree, on account of the laxity of the evidence on important points. The daughter whom Wilson gave away yesterday was by his first wife, the unhappy union being contracted afterward.

Marr is a former Texan. He and his young bride will reside in this city.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

INCORPORATIONS. Articles of incorporation were filed yesterday by Business Properties, Inc., capital stock $100,000, incorporators R. H. Myers, T. Chalmer Myers, W. S. Cross, H. A. Gilman, H. W. Johnston, subscribed $500; Associated Realty Company, capital stock $500,000, incorporators Thomas Field, J. J. Travers, Jr., M. B. Code, H. L. Ellsworth, R. H. Travers, subscribed $5; A. W. C. Oil Company, capital stock $200,000, incorporators A. W. Clarke, G. R. Brown, F. M. Townsend, E. A. Weaver, W. A. Westervelt, subscribed $5; Imperial Farming and Irrigation Company, capital stock $100,000, incorporators Albert J. Eward, H. B. Gerhart, A. A. Jones, J. G. Scott, Paul E. Ussher, subscribed $5; Lusk Cab Company, capital stock $75,000, incorporators A. P. Welcome, E. M. Brennan, F. B. Welcome, D. E. Loomis, E. P. Wellman, subscribed $5.

SUES FOR MAINTENANCE. Vilantia Rose brought suit yesterday in the Superior Court against J. H. Rose, for separate maintenance and support. The couple were married in Bellingham, Wash., in September, 1907, and, according to the petition of the wife, he deserted her at Bentonville, Ark., in February, 1908, and at Georgetown, Wash., in September, 1909. She asks that her husband shall contribute $20 a month for her support, representing that he is amply able.

FALSE PRETENSE ALLEGED. In a suit instituted yesterday by Emma J. Crain against H. W. Gunston and J. H. Gunston, false representations are alleged in regard to buying a business at No. 636 South Spring street, and the plaintiff asks that it be rescinded. The petition asserts that the defendants alleged the profits of the establishment would be from $35 to $50 a week, that it was largely patronized by the different dry goods establishments of the city needing repair work done, but it is said that these representations are false and misleading. The original price to be paid by the plaintiff for the business was $650.

SENT TO SAN QUENTIN. Judge Clarke yesterday, in Judge Willis's court, sentenced H. A. Freeman, found guilty of grand larceny about ten days ago, to San Quentin for three years. Garland, the comrade of Freeman in a number of thefts, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to Folsom for the same term.

AGREED TO BUY BACK. In the action brought by Ludwig Fuhr against Charles C. Polk, Frank D. Howell, Robert I. Irons and J. R. McLeod, to recover $2500 which the plaintiff paid for 5000 shares of the Talbot Concrete Building Company, Judge Willis, yesterday, found for the plaintiff. It was alleged by Fuhr that he bought the stock under an agreement that the defendants would buy it back for the selling price, if at the expiration of six months the purchaser was not satisfied with his bargain. There was testimony in the case to show that the stock in question had no market value.

JUDGMENT FOR DE SALLIER. Judge Moss awarded P. de Sallier a judgment for $25 on a counter claim in the suit of F. W. Brenneman against the former to recover $475 for selling 20,000 shares of the February Premier Mining and Leasing Company's stock to W. S. Collins, in 1908.

TITLE QUIETED. Judge Willis yesterday gave judgment for Adele Kracke and H. C. Henderson, quieting title to lot No. 9, block 83, of the Janes subdivision of San Pedro, which had been sold for delinquent taxes in 1899, to H. C. O'Banion. Besides O'Banion, the defendants were the Golden Gate Syndicate and E. P. Cronin.

STORM BREWING.

NO HOPE OF GOOD ROADS.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE ASKS FOR NEW COMMISSION.

Report to County Supervisors Charges Mismanagement and Incompetency in Expenditure of $3,500,000 and Predicts Failure to Fulfill Promises to Taxpayers.

The Good Roads Advisory Committee has, in an indictment filed with the County Supervisors, asked for the recall of the present Highway Commission on the grounds of incompetency and mismanagement. According to the charges set forth Los Angeles county has a poor chance of getting much in return for the $3,500,000 that was voted for a good roads system.

The report of the committee, which is really a petition for the selection of a new Highway Commission, is as follows:

Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles county:

Gentlemen: The Advisory Committee, for your information and that you may be able to protect yourselves and the taxpayers of the county of Los Angeles, submit to you the following report and recomendations:

At the time that the election was called for the purpose of securing the approval of the voters to in effect place a mortgage upon their homes of $3,500,000 that they might enjoy the advantages of a permanent system of highways extending throughout the county, you assured this committee and the voters that before any contracts were let or any appointments made, that both the Board of Supervisors and the Highway Commission would consult with and obtain the approval of this committee.

We now say to you that both the Board of Supervisors and the Highway Commission have continually violated their pledges in this particular and have ignored this committee on every important occasion, and this committee, in the case of the sale of the bonds, was obliged to and did resort to the courts, and thereby saved the taxpayers directly about $150,000 and prevented the sale of all of the bonds at one time, and thus saved them paying interest, effecting a total saving of approximately $400,000.

We are now facing a crisis and find ourselves powerless, for both the Board of Supervisors and the Highway Commission insist in pursuing what appears to us to be a very wasteful and unbusiness-like course, and the accomplishment of the purpose for which the voters so generously provided the funds will fail, for we face a serious shortage in mileage and the roads that they have constructed and are constructing are of inferior quality, and an aggravation instead of a pleasure, and a constant source of annoyance and will entail a very great unnecessary expense in maintenance. We find that before the bonds were voted the taxpayers were assured:

First—That for $3,500,000 a total of 307 miles of macadam road with bridges, culverts and other accessories would be constructed.

Second—That the construction would begin at once and be pushed to early completion.

Third—That the delays in calling for the bond election were due to the fact that surveys of the roads were being made and other important arrangements were being perfected for the acquisition of quarries and rock supplies of suitable quality for the work contemplated.

At the present time, one and three-fourths years after the bond election, we find:

First—That but two and three-fourth miles of road have been completed.

Second—That eighty-one miles have been contracted for and are under construction in part.

Third—That no adequate arrangements have yet been made for a sufficient rock supply for the work proposed.

We, therefore, charge that the Highway Commission of the county, on its record, stands convicted of incompetence and gross mismanagement.

The people have afforded them every opportunity to make good, have excused delay and condoned mistakes, the one on the plea that economy would flow from it and the other because "to err is human."

Because, now it appears that experience has profited nothing and the money of the people is being unwisely expended, the Advisory Committee believes it is justified in demanding a change in the administration of "good roads" affairs.

The Advisory Committee charges gross incapacity in the management of this important undertaking and bases the statement on the unpreparedness of the Highway Commission to efficiently carry out its work, on the inferior quality of the exceedingly small amount of finished road and on the excessive cost per mile of the work already contracted.

Taking up each item of the indictment, in detail, we say they are unprepared because neither adequate road building material nor the men to use it have been provided. Since the first contracts were let, the contractors have been made to suffer loss because suitable macadam was not available. Contracts let six months and more ago cannot show one foot of finished road. Deterred, perhaps, by the experience of contractors now engaged on the work, there has been lacking satisfactory competition for other than grading and concrete work. We say that the two roads finished, aggregating a length of two and three-quarters miles, are inferior in quality because both are rapidly deteriorating. The Highway Commission at first refused to accept the El Monte road because of its defects, but after forty-five days of deliberation, agreed to pay the contractor to patch the more obvious defects, preliminary to its acceptance. Prospect avenue was constructed by day labor, under the immediate supervision of the commission's engineers, and responsibility for its failure cannot be evaded. We say that the cost per mile of roads already contracted is excessive, because a careful study of the work already let shows that sixty-five miles of completed road will aggregate $881,000 or at the rate of $13,550 per mile. The estimated cost per mile on which the bond issue was based was $11,400 and we believe, and the experience of Southern California municipalities bears us out, that under efficient management the money provided was sufficient to carry out the contemplated work.

We demand that you at once, as a protection to the taxpayers, and as a protection to the fair name of Los Angeles county, request the resignation of the Highway Commission that it may be possible to effect a reorganization of an undertaking which means so much to the taxpayers and the general public.

We further demand that upon a receipt and acceptance by you of the said resignations, that without delay you appoint a committee consisting of the presidents of the Chamber of Commerce of Los Angeles, Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, the Municipal League, the Associated Jobbers, the City Club of Los Angeles, the Board of Trade of Hollywood, and the Board of Trade of Pasadena, the Chamber of Commerce of Long Beach, the Board of Trade of Pomona, and the Chamber of Commerce of Santa Monica; and that you request the committee so constituted to, without delay, submit to you the names of six persons who shall be especially qualified to fill the office of Highway Commissioner, and that from the six names so submitted you select the successors of the present board.

Respectfully yours,

ADVISORY COMMITTEE.
Thomas Earley, chairman.
T. W. Blanchard, secretary.

WIRTH ARRAIGNED.

Man Who Trampled Out Wife's Brains Says He's Ready for Trial, and Wants It Over.

Ernest Wirth, who killed his wife by trampling out her brains, was arraigned before Justice Williams in Police Court, yesterday. He will be given preliminary examination Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Ten minutes after Wirth left the court room, a Coroner's jury returned a verdict of homicide, holding Wirth responsible for his wife's murder.

The only statement made by the defendant yesterday was that he is ready for trial at any minute and wants to get it over. "Diss iss hot day, py Gott," was the most emotional expression from his lips during his brief stay in the court room.

AN AUTO-EXPENSE ITEM.

An annual report on the arrest of automobile drivers was completed yesterday by Assistant City Prosecutor Reeves and shows that out of the great number of machines owned in Los Angeles more than one-tenth of the drivers have been in Police Court during the past year on charges of violating the speed laws. Attorney Reeves has charge of all automobile prosecutions. His report shows that from the last of April, 1909, to the first of the present month, $12,500 in fines passed into the treasury through the automobile source. There were five imprisonments for violation of the thirty-mile speed limit.

FISH MEN'S MEETING.

Members of the California Fisheries Protective Association, which is made up of most of the fishermen and fish dealers in Southern California, met at the office of the Zaiser Produce Company yesterday. A new board of directors and officers were elected as follows: Gus Zaiser, president; Albert Seebold, treasurer; Paul K. Phillips, secretary; H. Petterson of Redondo, R. J. Stauss of Newport Beach and Paul Eachus of San Pedro, directors. A resolution was passed directing fishermen not to ship fish to Los Angeles Fridays or Saturdays. The directors declared their intention of defending Salvador Carisso, who was arrested at Avalon a few days ago for fishing with a set or trap nets. The association believes the law prohibiting fishermen using such nets is unconstitutional.

HIS STORY RINGS TRUE.

Isaiah Hover, a huxter, who shot Miguel Moreno, when the latter jumped on his wagon as he was driving on the country road south of Artesia at night, was released from the County Jail yesterday. The authorities are convinced that Hover's story that he shot the Mexican because he believed he was about to be attacked by a highwayman is true. Moreno's condition is improving.

WILL TELL OF THE RHINE.

"The Castles and Legends of the Rhine," the new lecture by B. R. Baumgardt, will be given in Blanchard Hall tonight. Where the glacier melts far up among the lonely rocks of the St. Gotthard, the Rhine has its origin. It at first flows through the highlands of the Swiss, then through Germany, and finally through Holland. Mr. Baumgardt has picked out the most beautiful and interesting points along this ancient river for his stereopticon views.

QUICK WORK.

CENSUS OVER HALF TAKEN.

Enumerators Make Good Progress in Los Angeles.

Count Must Be Complete by Saturday Night.

Citizens Urged to Help by Sending in Names.

The census will be completed this week. The progress that has been made so far gives reasonable assurance of an accurate count in Los Angeles. As early as last night eleven enumerators reported that they had completed their counts.

There is but one obstacle now to a complete count. Several instances have been reported to Supervisor Bert Farmer in which hotel-keepers, rooming-house proprietors and others refused to answer the questions. He wired to Washington for instructions and was told to have warrants sworn out for their arrest immediately. It is probable that a number of reluctant citizens will be made public examples early this week by being dragged before the United States District Attorney.

Every effort is being made to complete the count without friction. In many cases persons have been induced to see Mr. Farmer at his office and have made their statements there.

Mr. Farmer, with the count more than half completed, sticks to his original estimate of 320,000 for the population of Los Angeles. It will be several months before the exact figures are published, but he is able to gain, from day to day, some idea of how the count is running.

"I think we shall secure a fairly accurate count here," he said last night. "Quite a number of districts will be completed by tomorrow night, and I am trying to get them all in by Wednesday night. The enumerators who have already completed their districts will be set to work tomorrow at some of the points where the work is going slower.

"It is bound to happen that some persons will slip through without being caught by the enumeratars. The last three days I shall devote to cleaning up this list. We hope by publication of the request to have all uncounted residents send in their names and addresses.

"There are six more working days, and the time should be ample to cover all the remaining territory. I hope any reader of The Times who has not been counted by Wednesday night of this week will send us his name and address."

SYMPATHY LACKING.

AUTO INJURES OCTOGENARIAN.

"OLD GEORGE," THE NEWS VENDER, SEEKS INFORMATION.

He Is Knocked Down by Machine in Early Morning While Going for Papers, Faints After Hurts Are Dressed and Is Sent to the County Hospital.

"Just aseekin' infermashun," G. W. Ridgeway, an octogenarian "newsboy" called at Central Police Station yesterday afternoon and asked if the autoists who ran over him early Saturday morning had been caught. The old man was dazed by the shock received in the accident and mystified when he found that his injuries excited no special activity. He mentioned that there is usually a fuss when an automobile runs over anyone, but he was unable to understand that there is a vast difference in the stir raised when a "prominent citizen" gets hurt and the occasion when a newspaper vender receives injuries.

G. W. Ridgeway, octogenarian "newsboy," who was struck by an automobile early yesterday morning and "ditched" near the Receiving Hospital.

"Old George," as he is known to newsboys who compete with him on South Main street, was hit by an automobile shortly after four o'clock Saturday morning. He says he was going to get his morning papers and was crossing Main street near First, when he was knocked down. His mind was a blank for a few minutes and the next thing he recollects, is that two men led him up to within a few feet of the Central Police Station and told him to go in and get medical attention. Then they disappeared.

The desk sergeant had him taken to the Receiving Hospital, where bruises on his hands and swellings on his ribs were dressed. He was told to go to some free dispensary for further attention and turned out on the street after a few hours rest. The old man hobbled out and bought some papers to sell at noon. He became dizzy and was carried into a drug store and revived from a fainting spell. Later he hobbled back to the Receiving Hospital and told his troubles. It was explained to him that he could apply at the County Hospital for help. "Monday will be a good time to go," said an attendant.

Feeling his strength failing because of "awful bad pains in the inwards," the old man was dazed and frightened. He explained that he has no family living and has a room by himself at No. 116 East First street.

"But you see I can't support myself when I get sick, and I ain't a soring chicken no longer so I guess will see them kind fellers at the County Hospital," explained the sufferer.

He was assured that Superintendent Whitman would tend to his needs at the county institution and he was placed on a car bound for that retreat.

Before he left, the old man asked: "Say, how comes it that everywhere I went to tell my troubles some feller would say, 'Go sell your papers.' Is that some sort of a joke?"

ABSURD.

IGNORE RUMOR OF WITHDRAWAL.

STANTON BOOSTERS PLAN EVEN WIDER CAMPAIGN.

Workers at Headquarters Are Too Busy to Pay Attention to False Story and Letter Is Received from Business Man That Tells Something of the Interest Shown.

The absurd rumor that there is a possibility of Philip A. Stanton withdrawing from the race for the Republican nomination for Governor, was ignored at the Stanton headquarters yesterday while preparations for the great tour of the candidate through the San Joaquin Valley and the counties of Northern California were being.

"Absolutely nothing to it," was about all that could be forced out of anybody at headquarters, all of the Stanton Boosters being so busy with plans for carrying on the campaign, and so enthusiastic over the results of the tours in Southern California, that they had time for little else.

Speaker Stanton was out on the Malibu ranch in a big touring car, rounding up some stray voters, and telling them how to get a Southern California man for Governor. With him were E. A. Allen and Louis Schwabe. The trip was successful.

Indicative of the feeling that the candidacy of Mr. Stanton has aroused among the businessmen of Southern California, is a letter received at the Stanton headquarters yesterday from a prominent business man of Los Angeles. He writes:

"Enclosed please find duplicate of a letter I have mailed to a number of my friends:

"I think everyone will admit the South is entitled to the Governorship this time, without considering the relative ability of the candidates. As a booster for Hon. Philip A. Stanton, I solicit your personal support—your vote, as well as a good word among your friends. I am a booster, not because of being a believer in his political creed, but because we need an honest, fearless executive, who will at all times work for the people, and not for any private interests. Such a man is "Our Phil,' and were you personally acquainted with him you would be just as enthusiastic a booster as am I. For the good of all interests he deserves our support, and I trust he may have yours."

This letter is but a fair sample of the work, this is quietly being done by hundreds of friends of Mr. Stanton, according to the statement made at his headquarters yesterday, and it has been the experience of the business men of Los Angeles, who have accompanied Mr. Stanton on his tours through Southern California, that just as firm, energetic and enthusiastic friends exist in every other city of Southern California, as are coming forward with their assistance in this city.

After he has visited the Coast cities in Los Angeles and Orange counties during the coming week, Mr. Stanton will have appeared in practically every portion of Southern California, and he will be able to carry with him to the northern counties the assurance that Southern California is almost solid for him.

No date for the start on the grand tour of the northern end of the State, has been set, but it is not more than two weeks off, according to the managers of the Stanton campaign.

ALHAMBRA.

ALHAMBRA, April 23.—The congregation of the First Baptist Church has increased fully one-third during the past four months. This rapid increase in numbers has made necessary a larger home than they now have. Plans have been prepared and work will be started at once upon an extensive addition to the present building.

The Alhambra Home Telephone Company has acquired the Arcadia system which now makes five different towns tributary to the Alhambra central office.

Rev. William D. White, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church since its organization, has tendered his resignation and will occupy the pulpit for the last time, Sunday. He is to be pastor-at-large for the Baptist Convention of Arizona.

CREATE INTEREST.

BOOSTERS WORK FOR RAISIN DAY.

UNUSUAL TALES OF FRUIT ARE HEARD HERE NOW.

Fresno Men Say the Dried Grapes Make Babies Grow, That Jeffries Is Eating Them and That Special Dishes Will Be Served in Many Dining-rooms Saturday.

Next Saturday will be "Raisin Day." Probably your grocer has already notified you. If not you may have seen the advertisements of the Fresno raisin boosters in the street cars.

There have been three or four active representatives of the Fresno Chamber of Commerce in the city during the past week who have been talking raisins wherever they have stopped for more than a minute.

"Raisins make the finest baby food in the world," said one booster. "They have been tried in Fresno by physicians in caring for weak children and the results have been wonderful. Furthermore, the children like raisins."

One of the most startling assertions of the raisin boosters concerns the well-known Kolb, of Kolb & Dill. Kolb is the tall, lean comedian. An affidavit declares that Kolb, in a few months of diet on raisin bread and coffee, has gained nineteen pounds.

Another story told by the boosters is that James J. Jeffries is training almost exclusively on a diet of raisins. Several boxes of the dried fruit were shipped to the Rowardennan camp.

There are thousands of other people throughout the United States who have been educated to a raisin diet in the past year, greatly due to the campaign for last "Raisin Day." An example of the increase in demand for raisins is given by a Los Angeles bakery.

Two years ago this bakery consumed six tons of raisins in the manufacture of raisin bread and pies. During the past year the consumption has climbed to twenty-six tons.

"If this condition were the same throughout the country," said one of the Fresno men, "the California fields would not be able to supply the demand. We are gradually increasing the call for California raisins and are edging out the foreign raisins which are still being imported from Spain, Italy and several other countries. Since the vineyards of California produce more than half of the world's raisin supply there is no reason why we should not be exporters."

All of the local hotels and restaurants have made preparations for observing the day. There will be raisins from soup to pie. The movement in Los Angeles is being followed in the surrounding country and several of the commercial bodies of various California cities are making the week one in which raisins are to be used plentifully. The boosters have distributed thousands of pieces of literature telling how raisins may be prepared.

ROPE'S PRESSURE KILLS HIM.

Man's Back Broken When Skittish Colt Causes Lariat to Wind About Him.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, April 23.—Fred Von Dollen, residing in Hog Cañon, was killed day before yesterday. He was on horseback, leading a colt and tied the rope to the horn of his saddle. The colt ran around the horse encircling Van Dollen with the rope and his back broke under the pressure.

The Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific Company will at once commence work on its contract for the extension of the government breakwater at Port San Luis.

PORTERVILLE MERCHANTS PLAN ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN.

It Is to Be Begun Through Mediums of National Circulation—Bee Inspector Reports Apiaries Badly Infested With European Brood. Child Scalded and May Die.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.)

PORTERVILLE, April 22.—Five thousand dollars will be appropriated by the Chamber of Commerce to use in a campaign of advertising through various mediums of national circulation. To raise this amount the merchants have pledged themselves to turn over to the Advertising Committee of the chamber, the funds which they would otherwise expend in various boost publications. The chamber officials have also ordered brass signs, which will be fastened to radiators of all Porterville automobiles, the sign bearing the local slogan "Porterville People Prosper," wherever an autoist chooses to tour, he will carry the Porterville gospel. With a Los Angeles publishing house has been placed an order for $500 worth of advertising booklets for general distribution. An average of 150 inquiries per week is being received at the chamber offices from the prospective eastern settler.

H. G. Brown, bee inspector, reports that apiaries of this section are badly infested with the European foul brood. Thirty were ordered to be destroyed at once. The disease is said to have spread from Fresno county, where it has reached alarming proportions.

CHILD SCALDED.

Manuel Silva, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Silva, living in the Waukena settlement, yesterday fell into a boiler of scalding water and will probably die. Mrs. Silva was doing the family washing and removed a boiler full of hot water from the stove and set it upon the kitchen floor. The child came into the room unobserved and toddling up to the boiler, tripped and fell headlong into its scalding contents. Medical aid was summoned and when the infant's clothing was removed, skin and bits of flesh came away with it.

According to the county records, $370,000 of orange lands have been sold in the newly opened Terra Bella district within the past twenty-five days. Nearly all of the transfers were made to Pomona, San Pedro, Puente and Los Angeles people. From the present activity it appears that Los Angeles and Southern California capital will almost exclusively control this new district. Little actual planting of orchards has been done in the new district this year, in view of the extreme shortage of trees.

PAVING PLANS.

At the last meeting of the trustees, the City Engineer was asked to prepare plans and specifications for paving the principal residence streets, preparatory to asking for bids, under the provisions of the Vrooman Act. About five miles of paving will be done. It is planned to have a macadam base, covered with four to six inches of asphalt-macadam. This method was decided upon after a committee of the Board visited a large number of the principal cities of Central California where paving work has been done in the past year or two.

LITTLE CRIME.

In view of the fact that there have been practically no police court cases in the last four months under the new liquor laws, the board of trustees is considering the abolishment of the city recorder as a separate office. The recorder is paid a salary of $50 per month, and as he has averaged, three police court cases per month since January 1, the place is considered considerable of a sinecure. Under the California laws the Mayor may be made the city recorder in towns of less than 10,000 inhabitants and this disposition of the office will probably be made.

Local horticultural inspectors are taking no chances on the importation of scale infested orange trees. Yesterday a consignment of navels was received from the South, billed to Culter. Upon their arrival at Culter station the owner called up the inspector's office saying that the trees bore a sworn certificate that every one had been defoliated, scrubbed and dipped, and he asked permission to unload the stock. The inspectors refused, and the trees were not delivered to the owners until an individual and painstaking examination of each tree was made.

DELEGATE TO SCOTLAND.

Rev. W. Leon Tucker, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, this city, has been appointed one of the delegates to represent that denomination in the world's missionary conference, which meets in Edinburgh, Scotland, in June. He will attend the meeting, and will speak at other important conferences in England.

RELIEVES SUFFERING.

LOS ANGELES WOMAN FINDS AMERICAN HEROINE IN CUBA.

Doing a Good Work.

Mrs. Jeannette Ryder among the cats and dogs of her animal hospital in Havana. The man below is the "ambulance."

TYPICAL American heroism attaches itself to the name of Mrs. Jeannette Ryder, wife of Dr. Ryder of No. 96, the Prado, Havana, according to the story which is related by Mrs. Fanny Briggs Carr, of this city, who with her husband, has just returned from a tour of Cuba.

"Mrs. Ryder is working against practically four fifths of the inhabitants of Havana and the island, in her effort to bring about better treatment for animal life," said Mrs. Carr yesterday. "From the Americans she receives scarcely a thought and despite this fact she is accomplishing great reforms in humanitarianism.

"Her creed is the treatment of horses, cattle, dogs and cats when they need it, and the prevention of cruelty to these and other animals. In her effort to accomplish this end she has made a name for herself which stands out enviably among the humanitarians of the century."

Mrs. Ryder is the woman who, alone and unaided, brought to stop a bullfight, succeeded in having the principals arrested, and came to a realization that the Cuban government is not a reform kind.

"Bullfighting in Cuba has been forbidden by law. Despite this fact these brutal exhibitions are still carried on and the malefactors receive little if any punishment for the alleged simple reason that many of them are officials who are interested especially in the money which is paid over to them by the promoters of the fight.

STOPS A BULLFIGHT.

Hearing of a proposed bullfight in a little city not far from Havana, Mrs. Ryder journeyed there on the appointed day and was in time to witness eight poor, broken-down horses gored by the infuriated bulls. She called upon the police to stop the fight, but could find only a single one who would come to her assistance. With him, she stepped out into the arena and arrested the matadors.

Realising that the "sport" was spoiled, the great audience, instead of applauding the valiant action of the American woman, hissed her, and cries of "kill her, kill the American woman," were heard. She managed to escape bodily harm and brought several of the leading culprits before a Cuban judge. That official smilingly assured Mrs. Ryder that he was for the strict enforcement of the law, and then proceeded to fine each of the participants in the fight $5.

This laughable carrying out of the laws readily illustrates the manner in which Mrs. Ryder is received and her work discouraged. She has succeeded in having placed in a number of the more public thoroughfares drinking troughs for the animals that pass. The water they get here is about as much as they have to subsist on. An illustration of the manner of handling cab horses was given by Mrs. Carr.

POOR HORSES UNFED.

"We went out driving in one of the cabs, they being practically the only means of conveyance in the Cuban capital, and realised that the animals drawing the cab were anything but well cared for. With the interest I have taken in Los Angeles Humane Society it is not hard to understand why I asked the driver about the horses. He declared that he made not enough to keep them in food. When we arrived at our destination, my husband handed him a good bonus to be used in buying feed for the horse, but after the driver got started he turned back and laughingly assured us that the money would never go in that direction."

DOGS AND CATS.

Mrs. Ryder has not stopped with horses, but has taken up the work of caring for dogs and cats. The dogs of Cuba are horrible examples of the mistreatment of a dumb animal by his master. They are kept in a starving condition all the time. Owing to the impossibility of keeping up their systems, they are also diseased. It has been the work of Mrs. Ryder to gather the animals that are worth while, not having gone so far as to be incurable, and take them to her detention home on the outskirts of the city, and which is cared for by a woman in the employ of Mrs. Ryder.

Her "ambulance" for transporting the poor cats and dogs to their haven of rest and recuperation is a peon, who carries with him a large wicker basket, and is one of the familiar sights of the city when taking an unfortunate animal to the detention home. Mrs. Ryder receives very little assistance, and is doing the greater part of her work on her own resources.

THEY DON'T HELP.

"Even the leading Americans pay little attention to what she is doing," said Mrs. Carr. "In speaking to one of the chief merchants of Havana, who also has large land holdings in Cuba, I casually questioned him as to his acquaintance with Mrs. Ryder and her work. He said that he knew Mrs. Ryder and realized that she is backing a tremendous undertaking, but that was about all. When I asked whether he had ever assisted Mrs. Ryder he shamefully acknowledged that he had not. 'What's the use,' he remarked, 'the natives don't care for it.'"

This feeling extends even to the women of Havana. While standing one morning in the lobby of one of the leading hotels on the Prado, I was introduced to the wife of one of the highest United States officials remaining in Cuba. Casually I mentioned Mrs. Ryder and her work, and asked the distinguished lady whether she knew of it. She grudgingly admitted that she had heard of it, but was not in the least interested. 'I don't believe in this suffragette movement,' she remarked, and when I, in astonishment, asked her what the suffragette question had to do with the better treatment of animals as well as human beings, she answered: 'Well, I don't care if every dog, cat and even these little beggar brats would die.'

"Realising that the change in the Cubans must come from a younger generation, Mrs. Ryder has formed a club, to which belong 1800 children from all ranks of the social strata of Havana. These she is teaching the value of kindness toward dumb animals, and in bringing the young people's minds to a realization of the good they can accomplish.'

CHICKEN FIGHTING.

Mrs. Carr declares that the political situation in Cuba is worse than ever before. The officials are all banded together, she asserts, from the Governor to the most insignificant clerk, in making all of the possible money they can by allowing various tabooed amusements. One of these is cockfighting. The Governor not long ago signed a repeal of the law forbidding this amusement, which was passed by the American authorities while they held dominance of the island.

"Every grocery store has its birds ready to fight," said Mrs. Carr. "Nearly everp peon in Havana owns one of the fighting birds, and all the money he can gather goes to back his fowl in betting. All money changing hands this way pays a certain percentage to the government officials. There is an underlying belief among many of the natives that the next six months will see a revolution on the island, and the more highly educated are praying for a return of government by the United States."

RARA AVIS PARTY.

Mrs. Carl Metcalf entertained the members of the Rara Avis Club Friday at luncheon at her home, Cypress avenue and Huron street. The decorations were white roses and asparagus. The favors were white baskets filled with confections. Prizes were won by Mrs. Metcalf and Mrs. Todd. This was one of the most delightful luncheons and card parties the club has had, the old Jeffries place, where Mrs. Jeffries makes her home, being handsomely decorated.

THE MOST HEALTHFUL WARM WEATHER DRINK

Of Course, It Is Puritas Distilled Water.

During the warm weather you are apt to indulge in various beverages. Some of them are wholesome. Others are not.

The best drink to "tie to" during the heated term is pure, wholesome drinking water. And the only reliable water of that type obtainable hereabouts is Puritas Distilled Water.

You know how unsatisfactory the natural waters are. They contain considerable amounts of minerals, that not only give them a "brackish" taste—but the minerals themselves are harmful—becoming deposited in the arteries and thus causing rheumatic troubles and acting unpleasantly upon the kidneys.

There are no impurities whatever, mineral or otherwise, in Puritas Distilled Water.

We distill it twice. We aerate it with pure ozone. We bottle it in clean, glass demijohns so carefully that it reaches you with all its purity intact. Puritas is most inexpensive. Delivered within the old City boundary lines, 5 gallons cost but 40c. Beyond these lines the expense is but little more.

"WORTH WHILE"

OPPORTUNITY IN OIL

Perhaps this will "fit" you.
Anyway read.
Patented ground.
Located in "gusher" territory.
Stock now being listed on San Francisco Exchange.
Three "gusher" wells just across section line.
Our "Well No. 1" just being finished through over 150 feet of oil sand.
Well NO. 2 started.

"THE RECORD WILL READ"—five producing wells within seven months from May 1st, 1910, or possibly sooner.

A private syndicate now forming at a very low price, based on intrinsic values, to absorb a special block of the company's stock.

Everybody says five wells will give a daily production of from 1500 to 2000 bbls. of oil. We feel sure of at least 1000 bbls. per day.

1000 bbls. per day, at 60c per bbl., means the stock of this company will be worth over $3.60 per share on a 10 per cent. per annum basis within seven months.

You can get into the present "PRIVATE SYNDICATE" NOW at an extremely conservative price.

After we have completed five producing oil wells by going to the well-known "second sand," and our shareholders are assured of a very excellent monthly income on their investment, then we will drill "WELL NO. 6" down to the "THIRD SAND," and confidently expect to get a "gusher" equal to the Standard well—8000 or 9000 bbls.—or even like their new well just brought in—over 12,000 bbls. per day—it is claimed. Why should we not get a "gusher"? We are in gusher territory.

We have a 20-year lease, one-fifth royalty.

The ground is patented, perfect abstract and title.

We have a "purchase clause" in our lease secured before the present excitement, at a price less than one-third the values asked for undrilled adjoining property.

We do not want anyone—man or woman—to purchase an interest in the PRIVATE SYNDICATE OF SHARES that is now being placed, until they first personally visit the property and decide on their own judgment.

If you elect to come in with us, and our "WELL NO. 6" opens a "gusher" on reaching the "THIRD SAND," why there is hardly any estimating the phenomenal profits and returns that will come to you through this investment.

There is an old saying that "nothing risked, nothing gained," but here is an opportunity where there is nothing risked, no hazard and seemingly certain returns.

Our company, nor its shares of stock, will ever be advertised in the newspapers or with fancy prospectuses. The only place it will appear in "cold type" will be the market quotations when arrangements for listing on the San Francisco Stock Exchange are completed.

We do not want you to answer this if you are unwilling to pool your shares with other stockholders pending the completion of the first five wells, and they will doubtless all be on the "pump" within six or seven months. Then you will probably be so thoroughly satisfied that you will gladly hold your stock until we have a "gusher" in "WELL NO. 6."

We do not want your money unless you are willing to FIRST visit the property and see it for yourself. If you are willing to do this, and we are assured you are financially able to make an investment of from $1000 to $5000 cash, and desire to invest in a meritorious proposition after a personal visit to the property, and it is found satisfactory, THEN we stand ready to pay all your expenses of the trip—railroad fare, Pullman fare, automobile trip, hotel bills, etc. The trip requires just ONE DAY. We can leave any evening at 9:30 o'clock from Southern Pacific depot, spend one day in the Midway oil fields, and arrive back in Los Angeles on the return trip at 7 o'clock the following morning.

Read carefully of the "opportunity" outlined above, and then if you are REALLY DESIROUS of making some money out of the oil business we will "show you" and you can judge for yourself if each and every claim is not conservative in the extreme.

If we strike a "gusher" $1000 invested now at price offered in "Private Syndicate" will grow into $20,000 or $25,000 in a surprisingly short time.

H. J. TILLOTSON, M.D.

The most valuable information in the world is to know where to be cured. I am the only Specialist in Los Angeles who does not advertise a fictitous name and photograph. I publish my true photograph, correct name, personally conduct my office. I am the longest established, most successful and reliable, as medical credential and press records will prove. I make this statement so that you will know you consult a celebrated Specialist, who sees and treats patients personally. I possess skill and experience, acquired in such a way that no other can share, and should not be classed with medical companies. Experience is the safe standard by which judgment may be valued, and it is unwise and expensive to embrace the statements of medical companies. It is impossible for a medical company to attend college. Companies have no diploma or license to practice medicine in California or any other State. Medical companies usually are named after a doctor. A portrait whose personality and identity are indefinite, is selected and published as the legitimate specialist of the office. Hired substitutes, ordinary doctors with questionable ability, give consultation, examination and treatment.

A thorough investigation should be made by every ailing man as to the specialist he consults. Duty and destiny to self and those who depend upon you demand the best medical attention. I have the ability and can give you this service. I have always charged a very reasonable fee, so that my services may be obtained by any man who sincerely desires to be cured. I make no misleading statements or unbusinesslike propositions; neither do I desire to be particularly independent, and I would like to have you for a patient, if you will come to me on a strictly professional basis, and the inducements that I offer, which are my ability, and thirty years' successful experience, Time-Saving Treatment, and Guarantee of cure, of certain Diseases.

NO MONEY REQUIRED TO COMMENCE TREATMENT. Many patients have no confidence in their doctor, because he demands pay before a cure has been effected, and there are many who have been misinformed about their condition, or through unsuccessful treatment have become skeptical and think there is no cure for them. I want an opportunity to treat such men. It makes no difference about the financial part, as I accept pay for my services as benefits are derived, when I am satisfied the patient is reliable. Health is capital at interest. I will prove my ability to cure you before asking pay for my services.

WRITTEN GUARANTEE.

Dr. Tillotson's Written Guarantee means a cure or no pay for services. I guarantee to cure certain diseases or refund every dollar you have paid me for my services. My services cost you nothing unless I cure your Varicose Veins, Hernia, Piles, Fissures, Ulcerations, or any disease I guarantee to cure. My terms are reasonable and no more than you are willing and able to pay. Established [illegible].

LIFE

geles July 7, with a passenger list of 120. Two special cars from San Diego will be attached to the train. Past Exalted Ruler Youngworth will head the party, going on to take his place as a member of the Grand Lodge.

The Sierra Madre Club bids fair to set the pace in Los Angeles with its summer jinks this season. C. H. Collins, one of the members, who has been building a fine home on Balboa Island, has invited the entire club to spend a day with him. His reputation for hospitality promises a cheerful occasion. The official jaunt of the club will be to Catalina Island, some Saturday afternoon in midsummer, with a sort of Midsummer Night's Dream performance at the other end. If the island proves large enough for the festive features that are planned, the party will spend several days there. This is an occasion in which the wives and lady friends will participate.

The Entertainment Committee, which recently distinguished itself in the banquet to Gov. Gillett attended by the notables of the city, is planning a regular series of summer entertainments. There will be a ladies' night every second Wednesday of the month, and a stag party or smoker every fourth Wednesday. Summer is the mining man's social season, when he has one, and the calendar will be reversed to correspond with the situation.

Automobile parties up the coast are taking a large part in the summer plans of Jonathan Club members. Stirling Boothe, Harry Harrison and a party of friends are at present somewhere on the road between here and San Francisco or lost in the gay life of the northern city. Nothing has been heard from them since their departure five days ago. Next week there will be several other parties en route, and for the first week of July every machine that can make the run is being pressed into service for excursions to the championship fight.

Ralph Hamlin is going them all one better. He will leave early in the summer to visit the Franklin factory and select a fine new car for a trip through the White Mountains. Herbert Cornish is trying to sell all the real estate on his books in order to go with him and the Jonathans touring in New England are sure to be heard from.

Jack Jenkins, Byron Erkenbrecher and the yachting crowd are beginning to exhibit signs of restlessness. They have been ordering paint, ropes, stays, gaskets and canvas on an extravagant scale, and the San Pedro fleet will show up strong in regatta. Several yachting parties to Catalina Island are being arranged, and a number of runs to San Diego are in prospect. A revival of interest in yachting is predicted for the coming season. Conditions off this Coast are so much more ideal for this recreation than they were on the Atlantic that there has always been surprise among yachtsmen from the East at the apparent lack of interest. The development of a leisure class is probably what has been awaited so far. Yachting is not a busy man's amusement, unless he confines himself to that alone and indulges in it moderately.

REPARATION MADE.

A criminal charge against David Quirin, which was brought by Flossie Chapple, was dismissed by Justice Pierce yesterday, at the request of Deputy Dist.-Atty. Keetch. The couple was married Thursday, and reparation to the young woman for the wrong done her was thereby made.

MAKE MONEY IN OIL

But don't get "million-mad." We are not promising you millions and gushers. We don't ask you to take the gambler's chance, or offer you a "sure thing." After a careful study of the oil situation we have secured a piece of ground where we can get oil, and we don't have to spend fifty to one hundred thousand dollars to get it. Adjoining our property one well has already been drilled which is good for one hundred barrels a day, and this well was finished at the astonishing depth of 250 feet.

Cost to drill this well, $1500. Pays for itself in thirty days.

YOU WANT TO GET IN ON SOMETHING LIKE THIS. We have the land. No royalty to pay. Our first well is now being drilled. Down to 256 feet, in brown shale —EXPECT OIL ANY DAY. This well will be good for fifty dollars per day. Cost $1500 to $2000—$50.00 PER DAY FOR $1500 INVESTMENT. You want this, we know. SCIENTIFIC JINKS.

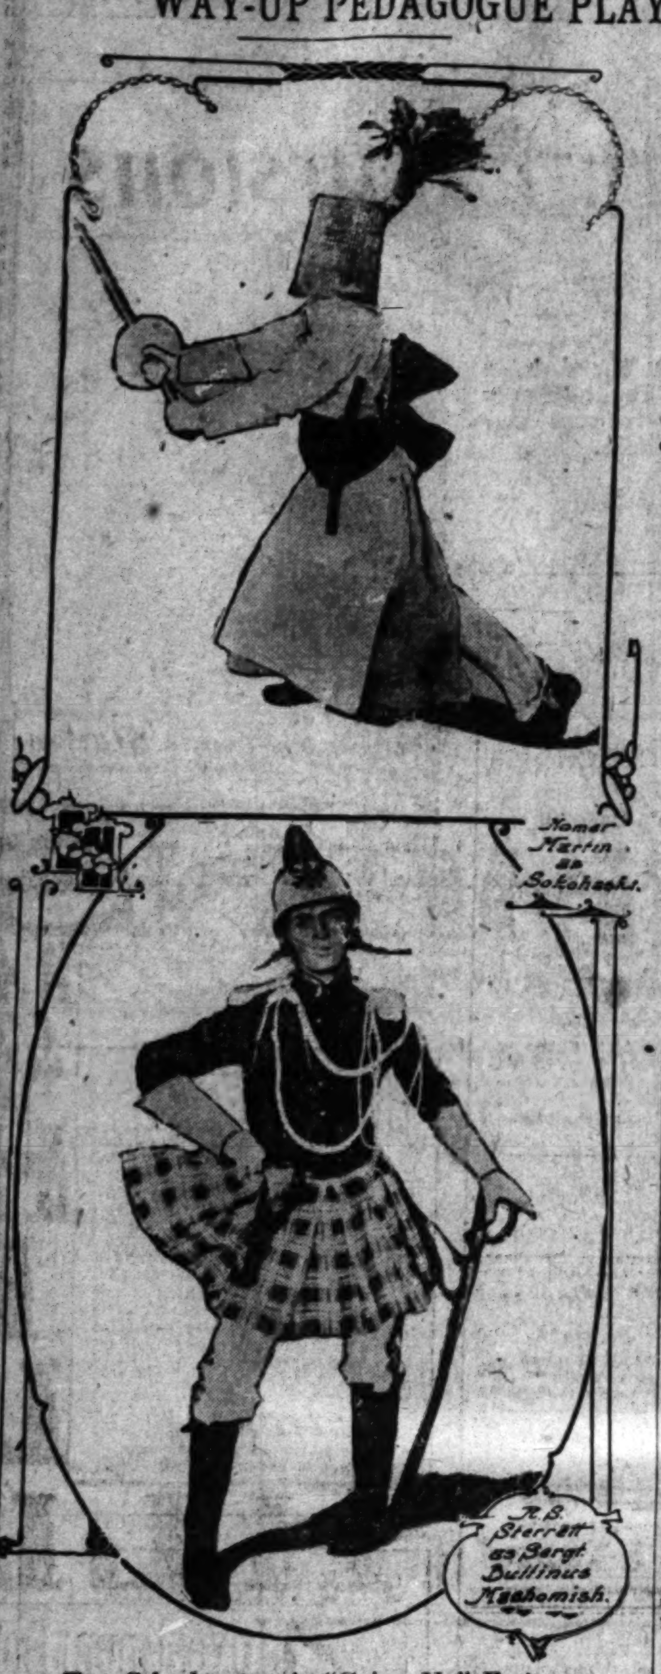
AN ELEVATING, AVIATING, WAY-UP PEDAGOGUE PLAY.



Homer Martin as Sokohashi.
R. J. Sterrett as Sergt. Bullinus Machomish.

Two Schoolmasters in "Going Up" Parts.

A bit of the rehearsal for the pedagogues' jinks to be given May 7th at Polytechnic High School.

BY DEL REYNOLDS.

IF THE timid High School student up in the big red brain factory on the hill could look, as I did yesterday, into the auditorium of the Los Angeles High School, he would hear his venerated (?) professors smash all rules of the lexicon, as they prance through rehearsals for the faculty farce, "Going UP."

All of which means that the School Masters' Club, to which masculine faculty members of the city schools alone are eligible, will present a farce, written by R. J. Sterrett of the Art Department of the Los Angeles High on the night of May 7, when the club jinks will be given at the Polytechnic High School.

If the show is to be as funny as the rehearsals, I for one want to be there—as near to the bald-headed row as the promised rush of the feminine faculty members will permit, for the entire number, nearly 180 male pedagogues, are to appear in star parts. They will also appear in kilts, bib aprons, G. and J. form fitters and Chinese pigtails.

Headed by Prof. B. W. Reed of the San Pedro-street school, the committee which has charge of this aggregation of near talent consists of B. O. Kinney, F. W. Tower, J. B. Lillard, S. V. Goode, R. J. Sterrett and F. J. Armstrong.

These committeemen have been haunting the galleries of local theaters for a week, taking lessons from Kolb, Dill and Hartman.

The jinks will be divided into three parts. The first act will consist of tumbling stunts and monologues by F. J. Tower, E. W. Barber and E. H. Barber, of Polytechnic High School.

STERRTTT'S FARCE.

The second act will consist of Sterret's farce. Twenty (count them) artists from the old High School will present this original aviation burlesque. Sterrett, who seems to be a general utility man up on the hill, not only wrote the farce, but designed and built stage settings, and when the High School troupe cast aside the accustomed academic dignity to appear, as the programme announces, "this once but never again," those fortunate enough to be present probably will see one of the best shows that ever put on in Los Angeles by amateur talent.

In preparation, the author, aside from acting as mistress of the wardrobe, carpenter, scene painter, and prompter, has designed a number of startling effects in aviation machinery. This is understood to have been accomplished after long and careful study of the effects of a gasoline can and a bunch of firecrackers.

In the meantime an intensely feminine curiosity among the preponderating womenfolk of the faculty has developed as to the weird costume designs that have been hung on exhibition, and the wives of faculty members have worked far into the night at their sewing machines to fashion sylph-like sveldt, hipless gowns and chantecler hats for the chorus loidies.

For be it known, this is a strictly stag organization, and the lonely "lady" speaking part—written for the show has been bestowed upon Prof. Travis, who weighs in at about 220. As his costume calls for a twenty-two inch waist, it is understood that he will establish training quarters alongside Citizen Jeff at Rowardennan.

Every morning the anxious pedagogues gather in the facuty dressing room to be fitted to Chinese shirts and pigtails, to kilts that are wild, weird and wonderful, to helmets with scarlet horsehair plumes, and to clanking sabers and Mexican "chaps."

EVERY MAN A STAR.

The plot is designed to fit these variegated clothes so that each "actor" can hold the center of the stage for just one fleeting minute under the admiring gaze of his friends, and a star's share of the spotlight.

The story of the play recites the incident of the invasion of Southern California by a Pennsylvania billionaire, the Hon. Si Moleons, Doctor of Dollars from half the universities of the world. The Hon. Si bears a striking resemblance to the Laird of Skibo, and is interested in seeing the city that grows so fast a man can not leave it—Los Angeles that grows so fast it catches up with him on the road.

The Out West Club has been heavily burlesqued in the entertainment given the Hon. Si Moleons, as has aviation week and prominent local citizens.

The third act will be a combined appearance of the entire club membership on the stage in choruses and presilurian jokes. The schoolmasters double quartette will warble while solos by Profs. Merrill, Fox J. A. Foshay, will be features of the mock banquet. After the floral and vegetable tributes have been collected by the previous performers, it is forecast F. C. Weber will have the courage to perpetrate a "humorous reading of the minutes."

CAST OF 'EM.

The cast of characters for "Going Up" follows:

Hon. Si. Moleons D.D. (Doctor of Dollars) of Sewickly, Penn., A. T. Merrill; Holy Smoke (one of the Gold Dust twins,) Dr. Everett Beach; Coal Smoke (the other one,) J. C. Chapman; Gasoline Gas (Showfer,) J. C. McBurnie; Augustine Axel (Mechanic-ician,) Ernest Oliver; Announcer of Skyline Tours, Coach Noble; Sergt. Buttinus Machomish (Capt. Butt of the White House please copy,) R. J. Sterrett; Prof. Astor risk (philology,) B. O. Kinney; Prof. Philander (phschology,) A. Cavanaugh; Prof. Miecene (palaeontology,) I. D. Perry; Prof. Bill Keenan (croquet and other manual arts,) George Culver; Constable Digby of Swatelle, W. A. Paxton; Sokohashi, honest (?) Jap schoolboy, Homer Martin; Kutchuneckoff (third degree jiu-jitsu,) George Mitchell; Kick Him (dishwasher from the Pinned-On,) R. C. Daniels; Loidy Spank-Hurts (from the urban teachers club of Calabasas,) W. L. Travis; Bill Bord (the sandwich man,) Alfred Ewington; Coachella Jim (of the Out West Club,) O. C. Montgomery; Frankie Furter (one of the fifty-seven,) Dr. Herbert Lee; Wild West Club, school masters and other yokels.

ON WIFE'S COMPLAINT.

Thornton Wassam, who was brought here from San Diego by Constable Rice, was arraigned before Justice Ling yesterday on a charge of having abandoned his wife. He was unable to give a $1000 bond, and was sent to jail. He will be examined May 2.

BRIDE FOR AN INTERNE.

Charles H. Whitehead, interne at the Receiving Hospital, yesterday procured a license to marry Miss Frances K. Semple, who lives on North Broadway. The wedding will be held at the bride-to-be's home, Tuesday evening.

Strike a Match—Water is Heated—Instantaneously

How to Have Unlimited Supply of Hot Water Day and Night, For Few Cents a Day.

If you want to see the last word in household economy and convenience, just drop around to the offices of the Independent Gas Appliance Co., 601 S. Hill St., and see a water heater that heats instantaneously all the water you can possibly use or want, any time in the 24 hours, even in the middle of the night when every fire in the house is out. This water heater uses gas only while the hot water is actually running out of the faucet; gives you water steaming hot and not merely luke-warm; uses one-third the gas you now use in your kitchen boiler; heats water only as fast as you use it, and would keep pouring out hot water from now till doomsday if you would let it. This is what no kitchen boiler or any other water-heating system could ever do or ever has done, but what is now done by that marvel of ingenuity, comfort, convenience and economy—the Humphrey Instantaneous Bath Heater.

For instance, you place one of these heaters in your bathroom. Three people in your house want to take a bath within 2 hours' time. With a kitchen boiler to rely on, it couldn't be done. You couldn't heat the water quick enough, in the first place. But with this "Humphrey Instantaneous," bather No. 1 goes in the bathroom, strikes a match, lights the gas under the heater, turns on the water. Quicker than it takes to walk five steps the hot water pours out full force, piping hot, as long as the faucet is turned on. By turning off the water you turn off the gas and the water ceases to be heated. Your expense stops.

When bather No. 2 is ready, the same simple "motions" are made, and steaming hot water flows from the pipe as though it had been heating for hours.

The "Humphrey Instantaneous Bath Heater" does not store water, but heats it.

Your kitchen boiler stores water, which is its greatest disadvantage. Its supply of water is always limited, its water is never hot when most needed, it requires more gas than ought to be necessary, it never supplies water for more than one bath, and it takes an age to heat more water for another bath for another bather. Besides, in the kitchen boiler you always have to heat more water than you use, and have to wait a long while before it gets sufficiently hot. This is an expensive waste of gas, loss of time, and an inconvenience, and the water you get is usually lukewarm, after all.

With the "Humphrey Instantaneous" you have hot water instantly for any purpose, even in the middle of the night, when every fire in the house is out, just as quick as it takes you to strike a match. The supply of hot water never ends, unless you shut it off yourself.

With the "Humphrey Instantaneous" you get the cheapest hot water in the world. A family of five uses on an average of 60 gallons of hot water a day. With gas costing $1.00 for 1000 cubic feet, it costs 20c a day to heat these 60 gallons with your kitchen boiler. The "Humphrey Instantaneous" heats these 60 gallons for only 6 cents a day.

It is a perfect heater for summer as well as winter use. The heater is so constructed that only the water is heated. There is no radiation of heat in the room. It can be used in the hottest weather without adding to the heat of the room.

Send for our free beautiful book of illustrations and full explanations of the Humphrey Instantaneous Bath Heaters, by sending your name and address or calling today at the Los Angeles agents', the Independent Gas Appliance Co., 601 S. Hill st., where the Humphrey Heaters are on exhibition.

If you prefer a larger heater, for supplying a whole house with hot water instantaneously, any minute of the day or night for kitchen, laundry, rooms and bathrooms, we manufacture the Automatic Thermal Water Heater. We have a separate booklet on these wonderful Automatic Heaters, which we will also send you free if you are interested. Send for it.

Her singing and rendition evince a depth of feeling which few vocalists can call their own. Her tone is of unusual sweetness, and very sympathetic. She has been conscientiously and properly trained, and a few years will undoubtedly see her in the front ranks of concert singers. Miss Holterhoff's musical precision is astonishing, and her tone production free from all abnormalities. Schumann and Brahms seem to be best adapted to her individuality and voice. I was most pleased with Schumann's "Mondnacht," and least with "Myrten and Rosen," of the same composer.

"Leila Holterhoff is the only child of Godfrey Holterhoff, Jr., of Los Angeles. As a child she lost her sight entirely, but in spite of this fact she has had a remarkable education. She possesses a diploma as a teacher of Latin, and speaks five languages fluently. In Los Angeles she studied piano with Thilo Becker. In Berlin she pursued her studies of theory and harmony with the American, Edgar Stillman-Kelley. Her vocal studies covered a period of seven years (which might be taken as an example for the majority of our vocal students.)

"If Miss Holterhoff continues to work along the road she is on, success will surely not be found lacking. In Kapellmeister Lindemann she had a brilliant accompanist."

No, we don't do business that way. I don't care tuppence what you think—or anybody thinks. He encourages shoplifting. Everything loose and unguarded. What can you expect at Selfridge's!"

At Harrod's, the largest department store in London, excepting Selfridge's, I had a confession from the chief of the force of private detectives engaged in the store:

"Shoplifting? We have none, absolutely none, whatsoever, of any kind." Visions came to me of slim bolts of lace, Chantecler veils, and other articles so easily dropped into one's umbrella. There was nothing to do, however, but grin the Roosevelt grin and tell him he didn't look overworked.

Only a few hours before this the manager of one famous firm had said in the Chamber of Trade:

"No matter how carefully our departments are policed by trained detectives, the shoplifting profession is carried on with most deplorable success. We are, of course, handicapped by the awful possibility of making a mistake. If one of our detectives were to approach an honest purchaser and ask to be allowed to examine the contents of the bag or the parcel she may be carrying away our reputation would be ruined—absolutely."

Then, moreover, it is difficult to distinguish kleptomania from shoplifting. Genuine cases of kleptomania are rare. Such a case occurred recently. A well dressed striking-looking young woman walked into a shop, and after visiting several counters, made a small purchase. None of the clerks knew her but it was evident that she was a lady, and well-to-do. Something moved one of the women watchers to follow her, she was stopped at the swinging doors and asked to see the manager in his private room.

"Madame," he said politely, "hasn't there been some little oversight on your part. I think you have forgotten to pay for a bottle of perfume?"

The woman collapsed into a chair. All she could say was "What shall I do—oh, what will happen to me?" She then produced an extraordinary collection of goods she had stolen—stockings slipped into her umbrella, trinkets into her muff, two bangles, a brooch and a "Dorothy" bag, which she had lifted from the fancy counter. She produced her purse with four or five twenty-five dollar bills in it, and a number of gold pieces, and then gave the address of her husband—a solicitor in the north of England—and the name of her hotel in London.

No action was taken beyond sending her to her hotel in a cab and wiring her husband. He caught the night train and was awaiting the manager at his office next morning.

"As a birthday present," he said, "I gave my wife $250 to spend how she liked on herself, and suggested that she should come to London; and I would come down for a week-end and take her back. If this dreadful thing goes any further I shall be ruined. For heaven's sake be merciful."

The woman confessed to an overwhelming impulse to take the things discovered in her possession, though she had enough money with her to pay for them twenty times over.

With regard to shoplifting Mr. Selfrige says:

"The fact that we are the only store which makes a consistent attempt to scotch the evil has had two results. Several professional thieves have been detected and prosecuted by us. Secondly the magistrate before whom the cases were tried censured us unjustly not so much because of our successful fight against shoplifting as the fact that our customers are more privileged than those of other London shop-keepers."

You Can KNOW That You Get Full Weight Ice

Do you know whether or not you're getting full weight ice?

Have you any means of determining this easily and quickly?

Our customers do know the weight of the ice they receive. We place in their hands a simple, easy way of definitely determining it.

This does not mean that they are obliged to weigh the heavy, slippery block of ice in the ordinary way. We send them, upon request, a free Measuring Rule and Table of Weights, by means of which they can figure the exact amount of ice delivered, by merely measuring the cake. The process is quick, simple and easy. A child can do the work.

Another great advantage which we have introduced this season is Coupon Books.

This means that we no longer sell ice for cash. You don't have to bother with change every time the man comes, or check up a troublesome monthly bill.

We provide our customers with Coupon Books good for a given amount of ice. When the driver makes a delivery, he merely takes a coupon. Coupon Books may be purchased for cash or charged to your account, as desired. You will find them a great convenience.

Our service is careful and painstaking. Our Drivers are men of intelligence, who know what the word "courtesy" means.

CURIOUS TEST.

Stanford University Takes Novel Method to Avoid Canoe Accidents on the Lake.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, April 22.—On account of the many accidents that have happened on the university lake, the university authorities have imposed a curious test upon all persons desirous of canoeing on the water. The applicant is required to paddle a craft out about fifty yards from the bank, overturn it, and bring it back to shore. Any one who has not performed this feat will not be allowed to enjoy the pleasures of boating.

The students are getting considerable pleasure out of the test, and during the last week the committee has been working overtime in handling the crowd. Some of the men who had unusual confidence in their ability to meet the test failed and had to be dragged out of the water.

Two cases of drowning occurred this year. Last week a youth from San Francisco tipped over his canoe and perished. There have been several narrow escapes.

Miss Adaline Wright, '10, and C. F. Margon, '10, of Los Angeles and W. P. Fuller, '10, have been selected to play the leading parts in the senior farce this year. "Cousin Kate" is to be produced. Miss J. A. Heartt, '11, and Miss A. A. Shepardson, '10, of Los Angeles also are to take part in the performance.

Ray Wheeler, '11, of Pasadena and G. A. Ditz, '11, of Stockton were nominated for the office of student body president yesterday. The election is to be held next week. H. G. Ferguson, '11, of Hollywood was the only nominee for the editorship of the daily paper.

Two hundred and eleven students are to be graduated at the end of the present school year. The final examinations are to begin May 11 and will end May 18. The commencement exercises are to begin May 22 and the degrees will be conferred May 26.

APPLIES FOR FRANCHISE.

San Jacinto Man Approaches Boards of Trustees of That City and of Hemet.

SAN JACINTO, April 22.—The application for a street railway franchise by J. S. Jackson was before the Trustees on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. On the same evenings the application was presented to the trustees of Hemet. While the matter was not definitely settled in either of the towns, members of the boards say that without question amicable terms will be agreed upon and a franchise will be granted. In both towns the trustees are anxious to coöperate with Mr. Jackson to further the prospect of an electric line to this valley.

Turner Bros. have let the contract for a four-room bungalow to W. C. Wright, local builder, and work will begin next week. On the Turner Bros.' ranch of 300 acres, 200 have been prepared for alfalfa and a pumping plant of sufficient capacity to irrigate the entire tract installed. The property is three-quarters of a mile southeast of San Jacinto and its improvement is a great advantage to this town.

The newly-elected trustees were inducted into office this week, the board organizing by electing J. W. Thomas president. C. E. Bunker was appointed City Recorder and Frazier M. Sallee City Attorney.

On Thursday L. E. VanWinkle sold ten acres in the Little Lake district to Geo. A. Black and S. L. Wilson, the consideration being $6750. The land is all improved with orchard and carries a full Lake Hemet water right.

S. E. Kennedy has invented a patent scraper, or leveler, for use in preparing ground for alfalfa. The appliance has been tested and pronounced a success by experienced men. Mr. Kennedy is applying for a patent.

F. A. Druding is a delegate to the Shriners' Convention at San Francisco this week, representing the local Masonic lodge.

On Friday evening Father Wm. Hughes delivered an illustrated lecture on Mexico at Guild Hall. The lecture was given for the benefit of the San Jacinto High School and was well attended by pupils and friends of the school.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Burton and family have gone to Newport Beach and later will move to Merced county to reside. For the past six years Mr. Burton has been ranch manager for the extensive interests of R. J. Waters in this valley, under the incorporated name of the California Cattle Company.

SMALL BAND'S LARGE GIFT.

The convention of the Christian and Missionary Alliance closed its labors by making a contribution of $5100 for home and foreign missions, and five persons offered themselves for work in the mission fields. A similar convention was held at Pasadena, and one will open in Long Beach on Monday, and will be attended by missionaries from India, Africa, and other foreign fields.

Orrine Cured Him of Drunkenness

Her Husband Now Spends His Evenings at Home.

She bought Orrine from the druggist in her home town—she bought it after reading the Orrine Free Booklet. In the Booklet she read of the wonderful cures of drunkenness which were accomplished by the aid of Orrine. On page ten of the Booklet she read the liberal guarantee to refund all money paid for Orrine if it failed to effect a cure. After reading the Booklet she became convinced that Orrine was a remedy of unusual merit. She decided to purchase it and cure her husband of drunkenness. Orrine cured him. Now she is a happy wife in a happy home. Orrine helped to purchase the home. Read the following letter from Walter K. Schmidt Co., 84 Canal st., Grand Rapids, Mich.:

"For a number of years we have been agents for Orrine. During that time we have had occasion to be convinced, beyond a doubt, that Orrine is a reputable remedy, worthy of recommendation. One of the many cases coming to our attention, a mechanic earning $22.50 per week, who had not taken a full pay envelope home for over five years, was induced to try Orrine, a complete cure being the result. The man became worth more to his firm, receiving an advance in pay, and has purchased a home. The house stands there showing the merits of Orrine. We can not help but feel that we were most fortunate when we secured the agency for this reliable liquor cure."

Orrine is prepared in two forms, No. 1 a powder, absolutely tasteless and odorless, given secretly in food or drink. Orrine No. 2, in pill form, is for those who wish to cure themselves. Orrine costs only $1 a box. The guarantee is in each box. Write for Free Orrine Booklet (mailed in plain sealed envelope,) to Orrine Co., 919 Orrine Bldg., Washington, D. C. Orrine is for sale in this city by The Owl Drug Co., Inc., 320 So. Spring St; Fifth and Broadway; 625 So Broadway.

They know Orrine is a reliable and efficacious remedy for drunkenness and they will not offer you a substitute.

SPADER JOHNSON, THE "GREEN-HORSE" CLOWN.

Spader Johnson, the celebrated clown now with the Sells-Floto Circus, once kept a livery stable at Rushville, Ind. A week before St. Patrick's Day, the president of the Rushville lodge of the Ancient Order of Hibernians went around to interview him.

"Spader," said he, "Oi wa-ant twinty-foive gray horses fur th' procission on th' sivinteenth."

"All right," replied Johnson, "I have a dozen or so on hand now, but tomorrow I am expecting three carloads of green horses from the West.

"Tare an' ouns Spadher, why didn't ye tell me that afore," ejaculated the patriotic Celt—"niver moind th' gray horses at all at all, make 'em all green."

Whose Child?

LOS ANGELES, April 22.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I am an old woman and have seen a good deal of life. I am so far as woman can be, a Republican, of fifty years' standing, and I am a constant reader of your paper. Now I wish the privilege of saying a word in its columns. This morning, Friday, there is in The Times an account of a fight between father and mother over a little child, a baby. Now I wish to say just this, knowing the character of neither party, the law that leans toward the side of the father is not a just one. If a single woman bears a child, it is hers. She has the suffering of child bearing, the shame and the child. In the Southern States (if I am not greatly mistaken, and my people were slave owners,) if your slave man and my slave woman had a child, that child belonged to me, not to the owner of the man, even when they were "married." But if a girl marries, bears a child with all the agonies before its birth, at its birth, and for months afterward, if any trouble arises that child is as apt as not to be the husband's, not hers. He has never suffered one second's pain or inconvenience, for that child. Usually he gives it to some other woman to take care of. What justice is there in that? Even if the mother is bad, she doesn't often wish her child to be so. Now if this is not offering a premium on immorality what is? The unmarried woman's child is hers, the married woman's child is some other person's. "What do you know about that," is quite a pertinent question here. People, just think this over a while. K.

SCHOOLS SOLVE PROBLEM.

Educator Gives His Views on Making Good Citizens, in Lecture Before City Club.

An address on "What the public schools should do for good citizenship," was given by Prof. J. H. Francis, principal of the Polytechnic High School, before the City Club yesterday. His words seemed to strike at the fundamental root of things, the training of the boy and the girl, the incentive to work and the building of a sound body. He declared that the Pacific shore is to be the center of the working out of the great industrial, commercial, and economic problems of the age.

"That nation," Prof. Francis said, "that has the longest lease on life, is the one that takes the greatest care, and exercises the largest intelligence in training its children. The problems of America lie in the public schools. If we could teach the boys and girls how to breathe, how and when and what to eat, and how to dress, 85 per cent. of the difficulties of society would be solved.

Prof. Francis said the census department puts down the housewife as having no occupation. The women are going to be enumerated as unpaid housekeepers. "The department fails to realize that they are of equal importance in the building up of citizenship, as men," he said. "Either women do not need an education, or the kind we give the men is satisfactory. I know that in the economic arrangement of citizenship today, there is a great division of labor, and the women have either chosen or been given one department of it. The difficulty is that both man and woman fail to realize that woman has done as much for the progress of civilization as has man. And it requires just as much training to do woman's work well, as it does to do man's work well."

UNNECESSARY BLINDNESS.

Result of Inefficient Medical Attention of the Child's Eyes at Its Birth.

[McClure's Magazine:] It is an astonishing fact, and one not generally known, that one-quarter of all the children in the blind schools of this country are needlessly blind. These children are doomed to life-long darkness because at the time of their birth their eyes were not properly washed and treated by the attending physician or midwife. The cause of this preventable blindness is ophthalmia neonatorum (ophthalmia of the new-born,) commonly known as "inflammation of the eyes of the new-born," "babies' sore eyes," or "cold in the eyes"—one of the most dangerous menaces to vision when treatment is neglected or delayed. "It is a veritable world plague," says Dr. Lewis. "It occurs everywhere, and no country has yet succeeded in getting it under control."

From New York to Japan, from Japan to Australia, from Australia to South America, its cases are scattered. In Mexico, it is the common cause of blindness, and that country claims at least 4500 victims; in the New York State School for the Blind, at Batavia, 20.7 per cent. of the children admitted in 1907 were victims of ophthalmia neonatorum; at the Pennsylvania School for the Blind at Overbrook, the average in 1909 was higher—44 per cent.; at the Sheffield School for the Blind, (England,) Dr. Simeon Snell reports to the British Medical Association 127 cases out of 333 inmates—42.36 per cent.; and, still higher, the Henshaw School for the Blind (England,) reported in 1908 that 90 out of its 200 children—45 per cent.—are blind from this disease.

Capitalization $1,000,000. Shares $1.00 Each Treasury Stock, Reserve 825,000 Shares $1.00 Each 402-404 Homer Laughlin Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

TO THE PUBLIC: Los Angeles, California, April 24, 1910.

The Midway View Oil Company is a corporation formed under the laws of California with a capital stock of one million dollars divided into one million shares of one dollar each. 825,000 shares is in the treasury for the use and benefit of the stockholders. Out of this 825,000 shares there have been offered the past week 200,000 shares at 25c per share.

The money derived from the sale of this stock is to be used for the further development of our present property, situated in the Midway oil field; and for the purchase of additional proven property to add to the assets of the corporation.

The present property of the corporation consists of 40 acres of absolutely proven oil land located in the N.W. 1-4 of the S.E. 1-4 of Sec. 2, Twp. 11, Range 24. This property has for its neighbors some of the greatest oil wells ever produced in this state. To the north and east from one and a half to one and three-quarter miles is the Lakeview gusher. Also to the northeast one mile away are the great wells known as the Ethel D, and the Kern Trading and Oil Company gushers. To the northwest approximately three and a half miles is the Standard Oil Company gusher. Cornering on our property is the McCutcheon Oil Company, whose well, only in the first sands, is producing over 300 barrels per day. Three-fourths of a mile to the northwest, reports in the press of yesterday, state that the Hanford-Singer and the Pacific Sunset Companies have reached the lower oil sands and are preparing to care for the rush of oil.

The first well on our property is now in the first sands and the casing stands full of oil and gas at a depth of 598 feet. We confidently believe that our property is located directly in the gusher belt and that with the sinking of Well No. 2 we will penetrate the lower gusher sands on our property.

This property was selected by this company after a careful investigation by members of the board of directors as being a property in which they feel sure of striking oil in paying quantities. The business of the corporation has the personal supervision of its board of directors, who stand sponsors for the proper conduct of its business affairs.

Subscriptions to the remaining allotment of the first issue of 200,000 shares of treasury stock at 25c per share will be received this week. With the closing of this subscription no more stock will be available at this figure.

PALO VERDE OPENING.

"blind," some maintain, for according to the definition of swamp the ground must be literally under water, so that drainage systems must be installed to reclaim it for cultivation. The Palo Verde lands are subject to overflow during one or two months of the year—generally in July and August. In August the back waters recede and the land is reoccupied and cultivated during the remaining months.

Aside fro mthe suspension of the land considerable excitement has marked the opening "run." Gun play and interference by squatters and "sooners" with locators on the day of the opening would have kept a squad of deputy sheriffs busy, but fortunately for the squatters and unfortunately for the locators, representatives of the law were far from the scene of action. Requests for protection during the opening days were apparently ignored.

The store and postoffice at Neighbors, owned by Rev. P. H. Bodkin, formerly proprietor of the California Independent, was shot up by gun men out in the brush, who emptied their Winchesters into the structure where Bodkin and half a dozen customers were gathered at the counter. Efforts were made to prove the identity of the gun men, but the clews are slight, and the culprits may never be apprehended.

SHOOTING UP STORE.

The shooting occurred about 8:30 o'clock Monday night. The first few shots went high, and did not hit the building. Then the lead pellets splintered the shingles on the roof and scattered fragments of wood over the counter. The terrified inmates "beat it" to the rear of the building, where the thick adobe walls protected them from the bullets. About a dozen shots were fired, eight of the bullets sinking into the adobe or splintering the planks of the wood partition.

One bullet entered the partition above the front door, seven feet from the floor, and punctured a dish pan hanging on the opposite wall. Another pellet buried itself in the dresser of the adjoining room.

Jesse Bodkin and a companion were feeding the mules in the corral, not more than fifty yards from the store, and saw the flash of the rifles across the road, but didn't realize the intent of those handling them until the shooting was all over, and the men came out the rear end of the building. The experience was terrifying, because the persons in the store were absolutely helpless. There was not a weapon on the premises, and it was difficult to locate the gunners.

The track of the shooters was plainly visible the next morning, and shells were found, which may lead to identification. Two men who purchased cartridges of similar caliber at the Blythe store Sunday are under suspicion, although proof has not been obtained.

SQUATTERS SHOULD FILE.

Squatters gave the locators a good deal of a scare in several sections. One settler endeavored to lay claim to a quarter on which a squatter has been living for more than two years. The squatter attacked the settler, scattered his camp utensils in the brush, and almost rode the man down with his horse. The invader was so frightened he is afraid to file against the squatter, although he would have a clear claim to the land, according to the authorities of the Land Office.

From six to eight settlers located on nearly every available piece of land. Each claimed a settlement at the same moment, and each intend to remain with the land until the time for filing. In such cases the applicants must divide or bid for the holding. On other pieces where more than tiers threw high dice, the winner being given undisputed right to file, the losers withdrawing.

There was a big rush for transportation into the valley from the railroad departure point at Giannis, and the auto drivers reaped a harvest. Neil Hinckley and E. S. McArthur, who have been operating the auto line more than two years, carried a large proportion of the settlers into the valley. Alpha Litts was the boss of a rival auto concern which invaded the valley a week previous to the run.

Hinckley operated three autos, which have been used in heavy traffic on the desert for four years, covering a total of more than 20,000 miles. Last year Hinkley hauled more than 2000 persons into the valley. With the opening of the Santa Fé cutoff to Parker, the autos will run from the new railroad into Blythe, at the upper end of the valley.

BUILDING ACTIVITY.

Improvements at El Centro—Tennis Tournament—Hot Salt Water Struck in Well.

EL CENTRO, April 23.—Under Sheriff W. H. Buck has purchased a lot on Commercial street, between Seventh and Eighth streets, and will erect a five-room house of home-manufactured hollow tile. N. H. Scott, local manager for the Blinn Lumber Company, is erecting a large bungalow on the north side of Olive street, between Fifth and Sixth streets, for his own home. Work is progressing on the large cold-storage plant here, and the permanent home of the El Centro National Bank will be completed the first of next week. Extensive building of arcades around Hotel Oregon is in progress, and pillars are being made for the arcades along the entire south side of Main street, between Fifth and Sixth streets.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

The Imperial Valley Interscholastic Athletic League has played its finals of the tennis tournament on the El Centro courts, and the result is that Central High School of El Centro took the boys' singles and mixed doubles, and the Imperial Valley Union High School of Imperial took the boys' doubles and girls' doubles. The final result of the tournament was that El Centro won three out of a possible five games. In the Interscholastic League games this year the El Centro High School has won at two meets. The local school won all of the basket ball games, and a majority of the tennis games.

HOT SALT WATER STRUCK.

Hot salt water has been developed in the El Centro municipal well, at a depth of 1300 feet. The salt water will be plugged off, and a test will be made of the two sand strata above. It is believed that each will yield good water. A plan was discussed of using the hot salt water flow for a natatorium, but as the waste would have to be discharged through the city sewer system, eventually this salt would ruin the sewer farm, so the plan has been abandoned.

HUNTINGTON BEACH.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, April 22.—Rush M. Blodget was reëlected City Attorney by the Trustees at their meeting this week; J. W. Shirley, City Recorder, and J. L. McBride of Santa Ana, City Engineer. Ed Manning was reëlected chairman of the board by a vote of three to two over W. D. Seely.

The county organization of the Modern Woodmen of America has decided to hold its annual picnic at Garden Grove on June 15. It is expected that a drill team from Golden State or Pacific camps of Los Angeles will be present.

At a meeting of the directors of the local Tent City Company, Willis Waring summer, and John Newland, assistant. The Southern California Methodist Encampment will open in the Tent City and Auditorium on July 11 and continue for one month.

More than 200 trees have just been planted in the new park here, and the work now being done in beautifying will make it one of the prettiest on the Coast. It is situated between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets and Magnolia and Orange avenues.

The trustees of the local grammar school have decided to leave the present school building as it is and add a $9000 building to it, instead of tearing down the present structure and erecting an entirely new one. All modern appliances will be purchased for the school.

TRUE TO NATURE.

PHOTOGRAPHIC COLOR PLATES.

ENGLISH SCIENTISTS SUCCEED IN REPRODUCING TINTS.

Have Beaten the French Product by Relying on the Principle That the Color of the Sun Is Not White, But Is a Jumble of the Three Primary Colors.

[London Express:] The casual observer, unfamiliar with photographic matters, doubtless imagines that photography in color is quite an old established fact. He sees in the shop windows and railway carriages pictures in color which, even to his inexperienced eye, possess the usual attributes of photography. The skies and water are, it is true, a more delicious blue and the foliage a more vivid green than he remembered ever seeing in nature, but this, he may think, was a matter of careful selection of time and place.

The pictures, however, are "colored photographs," and not "photographs in color," often very beautiful, but not the real thing.

It was not long after the discovery of the sensitiveness of certain compounds to the action of light before the scientific mind began to work out possibilities for color selection. But the silver film, which is still the backbone of the photographic image, refused, and still refuses, to do more than become darkened by light action.

Various methods were introduced for intercepting the colors by light filters to secure separate color results, which by superposition would give the colors of the scene or object. But these demanded such care and skill that they never secured popular favor.

ENGLISHMEN IMPROVE METHOD.

In the meantime two Englishmen, Messrs. C. L. Finlay and O. S. Dawson, were quietly carrying out experimental work on quite different lines, and their researches have now culminated in a color plate which they have patriotically christened the "Thames" color plate.

While it is true, that "science knows no nationality," it was only to be expected that British photographers were delighted to find that the "home grown" article had clearly beaten the French plate on the three main points. It was so rapid that instantaneous work was possible; it was so clean and clear that lanterns of small illuminating power could use it, and from one exposure any number of results in color could be obtained in a simple and familiar manner.

The Thames plate relies for its efficiency on the well-known principle that the light of the sun is not white, but a jumble of colors, which can be combined into three colors only, viz., red, green and blue, which are termed the primary colors.

The action of the Thames color plate is extremely simple. It can perhaps be explained by an amusing illustration:

Suppose two painters were about to copy on glass a group of flowers. One artist, following the usual plan, first sketched in the position of the flowers, and then painted in the colors of the group. His companion, however, adopted a different method. He first covered his glass with small dabs of the three primary colors in regular sequence and order, so that no two similar patches adjoined each other, and having sketched in the postions, he blacked out the colors he did not want, i. e., for red flowers he blacked out the green and blue; for the blue flowers he blacked out the red and green. Where a color was composed of two colors, as, for instance, yellow (which is made by red and green,) he only blacked out one color, viz., the blue. For the delicate shades he only partly blacked out the color, leaving a bit of it to show; for the shadows he blacked out all or most of them.

TWO FORMS OF NEW PLATE.

And the latter, thus crudely put, is the principle of the Thames color plate, which seizes and utilizes the unerring powers of the lens and sensitive plate, which, with a skill no artist can hope to emulate, sketches in the object photographed, and lays down in the shape of silver deposit and blacking out which is necessary for the production of color.

The Thames color plate consists of two essentials—first, the color screen, as explained above, and second, the sensitive surface. The color scheme is made by putting down on glass patches of the three primary colors in regular order so minute that there are nearly ten thousand of them in one square inch. The sensitive surface is very much like that of the ordinary dry plate, except that it is "pan-chromatic," i. e., sensitive to all the colors.

The plate is prepared in two forms, each of which has certain advantages. In one (the "separate" method) the color screen and sensitive coating are on two separate glasses. In the other (the "combined" method) the color screen and sensitive coating are on the same glass. But whichever is used, it is necessary that the color screen should be in front of the sensitive coating when the exposure is made.

It might be a matter worthy of thought if ordinary photography has not been a dominant factor in the present "dead levelness" of opinion as to color. George Bernard Shaw recently said that some people seem to think that color was immoral, and that only black and white was respectable. Nature has given us color in abundance, and eyes to appreciate it. To refuse to use our eyes will mean that in time we shall lose the power. Nature has no use for an idle organ of sense.

Skilled Chinese Bank Clerks.

The Chinese have a way of getting hold of the first principles of things, even though they may not have developed them into elaborate and scientific systems.

A foreigner, especially if he be of prepossessing appearance, is received with great civility at a Chinese bank. "Schroff," shouts the head clerk. This word is not, as it sounds, German, but a corruption of the Hindu "sarraf," or banker's assistant. In response to this call a native cashier appears, noiseless and deferential, with a smooth-shaven skull, a four-foot pigtail, and a spotless flowing garment.

With great rapidity he will make an exchange of notes, doing his calculating on an abacus—a frame of wire and beads, similar to those used in country schools everywhere years ago. His long, lithe fingers move over the beads more quickly than the eye can follow, but there is no mistake in the total.

Perhaps the visitor will want a large piece of money changed into small coin. Instead of going through the wearisome operation of counting out the 300 pieces, included in this transaction, a simple, ingenious device is employed. A flat, wooden tray is produced, containing 100 recesses, each just big enough to lodge one coin, and just shallow enough to prevent the possibility of two lurking together.

The pile of small coins is poured out on this tray, and with one jerk of the clerk's wrist the 100 recesses are fi and the surplus swept off.—[Harp Weekly.

ailroads, Smelters, Towns and Electric Power Plants Will Be Served By Arizona Pipe Line

OS ANGELES, April 21.—The proposed Arizona pipe line will supply a daily consumption of approximately ,000 barrels at the start. Most of it in Southeastern Arizona, but there is lot elsewhere.

Crossing the Tehachepi south of Bak- rsfield the line will undoubtedly carry e oil for the Southern Pacific and Santa e locomotives. Whether a positive arangement is yet made to that effect or ot, it will certainly be done. To suppose at the railroads will continue to haul er the mountains a day longer than they ave to would be to accuse the manement of incompetency, as oil is the ost costly article there is to haul. Trains dread it on the mountain curves and ades; it causes accidents; it injures e track and it necessitates a "dead" turn haul.

At Mojave the pipe line will deliver l also to the new Espee line to Keeler d north into Nevada. Following the nta Fe route east by a short car haul om Barstow will serve San Bernardino, here the Santa Fe shops are located. ast it would reach a host of small Southn California mining camps, such as arstow and Bagdad, and at Ludlow it ould deliver fuel to the Tonopah and idewater Railroad, which starts from ere to Beatty, Rhyolite, Goldfield and nopah. Undoubtedly the shortest and asiest way by far to get oil to all these mps, good consumers, too, will be to e it to Ludlow and load there on cars. lay it must either come to Ludlow by il or go via Sacramento by rail.

At Daggett oil can be delivered to e Salt Lake also, for use in Nevada d Utah, at less cost by pipe than it n be hauled from Los Angeles or Bakfield.

ROUTE TO BE FOLLOWED.

If the old Santa Fe route be followed rough Needles, the pipe line will serve el to the smelter, ice plant, electric ght works, power plant and to that wn generally. At Kingman it will furh fuel to the electric power plant at furnishes "juice" to the mines of ivian, Chloride, Mineral Park and viciny, also to all these districts. Further st it will aid industries at Ash Fork, inslow and other small points.

It is likely, however, that the line will llow the Santa Fe cut-off through Parr, Wickenburg and the Bill Williams ork country, but in this case oil for eedles and vicinity will be piped to engal, where the lines part, and there loaded into cars. By this means 75 to per cent. of the rail haul to these ints will be saved.

Crossing the Colorado River into Arizoa at Parker, the line will have another stomer in the Clara Consolidated Min- Company, operating a copper propty, smelter and railroad, besides a numr of minor properties lying along the ute.

At Wickenburg the Santa Fe cut-off ins the Santa Fe, Phoenix and Eastern ilroad. Here either a branch pipe line ould be run north to Prescott and rome, the last the site of Senator ark's famous United Verde mine, or re resorted to for a very short haul.

GOOD MARKET IN CAPITAL CITY.

Running south the line would enter oenix, the Territorial capital. Here will serve the electric street cars, power d light plants and business generally, d with short car hauls oil can be ipped to Florence, Winkelman, Ray and score of minor points. If the line ops here, car shipments will be easy to cson, Globe, Douglas and Bisbee, but will be easy to follow the railroad utheast, coming on to the Southern cific at Maricopa and following it to cson, where there will be the usual mand for fuel in a growing small city.

Besides being a distributing center for e neighboring mines, Tucson will be the ot for supply with fuel the Southern cific's lines to Nogales and down to aymas, when the Mexican government rees to the importation, as well as a all railroad. From Tucson, either by or extension of the pipe line, Douglas, e great Arizona smelting point, where helps, Dodge & Co. operate on a huge ale; the great camps of Bisbee, Nacori and Cananea, Sonora, will be reached. oday some Texas oil is coming this far st, and New Mexico coal is used beuse of the difficulties in getting Califora deliveries. The El Paso and Southestern Railroad burns mostly, if not tirely, New Mexico coal, but if oil ere furnished by the pipe line it would splace this west of El Paso.

The delivery of oil by pipe line at Tucn, Douglas or Cananea will mean its e as fuel, not only by smelters, business nerally, and by the railroads and hers. Two railroad lines, both Southern acific, enter Cananea, one from Nogales d one from Nacozari, and the two are run south to the Yaqui and thence uthwest to Guaymas, there to connect ith the Southern Pacific to Mexico down the coast. Today wood and some coal e burned, but with oil delivered by pe so near these will soon be disaced, as on the old Sonora line from gales to Guaymas, an Espee property. e same is true of the Nacozari railroad, e Phelps, Dodge & Co. line running into exico. At Cananea fuel is needed not ly for the Greene-Cananea Comapny's ines, smelters and other plants, but also r the city's lights and power, for the ckinghouses and a number of minor instries.

As far east as El Paso there should be market for California oil, once the ng haul is cut down. That city today n get oil from neither Texas or Calirnia except by a haul of 800 to 1000 iles. It burns wood and New Mexico al, the latter hauled some 300 miles. uel has always been an expensive item ere.

At El Paso the National Railways of exico (Mexican Central) import large antities of American coal for fuel. The rthern division that terminates at El aso is furtherest from the Ebano field d uses the least oil fuel on this acunt. With the California haul reduced per cent. and the duty lifted a market ay be found there, as well as on the io Grande, Sierra Madre & Pacific, and her Mexican lines running out of El aso.

Serving at the start an existing conmption of 10,000 barrels daily in Arina and Sonora, the Arizona pipe line ill begin business with an assurance of ls increasing 50 to 100 per cent. very on after the deliveries of oil begin.

ich Strikes in the Big Fields

ools Tapped by Nine Companies at Almost the Same Time

The month of March, 1910, will go down the history of the California oil fields the era of gushers. The 31 days of e month witnessed the addition of ine spouters to the wonderful wells of e State. It has given California a colction of petroleum geysers that find no rallel in the annals of mineralogy. At e same time a dozen other gushers have ntinued their undiminished flow.

The gusher is the star performer of the l fields. Its spectacular performance, s enormous output and its wealth in llars and cents supply those features at swing the industry from commerce to mance. It has its counterpart only in e big strike in the land of gold.

Standing alone, the most sensational rformer is, of course, the Lakeview usher. It has sent a daily stream of ,000 to 40,000 barrels high over the errick. It has filled pipe lines, reserirs, ditches and sump holes, and still continues. It began its flow on March and has continued without interrupon.

MAYS BREAKS RECORDS.

The Lakeview was preceded by the faous Mays gusher, which started the rush the North Midway. On March 4 the ays broke forth at the rate of 50,000 arrels a day. It was curbed, however, before many days. While it did not give forth as much oil as the Lakeview, it holds the record for a single day's output. It brought its owners some $30,000 a day while it continued at its maximum. The remarkable exhibition brought hundreds of spectators to the scene. The representatives of the Standard Oil Company hurried to the spot and while the oil was still spouting contracted for the oil at 65 cents a barrel.

The ownership of the Mays property is lodged in a syndicate composed of F. B. Chapin of Toronto, S. Frank and Peeral Meiggs of New York, B. A. Hayden of Bakersfield, J. D. Lederman, J. M. O'Brien, H. P. Coles, A. G. Wilkes and Thomas Wilkes of San Francisco.

STANDARD'S STRIKE.

Not far from the Mays the Pioneer Midway came in with a tremendous flow, which at times is said to have reached 30,000 barrels a day. Near by the Santa Fe well struck oil and tore loose with a flow that reached the same proportions. These two wells have since been brought down to steady streams and are being handled successfully.

One of the most productive of the new gushers is the Standard Oil Company's well north of the Lakeview. It was brought under control very shortly after it broke forth. The oil was conducted through a small pipe which spurts a stream several feet into a reservoir, where it is captured, cleared of sand and turned into the big reservoirs. This well is said to have come in at 15,000 barrels, but has steadied down to a flow that varies from 2000 to 5000 barrels a day.

Santa Fe Finds Deeper Sand Underlying Rich Section Six

TAFT, April 21.—That a deep sand underlies the productive area from which the wells of the Santa Fe and United Oil Company have been drawing on section 6-32-23 has been demonstrated by the Santa Fe in No. 5. This hole was down 1605 feet on Monday, and in a sand with considerable gas pressure. The hole is kept loaded with water and drilling will continue as long as conditions are favorable, unless the gas gets too strong. Alternate strata of oil sands and oil shale have been encountered from about 1100 feet down to the present depth.

The first big strike of the Santa Fe was made at 1405 feet, in the famous 2-6 flowing well, which has a marvelous record for steady production. This well has dwindled to about 500 to 600 barrels a day, but the flow is as regular as of yore. The next well in this vicinity was No. 1 of the United Oil Company, 300 feet to the west, followed by Nos. 2 and 3 of the same company.

All three of these wells entered the sand at approximately the same depth as the big Santa Fe, and are flowing wells, though not so large as 2-6. On the east, across the line on section 31-31-23, the Eagle Creek, then the Midway Crude, had a small well at about 1800 feet before the Santa Fe came in. This well has since been deepened to 2007 feet and is flowing about 600 barrels daily of the same gravity oil as its neighbors.

Well No. 5 of the Santa Fe is higher up on the formation than No. 2 or of any of the United wells, and is probably in the same sand now as the Eagle Creek at 2007 feet. To the north and west the American Oilfields has struck the top one of the producing strata in two wells, at 970 and 1110 feet, indicating that the formation is regular and unbroken, with a slight uplift to the northwest. The situation forms an interesting study to those companies who are drilling in that locality, and it is the intention of the United Oil Company to drill one of its wells into the deeper strata.

Prospective Purchasers R Bakersfield as New Petrol Deposits Are Opened

A new York broker walked into the office of C. A. Barlow in Bakersfield last week to negotiate for a ten-acre piece of oil land. It was a small strip wedged in between two gusher companies.

"What is your price?" asked the broker, after some preliminary inquiries.

"I would have to ask you a pretty good sum for it," replied Barlow.

"That's all right," answered the broker. "Let us get down to figures."

"But I am afraid you would consider the price rather high," continued the Bakersfield man.

TAFT, April 21.—The Mays is completing two large storage tanks in anticipation of a large production when the well is opened again. A new boiler plant and two pumps to handle the oil are being installed. The casing has been anchored and an extra heavy eight-inch gate has been attached to the six-inch string, to reduce the pressure. The Standard is ready to take care of the oil, and it is expected that the well will be opened up when the tanks are finished.

Union Wants Dollar a Barrel For Oil Delivered on Contract in Year 1912

LOS ANGELES, April 21.—After sending notices broadcast all over the State that oil was wanted, the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Company obtained but one or two bids and made no award, so far as can be learned. It is said that both bids, which were for delivery in 1912, were considered too high. The Amalgamated-Associated is in litigation with the gas company over its former contract and declines to enter into any further relations. The Union is said to have bid $1 for one year's business.

In some quarters it is believed that the whole move was merely intended as a "feeler" to ascertain just how the market stood. If so, the gas company has learned what it wanted.

The first suit brought against the Amalgamated for its alleged repudiation of the former contract with the gas company was thrown out of court on legal grounds, but another has been brought in, altered to comply with the court's rulings. It is quite certain that there will be no compromise. Considerable bitterness exists between the two corporations, each charging the other with repudiating its obligations.

La Belle is One of Great Promise

W. P. Cunningham Thinks It As Big As Any in Midway

BAKERSFIELD, April 21.—The Daily Echo of this city quotes W. P. Cunningham as saying that he is bringing in what he thinks will be the best producer in North Midway in La Belle's well on section 4-32-23. The oil sand was struck a week ago Sunday at 2919 feet, and since then the well has spurted an average of nine times a day, sending oil forty feet above the derrick each time. Each spurt nets about fifty barrels of oil.

No work can be done of the well at night on account of the gas, but during the day drillers are constantly sinking the casing deeper. Mr. Cunningham says they are now down nearly 3000 feet, and he does not know yet how much deeper the sand may be. He says it seems to be the same sand all the way down, and he means to go to the bottom of it.

Santa Fe Drills Through Shell.

TAFT, April 21.—The 5⅝ has been landed in the shell in the Santa Fe's deep well on section 25-31-22, and the hole is being sent down into the sand. This is expected to be a big well.

STANDARD CONTRACT EXPIRES.

TAFT, April 21.—The Santa Fe's contract with the Standard for oil from its gusher in the northwest corner of section 6-32-23 has expired. The oil will now go to the Independent Agencies.

MUSIC-PLAY IS MIGHTY TASK.

HARTMAN'S VALIANT OVERCOMING OF DIFFICULTY.

Public Ignorant of Intense Labor in Musical Stock—Morosco to Take a Try at Several Cohan Pieces—Interesting Plans of Grace George for Next Season.

BY JULIAN JOHNSON.

The local newspaper writers have typed so much stuff about the two big dramatic stocks that every person and appurtenance of them is public property, from the Burbank's redoubtable office family of black cats to the wonderful janitorial photographer of the theater de Blackwood.

The public is not, however, so familiar with the hard work and multivarious detail of a musical stock—all of which is vividly recalled to me by Hartman's strikingly good production, during the past week, of Cohan's "George Washington, Jr."

In a dramatic stock company you have the play plus the scenery and the costuming.

In a musical stock you have the music and the chorus—plus principals enough to make a small dramatic company, and the lines of the dialogue.

Hartman's peculiar faculty for amalgamating the different materials of his company into one harmonious whole is of great assistance to him in his work. If he did not have this blending ability his productions would have little of their characteristic finish.

The question of securing plays is a big enough one for the dramatic manager. For the music manager it fills his whole heaven. There are few enough good plays made, but for every good dozen fairly successful dramas there is scarcely one musical piece which can outlive its first few months.

Versatility, therefore, is a very necessary qualification, for the actor must expect to appear successively in comic or allegedly comic emanations from the minds of French, German, Austian, English and American libretto makers.

A stock piece is lucky if it runs two weeks. Most of Hartman's plays lately have been in the two weeks' class, fortunately for his working staff, but we will consider, briefly, what must be done if there is any possibility that a play will not go to the fourteen-day limit. There can be no room for doubt, you know. If one thing is the least bit doubtful, the next must be made ready.

On Monday there is a music rehearsal, commencing at 11 a.m. and ending somewhere between 2 and 3 o'clock—maybe! On Tuesday a little more is added, and thus the piece grows, day by day, with much valuable time lost at the matinées, and with the details of "business" worrying the stage director, costumes prodding the production end of the firm toward distraction, orchestral parts occupying such snatches of time as the musical director is able to steal from actual rehearsal, and a general whirlwind of action, dialogue, dance and song sweeping the rank and file toward some sort of realization of the authorial ideal.

Costumes sometimes arrive at the last minute, and there are frantic readjustments, fittings, even extensive alterations.

And the regular audience files in, yawns, is pleased or bored, voices its favor or condemnation as lightly as though it were judging a piece of kitchenware or a crate of fruit, and passes out, forgetting.

In New York they take two months to put on a musical comedy or review. Here Hartman does it in a week, and such things as "George Washington, Jr.," are such surprisingly good specimens of productive art that I doubt if they could be done anywhere else, save in New York or Chicago, at an expenditure of twice the money, and with three times the time.

But Hartman needs a little firmer discipline in his stage direction. When he has this you will have to hunt flaws with a microscope.

Miss Marjorie Rambeau sings. When Oliver Morosco learned this, heard her big soprano voice, and learned that she had played a year in comic opera, he kept the wires busy to New York until he had secured five of the George M. Cohan musical comedies, and they will be given at the Burbank within the next few months. These are "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway," "Little Johnny Jones," "Fifty Miles From Boston," "The Governor's Son" and "The Talk of New York." It is promised that Miss Rambeau as Mary in "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway," will be a surprise. Henry Stockbridge, who made a hit in musical comedy at the Majestic last year, will be "Kid" Burns.

Grace George in conversation with a Times man yesterday said that her present appearance on the Coast would probably be her last for some years. Her present season in Thompson Buchanan's comedy "A Woman's Way," ends during July, and the remainder of the summer months she will devote to rehearsal of a new play, which she plans to have ready in September.

This play was written by John Corbin, the former literary director of the New Theater, New York, and an author of note. It is a comedy in three acts, with the scenes all laid in New York City. It is called "Husband," and Miss George is very enthusiastic over the possibilities of the play.

"Husband" will be the initial offering at The Playhouse, the new theater now under course of construction for William A. Brady, at Forty-eighth street and Broadway, New York. After the holidays, Miss George will also present a comedy by the English playwright, Frederick Lonsdale, the scenes of which are all laid in England. This piece is at present known as "The Best People," though it is probable it will be given another name. It made a decided sensation when presented at the Prince of Wales Theater, London, last season, and the American rights were at once secured for Miss George.

Beginning in April of next year, Miss George will inaugurate her London season under the direction of Frank Curzon, a prominent theatrical manager of London, who has been associated with William A. Brady for many years. Contracts for five new plays for the English engagement have already been signed. Jules Eckert Goodman, author of "Mother," and "The Man Who Stood Still," has already submitted to Miss George the scenario of the play which he is writing, and Thompson Buchanan, the author of "A Woman's Way," has his new manuscript in a nearly completed form. Two of the other plays are from the pens of English dramatists, and the fifth is an adaptation from the German.

J. C. Williamson, who controls the theatrical field in Australia, has been desirous for some time past to have Miss George visit Melbourne, Sydney, Perth and other cities of that country, in a repertoire consisting of several of her former successes. It is within the range of possibility that Miss George may elect to accept this standing offer and appear in "Divorcons," "The Marriage of William Ashe," "Clothes," "Frou Frou" and "A Woman's Way."

The New York home of the late Richard Mansfield, on Riverside Drive, was purchased by Mr. Brady, Miss George's husband, two weeks ago. It would seem that if her present plans, as outlined above, are carried out, her new mansion after her next New York season will see but little of her for several years.

DIVORCE SCANDAL

Grace George in "A Woman's Way."

Miss George's hit in "Divorcons" will be well remembered by Mason Operahouse patrons. This play is the successor of the Sardou comedy, and in it Miss George has won an equally pronounced personal triumph.

Grand Opera in Baltimore.

Baltimore's season of twenty-one performances of grand opera by the Metropolitan Opera Company ended with a financial deficit of about $40,000. Before the season opened a $100,000 guarantee fund was raised, 40 per cent. of which, it is now believed, will have to be used to meet the losses. To the popular demand for high-priced singers and the failure of productions given without them is laid most of the blame for the losses.

Daniel Frohman and A. B. Erlanger, who are the head and front of the arrangements calling for a series of ocean to ocean benefits in aid of the actors' fund of America, report some remarkable financial results from several cities in the East. Chicago, Washington, New York and Boston will turn over nothing less than $20,000, and by the time that San Francisco, New Orleans, St. Louis, Los Angeles, Portland and Canadian cities make returns the much-needed $100,000 will have been secured for the fund.

It is said of Anton Witek, who will succeed Willy Hess next season as concert master of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, that he is a violinist who "plays as a serious, solid, thoroughly grounded musician and not as a virtuoso; that he is an excellent interpreter of the classic masters, and has a wide acquaintance with the modern repertory." Mr. Witek was born at Saaz, Bohemia, January 7, 1872, and was appointed concert master of the Berlin Harmonic Orchestra in 1894.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

"THE PRICE" WAITS VERDICT.

NEW BROADHURST PLAY AT THE BELASCO TOMORROW.

Burbank Has Big New Production. Kolb and Dill Continue in Present Offering—Interesting Play at the Mason—Grand Hit Goes on—Vaudeville Programmes.

An event of theatrical importance will be the first production on any stage at the Belasco Monday night of George Broadhurst's newest play, "The Price."

In writing "The Price" Mr. Broadhurst has gone into entirely new fields of dramatic literature. He has eschewed his familiar farcical lines and for the time being has abandoned the business man in the drama, and in place of these he has written a strong, powerful play around a half-dozen or so people, who may be found in almost any city of 50,000 or over.

"The Price" is divided into three acts, and while the first two are of worth, the final act of the play is said to be full of surprises and virile, gripping scenes.

The Belasco players have rehearsed "The Price" under the personal direction of Mr. Broadhurst for the past fortnight, a week longer than is commonly devoted to stock presentations, and the result should be apparent who will be seen in important parts in the local and combination companies during the next seven days.

Monday night in an unusually smooth and finished performance.

Mr. Broadhurst is reticent concerning the plot of "The Price," as he is of the opinion that an audience that knows little or nothing about his story will enjoy the unfolding of the plot, with its attendant surprises, all the more.

Concerned in the performance will be Mr. Stone, Miss Oakley, Miss Lewis, Miss Farrington, Miss Sullivan, Mr. Camp and Mr. Scott. Mr. Brunton has provided some stage pictures that will add considerably to the work of the players.

Grace George will be seen at the Mason Operahouse tomorrow night in Thompson Buchanan's comedy of modern life, "A Woman's Way."

It shows how a clever wife is aroused by the realization that she has a rival in her husband's affections. In the opening scene the husband is discovered collapsed in an arm chair, with a newspaper covering his face and hundreds of newspapers heaped about the floor near his feet. The butler is also on the scene, indignantly answering a number of reporters who are calling up on the 'phone to know the truth about an automobile accident of the night before, in which the husband and an unidentified lady were the principal actors, and whether there was any truth in the statement that the wife was preparing to sue for a divorce. The husband finally emerges from his nap and upon request the butler reads a newspaper account of the affair with such evident unction and enjoyment that he is bidden to stop before he has gone very far. Presently there arrive at intervals the various members of both families, all alarmed at the idea of the scandalous divorce, which they have made up their minds is to be the result of the husband's escapade, and thoroughly ruffled by the fact that they have had to make their way through the crowd of energetic reporters at the door. One of the newspaper men is permitted an interview as a representative for them all, and the husband's brother-in-law gives out a statement to the effect that his relative is out of town and cannot be seen, but the reporter returns for his gloves in time to see the erring husband, who has just stepped in from another room. At this important moment the wife saunters in, and merrily assures the reporter that any idea of divorce proceedings are absurd. When she and her husband are left alone she treats the subject in the same light way, but manages to question him so adroitly that she finds out the name of the woman with whom he rather fancies himself in love, though he honestly admits he is not really clear on that point himself. He insists, however, that she is a "lady," and so the wife suggests that it would be altogether pleasant and delightful to have the dashing widow he has named to dinner on a certain evening. To her mother she confides the fact that she intends to put her own attractions against those of the merry widow, and then let her husband decide which of the two he prefers. In other words, the wife declares "that if she wants my husband she will have to earn him." The next two scenes show the dinner in progress. The wife has cleverly invited the widow a half-hour earlier than the rest, so that she and the husband may have a little chat, but the embarrassment of the situation renders the husband so ill at ease that he cannot rise to the occasion. He is not the only member of the dinner party who is made uncomfortable by the widow's presence, for consternation is written in turn on the faces of the wife's brother, who has been married a month, and the husband's brother-in-law. Even an old bachelor, who has been in love with the wife for eight years, is rather nonplussed at the appearance of the widow, who naively requires him to recognize the pearls about her neck as those given to her by him some years before. The fear expressed by the married men present that their former relations with the widow may be discovered by their none too lenient spouses is amusing, and they appeal to the wife for a promise not to entertain the widow in her home again. She will promise nothing, but insists that they tell her husband the predicament they are in, which they finally end by doing, much to his surprise and bewilderment. In the meantime, the bachelor's marked attention to the wife has aroused the jealousy of the husband, and the curtain goes down upon their reunion and the polite dismissal of the widow.

All the resources of the Burbank theater have been drawn upon to make the production of "Brewster's Millions" this week, beginning with the matinée today, a memorable event in the history of local stock companies. The Burbank successes of the last few weeks have been of such a character as to cause comment, but it is predicted that "Brewster's Millions" will outstrip even "Merely Mary Ann" and "The Lion and the Mouse" in popularity. Oliver Morosco has given all the details of the big production his personal attention.

The play is a dramatization of George Barr McCutcheon's novel, the stage transcription having been prepared by Frederick Thompson, producer of the New York Hippodrome.

The story deals with the adventures of Monty Brewster, who has been left a million dollars by one relative, and ten millions by another, the latter upon the proviso that he spends the entire million left by the former inside of twelve months. He must spend it, however, not give it away or throw it away, and his efforts to get rid of the golden incubus result in a number of exciting and diverting adventures. Harry Mestayer will be seen in the role of Monty, one of the most exacting this actor ever has portrayed. The entire force of the Burbank company, including Miss Marjorie Rambeau, Miss Lovell Alice Taylor, Miss Ethel von Waldron, Henry Stockbridge, John Burton, David Landau, H. S. Duffield, Willis Marks, and a large number of auxiliary players will be seen.

One of the most difficult as well as fascinating parts is the role of Nora Helmer in Ibsen's "A Doll's House," in which Hortense Nielsen appears at her own theater tomorrow night and during the coming week.

Miss Nielsen is physically the doll-wife in appearance and her development of the role from the lighter scenes of the first act to the tremendous dramatic situation at the play's close are within the little lady's capabilities.

Miss Nielsen will deliver a lecture in the Nielsen theater Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock on Ibsen and his works.

These lectures are to become a feature in connection with her work and when plays by authors like Ibsen, Maeterlink, Sunderman and others are produced she will lecture weekly.

The demand for seats for "The Rich Mr. Hoggenheimer," is showing no sign of abating. Kolb and Dill will continue this comedy of love and high finance one more week only. This is generally conceded to be one of the most entertaining pieces the Teutonic comedians ever have staged in Los Angeles, and the fact that it is so diametrically different from anything in which they have previously been seen has won many new friends for them as well as springing a surprise on their old admirers. No less than the novelty of the piece itself, the general excellence of the production in the individual members of the cast as well as in the chorus and scenic accessories, has attracted comment.

Miss Maude Lillian Berri is unquestionably one of the best prima donne in musical comedy, her voice and pleasing stage presence having made her a great favorite. Percy V. Bronson is well established, dainty little Olga Stech always has a great number of friends in Los Angeles, and the other members of the supporting cast are above the average.

There will be a triple bill following the coming week, when "The Mustard King," "The College Widower" and "The Music Master" (burlesque) will be given.

One of the most original acts the Orpheum has ever offered is headlined for that house beginning Monday afternoon, April 25, when the initial presentation in Los Angeles of "La Petite Gosse" will be made. This is a French pantomime, presented by Mlle. M. Corio and a company of twenty, under the direction of M. Molasso. This pantomime is an accurate picture of a bit of tragic life in the Paris underworld, and incident to it is introduced the Apache dance. The Parisian Apache has no actual counterpart in this country, the nearest approach being the Bowery boy, though the latter is merely tough where the former is downright vicious. It is a bit of the life of the Apache which the coming act offers; it is in two scenes, and while not at all elegant in dressing, is true to life. The settings and costumes are all faithful reproductions.

Stelling & Revell are also coming with a new thing—in acrobatics. It may sound impossible. The men are said to be experts in contortional work of this sort, but their odd falls are their most interesting contribution.

Edith L. Knox,

soprano, who will be heard in conjunction with the DeLano clubs.

Nonette, remarkably pretty musician, returns after a year in a clever violin act, with vocal pyrotechnics.

Witt's "Girls from Melody Lane" are four women singers, who possess excellent voices, which are said to be well trained and whose songs are of the latest stamp.

"His Last Appearance," the fifth new act is a tragic incident of more than usual strength. It principally concerns an old actor who is always pathetic.

Holding over are Mme. Mauricia Morichini, Berg's Six Merry Girls, and Avery & Hart, who will by request sing "Nobody."

"George Washington, Jr.," George M. Cohan's musical play in which Ferris Hartman and members of his company scored such a hit last Thursday night, has met with gratifying approval.

Both Walter De Leon in the Cohan role of George Washington, Jr., and Ferris Hartman in his funny characterization of the old negro servant, Eton Ham, have added to their reputations. Mr. De Leon in his dancing is well up to the popular Cohan method. The work of the chorus in the songs contained in the piece is snappy and dashing.

It has been announced for this week only.

What should prove one of the best acrobatic acts ever seen on a local vaudeville stage will be the Schiavonys troupe, who will be the feature of the new Sullivan and Considine programme opening at the Los Angeles Theater with the usual matinée Monday afternoon.

This European troupe is now making its first American tour under the direction of Sullivan and Considine, and come with a reputation of being out of the stereotyped run. The company includes six people, four men and two women, headed by Miss Ella, a woman Sandow, who as one of her unusual feats supports two men, one on each arm, while they are doing somersaults.

In this day when the word "farce" is so much abused and applied to all things of a noisy nature, one must avoid the word in speaking of the timely oddity, "A Trial Marriage," which will be presented by Henry Keene and Olive Briscoe. While it is one of the type of literary farces, its comedy reaches out to the very broadest farce boundaries.

Hal Kelly and Flo Wentworth also offer a sketch of more than ordinary merit in "The Village Lockup."

Ralph Whitehead in character delineations will be another number on the new bill. His Italian and English renditions are said to be particularly fine.

Concluding are Georgia Nelson, comedienne, and Miller and Russell in their skit, "The Lunatic and the Girl."

PROMPTINGS.

Brevities of Interest Concerning the Doings of Managers, Musicians, Actors and Actresses.

"Madame X" is soon to be produced at one of the Yiddish theaters on the Bowery.

Two Manhattan opera stars, Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini and Signor Zenatello sailed from New York, on the Mauretania, Wednesday, April 13.

The long run of "Seven Days in Chicago," will come to an end in the course of a week, to be followed by Henry Miller in his new play.

William Gillette, who has become an important after-dinner speaker, is in London, conferring with Charles Frohman. Mr. Gillette returns to the stage in the fall.

Louis Mann said that if David Warfield plays the "Merchant of Venice" next year he will do likewise, so as to invite a comparison of Shylocks.

Ollie Mack is to remain in Portland, Or., during the summer with a stock company, and thus far he has used "A Night on Broadway" and "Finnigan's Ball."

Lew Dockstader has given out an interview in which he denies that he intends to retire from the minstrel field. He says his excursion into vaudeville is only temporary.

The New Theater Company gave its farewell performance for the present season on Saturday night, and the organization is now in Philadelphia, where seven plays will be introduced this week.

With one opera director suing his wife for a divorce, with another being threatened by his with a divorce and with a well-known pianist-composer seeking freedom from his consort in order to wed the divorced wife of a celebrated novelist and playright, it looks as though modern Germanic Europe's revised version of a familiar biblical quotation were, "Eat, drink and marry, for tomorrow we're divorced."

According to the Boersen Zeitung, Gustav Mahler, upon his return within a few days to Berlin, will sign a five years' contract with "the Grand Opera," a new private undertaking, the plans of which include the erection of an operahouse at an early date. The paper adds that Mr. Mahler will complete his contract as director of the Philharmonic Orchestra of New York, and then settle permanently in Berlin.

The Flonzaley quartette will be one of the week's artistic events. It is the strongest organization of its sort on tour. Walter Damrosch and his orchestra are soon to play here. Alexander Saslavsky, the orchestra's Russian concertmeister, was noted for his fine work at the last Damrosch visit. Mme. Sara Anderson, the Damrosch soprano soloist, is well spoken of.

LARGEST DEPARTMENT STORE WEST OF CHICAGO

Hamburger's

Women's Ready-to-Wear Garments

Through the greatest purchases of their kind ever made, we are enabled to offer Los Angeles women, in this Buyer's Sale, dresses, suits, coats and other wearing apparel, at prices that seem incomprehensible, in view of the superior qualities of material and workmanship, and the up-to-dateness of cut and finish. For these items, see the Eighth Street Windows.

Dainty Lingerie Dresses

We wish we felt we could do justice to these charming little dresses by a mere description on paper. One of our clerks declared them "beauties"—and that's what they really are. You'll decide immediately that this sale is an unusual chance to get most unusual styles and very good quality material and trimmings at a price you'd have to pay for the "makings" alone. Waist line models as well as straight Princess effects. Dainty embroideries and laces as finishings. Come in all sizes, up to 44. Going to look at them Monday? $20 would be a very fair price for any dress in the lot. We bought them especially for this Buyers' Sale—that's the reason for the $5 underprice. Your choice $15

Natty Tailored Suits

$25 is the price named on just ~~exactly~~ 150 suits for Monday. We doubt if they will last until noon—or even the middle of the morning. Take the hint and come early. When once you see the garments you will not wonder that we devote so much space to this item. The assortment includes just about everything you could want in the suit line, only very much better grades than you'd dare to ask for at $25. For the lover of white serge we show some splendid wide wales with newest 34-inch coats and plaited skirts (amply full, by the way) 4½ yards wide. Then, too, there are exquisite light tan and gray suits of the popular mannish worsteds. These have semi-fitted and fitted coats, beautifully lined with peau de cygne. Try to match them where you will, the attempt will be in vain $25

The Smartest Coats

Here's an item over which we can hardly show too much enthusiasm. It just came in at the last minute—the result of a telegram purchase and hurried express shipment, and though we expected a marvelous value, it has far outreached every expectation. The buyer is as pleased as the receiving-room clerks—and you'll be still more pleased when you see them. Just 50 in the assortment. 35 of these coats could not be duplicated for less than $25—the other 15 are legitimate $20 values. Diagonal materials; coats 56 inches long and semi-fitted. In white and wanted colors. Suitable for street or evening wear. Choice $15

Silk Dresses

Have You Read What the Scientific American Says About

Cawston Ostrich Feathers?

In its issue of March 5th this, the most reliable scientific newspaper in America, perhaps in the world, publishes the statement that California Ostrich Feathers are equal, and by many considered superior to the finest African.

When one stops to consider that Cawston produces over 95% of all the feathers grown in California, it is unnecessary to point out that the above statement refers to Cawston plumes.

For 24 years Cawston has been giving the most careful study to the raising of ostriches which would produce the highest grade of feathers.

While in the East the name of Cawston is synonymous with the best there is in ostrich feathers, yet here in California it has remained for this well-known newspaper, with its highly-paid scientists, to enlighten, after careful tests, many who, until now, have been misinformed as to the high quality of Cawston plumes.

Your Old Feathers

can be made over in the Cawston Factory at South Pasadena, which, by the way, is the largest of the kind in America, with the addition of some new Cawston Stock, into the fashionable Willow Plume, or dyed to match any costume at comparatively small cost, and only a few days required to do the work.

Call at Cawston's City Store and we shall give you an estimate of cost.

Today's Ostrich Story

At this season the male bird is in a very belligerent mood as may be seen on the Cawston Farm at South Pasadena or our stock farm at San Jacinto, where Cawston has over 1000 birds. He seems to consider it to be his duty to attack every human who approaches.

In Africa, where even the domesticated ostriches have large tracts of veldt to roam over, each mated pair will at this season lay off for themselves a well-defined area, the boundaries of which, while invisible, are yet evidently well understood, not only by the particular pair to which it belongs, but also by the other birds, as it is seldom or never encroached upon during the hatching season.

On the occasions when it is found necessary for the caretaker to cross these spaces the man will arm himself with a stick about 6 ft. long and forked at one end; as soon as he crosses the boundary which the ostrich considers his particular property the male bird will attack him and is only kept at a safe distance by the forked stick being placed against his neck.

With man and ostrich maintaining this position they will cross his territory. Immediately the intruder crosses the boundary on the other side that particular ostrich loses all interest in him and he will be "personally conducted" across the adjoining property by the bird laying claim to it. So he pursues his journey over his territory.

Queen Quality

The Shoes For Economical Women

THE word "economize" usually suggests such disagreeable things as making over last summer's dress or hat, two meals a day, no beach trips, or the buying of inferior goods. But, when used in connection with the words "Queen Quality," it means simply the saving of a dollar or a dollar-fifty on every pair of shoes you buy, without any sacrifice of style, fit or quality. "Queen Quality" produced the first FINE shoes for women ever offered at a reasonable price. "Queen Quality" has promised much, but the shoes have so far exceeded the claims of the makers, that the name stands for a complete guarantee of satisfaction.

Sale of Women's Suits in Light Summer Woolens

LOT 1 $16.50 | LOT 2 $31.50

Tomorrow morning we will place on sale two special lots of Suits that represent the strongest values we have offered to date this season. The Sale Prices quoted above can give you no real idea of the worth of these Suits. Some of them were originally priced at almost double these figures. The advancing season demands their immediate disposal, so we have brought them together in these two lots for tomorrow. When you see them you will realize their worth. Sizes for Misses as well as Women—and perfect fittings, of course.

The Suits at $16.50 include smart models in light summer serges—an excellent line in navy, others in white serge, and other light shades. Handsome worsteds are also included—mannish effects in gray, green, tan, browns, etc. Other suits are in pretty diagonals, in black and white checks, etc. Do not judge these models by the selling price—see them, then you will appreciate their value. They are wonderful examples of the thoroughness in making that is characteristic of our Women's Wear.

The Suits at $31.50 represent values far beyond that figure. Among them are Blouse models and other late styles, as well as the more conventional tailored designs. Materials are fine serges, in white, blue and black. And there are many handsome worsteds in solid colors, in new tones of gray and many other effects. Tailoring and workmanship in these garments are of the highest grade, up to the standard we require in strictly high-class models.

Exact Duplicates of Famous Knox Sailors $3.5

That Bring $5 to $7.50 Regularly

Here's the most astonishing news that we've been able to gather in connection with the millinery department.

These are exact duplicates of the famous Knox Sailor. They are made of the celebrated Knox braid and this is the "Why" of it.

When our millinery buyer last invaded the market he hit upon the idea of securing thousands of yards of this celebrated braid, and then he went to a manufacturer noted for the making of good styles in sailor hats, with the result that these hats are here to sell at $3.50 instead of the $5 to $7 price the Knox Sailors bring.

The importance of this offering cannot be overestimated, for when the quantity we had made up is exhausted we will not be able to duplicate the price.

Hepplewhite's prime of activity was from 1773 to 1805.

HEPPLEWHITE, is a style combining the simplicity of Roman classics with a skillful blending of the later Louis XV.

His is a style of comfort, durability and beauty; that time does not destroy, because it contains the elements of true art, based on the adoption of the best that the past had to yield.

The carved "plume of Wales," ram's heads holding garlands of wheat, flowers or ribbons; his heart shaped shield in the back of chairs; festoons carved or painted; cane seats or upholstered in hair-cloth, etc., were devices of embellishments and characteristics of Hepplewhite's style.

This furniture will adapt itself harmoniously to any environment of rooms furnished in mahogany. In contrast to Sheraton the "purist" and Chippendale who "fused everything," Hepplewhite judiciously avoided extremes, and may properly be termed an "evolutionist" of his time.

We show specimen in north window.

Art and Artists.

BY ANTONY E. ANDERSON.

Euryalus.

Upward we went by fields of asphodel,
Leaving Ortygia's moat-bound walls below,
By orchards where the wind-flowers' drifted snow
Lay softly heaped upon the turf's light swell,
By gardens whence upon the wayside fell
Jasmine and rose in April's overflow,
Till, winding up Epipolae's wide brow,
We reached at last the lonely citadel.

There, on the ruined ramparts climbing high,
We sat and dreamed among the drowsing sheep,
Until we heard the trumpet's startled cry
Waking a clang of arms about the keep,
And seaward saw, with rapt, foreboding eye,
The sails of Athens whiten on the deep.

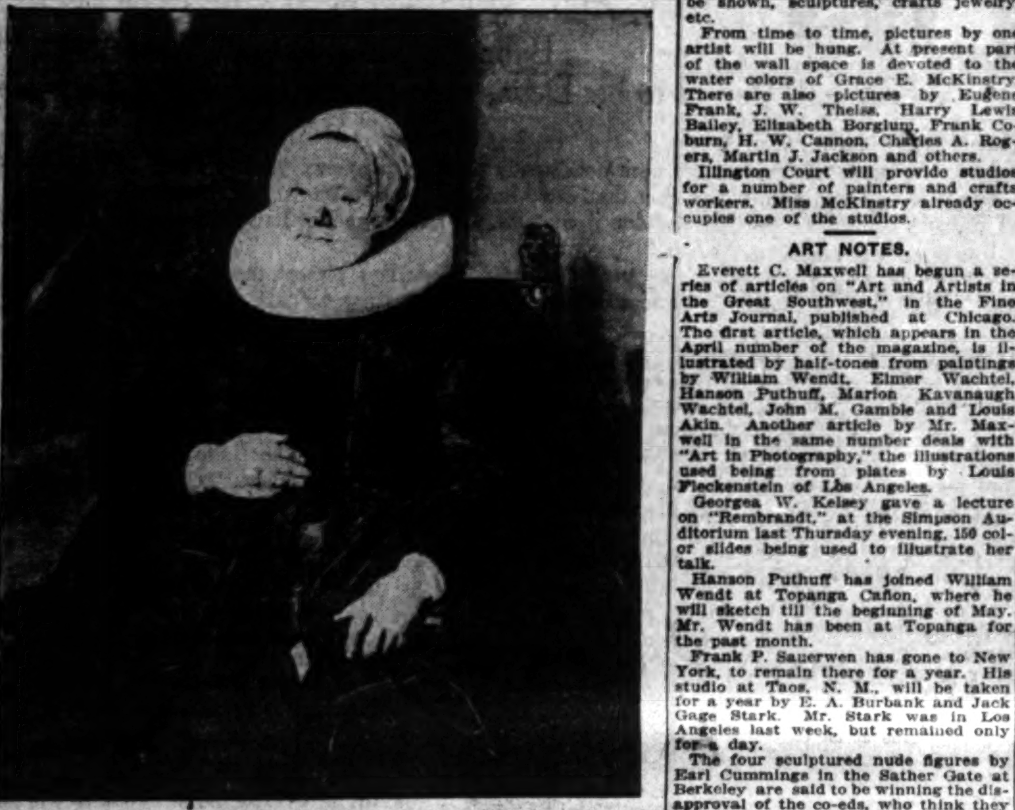
—[Edith Wharton.

Landscapes at the Blanchard.

The second annual exhibition of pictures from the brush of Ernest Browning Smith opened at the Blanchard gallery last Monday, to close on April 30. Twenty-two pictures are shown, the most of them being new.

Last year I pointed out the peculiar merits and defects of Mr. Smith's work. He has had a year of further study of nature and of paint since his first exhibition, held in this same gallery, and I wish I could add that he has made excellent use of his time. But I cannot conscientiously do this, for it seems to me that his faults are the same, and that he has not added many or conspicuous good qualities.

The surprising thing about Mr. Smith's canvases is their inequalities. One may be full of artistic good, its next-door neighbor full of bad. One shows a remarkable feeling for harmony of color, another is so crude that it sets one's teeth on edge. One has the bold touch of the sure craftsman, another the meaningless fumbling of a beginner in paint. Why? The mystery is inexplicable to me. I suspect, however, that Mr. Smith, who is a professional musician, has not yet made a thorough acquaintance with paint, and that his struggles with a new language are a severe handicap to expression.



Portrait of a Woman.

From a painting by Franz Hals. $137,000 was paid for this canvas at the sale in New York of the art treasures of the late Charles T. Yerkes. The prices realized are greater than at any other public sale of artistic property ever held in the United States. Rembrandt's "Portrait of a Rabbi" brought $51,000; Troyon's "Going to Market," $60,500; Corot's "The Fisherman," $80,500; Hobbema's "View of Westphalia," $48,000; Diaz's "Gathering Fagots," $30,000.

The artist's talent is indisputable, his sincerity is fine and refreshing. Everywhere are evidences of a close and loving observation of nature. The man who painted "The Mesa," with its lovely mosiac of color, its floating clouds, its breadth and freedom; and "Starlight," a nocturne full of exquisite feeling, is an artist by the grace of God. It remains for him to become a painter as well, that he may be able always to give us "Mesas" and "Starlights," never such startling and incomprehensible canvases as "The Hill at Sunset" and "Where Spring and Autumn Meet."

"Sycamores in Autumn" has delicate autumn foliage, agreeable in color; there are careful rock painting and a good sky in "A Gray Morning at Catalina;" "Sunset at Catalina" has glow and light on its pointed rock; "Sunset Haze" is full of the most exquisite feeling for nature, the foliage of the three and yellows, has a certain agreeable decorative quality in color.

Across the Valley.

From an oil by Ernest Browning Smith.

All these pictures are studies made near Avalon and in the Arroyo Seco, and all, as I have said, attest the artist's love for nature. He should remember, however, that technical expression does not come by inspiration, and that light, air and color are gotten only by taking thought.

I know many landscape painters, but I find Mr. Smith's work more difficult to appraise than that of any other. I feel his talent—and see his glaring faults of execution. I am confident of his ultimate success—but am nonplussed by some of his present performances. Does he think of his "technique" too much or too little?

Some Artistic Jewelry.

"It has become the fashion to give the title of artist almost exclusively to painters," said the Critic, "and so closely is this fashion followed that I believe a great many people of apparently normal intelligence would be quite surprised to hear even a sculptor spoken of as an artist."

"Then what hope is there for the craftsman? How can he expect to have his right position recognized?"

"We need never give up hoping for the correction of a peculiar error," answered the critic. "Even a fashion can be changed if its absurdity can be made sufficiently evident."

If there are any among the readers of Art and Artists who cling to the old-fashioned notion that craftsmen are not to be taken seriously as artists, they should have made a little trip with me last week to the Craft Shop on East Avenue 41 and to the Kanst gallery, and a careful study of the jewelry exhibited in both these places, soon would have convinced them of their error. Indeed, let them go tomorrow of themselves. The Craft Shop is at No. 218 East Avenue 41, and the Kanst gallery at No. 642 South Spring street.

In both places they will find exquisite designs, carefully considered in the matter of color, of balance, of appropriateness for the purpose intended. Many a canvas five feet square never received the consideration bestowed on these little rings, stick pins and brooches. And you may be assured that it is no easy problem to make at once simple and artistic an area of space that may cover the head of a stick pin.

At the Craft Shop, where Emma Kraft and Mabel Free are the artist-designers, I saw many new and charming things, among them a copper chain with pendant, set with a brown-veined stone to match the copper, and a small Australian opal; the design was acorns and autumn leaves. I saw a lovely brooch of silver and blue, the design being a morning glory set with a blister pearl. One silver ring was set with a chrysoprase, another with a blister pearl. I also saw some handsome pins of amethyst and silver, and of gold and topaz, the color combinations in all cases being especially harmonious.

At Kanst's the exhibiting artist is N. Aktarian, who recently came to Los Angeles from Chicago, and who is a designer of unique and vigorous personality. In cuff buttons he has designs in coral and silver, in Labrador-and gold. His brooches and belt pins are wrought in copper and silver, with scarabs that harmonize in color; in Labradorite and silver, in blue amisonite and silver.

An unusually attractive fob is a Greek coin and leather. Others are an abalone heart and silver; copper and turquoise; a scarab and oxidized silver; a Labradorite set in silver against gray leather. Some very stunning fobs are made of sardonyx or jade and silver.

The necklaces are rich in design, the links being sometimes very unique and interesting. One, an Egyptian design in silver, is set with six scarabs; another, of silver filigree, holds four amethysts; still another, in dull gold, has four Labradorites of great luster and beauty. The one in gold filigree, set with two topazes, is very lovely.

There are combs, bracelets, etc., in silver, copper, enameled brass, etc., set with precious and semi-precious stones. The semi-precious stones interested me most, as their rich yet subdued coloring, not too vivid or sparkling, lends itself so admirably to the various metals, thus placing these works of art within the reach of all lovers of beauty.

Illington Court.

Illington Court, an art gallery at Grand avenue and Washington street, conducted by J. T. Boyd, opened formally with a private view on last Thursday afternoon.

The gallery at Illington Court extends all around an inner garden, where are benches and easy chairs, and where one may rest in the sunshine and look at the flowers and the fountain. The gallery itself is a pleasant place to linger in, and it is the intention of the management to keep the walls covered with the work of Los Angeles painters, all the canvases being for sale. Other works of art will be shown, sculptures, crafts jewelry, etc.

From time to time, pictures by one artist will be hung. At present part of the wall space is devoted to the water colors of Grace E. McKinstry. There are also pictures by Eugene Frank, J. W. Theiss, Harry Lewis Bailey, Elizabeth Borglum, Frank Coburn, H. W. Cannon, Charles A. Rogers, Martin J. Jackson and others.

Illington Court will provide studios for a number of painters and crafts workers. Miss McKinstry already occupies one of the studios.

ART NOTES.

Everett C. Maxwell has begun a series of articles on "Art and Artists in the Great Southwest," in the Fine Arts Journal, published at Chicago. The first article, which appears in the April number of the magazine, is illustrated by half-tones from paintings by William Wendt, Elmer Wachtel, Hanson Puthuff, Marion Kavanaugh Wachtel, John M. Gamble and Louis Akin. Another article by Mr. Maxwell in the same number deals with "Art in Photography," the illustrations used being from plates by Louis Fleckenstein of Los Angeles.

Georgea W. Kelsey gave a lecture on "Rembrandt," at the Simpson Auditorium last Thursday evening, 150 color slides being used to illustrate her talk.

Hanson Puthuff has joined William Wendt at Topanga Cañon, where he will sketch till the beginning of May. Mr. Wendt has been at Topanga for the past month.

Frank P. Sauerwen has gone to New York, to remain there for a year. His studio at Taos, N. M., will be taken for a year by E. A. Burbank and Jack Gage Stark. Mr. Stark was in Los Angeles last week, but remained only for a day.

The four sculptured nude figures by Earl Cummings in the Sather Gate at Berkeley are said to be winning the disapproval of the co-eds, who think they ought to be draped, and who, in consequence of their nudity (the statues' nudity, of course,) refuse to use the gate. Let us hope this absurd story is a canard.

Laughing Voices.

How the loving, laughing voices
Of the past come back to me,
As I wander, tired and lonely,
O'er life's troubled, stormy sea;
And they bring me consolation
When all other joys are fled—
For I'm dying with the living,
When I'm living with the dead.

How the years have scarred my features;
And the ingrates torn my heart;
How the battle bayonets glisten—
Where I played the bravest part,
Yet these loving, laughing voices
Sound forever in mine ear,
And thrill my soul with pleasure,
Every hour and day and year.

In the midnight of my sorrow,
Far away from friends and home,
I can hear those laughing voices
When in foreign lands I roam;
And their faces come to gladden
When all other ones have fled—
Yes, I'm dying with the living
And I'm living with the dead.
—[John A. Joyce in Baltimore American.

The Psychological Moment.

"Is Miss Wheaton at home?" asked one of the neighbors of the spinster, as he called at her door to get her signature to a petition.

"She is that," responded Celia Leahy, three weeks over from Ireland, and a most willing hand-maiden. "Will yez step in, sorr?"

"I should like to see her on a matter of business for a few moments if she is not engaged," said the neighbor.

Celia flung wide the door and waved him in.

"If she has wan, he's neglectin' her shameful," she said, in a hoarse, confidential whisper, "for 'tis three weeks tomorror since I come here, and he's not put his fut over the t'reshold in all that toime! Sure, 'tis your chanst!"—[Youth's Companion.

Cheerfulness.

Cheerfulness is the great cure. If you are not cheerful already, try to acquire the habit. It will not require much trying, either. Accordingly as one likes or dislikes beings and things, he becomes cheerful or the opposite.

The temptation to dislike animate or inanimate objects lies in wait for every one. Be on your guard. You can drive it off by liking a bird or a flower.

Hate never made any man happy. But in order to be unhappy one does not need to be a hater. Simple dislike will sour all the milk in the cocoanut of cheerfulness.

Your choice is not restricted. If you do not like a man or do not love a woman, why, then, like a dog. Even a cat may be an inspirer of cheerfulness.

Liking is a sun which can make even an iceberg nature resplendent with the aurora of cheerfulness.—[Boston Globe.

English Clergymen Long-Lived.

"Nobody lives so long as the parsons. Gardeners run them close, and brewers' draymen come at the bottom of the list," said Dr. Rheinhardt in a lecture at the King's Weigh House on "The Duration of Life." "An interesting theory has been put forward," he continued, "that the children of youthful parents are gifted with physical energy, but seldom with great intellectual activity.

"When the father is over 40 the children will not make good soldiers, but are marked by superior intellectual ability, and with a still older father the children will have marked philanthropic tendencies. Longevity is much commoner in Southern Europe than in northern climes. Bulgaria, with a population of 3,000,000, has more than

The opera over, Queen Amelie summoned Miss Nevada before her. In their long talk she told her she had had the pleasure of seeing her mother in every role in which she had appeared and, moreover, she had heard her sing in every country in Europe.

From Lisbon Miss Nevada come to Florence to sing in the same theater, in the same role, as had Mme. Nevada when also a girl. Here again, as "Rosina," she scored her triumph, singing also as "Gilda" to Battistini's "Rigoletto." Her farewell night, with its presents of gold watches, jewels, its flowers and enthusiasm, has been one of the notable events of this year's Carnival season. One of the gifts a lyre of gold set with red, white and blue stones in honor of America, was the design and gift of Tommaso Salvini.

Miss Nevada's drama has been approved by the well-known Prof. Rasi, and his wife is translating it into Italian. Because of her great love of history, a gift made to her in Rome was the iron crucifix which Henry Cardinal York, last of the Stuarts, held in his hand when dying.

A gift made Miss Nevada by the son of the Regent of Java is a ring, five hundred years old, set with a mammoth emerald. The princely giver related how, in front of the palace in Java, stands an oak of immense size and great age, whose trunk is quite hollow. Every few hundred years one of these star-emeralds, as they call them, is found in this tree trunk.

Miss Nevada's work among poor children in Paris found great sympathy from her father, who is a physician and one time friend and co-laborer with the famous "Sister Dora."

For two years after she finished school, she, with some other girls and ladies of Paris, devoted her time almost entirely to this philanthropy.

"Once," she tells, "the funds got as low as twenty centimes. There were twenty-five children. They must be cared for, so I seized my pen, wrote an appeal to the press and before 11 o'clock money was pouring into help us. Do you know, for two nights after we rescued those little ones we had to let them sleep apart from the others because of their screams in their dreams. They were crying to papa or mama not to strike them! One died of delirium tremens from inheritance. Oh, it was dreadful to see such misery!"

As a singer, the bell-like note in Miss Nevada's voice recalls her mother. Her acting is easy and her manner full of charm, while her teaching is pronounced practically faultless.

The Dangers of Fasting.

Only in cases of people between the age of 30 and 35 should starvation for one moment be thought of, and even then the patient should be one of those beetroot-faced persons known in the medical world as "gastronomical hogs," whose overindulgence makes such treatment necessary. Up to the age of 30 the fast cure would be suicide, for up to the age of 25 the bones are still growing, and the brain power of an individual is being strengthened up to the age of 30, its capacity being greater then that at 20.

In the young the inevitable result of frequent resource to this cure will be consumption, for the patient is only starving in a literal sense. The feeling of the pangs of hunger which are experienced for the first two or three days means that the digestive organs are working fruitlessly. After that they find work in consuming one another. This is proof that the patient is living on himself. After the age of 30 the danger of consumption is very small, and the body requires less nourishment. Those who think that the "fast cure" will do any good, may attempt it at this age with little fear of any serious consequence.

After the age of 55 such a course is equally suicidal. This is one of the most critical periods, in a person's life. Between this and the age of 65 the heart always makes an attempt to fail. And the only means of preventing this is to partake of a rich diet. When this later period is safely past the patient can look forward, to attaining the age of 100.—[Dr. Forbes-Ross, in London Express.

Beets a Valuable Food.

The beet beats all. It is one of the most valuable of cultivated plants. The sugar beet is a main source of sugar and alcohol. The large forage beets supply an excellent food for cattle and the red garden varieties provide savory table vegetables. The usefulness of this valuable food has now been increased by the production of an edible flour from sugar beets. The desiccated of sliced sugar beets is practiced in Germany on an extensive scale, but the product is employed exclusively as fodder for cattle.

In Belgium a meal is made from dried beets. It is entirely free from the distinctive flavor of the beet and is suitable for cakes, puddings and pastry. As it contains about 65 per cent. of sugar it can often be substituted with advantage for sugar in somewhat larger quantities.

The processes of desiccation and rinding not only cost less than the extraction of sugar, but preserve all the sugar of the beet.

Health and Beauty Answers

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

Spanish Girl: Yes, short sleeves and low necks will be worn this summer—probably to a greater extent than ever before. But don't worry about your red hands and dark neck; neither pin your hopes to face and talcum powders. Try this recipe now and see what it does for you: Get from your druggist four ounces of spurmax, dissolve it in half pint hot water and add two teaspoonfuls of glycerine. Apply this inexpensive lotion to your face, neck and fore arms, rubbing gently. You will find it does not rub off or show and that it whitens your skin, giving it a clear, smooth and youthful appearance. Spurmax is the greatest complexion beautifier I know.

A. G.: Your hairdresser did not overcharge you when she asked 75 cents for a canthrox shampoo. Remember that rent and many other items pile up expenses for a beauty parlor. You can take a canthrox shampoo at home at a cost of two or three cents. All you need do is put a teaspoonful of canthrox in a teacupful of hot water and stir until dissolved. I agree with you when you say there is nothing else that makes such a fine lather and cleans the scalp so thoroughly. It certainly removes dandruff and relieves irritation of the scalp. I like it because it dries so quickly and makes the hair soft and fluffy, besides doing away completely with the "streakiness" that follows a soap shampoo.

J. R.: If you feel handicapped in society because your face is covered with pimples and blotches you should try to get rid of them instead of foolishly endeavoring to cover them up with cosmetics. I will give you a recipe that you can depend upon to purify your blood. Get from your druggist one ounce of kardene and half pint of alcohol. Dissolve the kardene and half teacupful of sugar in the alcohol and add enough boiling water to make a ful quart of tonic. Take a tablespoonful before each meal and before retiring. This old-fashioned remedy cleanses the blood, arouses a torpid liver and aids digestion. When your blood is in good condition you will be free from pimples, blotches and skin eruptions—and instead of a sickly, sallow complexion you will have the rosy glow of health in your cheeks. When you are stronger your dull and "tired out" feeling will disappear.

N. K.: Your shortness of breath is the result of too much flesh. The correct weight of a girl 5 ft. 7 in. tall is about 148 pounds. Get from your druggist four ounces of parnotis and dissolve it in a pint of hot water. Take a tablespoonful before each meal. This treatment should reduce your weight ten pounds in two weeks.

Newly Wed: You will not find the latest styles in hairdressing so trying as you fear if you give your hair proper treatment. Shampoo with canthrox once in two or three weeks and use a good quinine hair tonic three times a week, rubbing it into the scalp and roots of the hair gently. You can make the tonic at home if you get from your druggist one ounce quinzoin and dissolve it in half pint of alcohol and then add half pint of cold water. This tonic nourishes the scalp and roots of the hair, removes dandruff and irritation of the scalp, and stops falling hair. It will make your hair fine in texture, glossy and abundant.

Mrs. B. L. I.: A woman 25 years old should be in the very prime of life, with clear complexion and skin smooth, moist and pliable. I will give you a recipe for making a cream jelly that you can use for massaging, and if you use it faithfully it will preserve the youthful contour of your face as well as restore and preserve your complexion. Get from your druggist one ounce of almozoin, put it in half pint of cold water and add two teaspoonfuls of glycerine; then stir briskly and let stand overnight. Massage with this cream jelly and you will get rid of those blackheads and make the large pores smaller, so that they will not return. Please note that this cream contains no oils or fats that will promote a growth of hair on the face or make the skin dark and oily.

Ohio Girl: Many persons wear glasses simply because they met good salesmen with glasses to sell. You say yours detract from your appearance. Why don't you try going without them? Use an eye tonic made by dissolving an ounce of crystos in a pint of water. Drop one or two drops in each eye. It will not smart or burn. This tonic is good for tired, weak or inflamed eyes, and for granulated eyelids. It improves sight and makes your eyes bright, sparkling and lustrous.

MY TRIP AROUND THE WORLD.

BY SYDNEY FORD.

II.

S. S. TENYO MARU, March 23.—"Looks just like Catalina," we Californians chorused as the Hawaiian Heights loomed up out of the sea, and the soft, southern breeze fanned our faces—a grateful sensation after days of chilly winds.

It was 10 o'clock in the morning and at the first cry of "land" the big ship became a human bee-hive. Spy glasses were brought into play and, as the rugged heights of Oahu were magnified, and trees and tropical growth assumed shape and form, standing room at the rail of the promenade decks was at a premium. Every one was eager for a glimpse of Uncle Sam's string of islands away out here in the middle of the Pacific.

After the first excitement passengers began disappearing into their staterooms and, after a brief period, reappeared in so resurrected a form that it required two squints through the spy glasses to recognize some of our fellow passengers with whom we had been hobnobbing for the past week. Like gay birds of paradise they fluttered out in raiment so stunning, in hats so large, in gowns so white that it was a regular transformation scene. Duck and pongee suits prevailed and umbrellas were in evidence.

The ship plowed rapidly through the waters, past Diamond Head and swept toward the harbor of Honolulu which was but a mile or so away. We all made ready to disembark, for it looked as if we would shortly step foot on shore.

But right here we got our first lesson in patience. A missionary to Japan, who is a fellow passenger, had told us that the most vulgar thing one can do in the Orient is to show haste. Here's where we got curbed.

If you think for a minute that a big ocean liner can run up alongside the wharf of any port she happens to come to and discharge her passengers, there's where you are mistaken. There's a deal of ceremony about it. After we were gloved and hatted and had firmly grasped our umbrellas to combat the "liquid sunshine" we had heard so much about, we suddenly observed that our ship had slowed down and was leisurely treading the waters as if waiting for something.

A little shallop shot out from shore and came rocking over the waves toward us. She danced like an eggshell on the rippling blue, curvetted gracefully around the stern of our ship and brought up on the port side. A thin, wiry, gray-haired man with keen blue eyes and wearing government uniform, came on board.

"Inspection officer," some one murmured. Then the big gong sounded, summoning all the passengers to the dining saloon and we marched down like a flock of sheep and ranged ourselves in double rows on either side the long tables. We sat there in hushed and solemn silence until the wait seemed interminable and someone ventured a joke. That relieved the tension so we quietly chatted while the inspection officer was going through his work in the steerage and second cabin. Finally our turn came.

Peggy had grown a trifle nervous with all this ceremony and long waiting and she turned pale and grasped the table for support when our official jollier solemnly told her that each passenger would be called out separately by name and would be compelled to go forward and stand under an immense headlight stationed at the main stairway before the open entrance of the dining-room and display her tongue for inspection to the health officer before she would be given a clean bill of health and allowed to land.

This is what really happened. The inspector simply walked rapidly down the line, giving each passenger a searching glance in the face. Then he made a second round, counting us all like so many sheep, to see if the number corresponded with the passenger list.

After that we had to wait for other steamer to pull out from the wharf and then our pilot boat had to run after her with our mail destined for the States, so that altogether was fully 2 o'clock before we finally came up alongside the wharf.

In the meantime, several reporters from Honolulu newspapers had come on board eager to interview Mr. Calhoun, our new Minister to China, who is a passenger en route to his post in Pekin.

Now Mr. Calhoun is a most affable gentleman—approachable, social, and a most interesting conversationalist. He will talk fluently on every subject under the sun—except China. The moment you mention that, his eyes assume a far-away look, his jaws snap together and he listens politely to what you have to say. In reply to the invariable interrogation with which you close your remarks, he has just one reply.

"China? Ah, yes, I've never been there, you see. This is my first trip out."

That's all. Evidently the Crane incident is not to be repeated.

Seeing the Sights.

Our guide, philosopher and friend at Honolulu was a California girl who proved herself past mistress in the art of showing the beauties of the place. She had engaged for us a touring car and into it we bundled and for four hours we motored about the city and its suburbs. Out over the smoothly-macadamized road we were whirled to Hawaiia's historic peak, Pali, the auto climbing curve after curve till we were landed on the height 2000 feet above the level of the sea, whence we had come. At our feet lay the harbor of Honolulu and between a panoramic view of tropical splendor, tempered and softened by the mist-like showers of "liquid sunshine" and the shadows of the clouds which seem to forever hover over Honolulu—so thin and transparent that the blue of the sky is always breaking through.

On our return down this splendid mountain run we halted for a few minutes at the Country Club, situated on a mesa commanding a view of the harbor and the sea. Before it stretches the smooth, velvet lawn of the golf links, its bunkers marked by hedges of brilliant begonias.

It is this riotous, tropical growth of Honolulu that most impresses you. The sweet, moist smell of spring is everywhere and nature is forever having her face washed, sometimes a mere mist of a sprinkle and again a smart shower, as if a big bucket of water had been suddenly thrown out of celestial windows just as one might toss a pail of water out the back door at home.

"It's rained every seven and a half minutes since we started," said the official timekeeper. And none of us disputed it because we knew it was true.

The lawn mowers in Honolulu are run by horse power. You see a big mower, built on the same plan as ours, hitched to a horse who is patiently plodding over the lawn, driven by a native. So rapid and rank is the growth of grass in this moist, tropical climate that a hand mower would electricity and continually kept up.

Hibiscus hedges separate the lawns from the streets and oleander trees, heavy with their lovely bloom of pink or white are on every hand. Most brilliant of all are the bougainvilleas. True, we have them in Los Angeles, but ours are puny things compared with these Hawaiian wonders. They cover whole arbors and climb roof-high. Some are the same color as our own and others are a brilliant flame-color.

One of the prettiest sights I saw in Honolulu was a lovely girl, dressed in white, reaching up for a spray of bloom from an arbor literally smothered in these gay red flowers. Her white dress against the vivid red background and her graceful pose was a challenge to the eye of an artist.

Summer Girls' Paradise.

And speaking of the summer girl, surely Honolulu is her Paradise, for she has twelve moons in the year in which to do business. Next to the "liquid sunshine," the moonlight of Honolulu is most famous. Its silvery rays fall on the just and the unjust, the romantic and the prosaic. Naturally then, an architectural feature of every pretentious Honolulu residence is a balcony—from which to view the moon, of course.

Our hostess, who is a bright Stanford girl, told us, however, that there had been a complaint among the American girls that there was too much balcony and too little Romeo in Honolulu, which seems a shame when all the stage settings are so perfect. Might it not be well for some of Uncle Sam's Romeos to turn their thoughts Hawaiianwise?

The Honolulu summer girl, like the moon, is an all-the-year-round product. "We wear white dresses and summer gowns the year through," said our hostess. "I haven't paid out but $15 for clothes since I came here last June."

This remark created a distinct sensation among the feminine portion of the party, and paterfamilias pricked up his ears and said, "Won't you please say that again?"

No furs or velvets or silks or satins for Honolulu girls. Just filmy mulls, and white linen or duck and a broad-brimmed Panama hat—and there you are—summer and winter the twelve months around.

No North, No South.

In Honolulu there is no north, south, east or west. Direction is determined rather by localities. "Out Waikiki way" means toward the sea, while "up Mauka way" indicates toward the mountains and "over Ewa way" means toward the famous Ewa plantation.

We went out to Pearl Harbor where the government is erecting a breakwater and we climbed Pacific Heights which is the Nob Hill of Honolulu where wealthy residents have built themselves beautiful villas set in tropical gardens overlooking the sea.

"Here is the home of a man who, with his wife, started forty-five years ago to make a tour of the world," observed our hostess as we passed an elegant home. "He stopped at Honolulu, and he never got away."

Birds and Fishes.

The birds of Honolulu do not sing as do ours. They chirp instead—a soft, subdued long-drawn note that is weirdly beautiful and chimes in exactly with the surroundings. It is in perfect harmony with the golden mist that is forever sifting over this Paradise of the Pacific; with the tropical indolence of this climate that invites to repose rather than to vigorous exercise—this soft, sweet chirp of the birds that we hear only at twilight when our golden-throated California songsters say good-night to their mates before they tuck their heads under their wings and go to sleep.

Of course we had all heard of the Honolulu aquarium, but we were wholly unprepared for the marvelous specimens of sea life that we found darting about in the tanks at Waikiki Beach. They seemed more like floating flowers or brilliant plumaged tropical birds than fish. Some were in a delicate canary color and some were as gorgeous as peacocks. Some were mottled, and some were striped, and some were spotted, and some were done in conventional patterns. One gay young sport proudly waved after him a long tail-like appendage fully eight inches in length, which curved about with splendid grace as he swam along. Occasionally you would behold what seemed to be a fragment of the rock inside the tank suddenly swim calmly away from its perch and you would discover that what you had thought to be a stone was a fish marked so precisely after the same pattern that you could not detect the difference.

Scenic Indigestion.

Finally we swept up before the entrance of the Moana Hotel at Waikiki Beach.

"I am actually suffering from scenic indigestion," exclaimed Peggy as we sat at dinner in the dining-room which is built out over the bay. The native Hawaiian waiters, clad in immaculate white linen, slipped noiselessly about filling our orders and at the close of the feast brought us tropical fruits in abundance—the delicious papaia, a golden, melon-like fruit—grapes fresh from the vines, pineapples and all the luscious products of tree and vine in this modern Eden island. I saw pineapples selling from fruit stalls at a nickel each—great luscious-looking pines such as we pay 35 and 40 cents for in Los Angeles.

After dinner we lingered for a time in the open court which stretches 'twixt the hotel and the lapping waters of the bay. Electric bulbs in red, white and blue twinkled in the trees, coffee and cigars were served at small tables on the piazzas overlooking the court, and the strains of the weird, sweet Hawaiian music stole over our senses till we dreamed we were in fairyland.

Toward Japan.

Next morning at 10 o'clock our ship sailed away and set her course toward far Japan.

Hawaiians understand the art of hospitality to perfection. They know how to speed the parting as well as to welcome the coming guest. It seemed as if practically the whole town turned out to see us off—and brought the band along, too.

This municipal band is one of the things of which Honolulu is justly proud. It is maintained by the city the same as the police force or any other municipal organization and its services are in demand for all sorts of public functions, but never to be had for private occasions. It is composed of native Hawaiians and, for an hour before we left, this band discoursed some of the finest martial music I ever listened to. Some were pa- selections, and some were Hawaiian, and some were of a purely sentimental nature.

For instance, just as our ship slowly slipped away from the wharf our ears were greeted with the majestic strains of Lohengrin's "Wedding March," wherefore I do not know unless out of compliment to a gay young Chicago widow on board who is going out to China to meet her fiancé. In a twinkling, the music swung into the familiar "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," and, amidst great clapping of hands, waving of flags and the tossing of leis we floated over the still waters of Honolulu harbor, the last, sweet strains to meet our ears being of that land of the free and home of the brave, from which we were now taking our farewell for a period of months to come.

MARK TWAIN.

Oh, rest him in some quiet nook,
  Where roses bloom above,
Down where the peaceful woodland brook
  Sings on and on of love;
Oh, rest him in some quiet place,
Where time drifts on with languid pace,
  And where the gray-winged dove
Will nest on yonder willow limb,
Beyond the slumbering heart of him.

The lark will sing to him at dawn,
  The mocking-bird at noon;
And when the sleepy sun has gone
  To make way for the moon,
The nightingale will trill love's song,
All thro' the drowsy night-watch long
  (Love's joyous lilting tune,)
For him whose heart was like the sun
To bird and flow'r and every one.

Dear one, thine eyes are wet today,
  Thine eyes are wet and dim,
Yet when thy tears are brushed away
  Just smile a bit for him;
He liked to see thee smile the best
And like the fledglings in the nest
  On yonder willow limb,
He sleeps in happy innocence
Of bitter thought, or word's offense.

Oh, weep not if the trail winds far
  Across the sapphire hill;
The light from the Eternal Star
  Shines o'er the pathway still;
And he will find the hidden way,
Down yonder through the fields of day,
  Where thrush and whipporwill
Call to that heart so like the sun,
To bird and flow'r and every one.

MABEL RAINS.

SCIENCE NOTES.

Wintergreen Oil from Birch.

Oil of wintergreen was formerly distilled from the leaves of the wintergreen or checkerberry plant, but almost all of the natural oil on the market now is said to be obtained from sweet birch, a tree growing at its best in the Southern Appalachian Mountains. The bark alone is used for the distillation of the oil, and it is essential that it be green, for if it is allowed to dry out before distilling it becomes worthless for the production of oil. Steam is used in the process of distillation, the oil being extracted from the bark by the steam rising through the still. The oil and condensed water is collected in glass jars.

Foes of Wheat Found.

After thirteen years of experiments Prof. H. L. Boley of the Agricultural College of the University of North Dakota, has announced the discovery of the five distinct types of parasites which cause the various varieties of wheat sickness.

This sickness has made lands seemingly barren throughout the world and is gradually choking the pro rata of crops in the present wheat growing countries. The experiments have been conducted on a plot of land reserved for years at the site of the agricultural college, half a mile west of Fargo.

Prof. Boley says the fungi resemble in shape and in reaction on plant life the tuberculosis germs which afflict human life, but that the cure is far easier, being nothing less than a correct rotation of crops, being chiefly clover, corn and potatoes, until tests of land show the absence of the parasitical fungi.

Stand and Breathe.

There is nothing more important in trying to get rid of that extra pound of flesh than correct breathing. The very corpulent do not breathe any more than is necessary to sustain life. Stand correctly first, with abdomen drawn in, shoulders back, shoulder blades flattened and chin out. To exercise at home the body should be loosely clothed, and the room flooded with fresh air.

After assuming the correct position, practice drawing in long breaths, through the nostrils, balancing the weight upon the ball of one foot, then the other. Corpulent persons are often heavy walkers, coming down flatly upon the entire length of the foot. Elasticity, besides adding grace to one's carriage, sets up a vibratory action of the muscle fibers that prevents fat. Practice, therefore, deep abdominal beathing, while balancing as stated above, and a pleasing change in the general contour of the body will soon be noticed.

Eldest Born Not Best.

Dr. David Heron of the Galton Laboratory for National Eugenics at University College, London, says the older born are as a rule inferior in natural gifts to the younger born. "The first born in a family is more likely to be insane, tuberculous, or criminal than the others. It follows, therefore, that the tendency to diminish the size of families increases the average number of such individuals in the community."

Cottonseed Flour.

Analysis shows that cottonseed flour contains 37 per cent. more protein than wheat flour, and, though it is deficient to the extent of 44 per cent. in carbohydrates, the lack easily can be remedied by the use of vegetables or sugar. In Germany potato flour has been used for some time, and there are doubtless many new forms of food awaiting only necessity or ingenuity to bring them into common use. The high price of meats has already brought out the fact that, in nutritive value, the cheaper cuts contain as much as, and in some instances more than, the high-priced cuts, and that there are ways of cooking which make them as appetizing as the higher grades. And if we get a new and cheaper flour also, it may be worth, in the end, all the hardship caused by the advance in living expenses.

Pleasant Reading for the Fat

What a simple and inexpensive solving of the fat woman's problem the Marmola Prescription Tablets provide. She takes one of these harmless, pleasant, little tablets after each meal and at bedtime and loses from 12 to 16 ounces of fat each day, and yet suffers no harm, creates no disturbances inwardly, and produces no wrinkles. This elegant preparation (made exactly in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription) has rendered exercising and dieting for the reduction of excess flesh as superfluous as a fifth wheel. A further recommendation is that it is the least expensive fat reducer on the market, a large case (costing only 75 cents from any druggist or by mail from the Marmola Co., 235 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich.) containing a quantity of tablets large enough to give very decided of the best work of the Italian poet Petrarch.

Petrarch first saw his Laura in the church at Avignon, when she was 19 and already the wife of Hugues de Sale, and he was 23. Their acquaintance lasted about twenty years, and Petrarch told about it in perhaps 300 sonnets, as all the reading world has known, to its sympathetic delight, since then.

Although in all those long years Petrarch and Laura exchanged only a few words, the poet's attachment for Mme. de Sale was very real. It has often been said that the Laura of the Sonnets was only a woman of the poet's imagination, but Petrarch himself, as well as later investigation, asserted her reality.

One man of the name temporarily bore the laurel wreath of fame undeservedly—Laurens Coster, or Koster, the Dr. Cook of his day, who claimed that he, instead of Guttenberg, invented printing with movable types. He was a chandler and inn-keeper of Harlem in the fifteenth century. His claim was long since disproved to the satisfaction of almost everybody, but for a time it gave rise to a good deal of discussion and investigation.

Two other Lawrences have won fame as founders—Lorenz Heister, called the founder of modern German surgery, who died in 1758; and Laurentius or Lars Andrea, who in the early part of the sixteenth century, introduced the reformed Lutheran faith into Sweden.

Laurence Barrett, Irish born, who began life as clerk in a dry goods shop in Paterson, N. J., and who served as a captain in the Civil War, but who made his fame as an actor and friend of Edwin Booth, and Laura Keene, English born, who made her first appearance on the New York stage in 1852, are two famous actors of the name.

Laurence Sterne, born in Ireland in 1713, who made his name and fame as the author of "Tristam Shandy," and Laura Jean Libby, popular novel writer, represent the name in letters, while Laurence Alma-Tadema, born in the Netherlands, in 1836, the most famous living depicter of Roman, Greek and Egyptian scenes, represents the name in art.

Laura Bridgeman, born in New Hampshire in 1829, stands in a class by herself among the laurel crowned men and women of this name, as one of the first blind and deaf persons to be educated by means of a raised alphabet.

Kind Hearts--Good Deeds

"How far that little candle throws its beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Mayor George Gonzales of Hoboken was recently fined $100 for contempt of court by Judge John A. Blair for having gone before the grand jury to obtain an indictment of a former building inspector for alleged embezzlement. The people have become so interested in the case, that it has been decided to raise the amount of the fine by a popular subscription of one cent each. The subscription is not sought because the Mayor is unable to pay the fine, for he is a wealthy man, but as a protest against the decision of Judge Blair. Fifty-seven pennies can be posted on one yard of tape, and the committee having the matter in hand has purchased 176 yards, and the popular subscription is under way. If the Supreme Court sets aside the fine the fund will go to some charity.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie has given $5000 to Chatham Episcopal Institute, located at Chatham, Va., and operated under the auspices of the diocese of Southern Virginia. The gift completes the fund to lift the mortgage on the property.

A dispatch from Christiana tells how the Mayor of Ladennen succeeded in getting a certain subscription into the poor funds. The Mayor accepted a contribution for the poor, but the head of the charity commission who is chief pastor of the town refused to receive it because it came from the proceeds of a charity performance held in a theater. He said he would not accept dirty money "made in such evil ways." The controversy that ensued caused feeling to run high on both sides.

Finally the Mayor announced that the case was settled and the poor had received their share. Now the pastor turned round and called the Mayor a liar, insiting that he had not received the money and had certainly not used it.

"Yes, you have," replied the Mayor, "I changed the bills into silver and distributed the amount into the various poor boxes."

Thomas F. Walsh, the late mining magnate left $100,000 to charity, his widow being directed to distribute it "among such persons and in such amounts as she knows to be my wish."

Rev. Edward S. Ufford, the author of the pentecostal hymn "Throw out the Life Line," has been working in overalls and jumper to complete his new church at Rockland, Me., laboring side by side with his workmen, constructing the edifice, doing carpentering, painting and grading the lot. When he began work on the church few understood what it was to be. The man himself was little known there. Among church people the hymn which he wrote was well known, and greatly admired. But the quiet, unassuming, pleasant-spoken gentleman, the pastor of the new church, was not known as its author except to a few of the hundreds, who frequently sung "Throw Out the Life Line." He had come there to erect a monument to the hymn and that was what he was quietly doing. The first shoveiful of earth was turned by him, and he did all kinds of work until the building was completed. It is a small, modest house of worship, this People's church. The tower is not large, but it is sufficient to tell you that it is a church. It is surmounted by an anchor and a ship's wheel, made by one of the blacksmiths at the near-by shipyard.

MERRY DEL VAL AND THE PAPACY.

BY ARTHUR R. HINTON.

If our information be correct as to the way in which the course of Cardinal Merry del Val in the Fairbanks and Roosevelt incidents has affected Rome, it is quite possible that these events may be the means of destroying what once seemed a chance of a Pope being chosen outside of Italy, something that has not happened since the Council of Trent or for nearly 400 years. The last non-Italian Pope was Adrian VI, a native of Holland, who succeeded Leo X upon the latter's death, soon after his excommunication of Martin Luther.

Of all the Popes, 264 in number, 104 were natives of Rome and 110 natives of other parts of Italy, many of them of the Papal States, as was Leo XIII. Of foreigners there were fifteen Frenchmen, who occupied the office during the century or more that the court was located at Avignon, France. Spain, the country of Cardinal Merry del Val has had three representatives in the chair of Peter, one of them Calixtus IV, who reversed the sentence of Joan of Arc in 1456, and Alexander VI, his nephew, whose election took place a week before Columbus sailed on his memorable voyage in 1492 and who, as arbiter of the dispute over European rights in America, awarded all west of an imaginary line to Spain.

Few other nations have had more than one or two representatives in the Papal office. There were a number of Greeks and Asiatics in the early centuries before and immediately after Constantine. One Englishman has filled the throne. He was Nicholas Breakspeare, native of Langley, now a small city on the Thames some thirty miles from London. Under the name of Adrian IV he was Pope for five years in the time of Henry II of England in the twelfth century, and it is held by some historians that it was upon his sanctions and encouragement that Henry undertook the conquest of Ireland. Other writers dispute this. Certain is it that it began in his time.

The rise of Nicholas Breakspeare is a story unusual. Like Pius X he was of humble peasant origin. Moreover, he was a pure Saxon and lived at a time when the Normans were in power in England and the Saxon was a slave and outcast. His career began as a servant in the monastery of St. Albans where he attracted the attention of the Abbot, was allowed to study and was eventually ordained. Sent to France by his superiors, he finally located at Rome and never returned to England. His learning and ability won recognition and he was placed in the College of Cardinals. During his Pontificate he entered upon a struggle for Papal supremacy with the Emperor Frederick Barbarossa and died immediately after excommunicating that monarch, leaving the long contest to be carried on by his successor to a triumphant close.

Breakspeare's elevation to the Papal chair was not without its effect upon the relations of Norman and Saxon in England. When the haughty Norman King had to recognize a descendant of the race he looked down upon as a superior, the Saxon serfs looked up, took heart and their condition was helped thereby.

Four years ago the writer visited Langley, the birthplace of the Pope, and there saw on a large brewery, one of the town's leading industries, the sign "W. J. Breakspeare & Son." Without much doubt these brewers are descendants of some of the relatives of Pope Adrian.

Cardinal Wolsey received a substantial vote in two conclaves, as did Cardinal Pole, but no Englishman, except Breakspeare, has yet attained the office. Cardinal Merry del Val is half Spanish and half English, his father a Castilian nobleman, once Spanish Ambassador in London and also once Ambassador to the Vatican, his mother English. The Cardinal was born at the Spanish Embassy in London, educated at the Jesuit University at Stonyhurst, Eng., and spent much of his life in his mother's country. When he was appointed Secretary of State much was said and expected from his experience with the knowledge of the English-speaking people. He is the first non-Italian to hold such an office for many generations.

Many influences have contributed to the numerical superiority of Italians in the Papal chair. Local influence at Rome is one factor but there are others. The division of Italy for centuries into many petty States helped to insure Papal independence and the experience with the French Popes, who moved to Avignon and placed themselves under the French kings' influence did not encourage the choice of subjects of any of the big powers. For centuries such an election might have aroused sufficient jealousy among the nations to have started war, while the election of one whose civil allegiance had never been to other than a petty Italian prince, or of a native of the Papal States, whose sole interest and allegiance, civil as well as spiritual, were to the Papacy, avoided all this. It was much as though such jealousy existed among the States of our union over the Presidential office that a permanent compromise were effected by electing always a citizen of the District of Columbia.

While times have changed and Italy is a united country and one of the big powers of Papal temporal sovereignity is gone, so accustomed to an Italian in the office has the world become that one can be elected without arousing international jealousy, while we can easily imagine what might follow, for instance, in France were a German chosen or in Germany were a Frenchman elected.

A Gipsy Song.

The gray road stretches to open plain,
And swift we swing into step again,
You and I and the open sky,
And the breath of the spring wind drifting by.

Scent of the rain wet meadow,
Echo of blackbird's trill,
Challenge of vagrant daisies
Gypsying up the hill;
White of the mist, upcurling,
Sweet of the fragrant dark,
And deep in the tangled shadows
Glint of a firefly spark;
Call, of the long, white roadway,
Lure of the hidden turn,
Cool of the forest byway,
And scent of the moorland fern,

Past the white of the hawthorn hedge,
Through fragrant shadows at highway's edge,
Where the gray moths flutter with sleepy wings,
And the lilies lie in the drifting sedge,
You and I and the open sky,
And the cool of the night wind drawing nigh.

Among the Public Schools

Planned that a visit to the San Pedro schools should be made on the day of the harbor bond election, it proved a happy coincidence, for the carrying of those bonds practically insures the fulfillment of the educational plans and dreams which have been woven for that growing city, by the enthusiastic superintendent of the San Pedro schools, Dr. Grant Karr.

Dr. Karr, who is a graduate of a German university, came out to San Pedro, last fall, from New York City. It is interesting to know that one of his principal reasons for accepting a call to so seemingly small a point as the harbor city, that he had heard how very progressive Southern California is, in educational matters.

"I have a few ideas upon things educational," said Prof. Karr, "and I like to at least have the hope that they may be put into effect, some time. I think that, to prove your idea practical, is an inspiration to still further development. In New York City, everything educational is fixed and staid. No new ideas or suggestions are welcomed, but it is, in fact, rather regarded as an impertinence, if any one, outside a certain small circle, advances an idea."

So Dr. Karr came to our locality because, as he had heard, we not only did not repulse new thought along educational lines, but actually sought to develop such. Having accepted the call to San Pedro, he found himself, almost immediately annexed to Los Angeles and forming an integral part of our great school system.

"It is, I truly believe," said Prof. Karr, "the greatest school system on earth."

Diagrams were still upon the board of the assembly room, illustrating a talk just given to the school by Dr. Karr, in which he presented his interpretation of the great educational center which is evolving here.

According to his idea, the various high schools which are so distinctive in type, form—together—a sort of university, by means of which any student may follow his bent.

"The new Manual Arts High School," he said, "I would liken to choosing ground, where the pupil may pursue all lines if he so wishes, until he fully knows along which one line he wishes to specialize. The Polytechnic gives a wide and practical education along mechanical lines, offering opportunity for specializing there. Los Angeles—why the initials themselves, "L.A." stand for Liberal Arts! A particular training in the intellectual pursuits. Gardena, is equipped for the systematic teaching of agriculture.

Coming to the specialty of San Pedro, the professor divulged his dream. "I would like to see this institution made the especial means of disseminating knowledge as to marine life," he said; "and in fact, we already have a partial equipment for just this kind of work," and he displayed government topographical maps of the coast and of the ocean's bed. "This will be a great seaport; and the opportunities for commercial and seafaring life, can scarcely be estimated, as yet. It would be my idea, to make this high school the center for all studies which can assist in such pursuits."

San Pedro has a fine high school building, and although it has been built about six years, it is so well preserved as to look as good as new. Mr. C. A. Clayton, the principal who took charge last September, is a California man, having been born and raised, not far from his present work. Prof. Clayton is a graduate of Los Angeles High School, afterward held an important position at Nashville, spent four years in Japan with the military staff college, and returning to his own land was made principal of the Long Beach High School, from whence he came to San Pedro.

Mr. Clayton is as enthusiastic regarding the future of San Pedro, both as a shipping point and as an educational center for matters pertaining to the sea, as is Dr. Karr. "This is," he said, "a delightful place to live; and I cannot, but believe that, as people realize the opportunities here, they will wish to either come here to live for the purpose of educating their children, or will send them down from the city. We are, you know, only 'forty-five minutes from Broadway,' and the climate is ideal, the surroundings, in that part of our little city which is removed from the "long-shore" locality as good as can be found anywhere."

The situation of the high school is, in fact, ideal, located as it is to take advantage of the sweep of clean, pure air, from the hills, and with glimpses of the blue sea, from many windows. The class of pupils, too, seems quite above average. In taking care of the cafeteria, recently opened, they have shown their caliber, in volunteering to assist gratuitously. The cafeteria quarters are small, at present, but a building out in the grounds is to be transformed soon and equipped for the purpose. Miss Ludwig has made the very best of present opportunities, and everything in the commissary and dining departments is already in "apple-pie order.

The athletic grounds are in fine condition, and San Pedro is proving herself an important adversary in the inter-school contests.

Dr. Beach and Mr. Cheney are in charge of athletics here, coming down twice a week to give instruction.

Eager for her share of the cultural advantages, San Pedro is arranging for a number of addresses by specialists. On Wednesday evening, Mr. Pattee of Chicago, delivered an address upon the subjects of liquid air, radium and wireless. When Dr. Karr announced this to the pupils of the Fifteenth-street school, the questions which they asked, showed that there would be an interested and intelligent audience. "If radium is so expensive as I have read that it is, how can many people benefit by it?" asked one little girl. "Is liquid air just the plain air around us, bottled up, or fixed somehow?" asked a bright boy. Miss Nora Holleran, the principal of this school, is a strong, capable woman, and evidently in close sympathy with her pupils.

After annexation, when it came to a question of where to locate the new manual training department, and it was proposed to erect a temporary building, Dr. Karr came to the rescue, with the suggestion that the upper floor of the city building be rented, as the offices were now useless, and could be obtained at a minimum expense. This was done, and the quarters prove ideal. The office whose door still bears the sign "City Engineer," is occupied by the cooking department, with its immaculate rows of culinary "desks" and little gas ranges. Here the girls are taught practical cooking, how to construct plain, good things to eat, and how to keep the kitchen and its utensils in order. The kindergarten occupies the quarters signed "Health Office," and sloyd is housed in the City Clerk's apartments. Here, under the guidance of Miss Levita Crump, the boys are making the many useful and artistic pieces from wood, such as bookcases, foot stools, magazine racks, etc., which not only serve to teach the use of tools, and the employment of the artistic sense, but also to please and surprise the folks at home, who fall heir to the things accomplished. The location of these departments, in the center of town, where they are accessible from all other schools, is very convenient. The number of students which can be accommodated here, at the benches, is 180.

One of the sights of the harbor city, is the ninety-foot flagpole, in front of the Fifteenth-street school. Interesting as is the entire school system there, the best part of it all, is the enthusiasm of the faculty. It will not be the fault of superintendent, principal or teachers, if San Pedro does not become a great educational center.

Dr. Karr is also an assistant superintendent of the Board of Education.

Prof. Housh, of Los Angeles High School, was invited by the Y.W.C.A. of the Normal School, to address the girls upon the subject of "The Normal Girl and the Social Problem." This was the first of several important talks to be given there, the next being "The Normal Girl and Civics," by Judge Wilbur; followed by an address upon the "Normal Girl and Ethics," by Dr. Millspaugh. Prof. Housh dwelt especially upon the opportunity offered to the Normal girl going into the country to teach, where she could, if she would, become a power in social upliftment. "There is a social hunger, in the country, "said Prof. Housh, "which, more than any other one element, drives young persons away from the country to the city. This is an evil of our day, and the teacher may become a strong factor, if she will, in overcoming this; while at the same time, she will benefit herself; for it is true that all effort for the betterment of others, reacts upon the benefacter, many fold." Prof. Housh's address was impressive and helpful and was evidently highly appreciated by his audience.

Dr. Baer of Occidental addressed Los Angeles High School on Monday upon the "Faults of Students," urging that cowardice and laziness were apt to be the besetting sins of pupils. He gave a stirring talk.

President Wheeler of the State University gave an informal talk to the L. A. students, in which he compared the student life of Germany with that of our own country. According to President Wheeler, the schools of America are nearer to the hearts of the people than are those of Germany, since in the latter the schools are purely governmental institutions, whose management is so far removed from the people that they feel none of the personal interest felt by the people in relation to our public schools. "American public schools," said he, "are a projection of the common people, an evolution from their thought; and as student government becomes more and more prevalent, this personal element is still further embodied, and personal affection for the schools is fostered. This affection is entirely absent in the educational institutions of Germany."

In the series of addresses by the heads of departments Prof. Lee addressed the assembly upon the close relationship between the English department, of which he is the head, and other departments to which good English is a necessity.

Interest centers, at present, upon the production of the "Midsummer Night's Dream," which is to be presented at L. A. on Friday afternoon, April 29. The school orchestra will furnish the inter-act music, and the girl's glee club will sing the Shakespearean song, "Ye Spotted Snakes." There will be ten dancing fairies and twenty singers. Miss Ella Galpin will be, it is said, a delightful little Puck. All friends of the school are invited and the small admission charged will help to defray incidental expenses, and any remainder will go to swell the beautification fund for building and grounds. The cast of characters will be as follows:

The play, "The Nautical Knot," given by Polytechnic students, on Thursday and Friday evenings, was an unqualified success. The costumes were pretty, the parts were well taken, the music finely rendered, and the operetta, as a whole, was received enthusiastically by the large audiences present each evening. The music department again scored a success, and proved that it could not only take care of the musical part, but the staging and presentation of a play.

Polytechnic has appointed a Visitors' Day, May 27, when all friends of the school will be welcomed, and open house will be held in all departments morning, afternoon and evening.

In the debate between Polytechnic and Throop, the score stood 203 2-3 to 181 2-3, in favor of Poly. Mr. Amos won first place, Mr. Blakesley second.

The senior play has been written by Miss Mary Brown and Ross Lewin. "Hope Loring," by Lillian Bell, formed the basis of the play, but the dramatization has, it is said, added strength and dignity to the original. The subject was chosen principally because of its college atmosphere. The play will be presented about the middle of June.

Miss Mary Brown is at present up in the Ojai, engaged in the tennis tournament. This young lady has, according to her teachers, exceptional ability in many lines.

The art for the "Poly Student," to be issued in June, is said to be particularly good, under the charge of Ruth Burdick. All subjects are selected from around the school buildings or grounds.

All senior orations will deal with subjects of local interest around Los Angeles. Prof. Francis has suggested that all of these orations be read during class-room periods as a matter of instruction to pupils.

At an Aud call on Tuesday Richmond Plant, Jr., being called upon by Prof. Francis, gave an extempore address, in which he scored the school for its lukewarm support of debating, as testified by the meager audience at a previous debate. "The young man showed real strength and ability as a spontaneous speaker," said Prof. Francis.

In a recent address before the Teachers' Association of the State of New Jersey, the Polytechnic High School of Los Angeles was spoken of as "the best High School west of the Mississippi."

On Thursday afternoon the committee chosen by the L. A. High School Teachers' Association as a consulting and advisory committee, upon choosing a vocation, met at Polytechnic to confer as to best methods of procedure along these lines. Miss Wood of Hollywood High, Miss Smith of Polytechnic and Prof. Montgomery of L. A. High compose the committee.

Hollywood High School is preparing an operetta for presentation on Friday evening, next. "Pauline" will be given, under the direction of Mr. Kirchhofer, head of the music department.

On Thursday evening Superintendent Moniux addressed Olive High upon the subject of Halley's comet, giving an interesting and instructive talk.

Olive versus Harvard held a track meet at Harvard on Thursday.

A new plan adopted by Olive-street High in regard to scholarship deficiencies is that of having pupils report to teachers each Friday, with "unsatisfactory" cards.

Miss Stone, supervisor of music in the city schools, spoke to the Olive-street pupils Tuesday on the value of music, giving an inspiring talk upon her chosen theme.

A talk by Miss Dole upon "The Serenity of the Mountain Tops" was much appreciated by both faculty and students

Mme. Trausdell Sells Her Imported Patterns of Dress Goods and Silks at Very Radical Reductions.

The demand for the newest and best in fashions encouraged Mme. Trausdell, who may well be said now to stand undisputedly at the front of her profession in Southern California, to import direct from the Eastern and European mills and fashion centers some of the most exquisite weaves and colorings, the designers produced for the now ensuing season. Madame brings these patterns to Los Angeles quite a time before the actual opening of the season, so that her designers and makers should become thoroughly familiar with the actual weaves and colorings, that her bi-weekly fashion letter from her own Paris headquarters at 3 Rue Castiglione tells them about. A good many of these patterns are of course made up in the Trausdell establishment into some of those gowns, dresses and costumes, that find favor in the eyes of the fashion writers of the State at the most exclusive society functions in California. It is for just such occasions that the various costumieres of course save up their best ideas, as a rule, and the enviable position won by this establishment under such circumstances deserves very special mention on just this account. For the purpose of placing herself in position to obtain such exclusive patterns as she buys at the very best prices possible, Mme. Trausdell purchases even more of these than she can use in her own workrooms, and right now she is placing on sale a perfectly exquisite collection of bordered foulards, figured marquisettes, embroidered lace robes, etc., that should interest all seeking for the most artistic and strictly correct in the line of dress. The prices, at which these suit and dress patterns will be sold are extremely low, much lower in fact than they could be possibly sold in any ordinary store, as the object of importing them here was not originally a profit-making one, but simply one of lowering the price on all Mme. Trausdell's purchases by the bringing over of this increased quantity. This, therefore, is a very unusual opportunity of saving money on the very highest class of goods and trimmings. Mme. Trausdell's establishment is on the 5th floor of 424 So. Broadway, opposite the Broadway Dept. Store.

ARMY AND NAVY MEN.

BY THE retirement of Col. William S. Potten, assistant quartermaster general, United States Army, Maj. Daniel E. McCarthy, Chief Quartermaster, Department of the Missouri, has been promoted to the vacancy thus created with the title of Lieutenant-Colonel, serving as deputy quartermaster general, U.S.A., and as Chief Quartermaster, Department of the Missouri.

Owing to the assignment of Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood to represent the army at the Argentine exposition, he will not assume the duties of chief of staff until June. For this reason he will not be officially relieved from command of the department of the East until that time, and Brig-Gen. Walter Howe will continue to temporary command until the return of Gen. Wood. The detail of Maj.-Gen. J. Franklin Bell as chief of staff terminates on April 22, and Brig-Gen. Tasker H. Bliss will serve as acting chief of staff until Gen. Wood reports for duty at the War Department.

Maj. Blanton Winship, Judge Advocate, has been granted four months' leave, with permission to go beyond the sea, to take effect April 30. Maj. Winship was ordered to San Francisco to assume the duties of the Judge Advocate some months ago, and meantime other officers have been on temporary duty. Capt. Goodwin now being in charge.

PRESIDENT TAFT is the champion Presidential traveler. Since March 4, 1909, he has traveled 28,000 miles, and will have exceeded 30,000 before May 1, if he keeps his April engagements. He has made more speeches than any of his predecessors in the same time, and his first year's record is more than many Presidents achieved in four full years. The Taft record to date is 390 speeches. The coming trip to the Middle West will add about thirty more.

B. F. Hamilton of Saco, Me., who has recently attained his ninety-first birthday, was the first merchant to employ saleswomen and the people of his town, men and women, boycotted his store in consequence. Many of the leading church women called on him personally and remonstrated earnestly against what they called the sin of placing women in a position of such publicity as behind a counter for the purpose of selling goods.

John D. Rockefeller's one extravagance is said to be shoes. Simple as his taste is in respect to all other articles of wearing apparel, Mr. Rockefeller's shoes must be just right. He has them made to order by a Cleveland shoemaker, and he doesn't care what the price may be if the shoes suit his feet and please his fancy. He orders new pairs continuously, and is said to have as large a personal collection of shoes as any opera queen.

Emerson McMillan, the New York capitalist, has arranged to finance the trip of H. C. Lord, professor of astronomy at Ohio State University, to Hawaii at the time of the transit of Halley's comet across the sun. The only other transit of a comet across the face of the sun occurred unexpectedly, permitting no preparation, according to Prof. Lord. The sun was so near the horizon that the few observations made were of doubtful value. The date of this transit is May 18, and McMillan and Lord will journey something like 12,000 miles in each direction to make observations of one hour.

Samuel Francis Woolard of Wichita, Kan., has offered $400 in prizes for the best eulogy of "father," either in prose or verse. He believes that the male head of the family should have some share of the sentimental recognition which has heretofore been concentrated upon his mate. He is setting out to combat a species of universal mental obsession under the influence of which the world has come to assume as a matter of course that mother must be the embodiment of all that is good in the home, while father is of necessity either a nonenity or an objectionable person, whose personality prohibits emotional commentary.

CHURCHMEN.

REV. J. J. PATTON of Seaside, Or., was arrested at 3 o'clock one morning recently, and locked up in the town jail, but was released in the morning on his own recognizance. Patton, with three other men, was discovered peeping into the windows of saloons and other places of business. As no satisfactory answer was given the officer for their action they were placed under arrest. The men in company with Mr. Patton were all members of his flock and enthusiastic church workers.

The Rev. James Wilson, 80 years old, who retired recently after fifty-one years of active service as pastor of the Pleasant Prairie Presbyterian Church at Bethel, Shelby county, Missouri, was one who indeed did "labor for love." He never received a salary. His only compensation was wedding fees.

Rev. W. Lathrop Meeker has resigned the pastorate of the First Unitarian Church of Revere, Mass., as a preliminary to going into politics and running for Congress. He disapproves of the existing political parties, social conditions, economic conditions. He would do away, for instance, with private ownership of natural resources and public utilities.

PEOPLE OF THE COAST.

GEORGE R. RILEY, who is ending his days as a public charge in the poorhouse of Pierce county, Washington, believes he is the sole survivor of Dr. Elisha K. Kane's world-famous "farthest north" Polar expedition of 1852. Although he is now 77 years of age, Riley takes a keen interest in the polar discussions of today. He is satisfied to know that he once stood at a point 82 deg. and 30 min. north at a time when no other body of men had penetrated the Arctic circle to that height. This Kane dash into the Polar regions was made in the little brig Advance, the expedition being financed by Henry and Moses Grinnell, whose "Swallowtail" line of boats was a power in the merchant marine of the '50's. The surgeon on this expedition was Isaac I. Hayes, who in later years attended President Garfield. The old man seriously doubts the truth of the accounts of their dashes to the Pole as made by both Cooke and Peary, although he ravenously reads all accounts of the two expeditions.

G. L. Bradley of Garfield county, Washington, has invented a farm machine, capable of doing forty things, he says, such as grading, scraping, ditching, filling, spreading manure, raking hay, cutting weeds. It has a span of twelve feet and works two to four horses. The principal parts are a heavy adjustable blade and a row of tines suspended from a bar. Mr. Bradley says it will do the work of fifty men. The inventor has been three years in perfecting the machine. He is 71 years old.

AUTHORS.

BOOTH TARKINGTON relates how he wrote for five years before he had a single manuscript accepted. During those five years his earnings were just $67, of which the major portion came from a relative "for services rendered," $30 from the sale of a drawing, part represented two prize essays, "and the rest," concluded Mr. Tarkington with pride, "was earned by shoveling snow for the neighbors."

John Kendrick Bangs, spends busy winters lecturing and reading in many parts of the country. From one of these trips Mr. Bangs has just returned to New York after a tour in the South and West covering eighteen cities.

Miss Helen A. Clarke, the author of "Longfellow's Country," "Browning's Italy," etc., is also a musician and has written an opera, "The May Queen," which is to be given next month. Miss Clarke lives in Cambridge and is now at work upon a companion volume to "Longfellow's Country," which will be called "Hawthorne's Country."

Will Irwin was born in Leadville, Colo., in the days of the great boom, but went with his family to California when very young and was educated there. He was graduated from Stanford University and started his literary work on the Wave.

John Stevenson Tarkington of Indianapolis, is the newest Indiana author. Mr. Tarkington has been writing for several years, and his articles have been published in magazines under the first part of his name, John Stevenson. It is a surprise to most of his friends to know that he is a writer. He is 70 years old.

EDUCATORS.

PRESIDENT JOHN H. FINLEY of the College of the City of New York has obtained a leave of absence to accept the lectureship in the Sorbonne, to which he has been elected. This chair was established as a counterpart of a lectureship established in Harvard University in 1898. Dr. Finley will speak of the developments of the West, where the French were pioneers.

Dr. E. E. Southard of the Harvard Medical School has been appointed by President W. C. Gorgas a member of the council on medical education of the American Medical Association, to fill the unexpired term of Dr. N. T. Councilman.

Dr. William J. Tucker, for sixteen years president of Dartmouth College, believes that the sense of personal power is the strongest safeguard against the risks of college life. As soon as a man is made to feel that he is capable of doing something worth while, the temptations which surround him grow gradually less.

John Burroughs, the naturalist, celebrated his seventy-third birthday April 3, having been born in Roxbury, N. Y., in 1837. He was school-teacher, treasury clerk, bank examiner, but since 1874 has lived on a farm, devoting his time to writing and fruit culture. Every spring he makes his own garden. He was a great friend of Walt Whitman and Jay Gould.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard, explains his attitude toward euthanasia, or the right of a physician painlessly to kill a patient doomed to die, and says: "What does it matter in a hopeless case if the patient's life is shortened by a few hours or more, if he be thereby relieved from excruciating pain? I should prefer it if I were in a hopeless condition and in extreme pain. I do not believe in the right of any one to kill another to put him out of his agony, but I do believe that we should avail ourselves of those anodynes which nature beneficially provides, even though their use in a hopeless case shall shorten the brief remaining span of life."

OVER THE SEA.

ARTHUR LEE, late English military attaché at Washington, during the Spanish War was a young captain in the British army serving as military instructor in Canada. Being detailed to go to Cuba, he was present at the battle of July 1 before Santiago and distinguished himself by leading a company of United States infantry up the hill at El Caney. This was a highly-indiscreet thing for a military attaché to do, but, as Lee put it, all the officers were hit and somebody had to take charge. Returning to England after his marriage, Lee was immediately elected to Parliament, and in 1903 Arthur Balfour took him into the ministry. Thus in four years did an unknown captain emerge did an unknown captain emerge as one of the leaders of a great political party. And it all came about through that indiscreet charge up the hill at El Caney.

The tallest member of the new Parliament will probably be found to be Douglas B. Hall, the Unionist representative for the Isle of Wight, who is no less than 6 feet 5 inches in height. He is run very close, however, by Sir Randolf Baker, the new Unionist for North Dorset, who is one-half an inch shorter. Sir Owen Phillips, the Liberal member for Pembroke, is one of three brothers—Lord St. Davids is among the number—whose average height is 6 feet 4¾ inches.

The German competitor in the race for the South Pole is First Lieutenant Filchner, who is attached to the general staff of the German army. Lieut. Filchner has already distinguished himself in exploration by his travels in Central Asia. He spent the years from 1903 to 1905 in Tibet and has also traveled much in Pamirs and Turkestan. In planning his approach to the polar regions he proposes to make his base on the coast of Weddell Sea and site side to that of Sir Ernest Shackleton's expedition.

Otto Herman Kahn, who is famous as an art connoisseur and who pays $75,000 or $100,000 or any amount at all for a picture he wants, comes of a banking family. He was born in Mannheim, Germany, in 1867, and received his early training in his father's bank. Then he moved on to Berlin, and learned all the bankers there knew. And then to London, with the same result. And then he went to New York. He has a few homes scattered about in New York City and suburbs, and belongs to a few clubs and a good many directorates, and can talk art and music without looking at his cuff every few moments to get his cue.

When Heinrich Hensel comes to New York next season to join the Metropolitan's corps of tenors, he may expect to see an inspired press agent working overtime to give due publicity to the new German singer's temerity in trying to hale the Kaiser to court. When the intendent of the Wiesbaden Court Opera fined Hensed $250 last winter for refusing to sing a certain role for which he was cast, the tenor was advised by his lawyers that the only way to obtain redress was by instituting a suit against the imperial William himself, he being responsible for the Wiesbaden Opera as he is for the Berlin Royal Opera. Now, however, a settlement has been reached out of court, whereby Hensel submits to the fine and receives by way of compensation his desired leave of absence to come to America for part of next season.

OLD MISSISSIPPI DAYS.

Steamboating Was Never Very Profitable, But It Gave Employment to Many People.

Reviewing the golden age of river traffic when Mark Twain was a pilot on the Mississippi, a writer in the Travel Magazine for April says that some steamboats, like the John Simonds, the Robert E. Lee or the Natchez did a $10,000 business every round trip. This, however, was exceptional.

As a general rule, steamboating was not a paying industry, the most fortunate owners making but 6 per cent. on the money invested.

Many a hungry mouth did the steamboat business fill in those days. In 1832 the number of men earning their living in the various departments of the trade has been estimated at 90,000; ten years later, counting only the laborers, engineers, pilots, repairers, and others of actual crews, there were about 180,000 men employed. During the year 1830, there was $3,000,000 invested in steamboats, with a yearly expense of $1,671,840 for wages, $1,393,000 for wood, $835 for provisions and $743,040 for other expenses. In 1839 almost $2,000,000 was spent for wood alone along the shores of Western rivers.

The steamboat age began about 1821 and flourished for fifty years. As early as 1834 the number of steamboats on the Mississippi and its tributaries is estimated at 230 and in 1842 there were 450 vessels, with a value of $25,000,600. But the golden era was from 1848 till the war. Never did the valley and steamboating prosper more than then. Thousands of bales of cotton were annually shipped to southern markets; and the wharves of St. Louis and Memphis and Vicksburg and other large ports were stacked with piles of merchandise and lined with scores of steamers. But the war came on, cutting off communication between the North and South, and sweeping the trade away. Iron-clads, built from former packets, paroled the mighty river. When peace was finally declared the survivors of the old steamboat days were dead, or engaged in other industries. The business picked up a bit then, but fell off again before the cheaper and faster transportation of railroads. Today the occupations of the wood cutters have vanished. A few packet lines control the Mississippi and Ohio river trade and along the levees of the big river cities only a half dozen or so steamboats can be seen at anchor, the last survivors of that gala period when the river was the great highway.

Vilifying Captians of Industry.

An eminent New York financier, on his recent return from a trip to Germany, told of the surprise the people of that country felt at the action of the American people in denouncing industrial corporations and railroads and in holding them up to ridicule and contempt, as the muckraking press is constantly doing. In other countries captains of industry are exalted as they were in the United States up to the era of the muckraker and demagogue. It is true that wrongs were committed by some corporations in the past, but these were no greater than those committed in a minor way in every branch of business under the acute competition which prevails and which will always prevail among men of spirit and of the American temperament. The time will come when, as in other days, we shall be glad to lift up the hands of those who are ready to invest their capital in new enterprises, to take the risks of building railroads, creating industries and uncovering hidden wealth. — [Leslie's Weekly.

The Supreme Court Judges.

The earlier custom of accomplishing distributive representation in making appointments to vacancies on the bench of the United States Supreme Court has not been closely adhered to. In fact, several of the nine Federal circuits have at present no representation in the Supreme Court, the Fifth Circuit, comprising Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina, not having been represented since the death of Chief Justice Taney in 1864. During the period since Justice Taney's death the Sixth Circuit, which comprises Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, has been drafted upon by various Presidents to fill seven Supreme Court vacancies. Three of the now holding Supreme Court judges are from the Sixth Circuit and two are from the First Circuit, which comprises all of the New England States, except Vermont. The Second Circuit, in which New York State is located, is not represented at present; neither is the Third Circuit, which contains the densely populated State of Pennsylvania. — [Baltimore American.

Effective Bagpipe Music.

A gaunt and kilted Scotsman recently made his appearance in a country village and was endeavoring to charm the locals to charity with selections on his bagpipes.

A shaggy-haired man opened the front door of a house and beckoned the minstrel.

"Gie us a wee bit lilt just oot here," he said, in an accent which told that he also was from the land of the haggis. "My auld mither's in a creetical condition copstair. The doctor's wi' her the noo, and says the pipes may save her life."

Up and down in front of the house marched the braw Hielander, discoursing music that might well have been incidental to a cat and pig fight.

Presently the shaggy-haired man came out again.

"Gie us the 'Dead March' noo," he said.

"Is the puir auld lady gone?" questioned the piper.

"Na, na, mon; ye've saved mither," came the reply; "but ye've killed the

"DIFFERENT" HOTEL MAKES ITS DEBU

The Blackstone, Chicago, Michigan Boulevard's Ne Palace, Formally Opened to the Public.

OVERLOOKS LAKE MICHIGAN.

Interior a Model of Decorators' Art; Many New Wrinkles to Insu Comfort of Guests.

A "different" hotel made its formal bow in Chicago last week.

It was without any fanfare of trumpets that the Blackstone, the big house on Michigan Boulevard, overlooking the waters of Lake Michigan, made its start. For weeks and months the builders and decorators have been laboring in the big structure. For weeks an army of employees have been drilling constantly in the duties of the various positions.

More than three score cooks under the direction of Gustav Becker, who for seventeen years was the chef of the kitchen in the Holland House in New York, have been getting acquainted with the great kitchens of the Blackstone.

And when Messrs. Tracy C. and John B. Drake, with their assistant managers, Paul Gore and J. R. Tompkins, after a final survery, passed the word that the doors were open, the routine began like the movement of a smooth running machine in which every part was perfectly adjusted and in perfect balance.

Inspection by Stockholders.

The occasion of the opening was made the time for the gathering of the stockholders of the Blackstone hotel company, who, with their wives and daughters and sweethearts, filled the main dining-room and overflowed into a smaller one. And finally when the excellence of Chef Becker's art had been duly praised, they passed out into the parts of the building, to the beautiful ballroom and to the balcony surrounding it, and up and down Art Hall with its magnificent hangings and draperies, and into the private dining-rooms adjoining it, then to the floors above to inspect the bedroom suites with the splendid oppointments, and they said: "What a different hotel!"

The Blackstone is to be, in fact it already is, one of the landmarks of Chicago. It has a frontage on Michigan Boulevard of eighty feet, just north of Hubbard Place. It towers 260 feet above the street level, twenty-two stories in height. It already has taken its position as one of the most prominent features of the great sky line on Michigan Boulevard.

It is the first building to be seen from the boulevard, and from the lake it stands out alone, proud and beautiful. The slanting rays of the late afternoon sun or those of the early morning bring into especial beauty of lines of the green tiled roof. The surroundings, with the view across Grant Park looking on to the waters of the great lake, are not surpassed by any hotel in the United States.

Interior Is "Different."

But the way in which it is "different" lies in the interior. The main entrance to the Blackstone is on Hubbard Place. There is a carriage entrance on Michigan Boulevard. There is an entrance on Hubbard Place leading directly into an elevator which lifts the guests directly to the ballroom floor, with its dressing rooms for men and women, permitting them to attend a ball or reception in the hotel and be entertained in the private dining-rooms without having to pass through the main lobby of the hotel or to appear in the halls or promenades.

There is nothing gaudy about the Blackstone. No one will ever say "gingerbread" in entering any apartment of the establishment. It is not gay with gilt or tinsel. It is not gorgeous in the common use of that term. The ballroom, the main corridor, the private dining-rooms, the main dining-room, all have the quiet elegance that comes from perfect taste, perfect harmony displayed by the best artists.

The main lobby is paneled in French walnut. The ceiling is of old ivory. It is of the period of Louis XVI. The draperies, all from France, harmonize with the paneling. Passing up the broad marble steps the clerks' offices are on the left or west. On the east is the entrance to the main dining-room.

French Dining-Room.

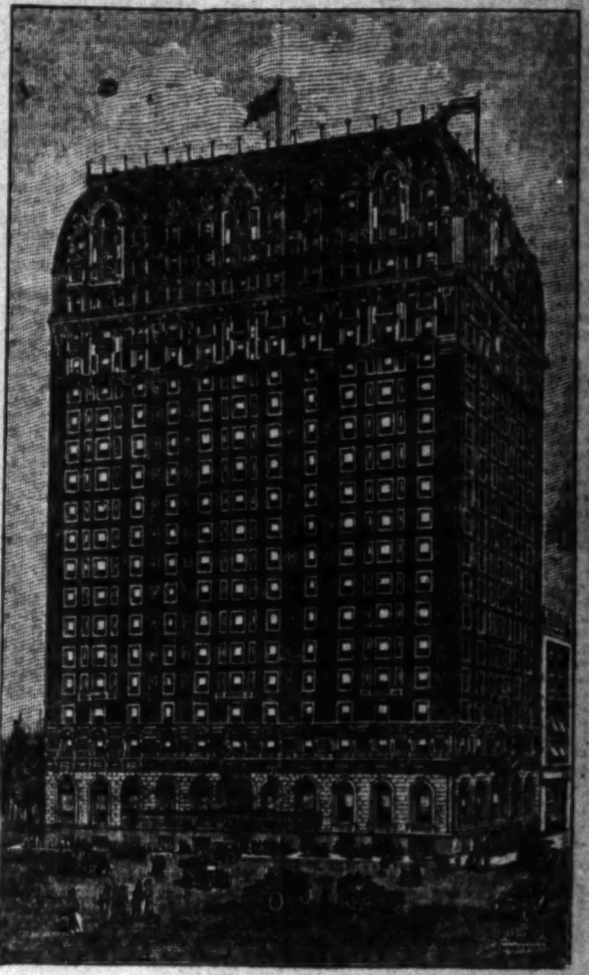
The dining-room, fifteen feet above the level of the avenue, extends along the entire east side of the hotel, overlooking the lake. It is another model of French art in decoration. The chairs, tables, draperies, hangings, even the lamps on each of the tables, came from Paris. Each lamp, covered with a wide spreading shade, is lighted from a storage battery underneath the table.

In the brass work directly beneath the lamp is a flower holder. All the linen bears the crest of the Blackstone. The upholstery is in American Beauty rose, as are the draperies over the French windows. It is a room that for beauty and elegance cannot be equaled in a hotel perhaps in the world.

The ballroom, which will be used as a tearoom and a meeting place during the afternoons, is all in white and gold, a fitting frame or setting for belles of the dance who will visit it. It is a room that the decorators may point to without fear of unfavorable criticism.

It, too, looks out upon the lake. A balcony runs around the room and French doors open from it. The arrangement of lights and the beauty of the ceilings, all culminating in the central cluster of lights and crystals, combine to make a room that will become famous all over the polite world.

The private dining-rooms which open from Art Hall all follow different schools of decorating. There is a Colonial room, in which every detail of Colonial art is followed. The English room, the largest of the private dining-rooms, and a French room will also have their admirers.



THE BLACKSTONE, CHICAGO

Bedrooms Are Homelike.

The floors above are given over to the bed chambers. A separate plan has been followed in the decorating and furnishing of each of the 400 bedrooms. Every bedroom is an outside room and each has its own private bath, which has also an outside window. All the appointments are modern. They have a homelike appearance that does not usually appear in a hotel bedroom. There are twin beds, with broad dressers, and easy chairs with window seats and handsome draperies.

The bedrooms are models. They ar arranged that they can be used singl thrown together.

In every way the comfort of the g has been the first thought. Not slightest thing has been overlooked. T are side lights and lights along the of the mirrors in the bathrooms will appeal to the man who shaves h self. There are electric connections the woman who wants to heat a cur iron. If as the guest leaves his room turns the key in his door, all the li in the room will be extinguished au matically.

Air and Water Purifiers.

There is a unique system of cooling air and of ventilation; there is a fil ing system by which every drop of wa used in the hotel, even in the baths, perfectly purified, and the very air whi is drawn through the great ventilati system is filtered through water; there an ice freezing plant and an electric ge erator—these are only some of the fe tures that go to make the Blackstone "different" hotel.

It should be understood that it is hotel for the transient guest and that is not a family hotel in any sense of th word.

"The architects, Messrs. Marshall an Fox, and the owners, the Drake Hot Co., undertook to put together a hot for people who are accustomed to th best and who will appreciate it," said prominent stockholder, "and I belie they have succeeded."

AN OLD ART REVIVED.

se Petals Made Into Beads—New Occupation for Ingenious Women.

BY GRACE ADELE PIERCE.

ECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.] ome centuries ago, the nuns in a vent in France made a discovery hich has left an impress of artistic lue upon all the years that have fol- ved. The convent was situated near manufactory of perfumes, and the mingly worthless but odorous pulp m the otto of roses was thrown out such a manner as to meet the eye of observant and resourceful sister. t of this pulp the nun formed beads, l made them into rosaries.

n these days, when old things are oming entricengly new, this art has n revived, and women of artistic in- nct are gathering rose petals, pass- them through certain processes and nging them out in forms of utility d beauty. Beads, bits of jewelry d artistic ornaments are made quiet- in the home, and many a woman, my personal knowledge, is turning art to account in actual dollars. y woman, with a fair amount of in- nuity and patience, can soon master process and the financial returns l for some time, no doubt, prove tisfactory. Beads of the finer type l at present for from five to eight ts a piece.

or any woman who may wish to e up this pleasant occupation, the lowing formula is given:

ather a quantity of fresh roses, red darker shades being better for the rpose. Take care to select the more orous blooms. Carefully cull the pet- , retaining only the fresh ones for e, and put them, handful by handful, rough the grinder of a food-chopping achine. This process will give the nsistency of meat at the first chop- g and will to a certain extent re- in the color of the roses. Lay the ss on an iron baking pan to sea- n. This is imperative since iron alone n give the jet blackness so desired in e finishing of the beads. Allow this ss to remain twenty-four hours, in e meantime stirring and turning with case-knife so that the entire surface ay be brought to touch the pan. pon the second day repeat the proc- s of chopping and allow the paste to main another twenty-four hours on e pan. Repeat this process for nine ys in succession, taking great care at the pulp shall not sour or mold. uring this process the juice of the ses will run in large quantities from e pulp and must be caught and ured over the mass to keep it suffi- ntly moise. If this is not done, the lor will escape and the mass will arden so quickly that it will become orthless.

After the ninth day, if the pulp has fficiently hardened, it is ready to roll to the form desired. To be in per- ct condition for rolling, the pulp ould be just hard enough to retain form. If too hard it will crack. In is case moisten the paste with water ough to make it pliable. For the aking of beads, pinch enough of the lp from the loaf to make a roll twice e desired size of the bead. For this rocess procure a cheap baking pan d cut the corners to render it flat— heavy paper, however, will do nicely r this purpose. After the first roll- g, place the balls on a flat surface—a k cover or low pasteboard box—and low to harden for twenty-four hours. n the second day give these balls a cond rolling to smooth and compress em. On the third rolling they should pierced. In this piercing much are must be exercised. Use an ordi- ary long hat pin, piercing each ball rough the center and slipping firmly its place. Use a bit of stiff paper ierced to guard the bead until it resses against its fellow. Place the at pins in a firm standard and allow e balls to dry. If they are dry enough mark at the time of piercing this rocess may be performed at the same me.

A Lost Art Found.

A new occupation at which women excel in making rose beads from rose petals.

For marking, any impress may be used—a hairpin bent at the apex is good. This implement will do wonders in skillful hands. After marking, the beads must be allowed to dry until they have ceased shrinking. When perfectly dried, string them on a strong black linen thread—No. 35—and polish. For polishing, the beads must be forcibly rubbed together in the palms. When they are brought to a fine polish, apply cold cream or vaseline in limited quantities to the palms, and continue the rubbing. When sufficiently blackened, dry with a cloth. This is the last process in the formula, and the beads are ready to string for wearing.

In stringing these ornaments the taste of the wearer must be consulted. The ordinary arrangement is: One rose bead, two small-sized gold beads, another rose bead, and so on. Pleasing combinations may be made with any colored bead which meets the fancy. The gold beads are bought from any dealer at 50 cents per bunch. For mourning purposes or in imitation of dull jet, the rose beads should be strung alone. Rosaries, bead strings, watch fobs, bracelets and other ornaments may be formed of these beads.

Hatpins may be made of this pulp by rolling a mass two or three times as large as desired when finished. Allow this to dry for several days—the larger the mass the longer the time. Roll each day, press into shape, and pierce half way up from the bottom. When two-thirds dry, mark with the design of your choice. After the top is thoroughly dried, dip a hatpin—from which the head has been filed—into good glue, and press strongly into the hole previously pierced. After this is thoroughly dry, polish and blacken your hatpin, and it is ready for use. Bar pins and other forms of jewelry may be created by the exercise of a little ingenuity.

In order to keep your beads well blackened and polished, they should be subjected every two or three months to the palm and vaseline treatment.

Mme. Canada Arrives.

President Ariel of the Each and All Society announces, "Our dear Mme. Canada and her three babies have arrived safely, and they are charmed with the sunshine, flowers and, best of all, the dear friends who greeted them at the station. Mme. Canada is resting for a short time with "Aunt Charlotte," an old time member of the society whose home is at Huntington Park, and she hopes to soon meet the dear girls and friends who made her journey to this sunny land possible.

A GIRL AND HER MANNERS.

The Noisy, Aggressive One Avoided, Quietness and Dignity Attractive.

The great thing for a woman is to create a good impression at all times and in all places, says a writer in the London Chronicle.

Now some girls when they wish to create an impression on one of the other sex go to work in quite the wrong way.

Most men strongly dislike noisy, aggressive women, especially in a public place, and yet many girls are so foolish that they seem to think: "Once let us make enough noise at the top of our voices and be flippantly facetious, and our battle is won!"

This is a terrible mistake.

The general result is this—the men make a mental note that this type of girl must be avoided at any price.

Of course, a few men, fond of what they describe as "a good time," may join in the noisy revels, and the shrill-toned girl thinks that the game is hers—not the least little bit in the world! There is a class of man who will flirt with almost any girl—if he be hard up for amusement and time hangs heavy on his hands. He never or very seldom flirts with the girl he finally marries—he respects her too much.

The noisy, bouncy girl who may possibly attract men to her for a time—flatters herself that all is well, and despises her quieter sisters as "so worthy and uninteresting!" She has indeed created an impression, but not the one she thinks, for she cannot understand why—when the prizes of life are distributed—she is quietly passed over for one of those very girls at whom, in her hour of supposed triumph, she pointed the triumphant finger of scorn.

She was right — in one way; they were indeed found "worthy" by the men, worthy to be the mothers of their children and the angels of their homes. If you really wish to create a favorable impression on men be quiet and dignified in your behavior, permit no familiarity or disrespectful treatment from the people with whom you associate, and indulge in none yourself. Love without respect is not worth having—it is not the "real thing" at all!

Don't giggle and get flustered and treat it awkwardly as a joke when a man pays you a little attention; take it merely as your right—which it is. After all, is it so very extraordinary that a man should signal you out as the one woman in all the wide world to him? It has been known to happen before, and it will happen again and again to many women as long as the world lasts—but the old, old story always seems so new and wonderful to every one whose feet have strayed within the garden gates of Paradise.

As a place of residence Eden was closed
And no one can live there it is supposed,
For many a year to come;
But now and again, in the summer days,
The Gardens are open thrown,
That the public may walk down the grassy ways
And nobody walks alone!
There is room for us all in that Eden Grove,
'Neath the mystical azure skies;
For none are too foolish or young to love,
And none are too old or wise.
Yet each man will swear as he passes through
'Ere his holiday time is done,
That the place is constructed to hold but two—
Himself and another one

Never be affected—men hate affected women like the seven plagues of Egypt. It is a dreadful mistake—Just be your own charming self. A girl who is all airs and graces is an eye-sore anywhere.

Never pretend to be what you are not; if you are poor, don't be ashamed of it—poverty is no disgrace. A man who really loves you, loves you for yourself alone—not for what you possess.

If he only cares to be seen with you when you wear pretty clothes and trinkets, his love is not worth saying "Thank you" for; you are much better without it.

It may be your appearance will first attract the attention, but it must be the finer qualities of your character that will finally rivet his affections for you. Even the most dazzling beauty must fade—unfortunately for some of us—and bring us all down to the same level, beauty and plainness alike.

And when you have attracted the moths—make a wise selection, don't be taken in by the cheap and meretricious suitor, he does not wear well in the long run! Do not seek for money and position as much as for a really fine and strong character. Money may go—the fine position be lost—but character is the one thing that remains like a rock, for ever, and very often improves with time.

Never be self-conscious.

A girl who slides through a room, blushing and smiling and patting her hair, as if she did not know what to do with her hands, creates the very worst impression of fatuous conceit and sheer iodiocy. If they look at you, it is probably because they have nothing better to do; they are not really criticising you, they are much more likely thinking about themselves.

Then lift up your head and keep your hands free, and step through the room like a princess through her own domain. You will probably on that occasion create an excellent impression, and one never knows to what it may lead!

Incorrigible: He asked so many questions that day that he finally wore out his mother's patience. "Robert," she cried, "if you ask me another question I shall put you to bed without your supper!" Robert promptly asked another and was packed off to bed. Later his mother repented. After all, asking questions was the only way he could acquire knowledge; so she tiptoed upstairs, knelt beside Robert's bed, and told him she was sorry. "Now, dear," she said, "if you want to ask one more question before you go to sleep, ask it now and I will try to answer." Robert thought for a moment, then said: "Mother, how far can a cat spit?"—[Success.

SUNSHINE SOCIETY.

Praise for the Blind Babies' Home. Apron Bazaar for Venice Rest Home.

International Sunshine Society—President general, Mrs. Cynthia Westover Alden, New York; State organizer, Mrs. William W. McLeod, Alhambra; headquarters for distribution of articles donated to Sunshine Society with Mrs. H. B. McKinney, No. 288 Budlong ave. Communications upon Sunshine matters should be addressed to the president of the society, Mrs. James Fox, No. 201 La Salle ave., Los Angeles.

Miss Ellen Mecum, one of the commissioners appointed by the State to investigate conditions in institutions for the blind in New Jersey, visited the Blind Babies' Home at Dyker Heights, New York, last month—the home inaugurated by the president-general, Mrs. Alden, and supported by the International Sunshine Society.

Referring to her visit, Miss Mecum said: "I can hardly express my delight over the Blind Babies' Home of the Sunshine Society. The house was so clean and well kept and the children so well cared for that it was a delight to visit there. I never saw brighter, happier babies in any home of luxury than were these poor little afflicted ones. I was particularly pleased with the teachers and caretakers; they were all of such high grade, and so honestly enthusiastic over their work. I would not have missed the visit for a great deal. All honor to the president of the International Sunshine Society, Mrs. Cynthia Westover Alden."

The Alhambra Poppy Branch is now engaged making scrap-books for the hospital. Funny stories and jokes are being used for them and there will be a prize given for the best scrap-book. There are great possibilities in this idea for amusing a shut-in.

Mrs. Hornby had this branch out at her home in Burbank for a week's visit. Mountain climbing and cañon picnics were the form of entertainment and the members heartily enjoyed it all.

Mrs. White, president of the Venice branch, and Mrs. Sprague, the first vice-president, were in Los Angeles this week. They presented a proposition to the Los Angeles branch to help support a home at Venice for widows and children.

These busy workers are getting ready for their "Spring Bazaar," which is to be held May 15.

Mr. Westover of Venice, Mrs. Alden's father, has been appointed as the delegate to the National Sunshine Convention, to be held at New Haven, Ct., May 19, 20 and 21, to represent the Venice branch. He will also carry the reports of the State organizer, Mrs. W. W. McLeod, and that of the Los Angeles branch.

The Los Angeles branch held its regular board meeting Wednesday. A great deal of the good work accomplished was reported by the chairmen of the different committees. The visiting chairman, Mrs. Hillebrand, gave an unusually fine report. During the week she and her committee carried flowers and magazines to every patient in the County Hospital.

It was decided that only short reports would be given at the next meeting in order to allow ample time for the election of officers, which will be the feature of the meeting. It is hoped a large number of members will be in attendance at this meeting for no proxy will be allowed. It is announced that any one whose name has been on the books two months prior to the election will be qualified to vote.

Mrs. Herbert Stone, chairman of the Apron Committee, asked that the members bring donated aprons to her at the next meeting.

For a New Member.

If "M. E. G.," the young girl whose letter appeared a couple of weeks ago in this department, who said she was lonely and wished to become acquainted with the Each and All girls, will send her address to the chairman of the Cheer Chapter, No. 754 Hemlock street, Los Angeles, she will learn of many girls who will be delighted to have her join them in their work and play.

Benefit Performance.

The pupils of the Boston School of Expression have enlisted the kindly offices of members of the Each and All Society in preparing and presenting to the public a benefit entertainment for their instructress, Mrs. S. Etta Young, who is now in failing health. Mrs. Young was ever ready and willing in giving of her time and talent for charitable purposes, when she was in vigorous health; no appeal for her aid was ever made in vain, and now that the hand of sickness has been laid upon her, her pupils and members of Each and All Society will endeavor to repay her, though it be only in a small measure, for her many unselfish and loving acts of kindness.

The benefit entertainment will take place Monday evening, April 25, at Roosevelt Hall, Walker Theater building, No. 730 South Grand avenue. The performance will begin at 8 o'clock.

The programme, as given, announces "A Hunter's Song," by Elizabeth Holyoke Wilson; reading, "A Sisterly Scheme," by Miss Nellie Strawser; a recitation in concert, "The Old Clock on the Stairs," by Ruth Irvin, Lorena Smoot, Helen Farris, Emma Carroll, Gertrude Gilmore, Ninie Hallock and Dorothy Garriot; recitation, "Captain of the Nine," A. MOTHER COYOTE'S STORY.

he Tells Her Visitor of Coyote's Clever Plan to Aid Mankind. How Death Came.

BY MARGARET ADELAIDE WILSON.

You must know that in those days, said Mother Coyote, people lived forver. After the new people came hose that were formed of willow wands and tules, a thousand years went by very peacefully. The only rouble was that the Old Man in the Chair of Stars had not told how to keep the people from growing old. Gradually they became weak and feeble, and had hard work climbing the trees for the acorns that were their food. Man, the first man, did not grow old, having been in the world from the beginning; but the change that was coming over his companions made him very sad. There was no more swimming about in the river, no more laughing as before. And soon he had to gather acorns for all, for he was the only one who could climb the great oak trees.

He did not know what to do about it. He wished that he had Coyote to talk to, for Coyote had always known what to do. But Coyote had gone away to the east, to a cave in the hills, and came no more to the tepees. Sometimes Man would wake in the night and think he saw Coyote in the shadow outside the fire, but when he stirred or called Coyote did not come, and Man would say to himself, "I have dreamed."

He thought much about the trouble of his people, and finally decided to go to the Old Man in the Chair of Stars. So one evening he ran to the black oak tree that props the sky in the south, and, climbing it, went through the blue curtain of the sky, woven by the Turquoise Woman and the Shell Woman long ago. He told Him Who Sits in the Chair of Stars how the people were growing old and losing their pleasure in life; how there was no more swimming in the river by day, no dancing and laughing around the fire at night.

"I am lonely," he said, "more lonely than when I was the only person on earth, and sat in the evening watching the river run by. For then, though I missed something, I did not know how sweet it was to hear laughing and talking, to share the acorn paste with another around the fire. Now, the people do not care even to eat any more, and everything is duller than before. I have not even Coyote to talk with now."

The Old Man swept his cold hand down his long, white beard, so that it quivered and shook in the sky, and the people down below lifted their eyes dully and said: "The stars are falling tonight;" and he thought and thought. When he spoke it was like the rolling of distant thunder.

"Go down," he said, "and rest tonight. When day breaks go quickly to the west, where the stream runs under the edge of the sky. It is a steep climb up, too steep for feeble feet. Take of the stones you will find there and build a road, an easy road, one stone a little higher than another, so that they can ascend a little at a time.

"When you have come to the stream that flows under the edge of the sky, to the spring that is its head. There you will find a great oak, growing with broad-spreading branches, one that never drops its leaves, but its acorns fall softly to the ground all night long.

"When you have built the road so far it will be enough. Go back then to the world, to the men and women who have grown old, and lead them to the road. Take them slowly at first, so that they will not say, 'It is too hard, we must give it up.' When they have climbed all the stone steps and reached the spring above the sky, then they must drink of the spring and eat of the acorns that fall softly from the tree. And in the morning they will be young again, and will wish to laugh and dance and sing."

"And will they never grow old any more?" asked Man.

The Old Man in the Chair of Stars was silent awhile.

"Oh, yes, they will grow old," he said at last, "but when they can climb the road, drink of the spring, rest there that night, and in the morning come down young. So will it be forever."

Man thanked the Old Man Who Sits in the Chair of Stars and climbed quickly down through the blue curtain of the sky. That night he could not sleep for joy at the thought of having the people young again, and even before dawn he was up and running to the west to make his road.

Now Coyote still loved Man in spite of his having sent him away. And he had followed him softly to the foot of the black oak tree, and had heard his talk with Him Who Sits in the Chair of Stars. It made him angry.

"Why," he said to himself, "should my brother toil to make these people young again? Building the road will be a heavy work for him. Much better to let them grow older and older; perhaps when they are too old to eat any more they will dry up and become willow sticks and tules again, as when they were cut from the river. Then Man will remember his brother Metsi, and we shall be friends as before."

The thought pleased him, for he had been very lonely without Man. Because of the shortest bow and arrow he must be the servant of the other animals, running at their call and finding food for them, yet all the time wiser than they, knowing things that were and things that had not yet been. Now, perhaps, he would once more have Man to talk to as before.

He watched all night, and when morning came and he saw Man running toward the west he followed him at a distance, thinking all the time what he could say to keep him from building the road.

All morning Man built, laying one stone a little higher than another, like steps. And all morning Coyote sat under a manzanita tree and watched him, thinking what he should say. Finally, when the road reached up to where the stream runs through the blue curtain of the sky, he delayed no longer, but came out where Man could see him.

"It is I," he called, "your brother Metsi, who has come this great way to see what you are doing. Come, rest awhile in the shade of the manzanita and tell me why you are building this great road. It may be I can tell you something that will help you."

But, though Man was glad in his heart to see his friend Metsi, he would not stop working.

"I cannot stop, little brother," said he, "for I am building this road to a spring above the sky. The old Man in the Chair of Stars told me how to build it so that the people who have grown old and feeble may climb up to a spring that is at the head of this stream. There is an oak tree over the spring with spreading branches. When the men and women get there they will drink of that spring and eat of the acorns that fall softly from the trees. All night they will rest there, and in the morning they will come down to earth again, young and strong as before."

"And what then?" asked Coyote.

"Why, then," said Man, "then they can laugh and dance and sing, and swim in the river. And they will eat of the acorn paste that is cooked in the ashes, and will smile and say: 'How good it tastes.'"

"And will they never grow old again?"

"Oh, yes, but each time they will climb this road and eat of the acorns and drink of the spring, and become young again like me."

Coyote was silent a long time, and watched Man pile one stone upon another.

"It does not seem good to me, this thing that the Old Man Who Sits in the Chair of Stars has told you," he said at last. "Come, sit here under the shade of the manzanita and let us talk. I will show you something better than this."

"Then say quickly," said Man, as he came and sat down beside him, "for I must finish my road before evening."

"You say," said Coyote, "that the people will come down young again after they have eaten of the acorns and drunk of the spring. Yes, but they will be the same people, and they will grow old again the same as before. They will have to go up the road again, each old man alone and each old woman alone, and when they come down it will be the same thing over again. They will always grow young by drinking of the spring, so there will be nothing new to be glad about. There will be no fun in the world, nothing to do but to grow old, go up the road, and come down again young.

"Something tells me that there is a better way than this. When a man grows old, let him die and be put in the ground. And let the young men marry the young women and take care of them. Then the young man can climb the trees and gather acorns and bring them to his wife to cook. That way the work will be divided and the people will not be lonely any more, for they will always have each other. And there will be little children who will laugh and play and make you all glad. And they will grow up, so that there will always be people to take the place of the old ones who die and are put in the ground. This way every one will be glad, for there will be change, more to do than just to grow old, climb up the road and come down young again. The world will be a much happier place then."

When Coyote stopped speaking Man looked at his road, saying nothing.

"Well, brother," said Coyote, "say what you think. Does it not seem good to you?"

"Yes, it sounds very well," said Man, slowly. "But, tell me, Metsi. You say all must die. Then if Death comes into the world—we thought it an ugly word, you remember—he will take you and me, he will take Bear, he will take all of us. You want all living things to die hereafter and be gone from here; how will you like it when he takes you down under the ground, where you cannot see the sun any more, or hunt for manzanita berries on the hills? I do not think you will like that. However, it seems the only way to do now you have said it, so I will go and pull down my road."

He got up and walked toward the stones. "Oh, no brother, come back," cried Coyote. "We have not talked enough. Do not pull down the road. Leave it for you and me. If Death comes into the world we shall need it. Leave it for us."

"That cannot be," said Man, and his voice was very sad. "I feel that you are right. We shall always be lonely this way. The way you said sounds better." With that he gave a great pull to the stones, and the road came tumbling down about him. Then he walked away to the east, to his tepee, and came no more to build the road.

A Charming and Devoted Pair

TEARS AND SMILES.

How They Were Brought Out by a Crowd of Boys—A Kindly One's Influence.

An overgrown boy sat on the steps of a store near one of the theaters; about him were gathered a number of street gamins. Their noisy jeers attracted attention and made one look a second time at the boy on the steps. He was busily sewing a piece of white cloth.

"Oh, does you mother know you're out?" tauntingly asked one of the boys, and the rest of the clan laughed in glee at this wit.

"Skiddoo," cried another, running up to the boy and snatching at the cloth.

"Take it away from him and see the cry baby," said another and immediately the white cloth was pulled away from the boy.

"Why do you tease this little fellow?" asked an onlooker.

Then the noisy clan ran out into the middle of the street and the poor, foolish boy began to cry aloud, for one of the boys had pocketed the cloth.

But there was a rescuer on the scene, and so a chase was given the boys. When at last they were overtaken, the boys were gently asked: "Boys, do you know that poor fellow is crying because you took away his sewing? Don't you think it's unkind to tease him?"

"Oh, he's foolish," they cried all together.

"Because he is," came the reply, "is the reason why you should treat him kindly. If you cannot play with him and make him happy, you have no right to make his life miserable. Now which one of you has the sewing?"

"Ah, idiots don't know nothin', they can't be miserable," spoke up one of the boys.

"Do you cry if you are unhappy?" spoke the Kindly One. "You say he is foolish, yet he was busy and happy before you began to tease him. Even a foolish boy can be happy, and each of you boys might do just some one little thing to add to his happiness if you only would."

The riotous clan, once bent on mischief and fun at any one's cost, were now a crestfallen lot. One of them asked rather timidly: "How could we?" as though that thought never could possibly have entered his head.

"Well, first of all," began the Kindly One, you should stop worrying him and calling him names; then you could speak kindly to him, calling him his own name instead of the foolish boy, and then each of you might share with him a little treat or a toy, or give him a picture book. Just try any of these things and see how happy you will make him, simply by being his friend."

Each face became very sober-looking during this conference, then finally a bright-faced, big-hearted lad blurted out:

"I'll bring him my scrap album tomorrow; I'm tired of it anyhow," he added as an afterthought. It wouldn't do to have the other fellows think him "soft."

Then the boy who had hidden the sewing under his coat drew it out and handed it to the Kindly One, saying, "I was going to give it back, anyway."

"Of course you were," spoke up the Kindly One, and I know you will never try to have fun again at the expense of another. Now we will all go back to the boy on the steps and give him his property."

Together they went, and when the much-begrimed piece of sewing was handed to its owner, he smiled happily as he brushed a big tear away.

Fun from the Tots.

One of the dearest little boys in the world was being taught by his mother to recite his prayers; the little lesson was preceded by a talk in which the gentle teacher sought to impress upon the young mind an idea of God, telling that He was all powerful and the Creator of all things. The little chap seemed impressed and, after a short pause, he looked up at his mother and inquired: "He don't wear corduroy pants, does He?" It is added in explanation that this little boy had a pair of corduroy knickerbockers, which he disliked very much, but which he was obliged to wear for every-day use.

Little Robert received a wagon on his birthday morning and within an hour he had broken a wheel. After trying in vain to repair the damage, he called in his father, who soon mended it. "Papa," he said, "you are smarter than you look."

"He Laughs Best——" Tommy came out of a room in which his father was tacking down carpet. He was crying lustily. "Why, Tommy, what's the matter?" asked his mother. "P-p-p-papa hit his finger with the hammer," sobbed Tommy. "Well, you needn't cry at a thing

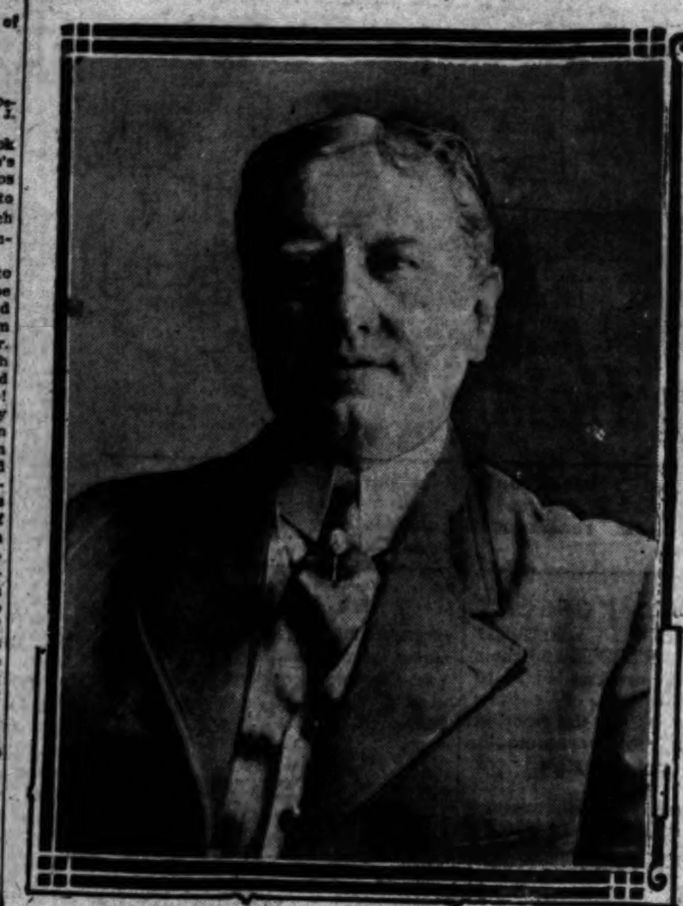
The fictional presentation and development of this maternal heart of sexual desire in Kate Talworth are psychologically strong and interesting as well as novel.



O. Henry, a collection of whose stories has recently been issued under the caption, "Strictly Business."

In Horton Payne, Mrs. Dejeans has not been so careful. A woman's idea of a noble man is seldom conservative and impersonal. Payne does not at all times act as he would have acted had the author not had her own private opinions as to how he ought to act. When, with the most honorable and (may I?) pure motives, he puts his arm round the lady he has loved for fifteen years, I really see no reason why he should apologize and pass himself the lie, and fear that his love will be thought to contain no reverence. Nor do I see any valid excuse for Kate to retreat from his chaste embrace and become bitter and flash with white scorn. The book has too much of this taut, ultra-moral atmosphere for my loose, immoral nature. As Payne explained, however, with twitching muscles, he was only human. In view of Mrs. Dejeans's mental attitude the remark was necessary. But the humanity of people should convince by its presence. Confessions on the subject under normal conditions are gratuitous.

Paquita, as I have said, fascinates Mrs. Dejeans. She is not the kind of a child-woman who would wring any great affection from one of her own sex. Paquita is a very feminine, man's woman, primitive, emotional, unreliable and without scruples. But in spite of Mrs. Dejeans's instinctive aloofness from this type, she has given us in this impulsive child probably the most vivid personality in the book.

As to Mrs. Dejeans's style, my conscientious nature forces me to say that it contains much of the fussiness of the author's sex. It never crackles, is never sententious; although the texture here is more even than in "The Winning Chance." Adjectives and adverbs abound, and there is a tendency to use the leaning-tower-of-Pisa sentences. And there is some redundancy. On page 160, Paquita "stepped lightly in the bedroom slippers she wore." Even those with the most capricious imaginations, I opine, would not have pictured Paquita stepping lightly in the bedroom slippers she didn't wear.

But in all these things I am merely indulging myself unwarrantedly. If my remarks have seemed in any wise to disparage the book, they have been incorrectly stated. With my right hand on my heart, I do most solemnly vow that "The Heart of Desire" is a very good book.

PLAY—NOVEL.

THE FORTUNE HUNTER. A novelization of Winchell Smith's drama. By Louis Joseph Vance. Dodd, Mead & Co., New York. (Price $1.50.)

OF SPRING novels there is no end. They crop up in a thousand places, only to live out their meager little day and take their silent rest with yesterday's buttercup. Their covers are always indecently giddy, that they may cry the more loudly and luringly from the windows of the booksellers. But their insides are as colorless as a mountain brook. A continuous line of express wagons passes my sanctum, dropping off huge bundles of these department-store time-killers. I can read about forty of them an hour, but even at this rate I am utterly unable to keep up with the influx.

Out of the several hundred which I read today I remember but a few. There was one utterly atrocious book called "The Fortune Hunter." This novelization of Mr. Smith's third-rate play stood out distinctly because, incredible as it may seem, it managed to be a little worse than its fellows. The tale it tells is of one Nathaniel Duncan, who, deeming himself a business failure, hies to a village and makes passionate love to an heiress that he may wallow in opulence without the physical exertion necessary for its honest acquisition. But the young gent has a troublesome conscience, and, ere he has led the heiress to the hymeneal altar, he gets interested in business and falls in love with a poor but honest lady.

VERY TRIALSOME.

TRIAL BY MARRIAGE. By W. S. Jackson. John Lane Company, New York. (Price $1.50.)

AN excellent example of the sedative form of polite fiction is to be found in "Trial by Marriage," by W. S. Jackson, who is evidently an Englishman with sideburns and no sense of humor. I do not know just how to go about criticising a book of this sort. It is an unbelievable and lugubrious tale, guaranteed to produce a state of innocuous coma for two hours.

The hero, early in life, in an off moment, inadvertently allows a questionable lady to make him her husband. On discovering, contrary to her belief, that her husband is impecunious and likely to remain in this state indefinitely, she embarks for America. Then we have the Enoch Arden episode turned wrong-side out. Only in the present case, when the designing female returns to find her husband married to his cousin and with considerable wealth, she proceeds to extort hush-money from him. But our much-married hero prefers solitary flight to blackmail, and he increases the population of South America by one. Again we are presented with the Enoch Arden episode (this time in embryo,) the husband returning from South America just in time to save his wife from having two husbands.

Truly a wonderful tale—an extraordinary masterpiece! One of the rarest literary birds that ever flew into my office.

O YOU HENRY!

STRICTLY BUSINESS. By O. Henry. Doubleday, Page & Co., New York. (Price $1.20.)

BY way of change, let us fall upon "Strictly Business," by that rapscallion of the short story, O. Henry. This tough gentleman is the high priest of fictional incredibility. Think up the most impossible subject or the most startling situation or the most impossible character in the world, and you will find them all in the first collection of O. Henry's short stories you may happen to run across. His wit at all times is the kind that delights the habitués of the music-hall, and his mouthy slang is wholly in keeping with his wit. O. Henry though is quite buoyant and unserious and coarse and healthy and dontgiveadam. If he can't divert you, you are undivertable. If his present book fails to amuse you, you are a dead one. And if he doesn't rub you unpleasantly the wrong way at least once in every four pages, you are an unsensitive pachyderm. All the characters in his present book talk the same Ohenryese with gusto. There is no differentiation; and still his people always make me chuckle.

O. Henry is either the best or the bummest short-story writer in the world; I haven't quite decided which.

M. M. AND M. M.

THE MASTER SPIRIT. By John C. Kisber. Cochrane Publishing Company, New York. (Price $1.50.)

IN "The Master Spirit" we have a novel as weird as it is unreadable. Maximillian and Marcellus Montgomery are born on the same day, of the same mother, thereby being twins. When they are 21, their father presents each of them with a plantation and a retinue of slaves. Marcellus is engaged to the daughter of a Southern politician, but the engagement does not deter him from working his wiles on the lady friend of Maximillian and marrying her. Maximillian, heartbroken and forlorn, takes to war, and later goes West. In the meantime Marcellus dies and his wife moves to Texas.

The climax of the story is simply marvelous. If you have a weak constitution, or have any inclination toward hysteria, I would advise you not to read this emotion-racking denouement, for it has about it many of the characteristics of the Messina earthquake.

Maximillian runs across his old sweetheart in Texas and marries her! Now what do you think of that!

PLEASING PHANTASY.

LITTLE BROTHER O' DREAMS. By Elaine Goodale Eastman. Houghton-Mifflin Company, Boston. (Price $1.25.)

OF an entirely different genre is Elaine Goodale Eastman's delightful phantasy called "Little Brother o' Dreams." The story of this little wood-elf, with his whimsicalities and dreams, growing up into a poet, and retaining the love of the rich man's son who had been the playmate of his childhood, is a harmless, and at times sentimental, device for shoving the hands of a clock around at a slightly accelerated pace.

TWO OF 'EM.

TESTIMONY. By Alice and Claude Askew. John Lane & Co., New York. (Price $1.50.)
AN APPRENTICE OF TRUTH. By Helen Huntington. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York. (Price $1.50.)

"TESTIMONY," the joint work of Alice and Claude Askew, and "An Apprentice of Truth," the lone work of Helen Huntington, a soulful magazine bard, are two more spring books which are both at all times lymphatic and ladylike. I am unable at this moment to recall definitely what either of the books is about, but in the one an overdrawn mother-in-law holds the center of the stage, and the social life of New York is drawn on copiously to further Mrs. Huntington's literary ends.

SORROWS GALORE.

TESS OF THE STORM COUNTRY. By Grace Miller White. W. J. Watt & Co., New York. (Price $1.50.)

FOR those who are suffering from an over-exuberance of spring spirits, I would recommend "Tess of the Storm Country" as an antidote. This book falls in the category of "painful" fiction.

In the first place the book is excruciatingly moral, the heroine being made to suffer all the torments of the damned wholly out of the spirit of self-sacrifice. This trait in women is highly commendable and quite necessary in the cosmic order of things. But a persistent and dogmatic treatment of the theme in fictional form makes for gloomy and sighful reading.

Tess and Teola are girl friends, the one the daughter of an illiterate squatter, the other the cultured and pampered offspring of a fashionable minister of the gospel. Having presented us to these two young ladies, the author gets very busy with her tragics. Teola falls in love with a student and commits the Great Indiscretion. Tess stands by her in her shame and takes to herself full credit for Teola's child, much to the annoyance of the minister's son who is in love with her. As though this weren't enough for Tess to bear, the author at this moment puts Tess's father in jail for murder.

Now, this would surely seem sufficient. But no. Miss White arranges for the child to die. Tess takes it to the church to be baptized, but the minister, who is really the child's grandfather, refuses baptism.

The book ends with a kind of lugubrious crash, with everyone perfectly miserable.

A HAND-ME-DOWN THRILLER.

THE RED HOUSE IN ROWAN STREET. By Roman Doubleday. Little, Brown & Co., Boston. (Price $1.50.)

IN "The Red House in Rowan Street" we have the mystery yarn at its worst. Roman Doubleday, if my memory is not capricious, is responsible for other similar books. And while I do not remember one of them, I feel quite safe in saying that this is quite the poorest of them all. I read the book thoroughly last night while winding my watch, and am convinced that Anna Katherine Green has never done anything so frankly atrocious.

In the first place, there is not even enough of the conventional stock materials to fill out legitimately the 300-odd pages of the book. This difficulty, however, is overcome by interpolated hiatuses. Even what little matter there is to the story is neither well conceived nor skilfully handled. And without skillful craftsmanship, a mystery yarn—words fail me.

The hero is a gentleman detective, and he both falls in love with the fair daughter, and gets shot at through the window. He solves the mystery, however, and clears the good name of father and son. Here the book comes to a close. For which—glory be.

BOOK GOSSIP.

The announcement for publication this spring of Robert Herrick's novel, "A Life for a Life" has aroused considerable curiosity as to its nature. At present all that is known about it is that it is a story of modern American life, in which the political as well as the social conditions of today figure.

Moffat, Yard & Co. announce for immediate publication a new book by Prof. Hugo Munsterberg of Harvard, to be entitled "American Problems From the Point of View of a Psychologist." It involves a brilliant discussion of a wide variety of American subjects, by one of the keenest minds in the university world today; a discussion the shrewder and more valuable because of the author's foreign birth and education, and of his distinguished attainments as a psychologist. In fact, the psychologist's point of view is apparent everywhere.

He discusses nerves, prohibition, women, vocations, scholarship, books, language, markets and ghosts.

"Just Between Themselves" is the title which Anne Warner has given to her latest and most characteristic book, and a most descriptive title it is. Six people, varying greatly in their tastes and ways, assemble for a house party in a little German town, which Miss Warner disguises under the name of Lichtenberg. Here the lack of American luxuries and the enforced companionship speedily expose the real nature concealed under the veneer of politeness and good breeding.

The first book to be issued under the changed title of the Guide series, published by the Naker & Taylor Company, is Miss Singleton's "Guide to Great Cities—Northwestern Europe." This is an elementary and more narrative Baedecker. The information contained is given in a most attractive and readable form and the text is illustrated by photographs of the great scenes and buildings described.

The discussion by American scientists, whether the canals on Mars are really stupendous engineering works of a superior race or mere fissures in the surface, has called forth a defense of the latter theory from Prof. Svante Arrhenius of the Nobel Institute, author of "Worlds in the Making." In support he produces a map of clefts caused by the earthquakes in Sicily and Calabria, showing a network of straight lines similar in appearance to the Mars canal system. Prof. Arrhenius is also the author of "The Life of the Universe," recently published by the Harpers in this country.

Among the numerous interesting people who appear in the pages of George Cary Eggleston's "Recollections of a Varied Life," may be mentioned, Frank R. Stockton, John Hay, Stedman, Bryant, Parke Godwin, "Mark Twain,' Gosse, Pulitzer, Laffan and Schurz. These recollections of a veteran Confederate soldier and later a New York editor, are full of good anecdotes, are about to be published. The same house expects to issue at the same time Prof. John Erskine's "Leading American Novelists," and Clayton Hamilton's "Theory of the Theater," details of which have already been given.

How Many Women Destroy Their Hair?

(From the London Saturday Review)

One of the best known hairdressers in London—much patronized by royalty—has the following to say: "Frequent washing of the head with soap and water or prepared shampoos makes the hair brittle and causes it to lose its color and split at the ends.

"Any person desiring abundant, lustrous hair should use a dry shampoo frequently. Mix 4 ounces of orris root with 4 ounces of therox. Sprinkle a tablespoonful of this mixture evenly upon the head; then brush the powder thoroughly through the hair.

"Therox and orris root keep the hair light and fluffy and beautifully lustrous—it heightens, but does not change, the natural color of the hair. Therox is the only thing I know that will produce a growth of hair."

Charles Battell Loomis is going to take his Little Maude to England and introduce her to English audiences. This will not be Mr. Loomis's first public appearance in England, for he has already given English people the pleasure which his reading always affords. He expects to remain there throughout the season. "Little Maude and Her Mamma" is one of the comic masterpieces published by Doubleday, Page & Co.

Among the spring publications of Doubleday, Page & Company is Cyrus Townsend Brady's latest volume of "The American Fights and Fighters Series." It is called "South American Fights and Fighters," and is divided into two parts. The first takes up the story of conquest in that continent and Mexico, narrating the deeds and fortunes of the Pizarros, of Pedrarias, of Balboa and Cortez, of Ojeda and Nicuesa, and of the gentle but glorious Las Casas, apparently the only Spaniard friend the Indians had. Part II contains a series of sea pictures of the Pacific, such as the cruise of the Tonquin, and the loss of the Essex whaler. The book contains numerous illustrations including original drawings by several American artists, maps, plans, portraits and reproductions of old prints.

Bouck White, the biographer of Daniel Drew, is a graduate of Union Theological Seminary who is devoting his life to social service. He is now head resident at Trinity House, New York City, and a prominent factor in the work of this institution, which seeks to unite all classes and creeds in the cause of good citizenship and make the Christian church a telling factor for social and civic betterment. Born in 1874 in Middleburg, N. Y., a Dutch village in the Catskills, Mr. White graduated from Harvard in 1896. Before entering Union, he spent some time as a reporter for the Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

"The Book of Daniel Drew" by Mr. Bouck White, published this month by Doubleday, Page & Company, is the first adequate biography of this remarkable up-state cattle drover, who became one of Wall street's shrewdest and most Napoleonic figures. Its fundamental source is a diary found in an old trunk, in Putnam county, New York, where the financier was born, but the book is amplified by many facts from Drew's relatives, from Wall street histories, and other sources. It is told in the first person, in the uncouth, illiterate manner of speech that Drew employed, and forms a unique and fascinating addition to Wall street literature.

LITERARY CHIT-CHAT.

"The Autobiography of a Clown," writes James Lane Allen of Isaac L. Marcossin's new book, "should have many thousands of friends. Every reader of it will be its friend. The subject is one of universal interest, and it is handled with great charm of incident and much mastery of style."

Owen Johnson, whose story, "The Varmint," is appearing in the Saturday Evening Post, is the son of Robert Underwood Johnson, editor of "The Century," and author of an earlier successful book, based, like this, upon school life at Lawrenceville. "The Varmint" will be published as an early fall book by the Baker & Taylor Company.

Holman Day, whose new novel, "The Ramrodders," is announced for early publication by the Harpers, is a novelist, journalist and poet. Mr. Day was born in Vassalboro, Me., 1865, graduated from Colby College, 1887, entered journalism, and through his connection with the Maine and Boston newspapers, became intimately acquainted with every phase of "down East" life. The reputation which he made as a journalist was enhanced by his success as a poet. His books of verse, "Up in Maine" and "Pine-Tree Ballads," obtained a wide popularity. The attention attracted by the originality and humor of his short stories led him to turn from journalism to fiction. His first novel, "Squire Phin," was followed three years ago by "King Spruce," Mr. Day is also known as an after-dinner speaker and lecturer. He has frequently taken an active part in Maine politics, recently managing a campaign. His home is now in Portland, Me.

Dr. Johnson—"Oatmeal, sir? The food of horses in England and of men in Scotland!" Boswell (roused at last) —"and where, sir, will you find such horses—or such men?" This passage has been selected by Ian Hay as a text, so to speak, for his new novel, "The Right Stuff." The hero, a raw young Scotchman of humble birth, becomes secretary, by a piece of good fortune, to a member of Parliament and falls in love with his sister-in-law. She, however, looks on him as "impossible" matrimonially. How he goes about to overcome this opposition is the working out of the author's text, and incidentally furnishes one of the most striking proposal scenes in fiction.

A biographical study of very unusual interest is Ada Earland's "Ruskin and His Circle," which the Putnams will soon publish. Rich in episodes and graphic in its delineation of character, this biography is of value not only because it presents reliable information regarding one of the most distinctive personalities of the nineteenth century, but because it sets forth in brief compass essential facts and engaging bits of information regarding other people of note hardly less interesting: Turner, Hunt, Rossetti, Millais, Carlyle, Norton, Burne-Jones, William Morris, the Brownings, Miss Mitford, Dr. John Brown, Lady Trevelyan, Acland, Whistler, and many others.

A Victim of Leprosy.

"On my travels in Venezuela," said a New York man, "I stayed in a hotel with a young man in whose family there was the taint of leprosy, though he apparently did not have it. One night sitting at dinner he became angry at a waiter and brought his hand down on the table with full force. He instantly realized that he did not feel the blow, and sat looking at his hand, his face whitening with horror. 'Give me your knife, Bob,' he said to his chum. He grabbed the pocketknife in a frenzy and stabbed the side of his hand with vicious cuts from finger tip to wrist. You may not know that leprosy appears in the side of the hand, numbness being a sign. The man did not feel the cuts. He arose from the table, knocking over his chair, rushed out into the courtyard of the hotel, and we heard the quick tang of a revolver shot, telling us how he had conquered the leper's curse by ending his life."—[New York Times.

The Furnace of Gold
A Western Story of Life and Activity

You breathe the very air of the Western country in the period when mines and mining were the principal topics of conversation. You are interested from the very first word of the very first chapter. You are given an insight of the trials and struggles of those who washed the grains of gold from the rough uncultivated soil of Nevada in its earliest days.

You become attached to the sphinxlike character, Bronson Van Buren, who never stops until he has gained the point he has set out to accomplish, whether it be the staking of a claim or the breaking of a fractious horse.

There is action, plenty of it; there is life interest throbbing throughout every chapter of the book, and above all there is a love story that is set in the rugged charm of the unconquered mountains.

VIII.
THE HOUSE DESOLATE.

When they reached Gaunt Royal Henry, white-faced and solemn, met them in the hall.

"Well, Henry?" asked Lady Betty anxiously.

"You are too late," he replied gravely.

Sir Richard walked past him without a word, and for the moment there was an ugly look on his face.

Then he and Lady Betty made their way upstairs into the presence of the dead.

"A sudden seizure," said the doctor. "Her heart has been in a bad way for some time. It was all over half an hour after I arrived."

With these few simple words he withdrew from the room and left the two mourners alone.

Lady Betty came forward to the bedside and kissed the cold white face. Then she knelt softly down and covered her face with her hands and prayed.

Sir Richard stood apart. There were no tears in his eyes, and he was not the sort of man to give way to a violent outburst of grief. But in his own selfish way he had loved his mother, and his sorrow was genuine enough. It was made doubly bitter by the thought that he himself was in some way to blame for her death. He scarcely dared to approach the bed, but stood a few feet away from it, and stared fixedly at the kneeling figure of Lady Betty.

Then he turned and withdrew, softly closing the door behind him. He realized that he was not fit to be in the same room with either the living or the dead.

During the next few days Sir Richard Gaunt lived his life apart from the others. He declined to even speak to his brother, and the few conversations he had with Lady Betty were brief, chiefly connected with the funeral arrangements. He took all his meals alone in the library, and made it clear that he did not wish for the society of any one.

At the funeral itself the two brothers and Lady Betty were the chief mourners, and the whole countryside turned out to do reverence to the family which owned a large but unproductive slice of the county. The demeanor of the three principal figures in the ceremony was correct, and not calculated to call for remark. No one knew that the two brothers were not on speaking terms, and that Lady Betty's sorrow was mingled with a fierce rage against the two men who could bring their quarrels even to the side of their mother's grave.

During the time which elapsed between the death and the funeral, Richard Gaunt had effaced himself, but directly the ceremony was over, and the relations had departed, he lost no time in giving vent to the words which he had withheld from respect to the dead. His interview with Henry was certainly not one which should have passed between any two brothers who had just been united in a common grief.

They were alone in the library on the morning after the funeral. Sir Richard had asked for a few words with his younger brother, and it was quite clear from the outset that they were not to be pleasant ones.

"I should like to have a little chat with you, Henry," he said coldly, as again for some years, and I suppose you are leaving by the midday train."

Henry had not thought of leaving by the midday train but he took the hint.

"Yes, I believe that is the only good train," he replied.

"I shall instruct my solicitor to pay off that mortgage as soon as possible."

"Yes, if you would. One can't afford to lock up £20,000 at 4 per cent. nowadays."

"Very well, that matter is settled. I am obliged to you for the loan. Well, Henry, I hope you are satisfied with your work, though I imagine that you cannot have expected such a complete disaster—such an absolute break-up of everything."

"What do you mean?"

"Oh, you know well enough what I mean," Sir Richard replied savagely. "I have held my tongue till now out of respect for the dead, but now I intend to speak plainly. You are responsible for my mother's death, and you know it. She was ill, and you went to her with some trumped-up scandal about me and Betty. I don't know what poisonous lies you told her; I suppose I never shall know. But I have not the slightest doubt that you killed her, and I hope you are satisfied with your handiwork."

"How dare you!" cried Henry Gaunt, exasperated beyond all control. "How dare you talk to me like this—at such a time!"

"I dare anything. And I talk to you now because it is the last chance I shall get of talking to you. As long as I am alive you'll never set foot in this house again. Is that plain speaking enough for you?"

"It is not only plain, Dick," said Henry, with some dignity, "but it is exceedingly vulgar. I will not prolong this painful and very unseemly interview."

He walked to the door, and, opening it, looked back at his brother, who was still glaring at him like a wild beast.

"Good-bye, Dick," he said smoothly. "One of these days you will see what a fool you are making of yourself."

With this parting shot he closed the door, and Sir Richard Gaunt was left alone.

For a few moments he scowled angrily at the door, then he flung himself into a chair and lit a cigar. One interview was over, but there was another yet to come, and it was possible that, though it might not prove as unpleasant, it would be far more difficult.

After ten minutes' deliberation he rang the bell.

"Please ask Lady Betty if she can spare me a few moments," he said to the servant. "Say that I wish to see her on important business."

The servant departed, and a few minutes afterwards Lady Betty Drake entered the room. She was dressed in black, and her face was very pale. She had scarcely been outside the house since the death of Lady Gwendolen, and the want of fresh air had worked a change in her healthy appearance.

Sir Richard Gaunt rose to his feet as she entered, and threw his cigar into the fire.

"Please sit down, Bet," he said gently; "I want to have a few words with you. I will not keep you more than a minute or two."

She did not answer him, but seated

He stood on the hearthrug facing her, and clasped his hands behind his back.

"Are you leaving here today, Bet?" he asked after an awkward pause.

"Yes, Dick," she replied in a low voice, "by the mid-day train."

"Henry is leaving by that train. He will be able to look after you."

"Henry?" she queried. "He told me he was staying on for a day or two. He said he thought of looking at a gold mine in the neighborhood."

Sir Richard Gaunt laughed.

"How like Henry!" he said cheerfully. "Well, you can take it from me, Bet, that he's not staying on here, and I rather fancy he's going up by the twelve-fifty. But I didn't ask you in here to talk about Henry. I want to make my peace with you, to apologize—I have behaved like a brute the last few days, but you must forgive me. I did not wish to cut myself off from your society, but I had no desire to meet my brother, and I could not very well exclude him from my circle. So I thought it better to efface myself."

"Your brother, Dick—why, surely—at such a time——"

"Oh, yes, you'd think so, wouldn't you? But I and Henry are not on good terms — well, it doesn't matter about that, Bet. I wish you'd stay on here, and use this house as your own. I will go back to town."

"No," she said earnestly. "No, you must not do that, Dick. You must stay here; it has done you so much good."

"Yet I shall leave soon. Do you think that I can live here alone? Not I! London is the place that calls me, Bet, and I cannot resist the call. I may as well leave here at once. You like the place. Why don't you live in it? You can pay me rent if you choose. You have your work here, among the poor, and all that sort of thing. They'll miss you, and you'll be sorry to leave. Why, you've been here since you were 10 years old, Bet."

"Yes, I shall be sorry to leave," she said slowly, "very sorry to leave, Dick."

"Well, it isn't necessary. I don't want to go, and it isn't really necessary. I want to go myself."

"No, you must stay, Dick."

"I shall not stay; why should I? My mother is dead, and I only stayed on here because I——" He paused. He could not frame the lie in appropriate words.

"You must stay for your own sake."

"Nonsense, Bet. Who cares what happens to me? So long as my mother was alive—and that reminds me, I want to thank for for keeping me here against my will. I hope you will try to forget what took place on Aran Cawddy. It was a brutal act of violence, a gross insult to a good and pure woman. I shall always remember it with shame. I want to ask for your forgiveness, Bet, before you leave here. Try and look on it in the best light you can; try and find some excuse for my disgusting conduct. I can find none myself. It is possible we may not meet again and I don't want you to think ill of me all your life."

Lady Betty did not answer. There was no anger on her face, but she seemed to be struggling against an inclination to burst into tears. The man misinterpreted her silence.

"Don't be hard on me, Bet," he exclaimed, after a pause.

"I forgive you," she faltered. "I cannot forget, of course."

"Thank you," he replied simply. He had no particular desire to be forgiven, but it pleased him to assume the pose of a suppliant. And if in the future he wished to marry — well, it might be useful to be on good terms with Lady Betty. For the present he had thrust all thoughts of matrimony out of his mind, and he was glad to think that the woman had declined his offer of marriage, made on the wild impulse of a momentary passion. He did not intend to renew the offer—for the present.

For a few moments there was a pause, and then Lady Betty rose to her feet.

"I must finish my packing," she said calmly. "Is this all you have to say to me?"

"Yes—that is to say, no, if I can persuade you to stay here, and let me leave you in possession of the place."

"I want you to stay here, Dick," she replied firmly. "You have made such a good start. It will be so much easier for you, if you stay here. You must promise me this, Dick, please."

She looked up into his face, and he turned his eyes away from her. He was a little ashamed of himself.

"Perhaps, Bet; but don't worry about me. I am not worth it."

She looked at his hard, evil face, and there was an expression in her eyes that he could not fathom. It was almost too tender for pity, or sorrow, or disappointment. He shrank from it instinctively. It might be something more difficult to deal with than hatred.

"Yes, you are worth it," she said softly. "You have intellect and the power to do good. You must stay here."

She came closer and laid her hand on his arm.

"Not alone," he muttered, "it would be impossible alone."

"I will stay here, too," she whispered.

"You!" he cried with a start. "Why, Bet, it would be — what would people say?"

Her cheeks grew red and she trembled with shame. But she was firm in her purpose. She would save this man at any cost.

"They would say nothing," she continued, "if we were married."

"Married?" he repeated — "married? Why, Bet, you told me——"

"Yes, but I have thought the matter over since then. I will marry you, Dick."

Gaunt was too dumbfounded to form a suitable reply. He was caught in a trap from which he could not escape with honor. He had asked her, in a moment of passion, to be his wife. He could not tell her that he had altered his mind. Yet he knew that he must speak at once. He realized all that the occasion demanded of him.

"It would be wicked," he stammered. "It would be too great a sacrifice. You are saying this out of pity, Bet. You do not love me. You said you didn't love me. I cannot accept such a sacrifice. I am not fit—no, Bet, it is sweet and good of you, but I should be a brute to take advantage of your kindness. For it is only kindness; it is not love."

"Then you did not mean what you said on Aran Cawddy?"

"Yes, yes," he replied hastily, "of course I meant it, but I should never have said it. I cannot accept your sacrifice. You do not know all that has happened in the past."

"I do not want to know. If you will stay here for a year, and lead the life of a good man, I will marry you at the end of the year."

The man looked around him like a hunted animal. He was too great a coward to speak the truth. Was there no way of escape? Could he not still preserve his freedom and some shred of honor? Then he saw that there was only one way of retreat.

"If I marry," he said softly, "I shall marry a woman who loves me."

He looked at her tenderly. He knew that he had chosen a safe and open road.

"I do love you," she replied in a whisper. "Yes, Dick, I do love you, in spite of everything."

For a moment there was a look of fear on his face, but the woman did not see it, for her head was bowed in shame. She had lied, or she thought that she had lied, for she did not know that no woman will sacrifice herself for a man unless she loves him.

Then he made the best of matters, and did the only thing possible. He caught her in his arms, kissed her passionately, and whispered words of love.

IX.
THE FURIES.

Three months passed, and Sir Richard Gaunt was still at Gaunt Royal.

His engagement to Lady Betty Drake had not yet been announced to the world. At her own suggestion it was not to be published till he had served six months of what he called his "imprisonment," and he was only too glad to fall in with the suggestion.

It is characteristic of men like Sir Richard that, however callous and shameless they may be in their dealings with women in a lower station, they draw the line at any act of open treachery toward a woman of their own class. This kind of honor belongs rather to a social than a moral code; but whatever the motive from which it springs, it is very real and binding.

Every hour that Sir Richard passed in his Welsh home was a period of unmitigated dullness. Days and nights were equally dreary and uninteresting.

But, in spite of his unquenchable dislike of country life, he endeavored to keep his word to Lady Betty. When they parted on the morning of their betrothal, she had asked him to stay at Gaunt Royal till he had served his year of probation. In the excitement of the moment, and the hot passion which her beauty and love had stirred in his heart, he had promised to do this. Other men lived in the country, and could not be persuaded to leave it. He thought it just possible that he might get used to the life, and become a sporting squire.

He was soon undeceived. There was but little game to shoot, and his efforts with the gun were ludicrously unsuccessful. As a boy he had promised to become a good shot, but years of excess had affected his nerve and eyesight, and he made himself as ridiculous as any Cockney sportsman out for a holiday. He could not face ridicule, and one day, after missing an easy shot with both barrels, he flung his gun over the edge of the cliff into the sea.

He was an equal failure on horseback. He did not care for jogging along the roads, and his first day with the hounds showed him that another attempt might cost him his life. The steep hills, strewn with stones, the precipices which often checked a man in the full swing of a sharp run, were not suitable country for any one who had lost his nerve.

He then bought a motorcar, but here again he paid the penalty of long years of vice. That nerve which is required in almost every form of outdoor sport was again wanting. The swift turn of a corner, the long sweep down an incline, sickened him. He could have gone slowly, but that touched the other extreme, and was mere weariness. For a man in his frame of mind and body there was no mean. His brain wanted excitement, but his body was not equal to the strain of bearing it.

And so, in turn, all physical amusements failed. He learned to loathe all the beauties of nature, and the scenery, unsurpassed even in the grandest district of Wales, positively irritated him. He hated the fine display of woodland and mountain range. The dark cliffs and the gray sea, though more acceptable, inasmuch as they did not seem so like a prison wall, were a poor substitute for the noise and glare of a city. The whole scheme of nature jarred on his mind, and by degrees he began to spend much of his time indoors, and was driven back on the resources of his mind.

These, as may be imagined, were not vast. He had no love for books, and was incapable of interesting himself in music or art. He finally, after a struggle to master a heap of novels from Mudie's, relapsed into a phase of absolute idleness, and spent most of the day musing by the fireside, with a pipe in his mouth and a brandy and soda by his side.

And then came the new devil which was to take the place of the one which Lady Betty had striven to exorcise. A vicious mind, deprived of one form of vice, is a field ripe for the acceptance of another. Sir Richard Gaunt had much to think about, and plenty of time for thought. Unfortunately, his thoughts were of that nature which require solace and sometimes demand oblivion. Both the solace and oblivion were to be found in alcohol, and he saw that it was plainly destined to be a true friend through all the dreary months to come.

Sir Richard had for several years drank more than was good for him, but he had never done so with any more definite object in view than that of reviving his wasted physical energies. Now, however, he began to drink steadily from morning to night. The effect of this was not gaiety nor even cheerfulness, but in the early parts of the day he experienced a certain contempt for every form of annoyance, and later on he relapsed into a dull stupor, in which the brain was practically asleep.

It was only in the early mornings that he was able to consider things clearly, and he gradually began to dread these brief glimpses of the realities of life. He did not suffer from the conventional headache or any of the physical discomforts which follow on a night's debauch. His body, it is true, was devoid of all energy, but his mind was active enough, and its activity was so painful to him that he endeavored to subdue it at the earliest opportunity. There was often a brandy and soda on his dressing table.

During these brief periods of lucidity he was troubled by two matters, each of them at first distinct, but likely to become fused together owing to the way in which they alternated in his brain. The first was his marriage with Lady Betty.

He had not definite views on this, except that it must not take place at the end of the year, and that he must find some way of regaining his freedom before the engagement became public property. How this was to be done without losing hold on Lady Betty presented a very pretty problem. He did not wish to get rid of her altogether, as he might want to marry her later on, say, in two years' time, when he would probably be once more in financial difficulties.

He was much hampered by his ignorance of the true state of Lady Betty's feelings toward him. He could not make up his mind whether she really loved him, or whether she was merely sacrificing herself to save him from destruction. If he could have arrived at the truth, he would have known better how to act. If she really loved him, she would wait for him, and give him another chance to reform. But if, on the other hand, she was merely performing an act of charity, she might lose heart at her failure, and have nothing more to do with him. It was the thought of this latter contingency that had helped him to keep his promise, and had strengthened his resolution to remain at Gaunt Royal.

It was quite clear, however, that things could not continue in their present state. He had sense enough to see that he was drinking himself to death, and he realized that so long as he remained without amusement or occupation of any kind, so long would he have to drink in mere self-defense. He had no wish to die in such a thoroughly unsatisfactory fashion. He did not mind dropping of sheer exhaustion after wild years of passionate excess. But to be punished for what, after all, supplied him with only a negative form of pleasure, was intolerable. It was clear that he must leave Gaunt Royal, and break his promise, but it was not yet clear how he could do it and still retain a hold on Lady Betty Drake.

The other matter which occupied his thoughts were less practical, and at first little more than a [illegible] his own brain, but by [illegible] sumed the proportions [illegible] substantial factor in all [illegible] the future. It was the [illegible] had sworn to [illegible]

At first he had dismissed [illegible] subject from his mind, [illegible] feelings had been those of [illegible] satisfaction. The very [illegible] oath had seemed to [illegible] fulfilment of it impossible.

And then had come the [illegible] mination, sent to him [illegible] of his dead mother. He [illegible] in a flash of lightning, [illegible] of his own dark sin, and [illegible] ized that it was yet [illegible] the oath, and that the [illegible] it was more apparent than [illegible] was there to prevent a man [illegible] his own life, and then [illegible] to himself? It was a [illegible] occurrence in every-day [illegible] though it was always done [illegible] any motive, there was no [illegible] it should not be done with [illegible] nite motive. It was certainly [illegible] impossibility.

This germ of thought, [illegible] den moment of grief, had [illegible] self in the dreary [illegible] Gaunt Royal. The dull [illegible] phere in which he lived [illegible] for the growth of [illegible] drink-sodden brain was [illegible] to conceive the most [illegible] thought. With nothing to [illegible] mind, he allowed himself [illegible] this unwholy subject, [illegible] ments both for and against [illegible] ing of his oath. And the [illegible] thought about it, the more [illegible] real seemed the necessity [illegible] thing to carry out the [illegible] he had sealed by words [illegible] had ever come from the [illegible]

Again and again he [illegible] Crawshay's death, and the [illegible] that last grim scene in the [illegible] pital so stamped itself on his [illegible] he could picture every detail [illegible] and again he recalled his [illegible]

"May the dead rise up and destroy me if I [illegible] oath."

He had fulfilled part [illegible] He had found the man, [illegible] was still alive. It was clear [illegible] lution would only come [illegible] death.

More than once he [illegible] were not already [illegible] punishment he had called [illegible] his own head. Was he [illegible] the torments of a hell [illegible] not his very life itself [illegible] fulfilment of the oath [illegible] it out against his will? [illegible] the case, would it not be [illegible] the business thoroughly, [illegible] self body and soul, [illegible] purpose? Perhaps by [illegible] would make his peace [illegible]

So his thoughts [illegible] tried to grapple with [illegible] was almost beyond the [illegible] clear-headed philosopher, [illegible] ered, now feebly, now [illegible] tumultuous rush, [illegible] but they always [illegible] certain place, and that was [illegible] of Fear.

Sir Richard Gaunt was [illegible] therein laid the terror [illegible] thing. He did not [illegible] feared—nothing human, [illegible] nite, not even the God [illegible] defied and blasphemed [illegible]

One morning, four [illegible] mother's death, he [illegible] self with a hand that [illegible] steady for a man who [illegible] the night before. When [illegible] completed the task [illegible] the razor laid [illegible] his throat and a [illegible] eyes.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST PSYCHIC

PROF. STANLEY.

STANLEY STANLEY

STANLEY

STANLEY

247—SOUTH HILL ST.—247.

LOW FEE. LOW FEE. LOW FEE.

$1—TO ALL—$1.

ALWAYS CONSULT THE BEST. IT IS THE CHEAPEST IN THE END. IT IS BETTER TO CONSULT NO PSYCHIC THAN ONE WHO IS NOT ABLE TO HELP YOU.

WITHOUT YOU WRITING YOUR NAME AND THE QUESTIONS YOU WISH TO KNOW, OR EVEN SPEAKING, HE WILL GIVE YOU NAMES, DATES, FACTS AND FIGURES.

He believes that he has passed the experimental stages and finds no one who is not willing to pay this small fee of $1, providing they receive reliable advice. If you have already made a mistake, thrown away your money and lost confidence through dealing with much-advertised and self-styled palmists and clairvoyants, and their cheap methods, start anew, consult Prof. Stanley, he will tell you frankly your condition and what you may expect; if nothing can be done for you he will not take a cent of your money. Has not this honesty on the face of it?

If you want the truth, with reliable advice, you will consult BYRON STANLEY on past, present and future. Also [illegible] what has been told you, which too often is not the case. Before you go into anything of importance—or undertake anything serious—in business or love, or marriage, or before you make any change—you should consult the master mind of psychics.

NO NEED TO TELL HIM.

There is no need to tell Stanley your story. There will be no "quizzing" or asking of questions. His talents enable him to instinctively know your wants and troubles. Without any attempt at mystification, but with unerring sight into the inner nature of things, he reveals that which you most wish to know. His advice on all matters, business, lawsuits, marriage, health, is invaluable. He is exact and correct — not guesswork. He gives names, dates, facts and figures and shows clearly and distinctly the road to success in business as well as in domestic and family affairs.

From Lillian Russell, the Well-known Actress:

I was greatly impressed with PROF. BYRON STANLEY'S reading. His powers are truly marvelous. He develops in one a force that enables them to attract people, to interest them and to please them to their good and to your advantage without the least effort on one's part. His advice and assistance have been of great benefit to me.

From a Prominent Minister:

I desire to bear evidence to the genuineness of PROF. STANLEY'S work. God does give to us an intuition whereby we may guide our lives. That PROF. STANLEY possesses this guiding power to a marvelous degree is evident. The fact that his clients are his warmest and truest friends is alone a tribute to his sincerity and honest methods in dealing with all. He has rendered me immeasurable assistance.

REV. W. C. JESSUP.

From M. Rothschild, the Well-known Financier:

For the past five years PROF. STANLEY'S advice and assistance have favorably influenced my business and financial affairs. I have tested nearly every psychic in this country and find PROF. STANLEY'S advice reliable and far superior to any that I have ever met.

PROF. STANLEY: I wish to give my testimonial for the benefit of those who wish to read it, since I consulted you several weeks ago I have followed your advice and the instructions you gave me as nearly as I possibly could, and I can truly say the result has been marvelous. I shall consider it a privilege to recommend you to any person who will take the trouble to write me. Yours truly,

MAURICE WINKLER,

3829 State st., New York.

To whom it may concern: We take great pleasure in recommending our brother, PROF. STANLEY, as a life reader of good standing, having to our knowledge been fully developed in all the various phases of mental [illegible] ship. We cordially recommend him to any individual or society that may need his advices.

DR. JOHN WATERFIELD,

President Indiana State Association of Spiritualists.

Chesterfield, Ind., September, 1906.

MUNDO,

THE MAN OF MYSTERY,

SPECIAL READING,

50c

506—SOUTH HILL ST.—506.

HOTEL WILLOUGHBY,

OVER PARK BANK.

OPPOSITE CENTRAL PARK.

Strange and startling are the revelations that flow from the cultivated lips of this wonderful psychic. Every word a pearl of wisdom. Born and bred in India, the land of the mystic, this wizard of psychism stands aloof and alone, far in advance of the ordinary readers you meet.

Would you lift the curtains to the mysteries of the vast beyond? If so, consult this great psychic.

DIRECT FROM INDIA.

Does everything go all wrong? If so, there is a cause. Do you wish to continue on the downward trail, or do you desire to change and claim what God intended you to have? If you would rise to your natural sphere and enjoy life as others do, see

THIS WONDER OF PSYCHISM.

He will tell you the cause of your woe and how to overcome it. The peer of all psychics, the only graduate of the Ordoo College of Occultism to ever leave his native land. A herald of the mysteries of the prophets of olden times.

This great psychic has spent all the years of his active life in the study and pursuit of this his naturally endowed science, and stands alone at the head of a vast army of seers and prophets, many of whom he has taught and prepared for the pursuit of this grand calling. See him today, he may change the course of your whole existence. Many a sad heart has been gladdened, many a weary life made bright by the advice and magnetism of this wonderful man; he is unlike any you ever saw; does positively all that others claim to do and demonstrates the power of mind over matter free to every patron; the only man in America possessing this power. Seeing is believing. Try him. Then try others and see if they can do the same. A capable man has confidence in his ability and will not require you to deposit your money before his work is done. Mundo has read for many of America's leading citizens and a few titled foreigners, but he has more respect for his patrons and more consideration for their feelings than to publish their names broadcast for the sake of advertisement. Nor does he claim to have read for dozens of prominent people that common sense will tell you he never saw. If you need advice and want a reading from a real life reader, who does not spend half his time slandering his competitors, see Mundo, the real life reader, who really tells what you desire to know or no charge. A foolish weakling only will pay for a reading that gives no benefit. Stop and think, then see Mundo, the Indian seer, who stands behind what he says with a spot cash guarantee. If you wish, he will tell your name free and show you how it is done. This is the man the San Francisco papers said so much about for predicting the great quake and fire.

Special readings, 50c.

This man of mystery has rightfully gained the title, the wizard seer, the name so often applied to him, and we recommend him to you for dead trance readings and deep psychic work of all kinds, and to be the most thorough, consistent, concise and complete life reader before the public today. 24*

PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE

206½ S. SPRING, NEAR THIRD ST.

EXPERT ASTROLOGER AND PALMIST.

A resident of Los Angeles 4 years. PROF. ALTHOUSE is an experienced practitioner in the science of modern ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The HOROSCOPE calculated from the PLANETS at your birth will show you the powerful influence they have in all affairs of life; shows diseases, deaths, domestic affairs, financial affairs; your talents; your environments; tells about children; when and where to travel; what to seek and what to avoid; when in danger of illness, accidents, death, losses, troubles, etc., etc., also your good periods coming—GIVING DATES OF THESE EVENTS FOR THE FUTURE, in fact, the HOROSCOPE gives accurate AND RELIABLE information on ALL AFFAIRS OF LIFE. No important changes or ventures of ANY kind should be made except at such a time when the planets in YOUR horoscope are favorable. PREDICTIONS for the FUTURE—made by the trained judgment of Prof. Althouse, will stagger the senses. PROF. ALTHOUSE read E. H. Sothern, Nat Goodwin, Maxine Elliott, Gadski, Admiral Schley, David Starr Jordan, ex-Gov. Pardee, ex-Senator Clark, Gen. Chaffee, Edison, Sousa, Modjeska, Lillian Russell, Calve, Sembrich, Admiral Evans, Baron Rothschild, H. E. Huntington, Julia Marlowe, Anna Held, Joaquin Miller, Annie Besant, Florence Roberts, Capt. Hobson [illegible], etc. These are a few of the most NOTED PUBLIC PERSONS—and for this reason only are they here mentioned. All positively read by Prof. Althouse, besides hundreds of the best people of Los Angeles, with whom all his readings are strictly CONFIDENTIAL.

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S skilled work must in no wise be confused with that of other readers; therefore beware of HUMBUG astrologers, palmists, psychics, clairvoyants, etc.

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an expert PALMIST, and WITH EACH PALM READING GIVES ALSO AN ASTROLOGICAL READING.

PROF. ALTHOUSE, in September, 1908, PUBLICLY predicted—by the PLANETS—the election of TAFT and the defeat of BRYAN.

MR. J. A. LARSON writes: "I want to say that your reading was the most satisfactory thing I have ever had in my life. I know a great deal about these sciences, and I consider your work as the most thorough and reliable of any reader in the United States."

MME. BALDWIN writes: "The Horoscope you wrote for me is absolutely CORRECT. My friend, MME. NORDICA, the singer, first showed me her Horoscope and recommended your work to me. Inclosed find check for four more Horoscopes—all friends of mine."

MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK says: "I was greatly surprised to find how many of your warnings were well founded. YOUR READING WAS MOST MARVELOUS."

PERSONAL—

MRS. MASSON,

the noted palmist of London, Eng., may be consulted at 322 S. SPRING ST. (over Owl Drug Store,) by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND-READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines, that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT INFORMATION.

PALMISTRY, HONESTLY PRACTICED, WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions, and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry. WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED. (Daily and evenings; Sundays, 9 to 5.) x*

LIVE STOCK FOR SALE— Poultry, Birds, Dogs, Cats, Etc.

FOR SALE — REMOVAL SALE; THIS IS our last week at the old stand.

115 W. 7TH ST.

And we have made up a bargain counter for this last week that has real bargains on it; all other goods at our regular low prices, but we shall make these discounts from our regular prices for everything on the bargain counter.

On Monday, 10 per cent.
On Tuesday, 20 per cent.
On Wednesday, 30 per cent.
On Thursday, 40 per cent.
On Friday, 50 per cent.

On Saturday, no discount, even if there are any left, for we shall be too busy getting ready to move, to bother with the bargain counter, though we will, of course, give good attention to all our customers wishing to make regular purchases, and all goods will be delivered as usual.

Some of these bargains are goods that we shall not carry in the new store, because, for instance, the article is made by another concern, and we are now making a similar article ourselves; some are merely shelf-worn packages, while the contents are as good as ever; and some are our regular goods, just the same as will be on the shelves, but we shall discount on those that are on the bargain counter only. These will go quickly, so you had better come in early in the week, for they will not last long. Nor will the two incubators and the lawn mower on the bargain counter; new ones, not second-hand.

The most remarkable method of delivering letters doubtless is that employed by the steamers passing islands of the Tonga group in the Pacific. On account of many reefs landing is extremely dangerous and the few letters to be delivered are attached to large skyrockets, which are fired and reach the shore in safety.—[The Pathfinder.

MEXICO MOURNS.

GAMBOA AND CREEL LEAD.

Many Diplomats After Post Held by Mariscal.

Was Eldest of Diaz's Cabinet of Old Men.

Author of Many of Republic's Basic Laws.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, April 18.—All Mexico is mourning the death of Ignacio Mariscal, Secretary of Foreign Relations, and from the governments of many nations have come expressions of sincere regret, especially from Washington, where successive administrations have known him since he first went there in 1863, as secretary of the Mexican legation.

No intimation has been given from an authoritative source as to Mariscal's successor in the office of Secretary of Foreign Relations. Federico Gamboa, the sub-secretary, upon whom has fallen much of the important work of the department during the past two years, is mentioned for the position. He is an able man of high literary attainments and undoubtedly could fill the position with credit to his government. The only source from which serious objection to him could come is Guatemala. While Minister to that country his activity in behalf of citizens of Mexico and his success in having some of them released from prison after President Estrada Cabrera had asserted that no Mexicans were in prison, put him somewhat in disfavor with the present Guatemalan régime.

CREEL LOOMS PROMINENTLY.

Enrique C. Creel, Governor of the State of Chihuahua, who has served as Ambassador to the United States and discharged other important diplomatic missions, has frequently been mentioned in connection with Cabinet positions, and he may be the next Secretary of Foreign Relations. He is a close friend of Vice-President Corral, and it is believed that the Vice-President will have something to say in the selection, as he, in all probability, will succeed President Diaz.

Joaquin Casasus, formerly Ambassador to the United States, and Francisco L. de la Barra, the present Ambassador at Washington, are also prominently mentioned. Both are considered to be able men, well equipped for the work.

Mariscal was the oldest of President Diaz's Cabinet of old men, being 81. He had served in the Cabinets of three Presidents, Juarez, Gonzales and Diaz, was twice Mexican Minister at Washington and for nearly a year Minister to Great Britain.

DIAZ POLICY ADMIRED.

The policy of President Diaz and his success in keeping in his Cabinet good men through long periods has been the subject of extensive comment. King Humbert of Italy, whose Cabinets changed frequently, found in this fact the most admirable feature of the Mexican governmental system. Secretary Root on his visit to Mexico found himself really a young man when surrounded by the venerable statesmen who conduct the affairs of this government.

As the old members of the government drop off, of course, younger men are called to their places, but the younger men have the advantage of the training of their experienced colleagues.

ONLY THREE ALIVE.

The death of Mariscal leaves alive only three of the signers of the Constitution of 1857. They are Justino Fernandez, Minister of Justice; Felix Romero, president of the Supreme Court, and Benito Gomez Farias.

The present republic of Mexico had its beginning with the constitution of 1857. In this document were incorporated the principles toward which all the revolutions tended. Immediately leading up to it was the Juarez law of 1855, abolishing the special privileges of the clergy and military, by which these classes had been exempt from ordinary tribunals. While this measure was one of the cherished plans of Juarez, to Mariscal, then only 25 years old, belongs the credit of giving it legal form.

Mariscal's entry into public life was in opposition to the tyrannical régime of Santa Ana, and when the revolution of Ayutla, which started in 1854, triumphed in the following year, he became private secretary of Benito Juarez, who had been appointed Minister of Justice. The plan of Ayutla promised a constitutional congress and this pledge was redeemed. Mariscal became an active member of the convention that framed the Constitution, which now forms the fundamental law of the republic.

FORMED SEPARATION LAW.

Comonfort went over to the clericals and overthrew the Constitution for a time, but Juarez and Mariscal remained true to their principles until it was restored in 1860. To Mariscal, under the restored Constitution, fell the difficult task of enforcing its provisions for the separation of church and state. This he did thoroughly, and the laws against mortmain and religious orders were established.

During the French intervention and the reign of Maximilian, when the Juarez government was all but driven from Mexico, Mariscal was at Washington, where the Juarez government was recognized, serving as chancellor of the legation and working to secure the assistance of the United States to drive the French out.

In his long service as Foreign Secretary and in other diplomatic capacities, Mariscal became one of the best-known diplomats of the world. He handled many delicate situations and acquitted himself with ability scarcely exceeded by that of any other statesman of modern times.

While at Washington in 1867, he married Miss Laura Smith of that city, who died eleven years ago.

Mariscal was a scholarly man and had a perfect knowledge of English, French and Latin. In addition to valuable literary works of his own creation, he translated into Spanish many of the poems of Longfellow, Bryant and Poe.

SCORES HEAVILY.

SMITH SHOWS CONSPIRACY.

Geological Director Strong for Ballinger.

Says Pinchot Called Secretary "Yellow Dog."

Tells Inside Story of Pardee's Attack.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, April 23.—An effort was made by the "defense" in the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation today to show that Gifford Pinchot and his assistants had conspired to overthrow Secretary Ballinger because he opposed "Pinchot's way of conserving."

George Otis Smith, director of the Geological Survey, occupied the stand during practically the entire day. His most interesting disclosure related to a conversation he had with Mr. Pinchot last July, in which the latter is said to have characterized Mr. Ballinger as a "yellow dog" and to have threatened to lead a fight against the Secretary, if there was any criticism of former Secretary Garfield at the the Spokane Irrigation Congress. Mr Smith also told of a talk with Associate Forester O. W. Price last September while the latter was acting forester, in which Price is alleged to have said that "we will get him (Ballinger) one way or another."

Following his interview with Mr. Pinchot, Mr. Smith said he went to attend the Spokane congress, where the fight was precipitated over a charge that Mr. Ballinger had allowed the "interests" to grab a large number of valuable water-power sites.

SMITH'S LETTER INTERESTING.

Mr. Smith excited great interest among members of the committee by reading a letter he wrote August 16, 1909, to subordinates in his office here while he was on the way back from the Spokane Congress, describing the fight.

"The whole conservation movement is now linked up with Mr. Pinchot's views on the subject," wrote Mr. Smith, "so that orthodoxy in the cause means agreement with Pinchot. As I look at it, any issue is to be raised that can be against Secretary Ballinger, not because of that issue, but because Ballinger is to be overthrown because he opposes Pinchot's way of conserving.

"Now there was no criticism of Garfield at Spokane, and yet the fight came off as planned. The Congress was organized, the issues were shaped, the orators chosen, the newspapers primed—in short, all guns were loaded. The result was that the power site grab charge was defective, and the Alaskan coal charge went off earlier than planned."

After commenting on the fact that all the speeches made by those from whom trouble had been expected were "in such good taste," Mr. Smith wrote, "that Gov. Pardee had started the trouble by speaking on 'The sins of Ballinger' instead of 'Irrigation Interest of the People,' in which he was announced to speak.

PARDEE'S ATTACK.

"Though he (Pardee) told me he intended 'nothing personal,' he insinuated that Ballinger was either a fool or knave and rather intimated the latter as his favorite hypothesis."

Mr. Smith said this occurred on Wednesday afternoon, and said that when Mr. Ballinger was ready to leave, he asked him to stay behind and refute Pardee's "misstatements" and to stand out in the open against Pinchot and his associates. He added he spoke on Thursday morning, after several efforts had been made to keep him off the platform.

"The Governor and I avoided personalities," continued Mr. Smith, "and contented ourselves with showing up each other's falsehoods."

"The Governor was there to fight Pinchot's fight," he went on. "The big grab shrunk every hour and Pardee's insincerity made a bad impression on many delegates. I played the other line and, while I did not draw many tears, I was successful enough to make them gag me with a motion to adjourn.

"The Alaska story leaked, much to the disgust of Ballinger's enemies. I am afraid that the well meaning conservationists are using the devil's own weapons to fight the interests. Back of it all, try to hide it as they may, is the issue of whether control shall be executed by legislation, and the making of law, or by administration and the construction of law. I have yet to learn that any power sites have been stolen."

"DON'T LIKE YOUR CHIEF."

Mr. Smith swore Mr. Price said to him that "we like you, but we don't like your chief."

Smith said he intimated in reply if he did not like Mr. Ballinger he would resign as director of the geological survey.

"'Well, we know you are in an embarrassing position,'" said the witness, quoting Price, "'but it won't last much longer. If we don't get him one way, we'll get him another.'"

The defense regards this as an important disclosure, indicating that if Pinchot were unsuccessful in bringing about Ballinger's downfall by proving the Glavis charges, he was prepared to attack him from another quarter.

Mr. Smith occupied the stand during the entire morning session with the exception of the first half hour, during which C. C. Heitman, former chief of the mineral division of the Land Office, told how claims were clear-listed.

In order to accelerate the progress of the inquiry the committee decided today to hold sessions on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week.

Director Smith told of a meeting with Pinchot in the latter's office on July 23, 1909, during which the chief forester charged him with "downright disloyalty to his former chief, Mr. Garfield."

He said Mr. Pinchot charged him with giving out newspaper interviews "reflecting on the last administration" on the subject of water power sites and other public land matters.

"Mr. Pinchot accused me of toadying to Mr. Ballinger and said that if I did not change my conduct, it would be fatal to me," said Smith.

STATE'S RIGHTS.

CALIFORNIA DAUGHTERS LEAVE D.A.R. CONGRESS IN A MIFF.

Row Is Over Election of State Regent—Dark Horse Wins—Congress Ratifies Selection of Mrs. Mary F. Stilson and Trickery Is Charged—Friends of Mrs. Caroline Kelley Laird Promise Trouble in the Spring.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Vowing vengeance for what they insist is an injustice to their State delegation, the California Daughters at the D.A.R. Congress today precipitated a row over the election of a State Regent and left for home badly split because of the stand taken by the congress, which refused to recognize the election held in the State some time ago. According to the constitution of the organization, the election of State regents held previous to the congress have no validity, the congress having failed hitherto to legalize the choice of the State.

When the California Daughters recently named Mrs. Caroline Kelley Lard as their Regent they had no doubt that she would be duly elected and great was their surprise when a "dark horse" candidate, Mrs. Mary F. Stilson, was chosen last evening at a meeting held in the California room at Continental Hall.

Today, despite the bitter protests of the Laird adherents, who charged bad faith and trickery, Mrs. Stilson's selection was ratified by the congress.

The vexed question of "State's rights" had been brought to the fore at last. Debaters of the question sprang up like mushrooms. Every Daughter in the hall wanted to add remarks to the debate. The talk grew heated and handkerchiefs pressed to moist eyes played a big part in the proceedings.

AN OLD WOUND.

The fight is the result of long-standing enmity between the Daughters of San Francisco and Los Angeles, and each faction alleged that the other acted unconstitutionally and dishonorably.

Mrs. Anna A. Kinkaid, was confirmed as State Vice-Regent. The propriety of the Daughters taking part in a combination of the Sons and Daughters of 1812, to be held in Boston, was also hotly debated. Mrs. M. Ballinger of the District of Columbia, asserting that such a proceeding would be a violation of precedent.

The house was thrown into confusion once more, but Mrs. Scott, President-General, was heard to declare above the din: "There is not a man, woman or child in America who should wish to argue against paying honor to the memory of Francis Scott Key."

This decided the Daughters to join in the combination.

SLANDER SUIT HALTS.

The suit for slander which the attorney for Miss Agnes Gerald threatened to bring against Mrs. Matthew A. Scott has met with a halt because of the fact, that while many Daughters are coming forward with hearsay evidence, few have actual proof of the alleged slanderous remarks.

Mr. Williamson says, however, that the suit for two months' back pay for Miss Gerald will certainly be brought. Mrs. Scott says she is not bothering about the suit.

"Let them bring all the suits they want to," she said. "I have other things to think of."

The congress left enough business unfinished at its closing session tonight to consume another week.

The Californians left town with the promise that they will make trouble at the congress next spring.

MAGNIFICENT.

SPRINT IN THE DARK MAY WIN PRIZE FOR ENGLISH AVIATOR.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Graham E. White, the young English author, who has studied with Henry Farman, made a magnificent attempt today to win Lord Northcliff's $50,000 prize for an aëroplane flight from London to Manchester, a distance of 186 miles.

He reached a spot outside of Lichfield, a total distance of 113 miles, in two flights, and there was stalled by bad weather. He has until 5:15 o'clock Sunday morning to complete the remaining sixty-eight miles, which must be covered without a break.

In this city Mr. White's flight is regarded as in every way superior to the cross-country flights accomplished in France. He circled over a part of London at the beginning of his journey. After flying a dozen miles over the urban region the more open country was gained by Mr. White, and almost a straight line was kept along the tracks of the London and Northwestern Railway.

He reached Rugby at 7:20 o'clock, having done eighty-three miles in five minutes more than two hours. After a short rest, he was off again at 8:30 o'clock, but descended in a field near Lichfield, 113 miles on the way, at 9:30 o'clock. He complained bitterly of the cold and said he could make little headway against the strong wind. He battled against the north air as long as he could, but finally it was troubling him so badly that his control of the aëroplane was not certain.

Throughout the rest of the day the breeze remained stiff and finally, as evening fell, the flight was abandoned for tonight, the danger of approaching Manchester in the darkness being recognized by Mr. White and his advisers.

It was decided, however, that Mr. White should start at 3 o'clock Sunday morning, which would give him two hours and a quarter to cover the remaining miles, which stand between him and the $50,000.

As this will necessitate his starting in the darkness, it is possible that an express engine will be employed to draw a truck carrying a white screen on which will be shown a searchlight, in order to pilot the aviator on his way. The aëroplane will also carry a pilot light to guide the engineer.

ST. LOUIS AERO CLUB IS NOW INDEPENDENT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Aëro Club of St. Louis, according to its president, Albert Bond Lambert, has declared itself an independent organization, and in no way affiliated with the Aëro Club of America. The aviation meet, which the club will hold in St. Louis in October, will be designed to supplant the international aviation meet that has been mishandled, it is said, by the officers of the Aëro Club of America.

The grounds on which the local club renounce its affiliation are based on the action of the Aëro Club of America, as the New York Aëro Club styles itself. The New York club reorganized several weeks ago, as a result of considerable dissension in its ranks. Since then the club, without consulting any one during the reorganization or after, has undertaken to make agreements with the Wright brothers relative to the terms under which machines may be exhibited, which the Wrights allege infringe on their patents, Lambert said.

Standing committees appointed previous to the reorganization, nor the various clubs, have been consulted in regard to any of the acts of the Aëro Club of America.

There have been no new committees appointed. For this reason the St. Louis club feels no obligation to the parent body.

AVIATOR FINDS SOFT LANDING IN MARSH.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEWBURYPORT (Mass.) April 23.—Forgetting to shut the power off as he started to make a turn, Greeley S. Curtis of New York, while making a flight in the new Herring-Burgess biplane late yesterday, lost control, and plunged to the ground with the big machine from a height of twenty feet.

Th aviator landed in a soft marsh land and was little injured. The forward part of the machine was smashed.

The flight will be resumed after the aëroplane is repaired. Before falling Curtis had flown about 200 yards.

HAMILTON AND CURTISS FLY WELL.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) April 23.—Glenn H. Curtiss and Charles K. Hamilton made successful aëroplane flights here today. Curtiss reached a height of 700 feet, carrying a passenger, and attained an estimated speed of 45 miles an hour. Hamilton ascended 900 feet, and reached an estimated speed of 47 to 50 miles an hour.

WORKING AROUND WORLD.

Amsterdam Newspaper Man in Chicago. Making Round Trip of Earth on Wager.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

CHICAGO, April 23.—Attired in a quaint Dutch dress and wearing cumbersome wooden shoes, Gottfried Rodriguez, an Amsterdam newspaper man, now is in Chicago on a trip around the world on a $12,000 wager, made with a number of Holland friends. Rodriguez left Amsterdam February 1, 1909, with the intention of covering the globe in three and one-half years. He has no luggage and must earn his way. During his first year he covered every European country on foot. Leaving Naples, Italy, last January, he worked his way to New York on the Princess Irene. He then went to Boston. From Chicago he will go to the Pacific Coast by way of Omaha, Denver and Salt Lake. Leaving San Francisco, he will sail for Japan, touring that country, China and Siberia and thence home through Russia.

As Was Expected.

PARIS, April 23.—The twenty-five-round fight here tonight for the world's welterweight championship between Harry Lewis and Willie Lewis, both Americans, resulted in a draw.

RECORD FOR FIG CROP.

Three Trees in San Joaquin County Net Owner Hundred Dollars. Fruit Not Ripe.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STOCKTON, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] That three fig trees near San Joaquin county hold a world's record for profit is the contention of J. P. Watkins. He has just disposed of the crop, though the fruit is still far from ripe. The product is known as Capri figs, which support the blastophaga, the wasp which carries the pollen to fertilize the blossoms of the famous Smyrna figs grown extensively in the Fresno districts. George H. Roeding of Fresno purchased the crop from Mr. Watkins for $100 and then pays him a quarter of a cent apiece for each fig, for picking, to see that the pollen is properly preserved. What is termed the "buggy" figs are shipped to Fresno as fast as they are ready for use and great care is taken to see that they are properly packed. These Capri fig trees were planted in this county some years ago and until recently the owners believed that they were useless, as the fruit never ripened. Other owners will also get large returns from similar trees.

TWO YOUNG PUGS ARE KNOCKED OUT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] There was a double knockout in the semi-final bout at the Brooklyn Beach A. C. in Brooklyn tonight when two boxers, fighting under the names of Young Dutch and Young Betts, landed right swings to the jaw, both landing simultaneously and both boys dropped to the floor.

They were carried to their corners. The double knockout happened in the fourth round.

JOKING JACK.

JOHNSON NOW TALKING LOUD.

DECLARES HE WILL MAKE JEFF REMEMBER THINGS.

Accuses Big White Champ of Making Slighting Remarks About Him and That There Will Be an Atonement—Jim Knocks Off for One Day and Quits All Work.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

OMAHA (Neb.) April 23.—Jack Johnson, at a banquet tendered him last night by negroes, discussed his coming fight with Jeffries. He is quoted today as saying:

"Of my fight with Burns I can truthfully say that I never before entered the ring with a heart so full of malice. Mr. Burns had said many unkind things about me and in the ring that day I remembered them all. Every time I forced him to his corner I would ask him if he remembered when he had made some certain statement and I followed it up with one of my best blows.

"Mr. Jeffries, too, has said many harsh things about me in return for the courtesy that I have always tried to show him.

"But I shall remember them all upon the day of the battle. I shall ask Mr. Jeffries in the ring if he recollects certain of the things he has said, and for each recollection he shall make atonement."

JEFF EASING UP.

DOING TOO MUCH WORK.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

BEN LOMOND, April 23.—With a view to strengthening his arms and shoulders, and overcoming the weakness in his neck, which several times has been the cause of a cramp, Jeffries abandoned his usual training routine today and spent the day rowing on the San Lorenzo River. This is the first day he has missed his run on the road, cutting it out on advice of his trainers.

After Jeff had finished his morning pull on the river, visitors at the camp hoped to see a few rounds of boxing in the gym, but they were disappointed, as the fighter hurried back to the river immediately after lunch.

A letter from Jim Corbett, former heavyweight champion, who is slated to help Jeffries out in his training, reached camp this morning. Corbett wrote that he expected to reach the training quarters on or before May 27. He cautioned Jeff not to work too hard.

A wire from Jack Jeffries, brother of the champion, also arrived, in which Jack announced he would join the camp about May 1.

Among the visitors expected tomorrow is Tex Rickard. Tex wires that he would be at the camp shortly before noon.

Neither Berger nor Jeffries would offer any opinion as to the cause of Rickard's visit, but it is thought that Rickard wishes to remind Berger to be ready with the list of eligibles for the selection of referee, who will be chosen May 4.

Picato Put Out.

PHILADELPHIA, April 23.—Mickey Gannon of Pittsburgh, tonight gained a victory over Frank Picato of Los Angeles, in the fifth round of a scheduled six-round fight at the National Club. Gannon sent Picato flat on his back in the fifth with a left swing to the jaw and the referee stopped the fight.

Travis in Front.

LAKEWOOD (N. J.) April 23.—Walter J. Travis, of Garden City, won the chief cup in the final round of the open golf tournament at the Country Club of Lakewood today, defeating Fred K. Herreshoff of Westbrook, who won the tournament over the same course last fall. Travis made the round in seventy-nine, as against eighty-two for Herreshoff.

Riverside in Front.

RIVERSIDE, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] By a score of 5 to 3, the Riverside High School baseball team defeated Colton in a close game at Evans Athletic Park this afternoon.

BERLIN HEARS OPERA.

Oakland Singer Appears in Production of Nevin's "Poia" at the Royal Operahouse.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

BERLIN, April 23.—"Poia," Arthur Nevin's Indian opera, based on legends of the Blackfeet gathered by Walter McClintock of Pittsburgh, was produced at the Royal Operahouse tonight and was applauded generously by a brilliant audience. Mr. Nevin and Randolph Hartley, the librettist, were called out five times at the end of the second act, and eight times at the end of the opera.

The costumes and scenery were imposing and picturesque. Dr. Carl Muck conducted.

Judging from the talk of the critics, a sharp criticism is likely. Mr. Nevin's orchestra, however, is highly complimented. Mrs. Frances MacLennon (Florence Easton) sang the part of "Natoya." Putnam Griswold, formerly of Oakland, Cal., took the role of the Sun God, and Mr. Kirsch, the part of Poia.

ALL ENGLISH-SPEAKING RACES PROUD OF HIM.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, April 23.—James Bryce, the British Ambassador, paid a tribute to the memory of Mark Twain in an address tonight before the St. George's Society of New York. "He was a man of whom America and indeed all the English-speaking race might well be proud," said Mr. Bryce, "and whose sweet and noble memory those who knew him will ever cherish."

EACH IS HOPEFUL.

BOTH SIDES IN HYDE MURDER TRIAL HAVE SCORED POINTS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

KANSAS CITY, April 23.—The second week of the Hyde murder trial closed here today with both the defense and prosecution predicting ultimate victory.

Only two important witnesses have been examined so far. They are Miss Pearl Keller and Miss Anna Houlihan, who were nurses in the Swope residence when the tragedies were enacted.

Miss Keller, who is considered the State's star witness, told a straight and vigorous story, which greatly pleased the prosecution. Attempts of the defense to break down her narrative were futile.

On the other hand, Miss Houlihan, whose cross-examination has not been completed, has buoyed up the hopes of the defense. Attorney Frank P. Walsh, chief counsel for Dr. Hyde, has, under the direct coaching of Mrs. Hyde, been able to obtain some admissions damaging to the State's case from the witness.

BIG EXPENSE.

Two hundred thousand dollars is the amount it is estimated the county will spend before the trial is completed. Some attorneys in the hearing believe the case will not go to the jury for five or six weeks. Mr. Walsh said tonight he thought the case would be completed within five weeks.

The State has thirty-seven witnesses to call. How many the defense will summon is only known to Mr. Walsh and he will not tell.

Chief interest now lies in the coming testimony of Mrs. Logan O. Swope and her daughter, Mrs. Hyde. Although the State was denied the privilege of going into the private life of Dr. Hyde in its opening statement, it hopes to throw some light on this phase of the case later.

Mrs. Swope is the witness who is depended upon to grill the physician from the witness stand. In refutation of the stories told by Mrs. Swope and Miss Keller, the defense will offer Mrs. Hyde as a witness.

WIDE-OPEN ORDER.

Judge Latshaw's ruling that every phase of the Swope mystery may be developed, in order, if possible, to show motive on the part of Dr. Hyde in connection with the alleged killing of Col. Swope, makes certain that before the trial has ended the public will have heard all there is to tell of the mystery.

ENOUGH EVIDENCE TO CONVICT.

Attorney-General Reports to Congress on Cases of "Red" Agitators, Villareal and Co.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Declaring there is enough evidence to convict the alleged Mexican revolution promoters on the remaining indictments against them when they regain their freedom from the Florence, Ariz., prison, Atty.-Gen. Wickersham today reported to Congress on the history of the men. The men are Antonio I. Villareal, R. Flores Magon and Liberado Rivera, who will finish, August 3, their imprisonment for violation of the neutrality laws.

Mr. Wickersham says they will regain their freedom on that date unless the government decides to try the remaining indictments found against them in Western Texas, charging conspiracy to create a revolution and the procuring of arms and ammunition.

SENATORIAL SNUFF TAKERS.

The Number Is on the Increase and the Antique Snuff Boxes Are Daily Filled.

[Washington Star:] Filled with Copenhagen snuff, the little antique ebony snuff boxes on either side of the United States Senate chamber are liberally patronized by the solons; in fact, it may be stated that snuff sniffing among the Senators is decidedly on the increase.

These little boxes are a survival of the old-time habit of "snuff-taking," which was almost universal in the seventeenth, eighteenth and far into the nineteenth centuries among persons of fashion and public men. During the latter half of the last century, however, the habit ebbed to that point where it was almost out of style, if style it may be called. But the ancient snuff boxes remain and are a part of history. They are as regularly and carefully looked after as in the good old days when what is now the Supreme Court room was the Senate Chamber and when that old patriarch, Doorkeeper Bassett, looked after the refilling of these boxes the first thing in the morning.

Most of the sniffers of snuff in this august body came honestly by the habit. They were taught the manners of old-school southern statesmen of fifty and one hundred years ago, when almost every statesman and gentleman of prominence had his individual snuff box, often a beautiful piece of workmanship, and many of them gem studded and costly. These antique snuff boxes in the Senate chamber make the past live again, and the use of them during the days agone would make interesting reading. In the older diplomacy the snuff box played a prominent role and from present indications this role will be played again. It now takes over $7,000,000 to pay our annual snuff bill, and more than 17,000,000 pounds of this article is used each year in the United States, not all of this immense amount being used by the "poorer whites, and negroes of the South."

Like the cigarette habit, snuff-taking is spreading into every walk of life—the rich and the poor, the white and the colored—and it is not to be wondered at that even the grave and dignified Senators find that a pinch of the creature goes pleasantly. Tallyrand once said that he regarded snuff as indispensable, as he could always make a pause in a conversation and gain time for thought while he offered his snuff box to his caller or his antagonist.

The late Senators Vest of Missouri, Bate of Tennessee, Butler of South Carolina, Ransom of North Carolina, Ben Hill of Georgia and a large number of other Senators from the Southern States used the Senate snuff boxes with frequency. Snuff-taking was a part of the daily proceedings. Of the present Senators there are a number who walk over to the little boxes and take out a pinch, sniffing with apparent delight. The number of snuff sniffers is noticeably on the increase in the body, and even one of the youngest has become almost a daily user.

It may but it is always full value the beauty. They Will Tell Yet.

In some small way we have begun to realize the value of these scenic effects. This is more particularly true of the seacoast than of the mountains. All the way along the ocean shore from San Francisco to National City summer resorts have been laid out, and have attracted a greta deal of attention. The value of property at these resorts is steadily increasing, and will in time to come be worth many times more than the best of it brings now. Last Sunday this real estate department pictured an inn about to be erected at Ventura, a beautiful structure. That part of the coast has been rtaher neglected lately, worthy as it is of just such an improvement as this beautiful inn will give it. We shall turn our attention by and by to the mountains more than at present. These coming summer months will see many people flock to Strawberry Valley, Bear Valley, the heights on Mt. Wilson and up San Antonio and the San Gabriel cañons. But one of these days we shall have right up at the snow line upon Mt. San Antonio, and again on Mt. San Bernardino, hostelries as magnificent and as beautiful as the Raymond at Pasadena or the Mission Inn at Riverside.

Lesser Heights.

Any one who has ever stood on the topmost point of Ganesha Park at Pomona, on Rubidoux Mountain at Riverside, on Smiley Heights at Redlands, or on Raymond Hill at Pasadena, will realize the charm of the scenery presented to view. The landscape, consisting of plain, mountain and seashore, that the eye sweeps over from Raymond Hill, gives that hotel as much attraction to the tourist as any of the comforts or luxuries provided by the skillful hand of man.

Points in the City.

Pacific Heights in San Francisco, because of its combined marine and land views, raised the price of residence property there to about $1200 a front foot. Nearly every available piece of ground there has been already taken up and improved. If Los Angeles city were on a plain as flat as Chicago it would be bereft of much of its charm. Its hills that numerically outclass those of Rome, make the city doubly dear to those who live here. From dozens of points within the city you can see at one sweep of the eye the populous portions of Los Angeles lying at your feet, the rich agricultural plain stretching far away to the south, the magnificent mountains uplifting their heads north and east, and off to the west and southwest the light dancing upon the waves of the ocean. These scenes make Angeleño Heights, the Crown Hill section, the far-western part of the city down to Adams Heights and broad tracts over at Boyle Heights the most lovely sites for residences of any city the world knows.

The Last Case in Point.

These hills, because of the difficulty of streeting, obtaining water and transportation, have too much deterred promoters. One of the most daring schemes yet attempted in this city is the exploitation of Mt. Washington. The daring spirits that undertook the transformation of these rough heights and deep cañons into residence lots were worthy of the success the effort is achieving. The writer of this article has stood upon the highest points around San Marino over the Bay of Naples and upon the Belvedere which crowns the Pincian Hill at Rome. Of course it will be a long time before the coloring thta makes Naples so famous will be a feature of our new city. Nor is there anything along the coast of Southern California to compare with the Bay of Naples excepting the Bay of Santa Barbara. We lack the awe-inspiring presence of Vesuvius and the wonders of resurrected Pompeii. But outside of these features there is nothing about San Marino that compares for scenic beauty with the country that spreads before one from the top of Mt. Washington. Naples has no range of mountains like our mother range anywhere near her borders. The Apennines rise far away in the distance and present, excepting in the depth of winter, few snow-capped peaks. There is nothing like snow-capped San Antonio or magnificent San Bernardino, both solid as the very walls of the earth, and nothing like far-away San Jacinto, that seems to float cloud-like in the air. The view from the Pincian Hill is nearer like that from Mt. Washington. From the Roman coign of vantage the old city stretches right beneath your feet. Beyond it the Campagna rolls its undulating folds for many miles, and in the far distance Soracte lifts his snowy peak into the clouds very much in the way San Jacinto does from our viewpoint. The California plain is in every way richer than the Campagna. The mountains are nearer than the Apennines, and excepting for the antiquities that make Rome so rich, Mt. Washington outclasses the Pincian Hill.

NEW CHURCHES NOTABLE.

Attractive Gothic Edifices to Meet Religious Needs of Growing Neighborhoods.

Architects' perspectives of two handsome church buildings which will be erected during the present year in Los Angeles are reproduced for the first time on this page of The Times. Designed on entirely different lines, both edifices are to be of imposing exterior. Both will meet the growing religious and social needs of rapidly developing neighborhoods.

The larger of the two houses of worship pictured has been designed by Norman F. Marsh for the congregation of the Figueroa Street Baptist Church, of which the Rev. W. T. Richardson, Ph.D., is pastor. Thes tructure will occupy a site at Figueroa street and Forty-ninth Place. It will be of the English type, with dimensions of 80x130 feet, and will represent a cost of about $30,000. The walls will be of either brick or stone, the material to be determined at a coming meeting of the Church Building Committee. The gables will be in heavy timber effect.

The church will be notable for its convenient interior arrangement. The auditorium will be fifty feet square and have a seating capacity of 350. This will be doubled by the opening of partitions into the Sunday-school room. The latter department will contain ten class rooms on the first floor, and five in the gallery. The foyer will be arranged to open into all the principal rooms. The baptistry will be large and will be connected with the spacious robing rooms. Other rooms provided for are organ and choir rooms, Baraca rooms, ladies' room and a large study suite for the pastor. The basement will be given over to social rooms and to the heating plant.

The other church pictured is being built by the Newman Methodist Episcopal congregation at the northwest corner of Ruth avenue and Agatha street from plans prepared by Arthur W. Angel. The basement portion of the church was constructed about four years ago, at which time it was roofed over. Here worship has been faithfully observed.

The superstructure of the edifice, which is now nearing completion, is of a Gothic type. The material used is cement stone. The church will have a seating capacity of about 700. The Rev. Fred H. Ross, formerly pastor of the Euclid Heights Methodist Church, will preside over the new church.

REAL ESTATE NOTES.

John D. Reavis sold all of his stock and other interests in the Beaumont Land & Water Company and San Gorgonio Water Company to C. B. Eyer and K. R. Smoot, and resigned as director in both companies. Mr. Reavis has taken over all of the unsold property in the townsite of Beaumont and the neighboring tracts, excepting the subdivision of La Mesa Miravilla. He will maintain offices at No. 317 Central Building and will continue the sale on his own account of the property acquired. In addition to the active sale of Beaumont property, Mr. Reavis intends to deal in other real estate.

The McCarthy Company reports that one-third of its Van Ness Avenue Square tract has been already disposed of. It is expected that the improvements in the property will soon be completed.

The newest tract in Eagle Rock Valley is to be known as Floristan Heights. The property is at the end of the Eagle Rock Valley line and a short walk from the Garvanza branch. Street work will be started at once.

Another new subdivision to be known as Dalton Avenue Square has just been placed on the market by J. W. Downs, its owner. The property is situated on the Dalton avenue car line on the north side of Santa Barbara avenue, the lots facing on Normandie, Brighton, Halldale, Dalton and Denker avenues.

REPORT BUSINESS LEASES.

R. A. Rowan & Co. announce that a ten years' lease, involving a rental of $66,000, has just been signed by the New Market Company for a new building to be erected at Nos. 444 and 446 South Hill street on the Tononi property. The building will be a single story in height, with a mezzanine story about a large interior space. The frontage is forty-five feet. The same firm reports the lease to Feder & Co., jewelers, of the room at No. 549 South Broadway. The term is six years, and the consideration in the neighborhood of $30,000.

SOUTHWEST SALES.

The McCarthy Company reports the following sales in the southwest: S. F. Evans, a lot 50x110 feet on Hoover street, near Santa Monica avenue, in the City Boundary Tract, $850; George W. and J. Taylor, lot on Manchester avenue, between Main and Moneta, 50x108 feet, $500; Robert Best, lot on Sixty-sixth street, near Main, 40x132 feet, $750; C. Reynolds, lot on Fifty-first Place, near Halldale, 45x133 feet, $850; William P. Boland, lot 55x120 feet, corner Sixty-fourth and Main, and two adjoining lots on Main street, between Sixty-fourth and Sixty-fifth, $3500 cash.

AMAZING.

EVERY RECORD IS SMASHED.

BUILDING PERMIT VALUATION IS THREE MILLIONS.

Taking Out of Permit for Alexandria Annex Puts Present Record-Breaking Month a Million Dollars in the Lead—Other Cities Must Look to Their Laurels.

The prediction of last Sunday's Times that April building permits would reach a valuation total in excess of $3,000,000 has already been amply realized. Up to the close of business on Friday, J. J. Bachus, chief inspector of buildings, had issued 734 permits, representing a valuation of $2,064,417, to which huge amount was yesterday morning added a permit for the $1,000,000 annex to the Alexandria and nearly $50,000 in smaller items. Thus the total business done from April 1 to 23, inclusive, was something in excess of $3,100,000. All this week is yet to be heard from and both Mr. Bachus and Mark Cohn, his chief clerk, predict the amazing total of over $3,250,000 for the month.

Never in the history of the city building department have the employés who pass upon and issue permits for construction work been so nearly overwhelmed with work, as during the present record-smashing month. For residences alone, 348 permits, representing a valuation of $693,020, have been issued. Some of the larger buildings have entailed days and even weeks of routine investigation in the course of being passed upon. As one of the clerks of the department expressed it yesterday afternoon, "the figures look awfully good, but it's the biggest job we ever tackled getting them out."

From every possible aspect April's building record is an amazing one. The lead of the present month over all previous months in the city's building history is far greater even than appears on the surface. The greatest previous month was June, 1906, which boasted $2,371,000 and which included in its make-up a permit for the $1,000,000 Hamburger building at Eighth and Broadway. Even without the Alexandria permit, the present month is already in easy hail of the old high figure. Subtracting the two $1,000,000 items from the two record years, June, 1906, is left with $1,371,000 and April, 1910, with over $2,000,000. Going farther and eliminating the $425,000 permit for the Los Angeles Trust and Savings block, which, with the Alexandria improvement, is the only other item which could be called above the ordinary, the first twenty-two days of April lead the whole month of June in the big boom year in ordinary every-day building activity.

For the period from April 1 to 22, last year the totals were 550 permits and $766,827 valuation. The valuation increase of the present month, exclusive of the Alexandria, is 170 per cent. The biggest previous April in the city's history was that of 1906, which had a valuation of $2,002,351. The present month is the fourth to pass the $2,000,000 mark.

It is safe to predict that in the national building column for April, Los Angeles will be close to Chicago and Philadelphia in following the figures of the metropolis of the country. The whole building world will "sit up and take notice," and the advertising of the city abroad will be tremendous.

The permit for the Alexandria annex was taken out about 10 o'clock yesterday morning. It is in the name of the Bilicke-Rowan Fireproof Building Company, and is put down at an even $1,000,000. The permit calls for a structure fronting ninety-six feet by a depth of 159 feet on the west side of Spring street, just south of the present Alexandria. Parkinson & Bergstrom are the architects of the building, a complete description of which was published in The Times of November 24, 1909.

Following is the official classified report of the chief inspector of buildings, covering the period from April 1 to April 22, inclusive:

A NEW INDUSTRY.

Concern Controlling Stone Quarries to Establish Large Mill in This City.

The Pacific Consolidated Stone Company, which controls the marble quarries at Inyo and the standstone quarries of Flagstaff, Ariz., intends to establish in this city a mill for the polishing of rough blocks of marble and stone for construction work. The plans for the plant are being prepared by H. Brumlap.

H. L. Thornton, who, for twenty years, was connected with the quarries at Bedford, Ind., has been appointed general manager of the company and will soon go East to purchase machinery. Contracts on hand and in prospect assure the company a great annual output for the mill. The management of the company will not discuss the probable location of the plant. It will, however, be so placed as to be easy of access to all roads entering the city.

SIXTH STREET SALE.

The Vaughan Middleton Company reports the following sales: Ralph Williams to Thurston Finkle, lot 50x100 feet, on Sixth street, between Flower and Figueroa, $45,000; T. Finkle to E. L. This is, without exception, the finest house of its size in the city. It consists of 20 rooms, finished throughout in selected hardwoods, (not veneer.) Upon entering the house you step into a magnificent hall running the full depth of the building, and from which rises a grand stairway to the upper floors; the hall is lighted by a beautiful art-glass window. To the left of the hall is a dainty reception-room, finished in white and gold; the walls of this room were decorated by a well-known artist, the hardware is of solid gold.

The large living-room, with its beautifully carved and massive stone mantel, is to the right of the hall. This room is finished in crutch mahogany with hand-painted walls; the electric fixtures must be seen to be appreciated. To the north of the living-room is the den and music-room, both finished in mahogany.

West of the hall is the main dining-room; this room is entirely paneled in selected hardwood with beautiful crystal electroliers, and the handsomest built-in buffet in the city. One doorway from this room leads directly to the spacious porches; another to the butler's pantry and breakfast-room. The pantries and kitchen contain the most modern conveniences and in the large basement is a Ruud heater, an immense steel furnace and an up-to-date vacuum sweeping system.

The second-floor contains 4 very large bedrooms with dressing-room and modern bath off each; also a Japanese room and a cozy den. These rooms are also finished in hardwoods, (birdseye maple, mahogany and oak,) all bathrooms are fully tiled and have shower, etc. There is a rear hallway on this floor from which open the servants' rooms and bathroom. The third floor is reached from a solid oak stairway. This floor is entirely taken up with a huge ballroom and serving room. There is elevator service from the wine room and pantries.

In the construction of this beautiful new home 12 massive steel beams were used to insure solidity, and expense was not considered in working out every detail that could possibly lead to comfort or add to the beauty of the home, and at the same time, the color scheme has never been lost sight of for a moment; it harmonizes perfectly and has that subdued effect which is so restful and yet so beautiful.

There is a fine garage for two machines with man's room, bath, etc. The owner finished this house less than two months ago, but for personal reasons has decided to sell. It can be seen by appointment only.

FOR SALE—

EAGLE ROCK.

THE REWARD OF MERIT.

For three years we have listened to comments something like this: "Yes, Eagle Rock is the prettiest place we have seen—we like everything about it, but we MUST have GAS and ELECTRICITY." Of course, some folks were willing to put up with temporary inconveniences—otherwise we wouldn't have sold over one and a half million dollars' worth of Eagle Rock real estate—but a good many have either waited or built elsewhere.

To those who waited, we have GOOD NEWS—gas is in the valley now, and electricity is coming in right away.

THIS IS THE LOGICAL RESULT of the natural attractiveness of Eagle Rock—it has even charmed the gas man, and the electric light magnate. If it is good enough for them, how about YOU?

WHAT IS ENVIRONMENT WORTH

as an asset to the lot buyer and the homebuilder? We have had some experience—let us tell you what it is worth. It is a REAL, TANGIBLE ASSET, THE WORTH OF WHICH IS HARD TO OVERESTIMATE. OAK KNOLL—SOUTH PASADENA, GLENDALE and EAGLE ROCK have the ASSET OF ENVIRONMENT. Don't fail to take that into account in buying your lot.

WHAT IS ALTITUDE WORTH

as an asset to the lot-buyer and home-builder? Especially what is it worth in the immediate vicinity of Los Angeles? Well, we have had some twenty-two years' experience right here in that line, and we can tell you with authority. THE RIGHT ALTITUDE—provided it is reached by easy grades—is all important to many people and means warmer winters and cooler summers. Don't forget that.

WHAT IS PURE WATER WORTH

as an asset to the lot-buyer and home-builder? Read what Pasadena, San Diego, Los Angeles and other progressive cities are doing to improve their water supply. EAGLE ROCK WATER is famous for its clearness and purity—for years it was sold in Los Angeles by the bottle; the supply is unlimited. The Eagle Rock Water Company is now extending its system to supply MOUNT WASHINGTON—they have a reputation of wanting the best.

NOW, WE DO NOT CLAIM that Eagle Rock alone, has these assets—but we DO CLAIM THAT EAGLE ROCK IS THE ONLY PLACE NOT CHARGING FOR THEM. You can buy magnificent building lots in Eagle Rock, NOW, for about one-half what is asked in the other popular suburbs.

WHY?

Because Eagle Rock has not had the conveniences we started out to talk about—NOW she either has them or is getting them. It is only a question of a few months at the most, when you will have to pay what this property is really worth. DON'T WAIT TOO LONG.

We are the largest dealers in Eagle Rock realty—and sell more of it than all other agents combined. We advise you to consult us concerning the following tracts, of which we are either the owners or exclusive Eagle Rock agents.

FOR SALE—
NORMANDIE PARK.
NORMANDIE PARK.

When we completed arrangements for the exclusive sales-agency of the beautiful Normandie Park tract, we anticipated immediate and heavy demand for the lots. The results, however, have far exceeded our most optimistic expectations.

NORMANDIE PARK.
NORMANDIE PARK.
THE FINEST AND MOST SELECT SUBDIVISION IN THE NORTH O' WILSHIRE DISTRICT.

Twenty-two minutes from business on W. Seventh st. (Heliotrope Drive) cars.
Streets 100 feet wide, paved with crushed rock and asphaltum.
Gas and electricity. Wide parkways.
Lots 50x180, two feet above walk.
Proper residence restrictions, rigidly enforced (every lot restricted.)
This tract has been on the market three weeks—total sales $88,000.

NORMANDIE PARK.
NORMANDIE PARK.

The tract improvements of Normandie Park have been installed under our supervision, and we have taken a personal pride in seeing that every little detail was carefully worked out. In buying the trees for the wide parkways, every camphor and palm was inspected and selected by our tree man from a large and exceptionally healthy stock. The proper care of these trees until thoroughly established and the trimming up of the beautiful parkways, will be our business for some time to come.

NORMANDIE PARK.
NORMANDIE PARK.

With such a superb location and with improvements of such expensive character as those of Normandie Park, you would naturally think that the prices would be high; here is a seeming paradox—the prices are

FORTY PER CENT. LOWER THAN SURROUNDING PROPERTY.

We have a sales contract with the eastern owners; they want to use their money elsewhere—the prices are eloquent of their desire for a quick settlement. Lots worth from $2500 to $3500 can be bought for $900 to $1250. The fact that we have purchased ten of the lots ourselves at the advertised prices, for building purposes, is an indication of what we think of the property. Don't wait too long. Go out today.

RAMONA PARK is my hobby and good enough for me or anyone else that wants the best there is, but when the owners of EL CAMINO ACRES came to me and wanted me to take an exclusive agency to sell their property, and when they named their prices and terms at which these acres could be sold, why I just couldn't resist, for I well know the value of this property and I also know that the prices for which EL CAMINO ACRES are to be sold are way below their real value.

If you are interested in acreage don't fail to look into EL CAMINO ACRES.

These acres are located on the El Monte County Road and bounded by this thoroughfare and Bonita and Marengo avenues, 15 minutes from First and Main sts., 10 cents straight fare or 6½ and 7 cents commutation fare. If you want to see EL CAMINO ACRES take Covina electric car, get off at Garfield ave. and take RAMONA PARK AUTOMOBILE. FOR SALE—
PRICES ADVANCE MAY 1.
BUY NOW FOR A QUICK, SURE PROFIT.

The man or woman who buys a lot in Oxford Square before May 1 will take a sure, quick profit. On that date my price will be increased—values have already risen, and they are based on the best kind of development—on a finely located property with substantial improvements, fast building up with a fine class of residences. The Pico Heights car passes directly by Oxford Square. If you have been out this way recently you must have noticed it. It has been improved without regard to expense. The large lots face on 70-foot, oil-tamped avenues, with cement gutters, curbs and walks. The wide parkways are beautifully planted to palms and shade trees. Handsome electroliers stand at street intersections. Oxford Square has gas, electricity, and all city conveniences. Fine homes have been built on the property and more are under construction. It is strictly a high-class property, but sold on such a basis that it opens opportunities to people of moderate means. You can buy a lot for a small cash payment and pay the balance on easy monthly installments. And you buy against a sure increase of value—a certain profit. The W. Ninth st. extension and the new subway lines will pass directly through Oxford Square. You know what developments of this kind mean. See this property and get full information. FOR SALE—
THE BALDWIN RANCH.
THE BALDWIN RANCH.
SERVICE BROS.,
SELLING AGENTS.
ALFALFA LAND WALNUT LAND.
ORANGE LAND.

THE FAMOUS OLD RANCHO LA PUENTE—A DIVISION OF THE BALDWIN RANCH—in the heart of the great San Gabriel Valley, consisting of thousands of acres of the most fertile soil in Southern California, is offered for sale and will be sold in lots of TEN ACRES and up. It is located 14 miles east of the city, between El Monte and Covina, and on the main line of the Southern Pacific and the Pacific Electric railways.

We have two subdivisions containing 3000 acres of deep sediment loam soil, that cannot be equaled anywhere for ALFALFA, walnuts, vegetables or small fruit. Its merits are so well known that but little comment is necessary. We simply invite you to go out and see this land and you will be convinced.

THE WATER QUESTION.

That is already demonstrated. Wells that have been bored on tracts that we have sold tells an eloquent story. The water in many instances stands only fifteen feet from the surface.

There is not another tract of land so close to Los Angeles that can be bought at so reasonable a price. Now is the time to buy.

If you are looking for a home or for an investment, don't let this opportunity go by. Adjoining improved ranches cannot be bought under $500 and $800 per acre. Hundreds of acres already sold. We are simply besieged with buyers.

FOR SALE—
I have an option on one of the finest tracts of land on the west coast of Mexico, in Sinaloa. It has a frontage of 4 miles on the S. P. Railroad and is level river bottom land, silt and alluvial soil. Abundance of water, there is 15,000 acres in the tract. It only requires small cash payment, balance long time. If subdivided and placed on the market will pay for itself inside of a year and net the owner from 150 to 200 per cent. profits. An adjoining tract of 5000 acres has just been sold out in 40-acre tracts to Americans and it took less than 60 days to do it. I cannot handle all of this myself. Would like some parties to go in with me on the proposition. K. C. HEATH, 337 Wilcox Bldg., corner Second and Spring. 24

FOR SALE—MEXICAN LANDS IN THE DIStrict and State of Sinaloa, Mexico. FOR SALE—$22,000.
THE IDEAL COMBINATION.
"LATE VALENCIA" ORANGES AND WALNUTS.

20 acres; THERE IS NOTHING ORDINARY ABOUT HIS PROPERTY; it's simply ELEGANT, and of unusual MERIT. The 11 acres in Late Valencia oranges we doubt can be excelled for sizes of trees, uniformity and thriftiness; they are just about perfect. The 9 acres of walnuts are great, big trees and splendid producers. The soil is a rich, black loam, 20 feet deep; nothing better. Entire place lies perfectly for ease and economy of irrigation; cement ditches and ample water stock. Good barn, also splendid 7-inch well; place all fenced and ABSOLUTELY NO DAMAGING FROSTS, and the trees are in the very PINK OF CONDITION.

This property would be cheap at $25,000 today. No adjacent property of equal merit can be bought for any such price. Owner suddenly called East and must sell. It's an EXCEPTIONAL PROPERTY, in a very exclusive neighborhood—the RECOGNIZED Valencia orange section of the State, right close to the highest producing orange grove for its size in the world. Very little property in this section is for sale at any price.

We want you to see this matchless grove to appreciate it; you will surely pronounce it a bargain. Good team, harness and farming implements included. Only 27 miles from Los Angeles. Terms.

MANUFACTURERS WOULD DO WELL TO investigate the manufacturing advantages and market conditions for their products in the middle west and southwest. Why remain in your present location where you possibly are troubled with poor labor conditions, costly fuel, keen competition and remoteness from raw material? The industrial department of the Frisco Lines offers its services to aid you in finding a desirable point along the many miles of road embraced in that system. Many cities give fine inducements for new industries. Some locations offer natural gas for manufacturing at almost nominal cost. When writing please specifically state your proposition when new industrial book will be sent you. M. Schulter, Industrial Commissioner, FRISCO LINES, St. Louis, Mo. x24

ANY MANUFACTURER DISSATISFIED with his present location; or in need of additional capital to enable him to branch out in his business; or seeking a favorable location for a branch plant would do well to investigate factory openings along the Frisco Lines, reaching eleven states of the Central West, South and Southwest. The undersigned is well informed concerning manufacturing conditions and is in close touch with commercial clubs. The most liberal inducements consistent with good business practice can be had by reliable concerns to locate in the southwest. State your proposition and ask for new industrial book. M. SCHULTER, Industrial Commissioner, Frisco Lines, St. Louis, Mo. x24

DO YOU MOVE THIS SPRING?

If you do you may need a little READY MONEY to pay the expenses. If you do not you may need it for some other purpose, and the best way to get it is to go to those who make a business of loaning it and not obligate yourself to friends or relatives. We advise this because it is a reasonable proposition, and we invite you to come to us because we are able to offer you better inducements along this line than others. WE MAKE LOANS ON FURNITURE, PIANOS, HORSES, WAGONS AND OTHER PERSONAL PROPERTY (which is always left in your own possession.) RETIRED ARMY MEN.

British Government Gives Soldiers a Chance to Learn Several Different Trades.

What to do with men who have retired after their term of enlistment from the army and navy is a question that the British government is trying to answer. For this purpose men in the Royal Marine Artillery and the Royal Marine Light Infantry have lately been given exceptional opportunities of becoming skilled workmen in any trade, and it is quite safe to say that no man who has made use of the facilities offered need leave the service to swell the ranks of the unemployed. Painting, carpentering, bricklaying and practically the whole of the clothing of the regiment, and bootmaking, are done in the barracks. Other men get instructions as barbers, butchers, waiters, and these men are sure of getting a position in their particular trade on retirement. Would-be employers give preference to retired service men. The officers take the keenest interest in the classes, and assist the men when they leave the service, so that the complaint of lack of employment is disappearing. It is a notable fact that graduates from the army school make rapid progress after taking up work outside.—[Brooklyn Eagle.

Audience Wouldn't Have Any.

The rector of an English church, seeing that there was only one almsdish and that the congregation was unusually large, beckoned to a rustic and bade him go through the garden to the rectory dining-room and bring a dish from the table. "Take it down one side of the north aisle and up the other," he said, "and then bring it to me." The rustic came back with the dish, as ordered, and presented it to

J. D. Mercereau, who has brought from the Coast the skilled men needed for the work.

THE MEAT WE EAT.

FOOD ANIMALS IN AMERICA.

INCREASE IS MUCH LESS THAN THE POPULATION.

The Agricultural Department Completes an Investigation of the Country's Meat Supply and the Change of Prices During the Past Decade. Scarcer and Higher Is the Report.

[Washington Star:] The number of food animals in the United States has decreased 5,000,000 since 1901, and the number of consumers has increased 12,000,000 in the same time.

This is the result of an analysis by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor of the census estimates of population, and the Department of Agriculture's estimates of food animals in the years 1901 and 1910.

The term "food animals" includes in this instance all cattle, sheep and swine in the United States as estimated by the Department of Agriculture, and the term "consumers" includes all of the population as estimated by the census.

DECREASE IN FOOD ANIMALS.

The Department of Agriculture's figures put the total number of cattle in the United States on January 1, 1901, at 62,333,333; sheep, 59,750,000, and swine, 57,000,000; a total of 179,000,000. For January 1, 1910, the estimate is, cattle, 47,750,000; sheep, 57,250,000, and swine, 47,750,000, a total of 174,000,000, a decrease of 5,000,000 in the aggregate of three groups of food animals. The census estimates the population of the United States on June 1, 1901, at 77,647,000, and on June 1, 1910, at 89,912,000, an increase of a little more than 12,000,000 in the population, while the number of food animal was declining about 5,000,000. This makes the total number of food animals to each 100 persons in 1901, 231, and in 1901, but 193, a decrease of 10 per cent. in the number of food animals to each 100 persons residing in the United States.

In the meantime the total value of the food animals in the country has increased despite the reduction in number, the Department of Agriculture estimating the aggregate farm value of the 179,000,000 cattle, sheep and swine in 1901 at $1,943,000,000, and the aggregate farm value of the 174,000,000 in 1910 at $2,368,000,000.

This gives an increase in the aggregate value of 22 per cent., while the number was declining a little less than 3 per cent., the increase in the average farm value per animal of the entire number of food animals being 25½ per cent.

CATTLE SHOW INCREASE.

The one class of food animals which shows an actual increase in the period in question, is cattle, of which the number in 1901 was 62,333,870, and in 1910, 69,080,000, an increase of about 11 per cent., while the population was increasing about 16 per cent. The farm value of cattle in 1901 is put at $1,411,737,080, and in 1910 at $1,697,761,000, an increase of 20½ per cent. in value, while the number was increasing about 11 per cent. The average farm value per head of all cattle is given in 1901 at $22.65, and in 1910 at $24.58, an increase of but 8½ per cent. in value per head on the farm.

In the markets, however, beef prices showed a much larger advance, the New York wholesale price of "family beef" as shown in reports to the Bureal of Statistics, Department of Commerce and Labor, being $12.50 per barrel in the first week of January, 1901, and $16 per barrel in the first week of January, 1910, an increase of 28 per cent., while the farm value of cattle, according to the figures of the Department of Agriculture, was advancing 8½ per cent.

DECREASE IN SWINE.

The number of swine in the United States is stated by the Department of Agriculture figures at 56,982,142 in January, 1901, and 47,782,000 in January, 1910, a decline of 16 per cent. in number. The value in 1901 is reported at $353,012,143, and in 1910 at $436,603,000, an advance of 24 per cent. in farm value, while the average price per head on the farm in 1901 was $6.26 and in 1910, $9.13, an increase of 47 per cent. in the per capita value. In the meantime the New York wholesale price of "mess pork new," as reported to the Bureau of Statistics, advanced from $13.25 per barrel in the first week of January, 1901, to $24.75 in the first week of January, 1910, an increase of 87 per cent., and lard is quoted in the same reports at 7.4 cents per pound in January, 1901, and 13 cents per pound in January, 1910, an advance of 76 per cent.

FEWER SHEEP.

The number of sheep decreased, according to the Department of Agriculture figures, from 59,756,718 in January, 1901, to 57,216,000 in January, 1910, a decrease of 4.3 per cent. The farm value is estimated at $178,072,476 in 1901, and $233,664,000 in 1910. The value increased 31 per cent., while the number was decreasing 4.3 per cent., the increase in farm value per capita being from $2.98 to $4.06, an increase of 37 per cent.; the New York price of a standard grade of wool (Ohio XX) having increased in the meantime from 26 cents per pound in January, 1901, to 37 cents per pound in January, 1910, an advance of 42 per cent.

PRICES OF GRAIN ADVANCE.

In the meantime prices of grains show similar advances. The quoted price of corn in the New York market in the first week of January, 1901, was, according to the Bureau of Statistic's figures, 45¾ cents per bushel, and in the first week of January, 1910, 71½ cents per bushel, an advance of 56 per cent.; of oats, in January, 1901, 28¼ cents per bushel, and in January, 1910, 49½ cents, an advance of 75 per cent.; of wheat, in the first week of January, 1901, 81 cents per bushel, and in January, 1910, $1.30 per bushel, an advance of 60½ per cent.

KNOWN IN ADVANCE.

SIXTH SENSE OF ANIMALS.

STRANGE PRESCIENCE SHOWN BEFORE DISASTERS.

Birds Know What Weather Is Approaching—Four-Footed Animals Excel in Hearing Sounds Below the Human Range, and Perception of Electrical Changes.

No great natural catastrophe occurs without some clear premonition, says the London Daily Mail. As in a number of previous earthquakes and storms, so in this last and most terrible Sicilian disaster, several animals are said to have scented the impending danger. They "showed perturbation," according to one account, and it is safe to prophesy that there were many undoubted examples when the people began to realize the hours that preceded the numbing catastrophe. Instances are on record where women, whose nervous centers are more sensitive than those of men, have given some proof of this sixth sense, if it may be called so.

We have plenty of instances of this strange prescience in England. The sheep once stampeded all over the Chilterns simultaneously; the race horses at Newmarket, before one slight shock, ceased to feed. These are small examples of more remarkable occurrences in countries where the unheaval is greater. It is said that every shock of the great Agram earthquakes was preceded by the crowing of cocks and the howling of dogs; and a very striking example is on record of a monkey that refused to enter a house and showed every symptom of fear before a considerable earthquake at Villefranche.

We may take it as certain that peculiar states of the atmosphere affect animals quite as distinctly as they affect the barometer or thermometer. No one who has watched birds can doubt this for a moment; and I am persuaded that many insects have this sensitiveness in at least as acute a degree.

SURFACE SENSIBILITY.

Men talk sometimes of a "sixth sense" or an electrical sense in animals; and it is at least understandable that live things have some communion, as it were, with this impassable all-pervading medium called ether which carries on its viewless journey the waves of light and of electric discharge. Is it not probable that men, covered over the greater part of their body with thick, nonconducting materials, should lose a surface sensitiveness that is conveyed along the hair or feathers of other animals?

The sixth sense, however, is much too general an explanation. Species of animals differ among themselves, as much as we differ from them, in their perception of coming change. Nearly all the records of earthquake prophecies are to the account of domestic animals, especially cows and horses. Sheep are peculiarly sensitive to electrical change, and are aware many hours in advance of a great thunderstorm.

Of other atmospheric changes, such as those announced on our mercurial instruments, birds have the finer sense, and besides this they possess that inexplicable hereditary sense of direction shared in some degree by other animals; but this, it must be remembered, they often lose completely in a thick mist. Some odd isolated gifts are possessed by domestic animals. Sheep know the time of day, as represented by feeding time, within a few minutes. A shepherd who is five minutes early will find the hurdled flock lying down oblivious of his approach. If he is a minute or two late they will be alert, and all grouped to the side of the pen in the direction of his approach.

These varying capacities do not spring from one sense, whatever name we give it. Birds, I am convinced, do possess an extra sense which has no close parallel in other animals. One can see the organ itself; and seeing is believing. In many parts of their body, inclosed in the bones, are little air sacs, which, it is generally supposed, have been developed because they aided flight. The birds most lightly buoyed would most tend to survive; since their great protection from hunger, as from more tangible enemies, is the "carriage of their wings." When you see the gulls sweeping inland from an unheralded but certain storm; when the owls hoot in concerted ecstacy in obedience to a rising glass; when the snipe leave the inland marsh for warm western shores at the unseen approach of frost, the message is conveyed, it may plausibly be supposed, by the little barometers hidden about the bones of their bodies. Season and date, though they are agents in migration, do not produce this prophetic sense.

HOW ANIMALS ARE GULLED.

Birds are easily gulled by fine weather. They often pair and build and sing in obedience to today's or tomorrow's weather, but they know hours before we do by our senses, if not by other instruments, what weather is approaching. They can certainly feel an increase of moisture, in which prospect they especially delight, as you may tell by the hilarious jets of song which precede the verdict of the hygrometer, and though we cannot separate the sensitiveness to change of pressureand temperature, the air sacs doubtless help to create through the body the restless feeling that appears in long flights or quick movements or sudden song. In these air sacs we have at the worst an aid to the other senses, some of which are themselves so delicate as to amount to another sense when we compare them with our own.

The four-footed animals have some senses much more finely developed than those of birds. I cannot believe that birds have a high sense of hearing. They can hear tolerably well, of course; but again and again I have tried to test pigeons, which are supposed to hear well, and have always come to the conclusion that they hear no better than we do.

Standing under a tree in a wood, you may tap the trunk quite hard with a stick or pencil and rouse no notice in a pigeon on the branches. If you are out of sight, you may change your position freely without risk. Birds are perfectly easy to stalk if their is sufficient cover and the smaller birds seem quite heedless of lesser sounds, though there is some reason for supposing that they can detect a large span of the higher nots to which we are stone deaf.

The four-footed animals have a different sense of hearing. From general observation, one would say that they excel in hearing the notes that are below, and not above, our range. A dog is astonishingly quick to hear any rumbling noise. I knew a terrier that would mark the place of a rabbit in its hole almost unerringly by listening not at the mouth of the hole, but from a position between the several mouths.

The subject of the quality of sounds which different animals can hear is one to which science might well devote more attention. It is likely that the cows and horses, some of which sweated with fear before the earthquakes, heard the subterranean rumblings long before the vibrations and waves of movement were translated into any tangible quaking of the ground.

Whether the senses of these animals are reinforced by an extra sense, such as may be supplied by the air sacs in birds, cannot be proved. Men of science, as a rule, are extremely dogmatic in asserting that the five senses are the exclusive outfit of all animals. No doubt the sense of smell, almost absent in men, may in itself explain all sorts of phenomena. The air may, for all we know, have smells perpetually expressive of the subleties of change above or below the earth. The winds have each their distinctive smell, gathered in the quarters from which they blow; and these may bear as clear tidings to the gull, while he crosses the several currents, as carrion bears to the crow or vulture.

But when all is said, and all allowance made, it is difficult to avoid the belief that the animal, whose life is the exercise of sense, does not, perhaps through the medium of the air, feel change, especially electrical change, by reason of some general sensitiveness that does not belong to sight or sound o touch or smell or taste, or even any combination of these.

At all events the animals have a receptivity, an instinctive state of sensitiveness, to which beings with preoccupied brains are wholly strangers. In another sense than Nero, we fiddle while Rome is burning, and our ears are too full of the sound of the world to take note of the warnings of its upheaval.

CRIMINALS AND OFFSPRING.

Every Attempt Is Made by Rogues to Prevent Their Children Following Same Life.

[Everybody's:] It is a curious fact—one of variance with the doctrine of heredity but borne out by police records—that the children of crooks of all classes rarely turn out to be crooks themselves. Deeper study of the subject might reveal that they are possessed of the criminal instincts, but that the tragically close example of the punishment and wretchedness that attend a criminal career has been a terrifying deterrent. The fact, at any rate, remains. The "rogues' galleries" of Scotland Yard, New York and Chicago may be studied in vain for the photographs of a father and a son.

Criminals are ever alert to keep their children from adopting similar lives. The rage of old, ugly Mother Mandelbaum, the famous receiver of stolen goods, was frightful when she found that her daughter, whom she had been at unstinted expense to educate, had secretly married "Sammy, the Jew" (Koehler,) a thief with whom the old criminal had long traded. She disinherited the girl and a flock of relatives were the beneficiaries of her ill-gotten money. In her Chatham Square headquarters Mother Mandelbaum maintained a room where thieves could smoke and drink, but she felled with a bronze lamp a pickpocket who attempted one night to invade the private parlor where she was overseeing her daughter's French studies.

Kipling's Cablegram.

NEW YORK, April 23.—A cablegram from Rudyard Kipling on the death of Mark Twain is printed in the World today as follows: "In Mr. Clemens's death," says the English writer, "all the English-speaking world loses a great sage and humorist."

TIGHT SQUEAKS.

BIG BETTORS LIKE SPHINX.

Win or Lose Fortunes and Hold Their Peace.

Pittsburgh Phil and Dwyer Typical Plungers.

Nod of a Head Separates the Horses at the Post.

"You mark my words," said an old-time speculator on turf events, "it's the fellow who bottles up his feelings and shows no signs of emotion who goes away quicker than the chap who yells his head off when his horse wins.

"I've noticed the quiet ones all down the line, and the best examples of their kind have gone. I refer to Mike Dwyer, Pittsburgh Phil, and Pat McCarren. None of them ever batted an eye when he had a nose finish for thousands, but they burnt up internally and would have lived longer if they had yelled now and then. It's the way a high-strung chap has of letting off steam, and it relieves the tension tremendously.

"I remember the day that Previous failed to get away from the post for the Futurity, which the colt's subsequent form showed he could have won easily. Mike Dwyer owned Previous, and he had $25,000 up on the son of Meddler.

"It was Dwyer's custom to view the race from the end of the grand stand nearest the clubhouse when they were running at Sheepshead Bay, and he was pacing up and down, with his field glasses in his hand, while the big bunch of 2-year-olds were at the post. From time to time he would stop and look anxiously through the glasses.

LEFT AT THE POST.

"Finally there was a shout of 'They're off!' and a cloud of dust three-quarters of a mile away indicated that the race was under way. Dwyer's glasses were glued on the starting point when Pettingill raised the barrier, and the moment the start was made he began pacing to and fro taking no more interest in the race.

"'Somebody's left!' ejaculated a bystander.

"'Yes; it's Previous,' remarked the nervy plunger as he continued his walk.

"It was no fault of the starter that Previous failed to get away, nor was it through any remissness on the part of Sims, the famous colored jockey, who had the mount. It happened that Previous had drawn the outside position at the post and that the farmer had the field next to the Futurity chute planted in oats. The waving grain swayed temptingly near the colt, and he turned his head for a hasty bite just as Pettingill released the barrier and called 'Come on!' The jockey and colt were both caught unawares, and it was too late to rectify the mistake, though there are some who still think that Previous could have gone after his field and won.

"It is not recorded that Dwyer ever made any complaint to anybody or murmured over his hard luck. He realized that he was up against fate, and accepted what came as his share of the uncertainty of the sport.

LOVED A FAVORITE.

"Those who were most familiar with Dwyer found it just as hard to gauge him and his methods as the most utter stranger. He dearly loved a favorite, and the shorter the odds the more money he would bet.

"One one occasion he bought a horse named Joe Cotton for $10,000 and started to win him out. The odds were 1 to 3, and at those figures he wagered $30,000. The race was at the Bay, and the California mare Birette was at Cotton's throatlatch all the way through the stretch, and only the judges knew which had won at the wire. Not a muscle of the plunger's placid face moved as Cotton's number was flashed to the announcement board, and his only remark as a friend who sat with him in the timers' stand slapped him on the back in congratulation was:

"'Tight squeak.'

"'Pittsburgh Phil' (George Smith) was much like Dwyer in some ways. He was equally silent in the early days of his career, but when the disease which subsequently carried him off had made severe inroads into his system he was at times querulous and would argue vehemently when the soundness of his judgment on a race was disputed.

"The race where he made his star winning was over a two-year-old owned by himself, whose private form had been carefully concealed. This youngster's name was King Cadmus, and Fred Taral, who is still riding horses, was engaged to ride the colt in a dash down the old straight course at Morris Park. Taral was in the heyday of his career, and could outfinish any jockey then in the saddle. It took all of the phenomenal Dutchman's muscular driving and lifting to land King Cadmus first by a nose. Pittsburgh was in the stand, the least excited man in the throng, and the only sign of emotion he showed was a slight smile in response to Walter Keyes's jubilant announcement of 'George, we've skinned the ram!'

KEPT CLOSE MOUTH.

"Smith was never very fond of giving information to those who he thought were not entitled to it, and he would never admit how much money he won that day on King Cadmus. It was rumored that the records of the ring, which could be got at pretty thoroughly, as nearly all of the smart fellows got a lambasting, showed that Smith took more than $100,000 out of the ring over that particular race.

"Smith was clever enough always to have some good riders that were friendly to him, and one of them, Willie Shaw, who is now riding in Germany, was as close to the plunger as his brother, Bill, who trained the horses running in the name of Pittsburgh. Shaw was never much of a finisher, but he had that rare quality which made Isaac Murphy, Jimmy McLaughlin and Willie Martin great jockeys—he could tell you everything that happened in a race after it.

THE BEST DOESN'T ALWAYS WIN.

"Of course, you all know that the best horse does not always win. Half a dozen things can happen during the running of a race and any one of them may be fatal to the chances of the best horse. Getting into a pocket is one of the ways a good horse can lose, and especially if there are jockeys riding who have a grouch on the rider on the horse that is in a tight place. They won't pull out and let the unfortunate through, and in taking back and going around the field much precious time is lost.

"Shaw could tell not only what had happened to his own mount, but to every other horse in the race, and perhaps you don't think that sort of news was valuable to Smith! The horse that met with all the trouble would probably be at a much longer price the next time he faced the barrier, and plenty of folks couldn't understand how anybody could bet on his chances with the degree of confidence Smith displayed when he put down his thousands. They knew more about it when the horse romped home.

"Did you ever think that Pittsburgh Phil was about the only one of the big plungers who brought next to nothing into the game and left more than $3,500,000 in good hard cash and securities when he died a few years ago? Just run your mind over some of the high rollers. Mike Dwyer made money, and lots of it, in the meat business long before he ever thought of owning thoroughbreds. John W. Gates, as you know, got his easy money in Wall street. The old-timer Bernard had a profitable business working for him, and it kept him going for years, and so it goes on down the line. But Pittsburgh Phil came from $8 a week as a cork cutter to a millionaire, and all between the ages of 20 and 37."

"But, say, the boy that would play them higher than a cat's back was the late Senator McCarren. He would fall for tips, and you know any man who throws away his figures and the dope sheets and takes the promiscuous tip that floats around the paddock has his finish, in plain sight.

HIS FIRST SUCCESS.

"McCarren's first taste of success as a racing man was away back in the late eighties, and early nineties, when in partnership with Frank Seaman he owned three real good horses — one stake animal named Strideaway and two topnotch selling platers, Balston and Drumstick.

"These horses were the sort you could rely upon, as they were game to the core and they were placed with splendid judgment, always a shade lower than they belonged, and let me remark that that's the way to play the racing game, try to make the public believe you have a selling plater when you really have a stake horse, and if you can fool the boys for a while you will cash more bets than you will lose.

"Bob Tucker bought Strideaway for $10,000 after a disagreement between the partners, which resulted in the trainer taking Balston and Drumstick, and the Senator was out of the game for some time. However, like most of those who want action, he got back again and followed the horses until he died. I guess he lost and won as heavily at times as any of them, and he certainly took greater chances than anybody I know of. There was one particularly disastrous day at Saratoga, when he went beyond his limit and walked in from the course with one of his bosom friends.

HIS "GRAND DAY."

"'Well, I had a grand day,' he remarked with that white smile which earned him the undeserved sobriquet of Chilly Pat.

"I want to say right now that McCarren was not chilly to those whom he had confidence in. Naturally, playing the game he did, he did not wear his heart on his sleeve, but if there was a case of anybody that deserved help and Pat had the money, he gave it up cheerfully, and he didn't talk about it, either; that was the best of it.

"But I'm getting away from my yarn. When Pat said he had a grand day his friend knew what it meant, and being a man of few words himself, he remarked in the vernacular:

"'How much did you go for?'

"'Only a hundred and five,' was the reply.

"A prolonged whistle was the only comment of the Senator's companion for a moment, and then, with a grin illuminating his ruddy face, he asked:

"'How much have you got?'

"'About sixty-five.'

"'And where are you going to get the balance?' quizzed the inquisitor.

"'From you,' was the instant reply.

"'The —— you are,' was the only comment from the rubicund one, who knew the Senator spoke the truth.

"He paid up that $165,000 on Monday morning with as good grace as though he were doing those he had lost the money to a very great favor. It was the same year that Pat made his famous plunge on a filly named Ocean Tide, owned by himself.

GREAT FILLY STAKES.

"The occasion was the Great Filly Stakes at Sheepshead Bay, and the race was worth upward of $20,000. You would think that winning that would have satisfied any ordinary man, but Pat wasn't ordinary in any respect, and he planned to make the winning of his life. The most dangerous opponent Ocean Tide had was the afterward famous filly Beldame, owned by August Belmont.

"This young mare, the apple of the eye of the chairman of the jockey club, was the favorite of the race, having shown some very good performances. Not much was known about Ocean Tide, but she had shown phenomenal speed in her training exercises, and Frank Brown, who trained her, told the Senator that she was a phenomenon, and that no man's two-year-old could beat her.

"Nobody can find out how much money McCarren bet on her that day. He sat in a box in the second gallery of the big stand at Sheepshead and watched the race without the quiver of an eyelash. His filly was on the side next to the rail, and as the Senator's box was below the finishing line the angle made it look as though Ocean Tide had won from Beldame by a short head, after a most furious struggle, the pair running like a team the last furlong or so.

"Mr. Belmont was seated in a box near by. He was among the first to congratulate the Senator. While the men were shaking hands a shout came from one of McCarren's companions:

"'Why, they've given it to Beldame.'

RETURNS WELL WISHES.

"The Senator smiled, and still holding Belmont's hand, remarked dryly:

"'You were wrong, it appears. I congratulate you most heartily, Mr. Belmont. Wasn't it a great race?'

"That was the last big plunge that McCarren made," said the old-timer, as he bit the end off a fat black cigar.

"Say, Gates never loosened up much unless he had a hunch good and strong that he was liable to cop," commented a sporty-looking fellow who had listened intently to the narrative, "and maybe he didn't holler when he got stung for a wad.

"I remember once when Boots Durnell was telling a bunch that one of them would hit the rocks at Brighton, and I think I can hear Gates yelling yet. It was Doggett laid him a long price on something that looked juicy to the big fellow; but, say, kiddo, honest, something ailed that horse that day—must have been sitting up with a sick friend the night before—for he couldn't lose that tired feeling that they get occasionally. Course if horses could only talk and tell us when they had a headache it would help some, and we wouldn't blow our rolls on them when their minds wasn't on the game."

"That's as true as the gospel of St. Paul, that last remark of yours, young feller," said the old veteran as he buttoned up his overcoat preparatory to swinging out into Broadway.—[New York Sun.

IN FOREIGN CLIMES.

ANGELENOS FIND PLEASURE AND EXCITEMENT ABROAD.

Local Tourists Greet Roosevelt at Naples and Visit Palace of Sultan of Turkey—One Party Spends Days Strapped to Berths, While Typhoon Rages in China Sea—Many Plan to Visit the Passion Play.

BY WILLIAM CLARK.

UNUSUAL numbers of Los Angeles people are now touring abroad—no less than 1000—and some of them have had unusual experiences on land and sea. The Times has gathered from letters to home friends a jolly assortment of newsy gossip about the doing, excitements and impressions of these travelers, ranging from encounters with typhoons to unique adventures with jinrikishas and stirring dares in forbidden spots.

Los Angeles people sightseeing in distant lands

When Roosevelt stepped ashore at Naples a few weeks ago, one of the first Americans to greet him was Dr. Peter Janss of Los Angeles. Dr. and Mrs. Janss have been touring Europe in their automobile, and they had timed their journey so as to be present when the ex-President arrived in Naples. Dr. Janss is personally acquainted with Mr. Roosevelt, and had the reception which was to have been tendered Roosevelt at Naples, not been canceled, Dr. and Mrs. Janss would have attended.

They left Los Angeles during the first part of last month, and will return sometime in the early part of 1911. At Naples they met L. D. Sale and wife, also of this city, who are making a motor trip through Southern Europe. The party will continue together to Paris where they expect to meet Mr. and Mrs. H. Jevne, who left Los Angeles a few days ago with their automobile, and after completing the tour the party will visit the Passion Play at Oberammergau. It is also likely that they will meet Russell Taylor and his wife, who left Los Angeles a short time ago to tour Italy, France and Germany in their automobile.

Dr. Janss writes that they arrived in Naples only a few days before Roosevelt was expected. The city was terribly overcrowded, but by paying enormous prices they managed to secure quarters.

CROWD FORMS EARLY.

On the morning of the ex-President's arrival Dr. Janss was up early; but early as he was, there was a great crowd gathered at the landing. There were photographers everywhere—on the tops of buildings, in the riggings of other ships, and perched on the tops of various vehicles.

Soon the ship bearing the Roosevelt party came steaming in. Roosevelt was standing on the deck, and as the crowd cheered he lifted his hat. Then the cameras began to click.

There were several men in the gathering, other than Dr. Janss, who were personally acquainted with Roosevelt, and they joined a little group near the gang plank. As Roosevelt stepped ashore he recognized and greeted them.

ONE THOUSAND.

"There are nearly 1000 Los Angeles people traveling in foreign countries today," said G. W. Perkins, president of the Hugh B. Rice Company. "Los Angeles sends more people on tours around the world than does New York," said D. F. Robertson, manager of the steamship department of the German-American Savings Bank. "Other cities send people abroad on business, but nowhere in the world do the number of people travel for pleasure that leave Los Angeles each year. I have a letter from the head of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, in which he states that we send twice as many people to Europe as does New York, and more and more are going every year."

VISIT SULTAN'S PALACE.

But not only were Angeleños the first to greet the returning ex-President, but they were first in other places. It was a party of Los Angeles people who were the first admitted to the palace grounds at Yildiz Kiosk, the former home of the deposed Sultan of Turkey. The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Brotherton, Mrs. Agnes Chichester, Miss Catherine Chichester, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Pomeroy, Charles M. Stimson, and a few others from other cities. The party was also one of the first to enter the shot-riddled city of Constantinople after it had been fired upon by the revolutionists. They entered many of the houses that had been partly burned and cut to pieces by shot, and after a good deal of wire-pulling on the part of the American Consul, they gained admittance to the deserted palace grounds.

"What impressed me the most," said Mr. Brotherton, "was the remarkable collection of pigeons owned by the Sultan. While the birds would not have outnumbered those at the Los Angeles Pigeon Farm, there were many more varieties. There were hundreds of different kinds, of all colors and sizes—from little pigeons not much larger than a mocking bird, to pigeons larger than any I had seen before.

"The palace grounds are beautiful—more beautiful than any park I have visited. There is a stream of water forty feet wide flowing through the center, and we caught some excellent fish in this stream. Our guide told us that if we were caught with the fish, we would be imprisoned, so we discarded them.

"On our journey from Jerusalem to Jericho, and from there to Constantinople we were furnished by the Turkish government with a guard of fifty soldiers. It was the American Consul who secured them for us. He is a Los Angeles man, and has a daughter now attending school here, and he exerted himself to see that we had a good time.

MANY SCOWLS ARE MET.

"It was after the most serious part of the revolution had been quelled, that we started for Constantinople. Had we been without guards we would probably never have reached the capital alive. As it was, we were scowled at blackly by dirty-looking men who carried long guns and knives, and who always stood to one side until we had passed. I believe that had we not been present, our escort would have thought nothing of shooting these men as fast as we met them. The captain very kindly offered to shoot a few for us if it would afford us any pleasure."

Another adventure which befell the party might not have turned out as fortunately as it did, had it not been for the forethought of Mr. Brotherton.

They had decided to visit the old city of Shanghai. They were stopping in the newer city, outside of the old walls of Shanghai. The streets of the old section are narrow—too narrow to permit the passage of vehicles. Entrance is gained through a small crooked gate in the wall. The gate was built crooked so as to give the greatest difficulty to evil spirits desiring entrance to the city.

The party rode as far as the gate in jinrikshas. They had engaged two native guides on the recommendation of the hotel manager.

The streets being too narrow to allow them to walk abreast, they were strung out in pairs. One member of the party in front turned to make some remark to Mrs. Chichester and her daughter, who were the last in line. They were not in sight. With the numerous turns in the streets, and the dense crowd of Chinese, it is easy to become lost in Shanghai. Those in front stopped and waited a few minutes, thinking the missing ones would arrive soon. After five minutes' waiting they became alarmed and started to retrace their route. Still no trace of the missing ones could be found. They returned almost to the gate, and appealed to the officials, who could not understand English, and told them in Chinese that the whole party were "crazy foreign devils."

GUIDE IS STRANGER.

One of the guides was with the missing women, but he was a man they had never heard of before. The other guide said he had never seen his fellow-worker before.

Mr. Brotherton decided to return to the gate and wait until nightfall. He knew that Mrs. Chichester would endeavor to return by that way. They waited nearly two hours, and finally, as they were about to return to the hotel in despair, they saw the missing guide coming down the street with the ladies.

"Well, where on earth have you been," exclaimed both parties at once.

"We thought you were lost and we have been searching the city for you," said Mr. Brotherton.

"We thought you were lost and have been hunting for you. We even appealed to the officials, but they told us we were crazy and that even if we did lose a 'foreign devil' it would not matter," said Mrs. Chichester.

While Mr. Brotherton and his friends were hunting each other in the old Chinese city other Los Angeles people were having a terrible experience. For two days a party of thirty Angeleños lay strapped to their bunks in the steamship Prinzess Alice, while the ship struggled in the grip of a China Sea typhoon. The ship weathered the storm, however, and steamed into Singapore harbor seven days after leaving Honkong.

MANY ARE SEASICK.

With the exception of Homer Laughlin, his daughter, Miss Gwendolen Laughlin, and D. F. Robertson, the members of the party were woefully seasick, and declared that should they ever reach land again nothing would induce them to go to sea again. They would stick in China, they said, until they could return to America in an airship. They were: Mr. and Mrs. Sidney A. Butler, Miss Ruth Church, Mrs. H. W. Carson, Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Day, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Freeman, Mrs. W. W. Hadley, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Lattin, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McConnell, Mr and Mrs. C. McIntosh, Mrs. E. P. Nichols, Miss Jennie J. Ogden, Mrs. M. G. Ryland, Mrs. W. F. Thornton, Homer Laughlin, Miss Gwendolen Laughlin, Dr. George Lyman, Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Miller, Master C. Miller, Mrs. S. W. Church, Miss Genevieve Church, Carlton Carson, Miss Gretchen Day, Mr. and Mrs. A. Leed, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lloyd, Miss Fay Nichols, Mrs. A. L. Ryan, Mrs. O. B. Warnock, Mrs. Jennie J. Wild.

Long before the crippled Prinzess Alice limped into the harbor at Singapore it had been concluded by the officials that she had been lost with all hands, as the following, taken from the Singapore Free Press, of November 24, will show:

"For the past twenty-four hours H. M. S. Kent has been trying to call up the missing Prinzess Alice. In cases of ships not belonging to the royal navy it has been the practice to spell out the name of the ship in calling. The call Prinzess Alice, repeated every half-hour during the last twenty-four hours, has brought no response, and it is generally concluded that she is lost.

"The agents of the Nord-Deutscher Lloyd called yesterday morning on board H. M. S. Kent and were glad that the British cruiser had done everything in her power to get into wireless communication with the missing Prinzess Alice.

ANXIETY INCREASES.

"With every hour the German mail remains unsignaled the anxiety is increasing. It is understood that a telegram from Singapore has been sent to Honkong to ask that the German cruiser Juguar be sent down to the neighborhood of the Paracels to search for the missing German liner.

"The anxiety has increased greatly. One gentleman, who had intended to travel by the German mail from Honkong suddenly altered his plan and traveled by a Japanese steamer, which has arrived in Singapore, only to find when he arrived that the steamer by which he had first intended to travel, had not arrived."

The Prinzess Alice left Honkong on November 17. At that time the typhoon signals were up in the harbor, but the captain thought that by steering a course wide of the Paracels he could avoid the typhoon.

"That same night, after we had gotten about 100 miles out to sea, the barometer began to fall rapidly," said Mr. Robertson, who was one of the party of Los Angeles people on board. "It blew a gale, and by midnight the wind and sea had risen to great violence. Throughout the next day it blew and the sea ran high. Waves continually washed over the deck and the captain advised us to strap ourselves in our berths. This we did. At 11 o'clock Thursday morning the course of the ship was altered to the northeast and she sailed thus until Friday morning, when she again turned southwest, with the barometer rising. The wind was still blowing strongly. We kept on this tack until 2 o'clock in the afternoon, having covered about sixty miles. The captain then decided to again turn to the northeast, the high wind and seas having in no way abated, and the ship was having a very hard time to make headway.

WIND DECREASES.

"We kept on a northeasterly course until Saturday morning. By that time the wind had decreased considerably and we again turned south. We should have reached Singapore on Sunday morning, but at that time we were still 1042 miles from our destination, and had sailed 935 miles. The entire distance from Hongkong to Singapore is 1420 miles, so it can be seen that we had been driven far out of our course.

"The weather continued fairly good from Saturday until the end of the voyage. We reached Singapore on Thursday morning. During the storm the captain did everything possible for our comfort, and we presented him with a vote of thanks signed by every passenger on the ship."

The first prize for best results obtained from the European trip, however, will go to Mr. and Mrs. Julius Black of Los Angeles, who are at present in Nice. When they return to Los Angeles they will bring with them a pretty girl baby, born at Nice on March 25. Constance Rosely is the little girl's name, and according to Mr. Black, she is as healthy as though she had been born in Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Black have been in Europe about a year, the trip being their honeymoon. They plan to remain for the Passion Play before returning to Los Angeles.

They made the trip from New York to Switzerland on the initial voyage of the new steamship George Washington, having an exceedingly pleasant voyage. From Switzerland they journeyed to Germany, and from there to Holland and England, arriving at Nice, France, several months before the date set for the opening of the carnival. By arriving early they were able to secure accommodations, which were impossible to obtain for love or money after the carnival opened. Mrs. Black and a number of Los Angeles friends took part in the big street parade, all wearing costume and masks.

ANGELENOS MEET IN PARK.

Once they were sitting on a bench in a park at Geneva. A man and a little girl were sitting on the other end of the bench. Mr. Black and the man fell to talking and during the conversation Mr. Black happened to mention that he was from Los Angeles.

"Why, I'm from Los Angeles, too," said the stranger. He was Henry Louis, who is making a tour of Europe with his wife and daughter.

On one occasion Miss Gwendolyn Laughlin, in company with two young ladies from Philadelphia, left the party and climbed to the top of Mt. Fugiuama, in Japan. The mountain is one of the highest in Japan, and to make the trip to the top and back requires a week. Miss Laughlin and her two companions desired to see the sunrise from the top of the mountain. Others of the party consented to wait at the hotel while the young ladies made the journey.

It was necessary for them to leave the hotel at 3 o'clock in the morning. They were carried in chairs swung from the shoulders of native carriers.

"Only part of the climb can be made in the chairs. As one nears the top it is necessary to do some of the hardest climbing that is to be found in Japan, but the view from the top well repays one for the trouble," said Miss Laughlin.

The same party arrived in Seoul during the midst of an epidemic of cholera. The officials refused to let them proceed. They were determined to see Seoul, so a private car was stocked with provisions and the party proceeded to the stricken city. People were dying at the rate of seventy-five and a hundred a day, but none of the party was stricken.

They are now traveling through Spain, having visited in turn Italy—taking the same trip Mr. Roosevelt took—Germany, France and Belgium.

REASONS FOR HIGH PRICES.

A Rational View of the Economic Situation That Is Well Worth Reading.

[Pilot Rock (Or.) Record:] Various have been the reasons assigned for the prevailing high prices of foodstuffs. The city press is disposed to account for the high price of meat and other necessities to the constantly increasing wage scale of organized labor, and the labor organs, always "biffing" some ignis fatuus, blame the trusts, which they liken to the vampire bat, and in ringing editorials on the abuses of plutocracy tell their readers of the millions the meat trust is stealing daily from the farmers and consumers. As a remedy these labor organs plead for more intelligence and unity among the people.

Henry George, however, foresaw danger ahead for the country when all the people attained a high degree of intelligence. He saw in the graduate of an endowed college a man who might not be content to make an honest living on a small apple tract, which would require his own labor and attention to provide comfortably for himself and family. The old pioneers who settled the country were not, as a rule, men who as the term is now understood, intelligent, as they had no time to be given up to acquirement of knowledge on such abstruse subjects as trusts, labor organizations or the power of the ballot in the hands of beggars, or to shed tears over the fact that God made the land for the people. The more educated, the more intelligent the people, the more dreamers apparently we have in the country. No man is accounted intelligent today who is not able to make a living without manual labor. Parents who are anxious to see their sons go through college and come out equipped for a professional life have much to do with discouraging farm life and adding to the woes of congested centers and the high prices that are puzzling the minds of the professional class.

The fact is the prices of farm products, high as they are, are not high enough. Country people have no fault to find with the prevailing high prices. If the meat trust is to blame for the high prices at which cattle, sheep and hogs are now selling it is to be praised, not condemned. A mutton chop may seem high for those who spend their time in joy rides and racing about the cities in automobiles and to that other class who spend their time addressing socialistic and anarchistic meetings in the parks and back rooms of 5-cent beer joints, but to the Pilot Rock sheepman who receives $7 per head for his marketable lambs, he is perfectly willing the excoriated meat trust should be allowed something for skinning the lamb.

There is still vacant land in the Pilot Rock country for those who want to eat meat, but cannot do so on account of the high price, but to the majority of them death through starvation in the city is preferable to life in the country on a farm. While some of the joy riders and blatant socialistic orators are busying themselves with a solution of high prices a few girls have come into the Pilot Rock country and filed upon land with a view of being able to making a living for themselves. The boys are looking about for some easier way of making a living.

It is not only farm life, but life outside the city, that is becoming more and more uninviting to the average citizen. Professional men and others come into the small towns and remain only long enough to make a small stake, when they pull up and go to the city, buy an automobile and join the busy throng of joy riders. The farmers sell out and move into the city. All classes are bending every energy to make a stake preparatory to life in the city. The only solution of the problem of high prices is more work and less idleness. The meat trust can be fought to a standstill by more people producing what they consume. Tradesmen who are standing on the street corners waiting for a job at union wages must learn that in the ownership of a few acres of God's earth—and the monopolists by no means have got it all yet—and a little work will solve the problem of high prices. They will soon learn to look upon the trust as a benefactor who buys his surplus stuff and puts it in cold storage as a delectable food for those who despise country life. The cold-storage man is the best friend the farmer has.

The Cheerful Liar Caught.

"I'm going to give you a dandy Christmas present," said the occasional liar. "It will cost $20."

When she had recovered she asked him in a low tone, the only one she could muster, what the present would be.

"A complete set of De Maupassant," said he. "Twenty dollars." He dwelt on the price.

She sank limply into a chair when he had taken his leave and thought it over. A $20 Christmas present from the impecunious man! Could she believe it? In the meantime she idly took up a magazine and ran the leaves over, glancing at it inattentively until something caught her eye. She looked at it more intently, read it carefully, REMARKABLE CAMERA LENS.

Will Enable Photographs to Include Everything from One Horizon to the Other.

[Baltimore Star:] Prof. Robert Williams Wood of the chair of experimental physics of Johns Hopkins University has just received word from the officials of the International Photographic Exposition at Dresden, Germany, that there has been awarded to him a prize for his striking exhibit of photographs made with his fish-eye camera, and which show how the world appears to a fish.

Prof. Wood's camera does not have the usual flat lens, but a projective bull's-eye that photographs everything in sight, from the feet to the sky overhead and all around the horizon, covering an angle of 180 degrees. It will photograph objects above water or while submerged in a lake or pond. The professor has been at work on his camera for three years, but it was unknown to the public until he showed a series of photographs at the international show at Dresden, where they attracted marked attention.

The ordinary camera reproduces only what is immediately in front of a small circle represented by its lens. If Prof. Wood's device be placed on a floor the projecting fish-eye will photograph all four sides of the room and the ceiling at the same flash. If held close to a man, say half-foot from his waist, it will photograph all on either side of him and all above his head and below his feet. Should it be suspended from a balloon, it would take a panorama of a city out to the horizon. Other cameras are limited to single views in one direction or to a semi-circle of the landscape, and this is the first that will photograph all that the human eye may see in a sweep in all directions. Its usefulness in war, it is believed, will be very great.

The photographs that won a prize at the international exhibit are unique. One shows a string of Johns Hopkins students that Prof. Woods lined up on a curbstone. The result has a concave effect, but the camera caught every man in the line. Another shows the sky and cobblestones in the street. They appear, it is explained, just as they would to fish looking up from a pond at a group of men around a circular railing.

Another photograph of a single individual shows him distended forward, with feet and shoulders bent backward, much like the comic effect seen in the concave mirrors at excursion resorts. The photograph taken from under a bridge is remarkable, because it takes in all details of the bridge out to both ends.

Prof. Woods says there is practically no end to the variety of novel effects he may obtain. Weird results were obtained by a climb to the top of the gigantic Doric column that forms the Washington monument in Mt. Vernon Place, Baltimore. The camera was held over the edge of the observation platform, 185 feet above the ground. It caught not only the sides of the pile of marble down to its base, but the broad asphalt streets about the foot of the shaft, the park walls and squares to the north and south and the fashionable residences and public structures on widely separated street corners.

MAY DYE DIAMONDS.

Exposure to Heat Will Change Their Color—External Layers May Be Burned Off.

[Philadelphia Press:] The color of diamonds is by no means in every case unchanging and unalterable. Some stones are bleached by sunlight; thus a red diamond on exposure to sunlight is reported to have gradually lost its color and become white. A diamond in the possession of the Persian jeweler Halpen undergoes a peculiar change in color on exposure to the heat. The color of diamonds is in some cases affected by exposure to a high temperature. According to Des Cloizeaux, pale green diamonds, after being heated in the oxy-hydrogen flame, become light yellow; brown crystals under the same conditions become grayish. Baumhauer witnessed the color of one diamond change from green to yellow, and of another from dark green to violet, under the influence of a high temperature. Wohler caused green diamonds to assume a brown color by heating them, but found that brown stones remained unaltered in color. Yellow diamonds, especially those from the Cape, retain their color at the highest temperature.

Many attempts have been made to transform faintly colored stones into the more valuable colorless stones. This is readily effected in those Brazilian diamonds which have a colorless central portion surrounded by a colored external layer of no great thickness. The outer colored layer is in these cases simply burnt away by heating the stone in a crucible with a little saltpeter. The operation is very brief, the colored external layer disappearing in one or two seconds. This device involves no actual change of color, but is simply a removal of the colored portions, which could have been effected just as well by the more lengthy process of grinding. Attempts have been made, however, to decolorize diamonds in which the undesirable pigment is distributed through the substance of the whole stone, but apparently has not been successful.

Oil Stock 20c A Share

"The Company Which Makes the Best Start."

Our company has its land—80 acres in the heart of Section 20-31-24—and over $4500 worth of machinery and equipment on the ground—two rigs up and powerhouses built—bought and paid for—no debts, and money in the treasury.

Our company is incorporated for $1,000,000 in shares of par value $1 each, with 575,000 shares in the treasury. No promotion stock, but all stock paid for. A California incorporation. With the following organization:

President—L. E. Behymer.
Vice-President—F. B. Woodruff.
Secretary—F. W. Courtney.
Treasurer—Alfred W. Allen.
Director—E. F. Smith.

We now offer for public subscription, subject to prior sale, 50,000 shares of stock at 20 cents a share Par value $1. Proceeds from this sale of stock to be used immediately for drilling our first well.

Our stock will be listed after drilling is begun. Pre-organization stock will be pooled for six months.

Nothing is to be paid upon the land. Nothing is to be paid in royalties from production. All that is subscribed goes to develop this property. All that comes as net earnings from production will be spread as dividends among the fortunate stockholders.

A 1000-barrel well will pay 20 per cent. dividends on 1,000,000 shares of stock. Logically we are entitled, from the location of our land, to get a much better well than that, before that much stock is issued.

Call on us or call us up. It will pay you to inquire fully and be convinced as to the attractiveness of this offer at

STUDY THIS MAP—This map is designed to show that portion of the Midway Oil Fields lying directly west of Buena Vista Lake, and to indicate with approximate accuracy the development which is in progress. The dots show where rigs are going up. No producing wells are shown except the Honolulu Gusher on Section 10-32-24. Extending from that property in a northwesterly diagonal, are the operations of the American Oil Fields Company, which has now combined with McLeod and his associates under the name of the "Barnodon Oil Co."

The property of the Midway Provident Oil Company is shown as 80 acres in the heart of Section 20-31-24. There are two 40's, one a quarter of the northeast quarter section, the other a quarter of the southeast quarter-section. A derrick is up on each 40. The machinery is on the ground, and as soon as water is piped from the main to the boiler house we will be ready to start our first string of tools.

This water-main comes westward from the lake across Sections 23, 22, 21 and 20, and will connect with a pipeline to supply the Barnodon developments on 30, 24, 14, 10 and 4 (beyond the map limit.) Mitchell, on 22, has his rigs up and is almost ready to "spud in." Another rig is up, which is not shown on the above map, because it is located on a fraction shaped like a sliver, and running between the properly surveyed range lines 23 and 24. This well is located almost at the point where the wagon road crosses the line between Sections 13 (31-24) and 13 (31-23.)

Our two rigs loom large on the horizon to anyone coming down from the Buena Vista Hills south of us or from the Elk Hills, north of us. Section 20 lies in the basin between the two ranges of foothills. The Standard pipeline from Taft to Bakersfield passes within less than a mile from our ground.

Activity extends into the Elk Hills to the north and far to the northeast of us. Geologists who have reported on this region declare that the formation slopes down with the hills into the basin west of the lake and there lies flat. We should be—and if their calculations are correct—we are, directly over the center of a large underground reservoir of oil.

Oil men who know the territory thoroughly, like Barneson, McLeod, Waite and the American Oil Fields agents, will all say that we have as fine a section to work upon as there is in the region.

The above map is lacking in some details, but history is making in Midway these days so rapidly as to put every map out of commission about as fast as printed. The essential facts as given above are true, and may be verified by anyone who will take a trip to look over the property.

The latest is that work is going in on Sections 18 and 12, diagonally northwest of us, as well as on 26 and 16. Alternate sections, it will be understood, are land grants of the S. P. R.R. Even on some of those sections, attempts are being made to operate.

GENIUS.

GIRL PRODIGY Y.W.C.A. WARD.

CHILD DOES MARVELOUS WORK AT THE PIANO.

Father of "Little Sister of the Association" Brings Her from Armenia to Secure Education and Local Musician Declares She Will Become a Great Artist.

At the age of nine years, little Gensag Santikian plays classical music as perfectly as do many students of mature years, and with more than average feeling and expression. Simple and unspoiled, she plays at the piano as most children play with dolls, or other toys. To make music is her happiness, her very life.

A few months ago Gensag's father came to Los Angeles because he had heard that here he might obtain for the little daughter an opportunity for the education in music which her talent, her genius, seemed to demand. Leaving his family in a northern city, he and the little one reached here, with small acquaintance and still less money. However, M. Santikian is able in many ways, and he soon found something to do for a livelihood. But he was confronted with the question of how to place the little girl.

An Armenian by birth, he had journeyed to America for the express purpose of educating his family here. In Armenia M. Shantikian had early become to convert to the Christian religion, and devoted much of his time to preaching the gospel, and to kindred work. So, in his dilemma, he took the child to the Y.W.C.A, which he was told extended help to those needing assistance or protection.

He placed Gensag under the chaperonage of Miss Chappell, the extension secretary of that organization.

Such chaperonage is not new to the Association, but Gensag is the first prodigy placed there.

Herr Becker, upon hearing the little girl play, offered to give her a free musical education, and is already pluming himself upon the prospect, so dear to the heart of the true music-master, of presenting to the world, a great genius.

Through the efforts of Association members, some ladies in Pasadena generously contributed a fund, by means of which the family was brought to Los Angeles, and the happiness of reunion with the loved ones has recently added inspiration to little Gensag's music.

"I named her Gensag," said the father, "which means in our native tongue source of life."

Asked as to the first intimation of the child's genius, he replied: "At the age of three she began keeping time to her older sister's playing; and if an error occurred she would shake her head and protest. We soon saw that she had natural ability—inherited, doubtlessly from her mother, who after the age of thirty grasped the opportunity for an education."

From early morning until late at night Gensag is at the piano, unless driven away for needed recreation or rest.

"She is a good child," said Miss Chappell, "obedient, orderly and affectionate. Her care has given me nothing but pleasure. We all hope great things for her—the little sister of the Association, we call her."

She plays with feeling, and imagination; and it seems as though she made no effort at memorizing, as the music becomes a part of her recollection, as soon as played.

The company, with pride, calls attention to the PERSONNEL of its officers and directors, each of whom is a man of large affairs who has left his imprint on the world of business, and has been eminently successful in his respective field. These men have associated themselves together and have organized and incorporated the for the sole purpose of producing and selling oil, and not with a view toward making the stock the dominant feature of their enterprise.

The capitalization of the company consists of 1,500,000 shares of stock, with a par value of $1.00, and is incorporated under the laws of the Territory of Arizona. One Hundred Thousand shares of the TREASURY STOCK will be sold at 25 cents a share to provide money to develop the company's property. The stock is fully paid and non-assessable.

The company is the owner by completed purchase of 58 acres of proven oil land located in Section 30, 12-23 North Midway, which section immediately adjoins fractional Section 25, on which is the famous Lakeview gusher, and lies S. E. of the Standard's big wells on Sections 20 and 30, and in close proximity to the Monte Cristo, Wellman, Union, and So. Pacific large producing wells. The real intrinsic value of the 58 acres owned by this company is due absolutely to its known particular choice location on proven ground, and for this reason alone it was selected and acquired. It is believed that this acreage will produce as much oil as any other acreage of its size in California; it cannot fail to do so, being surrounded, as it is, by the biggest wells in the State, and wells that produce oil of the best gravity in the Midway District.

Stock in this company has a real intrinsic value which cannot be questioned, and this value will enhance as work progresses, and the time to buy is NOW—not after you wait to see a well on the company's property—a large part of your profit will then have gotten away from you.

Stock may be secured by wire, mail, or by personal application at the office of the company.

Why Are Mule's Ears?

Evolutionists explain satisfactorily that the reason that the dog's ears lop is because for centuries the animal has been domesticated by man and has lain within the protecting influence of his hut and fire. The dog's ears are said to have originally stood upright as do the wolf's today, but gradually as the necessity for keen hearing became less imperative the dog's ears began to lop.

But how about the mule? It is the duty of somebody to explain why the mule's ears have not lopped down; there is no need for him to have stiff ears. The donkey, the horse and their progeny, the mule, have been under man's protecting influence for centuries and ages. The ass is the beast of burden of the Bible. His ears were stiff then and they are stiff now. It would seem it was about time for them to begin to lop a little—[Indiana Farmer

THE MARKETS.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

Cream squash constitute one of the dainty new arrivals on the local market. They are shipped from Coachella Valley and are selling at $1.50 per crate. Wax beans from that portion of the country as well as from local fields have been arriving in large quantities every day and yesterday they dropped to 7c a pound on the best stock. About all of the artichokes on the market at present are of local production and are selling at an average of ½ cents. Very little northern stock is coming in, the season for artichokes being past. Asparagus was down to 4 and 5 cents a pound again yesterday morning. Mushrooms were down to $2.75 per basket, the lowest they have been for some time. Other vegetable prices remain the same.

Egg receipts were 428 cases. The demand for locals was fair and the price the same as fixed on the day previous, 25 cents for candled stock. Eastern arrivals are not exceedingly large.

Prices on local extra butter were down a cent, ascribed to the warm weather, and also to a falling off in the demand. Receipts yesterday were 54,410 pounds. There were no heavy sales and the quotation on ladle butter was cut out owing to the fact that this grade is not obtainable at present.

Cheese receipts were 5792 pounds. There was very little activity in the market. Prices during the week have all come down from ½ to 2 cents a pound in sympathy with prices in other cheese centers of the country.

Potato arrivals were 2582 sacks. The market on spuds continues in a demoralized way. Local spuds are crowding northern arrivals and some of the new potatoes are being shipped North where they get a much better price than here.

Onion receipts were 34 sacks. Prices on onions are rather unsteady. It is expected that the Coachella Bermudas will be in by the end of this week or the beginning of next. A large crop is expected and onions will probably be much cheaper in two weeks than they are at present.

Pink beans were the only ones offered in quantity yesterday. There were few buyers, no changes in quotations and only 10 sacks of beans reported among arrivals.

The berry season is on in earnest. Receipts of strawberries average nearly 3000 cases a morning and prices are being held up by the large shipments to various parts of the West. Blackberries and raspberries are also very plentiful and are selling as low as 5 cents a basket.

FLORENCE IS FEATURE.

Trading Is Light on San Francisco Exchange and Little Interest Is Shown.

[Special Service to The Times by B. F. Taylor, No. 112 West Third street.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23.—The feature of the Goldfield stocks was Florence, which made a net gain of 22 points and closed 2.32½ bid. The jump in price was due to exceptionally favorable reports from the property and some inside buying. Booth and Atlanta each lost a point, and the balance, including Consolidated, closed unchanged from yesterday. Round Mountain, Pittsburg Silver Peak, Nevada, the Bullfrogs showed no changes.

There were no changes in the prices of the Tonopahs or Rawhides.

Ophir was up 5, Mexican was offered at 1.37½, Consolidated Virginia lost 2½, Hale and Norcross was up 2. Confidence was offered at 1.30 against a 1.20 bid yesterday. Sierra gained 2, Union was up 1. This comprises all the changes in the Comstock list.

Trading was light and there is no particular interest displayed except in Florence.

Compared with last Saturday, Consolidated shows a net gain of 22 cents a share, Florence 32½; Jumbo Extension is off 1, Fraction 4, Booth 2. In the outlying camps, Nevada Hills is up 20, Round Mountain lost 2. Belmont, compared with a week ago, shows a loss of 7½, while the balance of the Tonopahs are practically unchanged.

With the exception of Ophir and Mexican, which are up 5 points, the Comstocks show insignificant losses.

SHARES AND MONEY.

STAGNATION IN STOCK MARKET.

PROSECUTION OF COTTON POOL DEPRESSES.

Speculation Hinges Largely on Action of U. S. Steel Directors on Dividend Next Tuesday—Opinions Vary—Confusions Result—Moving Market Dull and Easy.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, April 23.—Almost total stagnation prevailed on the stock market today. The intense dullness masked some tension of sentiment which was a reflection on part of repressed excitement in the cotton market. The situation created by the intervention of the government to prosecute the pool which is supposed to control the supply of cotton for May delivery has thrown the market into great confusion. The week's liquidation in stocks is believed to have come partly from sources involved in the cotton speculation. The stock speculation has come apparently to a determination to await the action of the United States Steel directors on the dividend next Tuesday, and the showing of quarterly earnings to be then reported. Opinions vary greatly not only as to the probable dividend action but as to the probable market effect of any specified dividend declaration. This confusion arises from the probability that market operations in United States Steel are being prompted by trade conditions or prospects rather than by the immediate action of directors. The stock speculation made almost no demand on the money market. Hence the dull and easy money market in spite of the gold withdrawals, and the extended loan position of the banks of the country as a whole. A rise in net surplus of idle freight cars in two weeks from 25,886 on March 30 to 77,357 on April 13 was taken as corroborative of the trend of opinion in trade conditions. The surprise in the bank statement was the increase in the actual loan item of the clearing-house banks and in the average loans of others. The small changes in the cash item was about as expected. Bonds were irregular; total sales, par value, $710,000. United States 4's coupon have declined 1-4 per cent. in the bid price on call since last week.

New York Curb Stocks.

[Special Service to The Times by E. F. Hutton & Co., Members New York Stock Exchange, No. 112 West Third street, Los Angeles.]

NEW YORK, April 23.—The curb market was very poor, trading limited, and while there was no particular pressure to sell, buying power was wanting. The Boston coppers sold off on a small volume of trading, Lake and North Butte being the weakest stocks. The following were the closing bid and asked quotations:

New York Cotton Market.

[Special Service to The Times by E. F. Hutton & Co., No. 112 West Third street, Members of the New York Stock Exchange.]

NEW YORK, April 23.—A close study of the situation marketwise reveals conditions most peculiar. No one seems to know whether he is coming or going. One set of southern manufacturers is preaching curtailment and clamoring for lower cotton, while another crowd is just as vociferous in its claim that cotton is cheap enough and that the southern spinners don't want to see a decline in price of raw material; but perhaps the most remarkable feature of all is the fact that the bulls have turned bears and the bears turned bulls. However ridiculous this may seem, nevertheless if surface appearances count for anything this is just exactly what has happened. The bears are supporting the market on every decline in an effort to keep the May option at a sufficiently high level to attract cotton to New York, while the bulls sell on every advance to keep the price below a shipping basis with outside markets. The result is that the market has become stalled on center and cannot be pushed off in either direction. It is impossible for anybody to say how this state of affairs will end; but in view of the change of attitude by big leaders, it would seem that in bringing action against the old bull crowd the government is barking up the wrong tree, as the old bear crowd appear to be the parties who are really holding [illegible] New York.

FIVE COLORS FOR TAG DAY.

GETTING READY FOR ANNUAL CHARITY EVENT.

Saturday, May Seventh, Will Be Observed as Tag Day—Society Man Will Appear on Street in Chantecler Costume—High Schools Will Contest for Honors.

Preparations are well advanced for the third annual tag day of the Associated Charities, which will be observed on Saturday, May 7. Many special features are contemplated, the details of which are being kept secret so as to be sprung on the public as surprises.

The contest between the three high schools of the city promises to be interesting, inasmuch as a tag of a different color has been prepared for each school, and if you are wearing a red tag and not a blue one also, you will be importuned to buy, just the same. There are in all five colors, red, white, blue, pink and green, so that when fully decorated a man will resemble a rainbow at a total cost of 50 cents.

The services of three brass bands have been engaged for the day, and others are contemplated, and all the leading theaters will be represented on the streets during the day with groups of actor tag sellers.

A prominent society man has promised to appear in a "Chantecler" costume, accompanied by a flock of tag sellers. Mr. and Mrs. Dick Ferris will appear in an automobile filled with little girls, who will hand out the tags. These are but some of the expedients to which people will resort to make a good showing for the annual charity fund. Last year it netted the Associated Charities $11,000, and an advance over this is expected and much needed this year, as the calls on the association are far in excess of those of any former year. A growing city makes a growing need.

A number of society women have consented to take part in the selling, and an effort will be made to eliminate entirely young girls and a certain class of boys, who have, on former occasions, have been active in selling tags. This part of the work will be confined to the boys and girls of the three high schools, and every purchaser is urged to take a tag for every 10 cents he pays. The accounts are audited on this basis, and by paying more than 10 cents for one tag is placing temptation in the way of some of the boys and girls.

SERIOUS CHARGE.

ASSERTS MONEY IS EMBEZZLED.

COMPLAINT IS MADE BY CAFE PROPRIETOR.

Al Levy Alleges That Former Insurance Man Secured Cash and Notes from Him to Pay Up Premiums and That the Amount Was Not Applied on the Policies.

Al Levy swore to a complaint yesterday charging Modrall G. Yoakum, formerly general manager of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company of California, with having embezzled $222.

Yoakum is no longer connected with the insurance company and is understood to be interested in the California Automobile Company. He was with the Auto Club of Southern California on its annual run to the Malibu ranch, yesterday, when Levy swore to the charge. Justice Summerfield issued a warrant immediately and Constable Cohn left in a high-power motor car to take Yoakum in custody.

The embezzlement is alleged to have been committed in connection with the payment of insurance premiums. Levy is heavily insured in the company. He frequently transacted business along this line with Yoakum and had entrusted him with as much as $800 in cash to pay on his policies.

He says he was not aware that Yoakum had left the concern when he made a demand on the caterer during the first part of the month. When the fact that he was delinquent in some of his payments was called to his attention, Levy was little surprised, as he had not kept close account on his insurance.

According to Levy's allegations, Yoakum told him that it would require $822 to put him in good standing. The figures given him were apparently correct.

Levy says that he paid a check for $222 to Attorney McDonald, who had a written power of attorney from the former manager to collect it. He also gave two notes for $300 each. These transactions are set forth as having taken place on April 4, while Yoakum was visiting near San Diego.

The café man declares that none of the funds was applied on the deficiency in his payments. On the contrary, he alleges that McDonald gave the check to a man named Martin, to whom Yoakum was indebted. It is said that the attorney will bear him out in this statement.

There is no charge in connection with the notes, for they are not due and no offense will be committed until the instruments reach maturity.

Justice Summerfield fixed the bail at $2500. It is probable that Yoakum will raise the surety, as he is reported to be worth considerable money. His friends say he will have a good explanation and defense.

Tom Fitch on Mark Twain.

ONE BRIGHT CALIFORNIAN'S ESTIMATE OF ANOTHER, GONE BEFORE—FITCH'S DUEL.

By Thomas Fitch.

HAIL and farewell, genial and gifted soul! Won't the angels laugh their welcome when they see you coming up the golden sidewalk? They will play no warlike marches, and strike no minor chords of sorrow on their harps, but heaven will resound with the music of "Johnny Comes Marching Home" and "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight."

Dear old Sam! The humor that delighted the English-reading world on two continents, and in the antipodes, for five and forty years was a kindly humor. Pericles said, "I thank the gods that I never caused an Athenian to put on mourning." Mark Twain could have truthfully said, "I never have written a line that inflicted suffering upon a human being." Even on those rare occasions when the keen blade of his wit was turned against some wrongdoer, he left, as does the pearl maker of the Orient who forces a grain of irritating sand between the shells of the oyster, the germ of a pearl in the wound.

Mark Twain's humor was a natural humor. It was never forced or strained. It oozed from every pore of him. It was original. He was never guilty of even that subtle plagiarism which consists of stealing ideas, and robing them in different phrases. If he used the unclothed thought of another he gave the author credit for it and never offered the stock excuse of "unconscious cerebration." His was not the satirical wit of the Gaul. It was the kindly humor of the Celt. His private correspondence and his private conversation were as full of fun as were his published writings. Many years ago he wrote for me a letter of introduction to Redpath's Boston Lyceum Bureau, in which he expatiated in glowing phrase upon the power of eloquence he was good enough to attribute to me, and he accompanied his letter to Redpath with a note to me, saying: "Now, Tom, get up a good lecture and don't be the heedless cause of my first lie."

He predicted the failure of the "Occidental," a literary weekly which was started in Virginia City in 1864, and which almost "died a bornin'," for it lived but three weeks. "Can summer abide on Mont Blanc?" said he. "Will a lark make her nest on an alkali flat? Will flowers blossom in hell?"

Even after he became locally famous as a humorous writer, he distrusted his ability to entertain an audience as a speaker. He was my guest for a week in 1865 at my home in Washoe City, Nev., and, while there, he delivered his lecture on "The Sandwich Islands." I procured for him the use of the courtroom, and I acted as doorkeeper. The admission fee was a dollar. As we journeyed to my home I said to him cheerfully: "I have taken in, Sam, over $200." "And I," said he, gloomily, "have taken in over two hundred people." "Don't depreciate yourself, Sam," said I. "As a humorous writer you outrank Artemus Ward or Petroleum V. Nasby, and you will, before long, enjoy as great a national reputation." "It may be," said he, "but as a lecturer I'm a fraud, ain't I, now?" "Well," said I, "maybe you have a slight tendency that way." "I suspected as much," said he, with tears in his voice. "But," and he brightened up, "there are hundreds of towns in the United States of more than 5000 inhabitants, and maybe I can play them all—once."

His powers as a platform and after-dinner speaker developed as occasion and opportunity were accorded for their use, and before Wendell Phillips and John B. Gough and Henry Ward Beecher had passed away, he ranked with them as a lecturer, both in the frequency with which his services were solicited, and in the prices paid him.

Apropos of Henry Ward Beecher and his celebrated trial, I asked Sam for his opinion of the case. He answered me by saying: "I've no opinion of it, but after reading the report of Mr. Beecher's testimony, in which he swears to his chastity and of Mrs. Tilton's testimony in which she doesn't swear to hers, I'm inclined to accept the judgment of the old lady who said: 'I believe them both. Brother Beecher is innocent, but as for that Tilton creature, she's just as guilty as she can be.'"

Mark Twain, in an article published in the North American Review some time ago, tells the story of his attempt at a duel with James L. Laird, who was then a one-third owner in the Virginia City Union. Mark yielded reluctantly to "the custom of the Comstock" in those days which demanded imperatively that a person who had been subjected to a dose of personal journalism, should challenge the editor of the sheet which had reviled him. The same custom required the challenged editor to either fight or leave the country.

Laird, or Laird's paper, had abused Mark editorially and Mark challenged the offender. Mark tells the story in the North American Review of the duel that didn't come off, and tells it in his own inimitable style, but he didn't tell it all, because he didn't know it all.

I had then retired for some months from the position of editor of the Union, of which paper Laird was part proprietor, and I was attempting to establish myself as a lawyer. While editor of the Union I had been drawn into a newspaper controversy with Joe Goodman, the editor and proprietor of the Enterprise, which resulted in a duel between us, from the effects of which I am still limping. I may remark here as an illustration of the absurdity of the custom of those bygone days, that the editorial in the Enterprise which offended me was written by Putnam, who was not an associate editor, and the article in the Union, which provoked the personal attack of the Enterprise upon me was written by John Church, who was one of the proprietors of the paper, and I never saw it until it was in print.

Church and Putnam should have been the duelists instead of Goodman and Fitch, but Goodman, with chivalric foolishness, assumed responsibility for Putnam's writing, and I, with bombastic asininity, responded for Church. So it happened that Goodman and I had a meeting appointed for us in Stampede Valley in California. Every livery stable rig, every stage, and every express wagon in Virginia City and Carson were chartered by tourists, and Joe Goodman and I exchanged 44-caliber courtesies shortly after sunrise. Joe was a splendid shot and might have killed me, but he elected to hit me in the leg. I could not have hit a barn at twenty paces, and he went scathless from "the field of honah." We afterwards became good friends and are so yet, I hope, though I have not seen him for many years.

To return to Mark Twain and his unaccomplished combat.

Laird was an arrant coward. On receipt of the challenge from Mark Twain he called at my office. His face was white. He handed me the challenge. "I am up against it," said he. "I must either fight or quit the country. I will sell you my one-third interest in the Union for less than its value, and sell it on credit, so that you can pay for it out of the profits, and you assume the responsibility of my article and fight Sam Clemens."

"Can't I buy you out and then apologize to Sam?" said I.

"My partners wouldn't stand for that," said he. "Somebody has got to fight, or it will ruin the paper."

"Sam Clemens and I are personal friends," said I, "although employed on rival journals. I decline to shorten his young and beautiful life, and I know he would not like to be guilty of 'the deep damnation of my taking off.' I am willing to buy into your paper, but I decline to buy into your fight."

This ended the incident. Laird skidooed and went back to Illinois, where he was killed by a citizen, whose domestic felicity he had invaded.

Mark Twain did not enlist in the Confederate service as was erroneously stated in a biography of him which appeared in a San Francisco journal. At the outbreak of the war he joined a home guard company, which was raised in Hannibal, Mo., and became its captain. This company was, as a part of the State Militia, subject to the orders of the Governor of Missouri. That official was a rebel, while the Lieutenant-Governor was a unionist. The Governor issued an order to the home guard regiment at Hannibal to report for duty to the rebel general, Price, whose forces were in Southern Missouri. Before this order reached Hannibal the Governor, on account of the near approach of a Federal force to the capital, fled to a point within the Confederate lines, and the Lieutenant-Governor took charge. The acting Governor immediately sent an order to the colonel of the home guard at Hannibal to report for duty with his regiment to the Federal general at St. Louis. The fleeing Governor, being advised of this, attempted, notwithstanding his absence from the State capital, to still enforce executive power, and he sent to Hannibal another order directing that the home guard be mustered into the Confederate service.

The three orders reached Hannibal within a day or two of each other and were made public.

Sam Clemens thereupon wrote a note to the colonel of the regiment saying: "Sir: I respectfully resign my membership of and my commission as captain of Co. B. Hannibal Home Guard. I am perfectly willing to fight for either the United States or the Confederacy, but this damned uncertainty as to which side I am on is killing me with anxiety. With assurances of my high consideration, I am respectfully yours, etc."

Mark said: "I was troubled in my conscience a little, for I had enlisted, and was not clear as to my lawful right to disenlist. But I remembered that one of the conditions of joining was that the members of the guard should not be required to leave their home towns except in case of invasion of the State by an enemy. The Confederate forces had invaded Southwest Missouri. I saw at once that in accordance with the terms of enlistment I was required to leave the State, and I left at once by the overland route to Nevada, of which Territory my brother, Orion Clemens, had been appointed Secretary.

The dispatches say that one of the causes of the death of Mark was his grief at the death of H. H. Rogers of the Standard Oil Company. If the description of Rogers, which was given by Tom Lawson in his lurid diatribes of him, is at all correct, it is difficult to believe that Mark grieved over his loss. A close friendship between them would resemble a similar alliance between a cooing pigeon and a chicken hawk.

So far as it was in Mark's kindly nature to be a foe of anything he was equally the foe of predatory wealth and predatory poverty. He hated injustice, whenever, and wherever, and however exhibited, and he loved for himself and conceded to all others that personal freedom which denies the right of anybody to interfere with it in its lawful exercise, and which never attempts to unlawfully interfere with the similar rights of others.

Some of the brightest sayings of Mark Twain remain unrecorded, for they were spontaneous utterances, when no reporter was present.

At a banquet in Washington, where the speechmaker began before the service of the menu was completed, Mark arose to respond to a toast; just as the waiter placed a dish of some dainty before him. "I must say," said the speaker, "with Martin Luther at Wittenberg, 'God help me, I can take no other course.'"

In clearing up Mark's room at Virginia City a letter from his mother was recovered from the waste basket. It began as follows: "Samuel, my dear son: Why do you write me conundrums in your letters? I am an old woman and I cannot answer conundrums."

Mark's first recorded witticism was his exordium in a Fourth of July oration, which he delivered at a camp in Nevada, where he was engaged in mining. "My friends," said he, "there was a fitness in my selection as a Fourth of July orator, for I was sired by Revolutionary ancestors, and born of a continental dam."

A political speaker whose utterances were sometimes ungrammatical was enraged by a burlesque report made of his speech by Mark. "Sam Clemens," said the angry politician, "is an educated blackguard." "That," drawled Mark, "is the difference between us."

In an old cement formation at the baths near Carson were found imprints, which a local scientist declared were the footsteps of a primeval ass. "That's a mistake," said Mark, "those marks were made by Uncle Abe Curry, when he was walking around here superintending the building of the baths."

Mark Twain never beat a horse, or kicked a dog, or failed to gently stroke the arching back of a cat. His was the motto:

"He liveth best who loveth best
All things both great and small,
For the dear God who loveth us,
He careth for us all."

Nearly all the members of the old Bohemian band of sixty-three have journeyed on into some "sphere of nightless glory, where they have built their altars." Daggett, the thunder god, whose virile pen was a Thor hammer, which prostrated his foes. Wright (Dan de Quille,) who never wrote a line that did not glow with sentiment. Harry Mighels, the incomparably brilliant editor of the Carson Appeal. Curt Hellyer and Deck Mesick, the great lawyers, and, now that Sam Clemens—rest and peace to his soul—has journeyed on, heaven must be nearly full. It waits close at hand, for Charley Goodwin and Joe Goodman, the poet journalists, and maybe for me—Who knows?

At my long, long stay."

FROM SACRAMENTO.

COLDNESS FOR JOHNSON IN CANDIDATE'S OWN BAILIWICK.

Lack of Enthusiasm at Sacramento for the Rooster League Candidate for Governor—Tripped Up by His Own Demagogy—Gov. Gillett Starting Out to Work for the California Panama Canal Fair.

SACRAMENTO, April 22.—That Hiram Johnson has not nearly the strength with which he has been redited, in Sacramento at least, was mply proved last Saturday when the eague candidate wound up his tour of he Sacramento Valley with a demontration in the city of his nativity. It was the coldest reception I have eceived anywhere," he is reported to ave said. But whether he said this r not, he and his supporters were nanifestly disappointed. The Johnson rowds and enthusiasm probably grow n ratio to the distance the news is arried by his press bureau.

It is doubtless true that he had some ood meetings up the valley, however. A reputation—beyond his deserts—as o his oratorical ability, had preceded im, and the people turned out to the ree show. Many of them were his olitical opponents, and as many othrs Democrats. The largest of the neetings was at Chico, where Florence O'Brien, the league candidate for Secretary of State, owns and publishes a laily newspaper. Eleven hundred was he figure given there.

Now, Sacramento is a much larger ity than Chico—several times larger. Besides, it is Johnson's old home, and reat efforts were made to bring out a big crowd. Red bordered advertisenents were inserted in the newspapers. Two meetings, one in Oak Park, a suburb, and the other at the Clunie Theater, were arranged for, and it was announced that there would be an "overflow" meeting for those who could not get into the theater. At the last moment the Oak Park meeting was called off, and there was no need of an "overflow," the theater not being filled. The house holds 1134 and at least a hundred seats were vacant. The crowd was smaller than at Chico. And, as elsewhere, many of those who attended, went from motives of curiosity.

Earlier in the week, there was a show-down of strength between the Johnson and Anderson forces. The local clubs of both were organized the same night, and Anderson had by far the better of the showing. Anderson grows in strength here daily, while Curry and Johnson make little if any progress. Curry has a considerable following among the labor unions here. Johnson makes frantic appeals to the labor element but it does not seem to do him any good. And the business element here is strongly for Anderson.

A dodger issued from the office of the Labor Tribune and widely distributed, attracted considerable attention. It denounced Johnson for asserting that all railroad men are "under the foot of the Southern Pacific and have no brains, and fear for their jobs. The thousands of mechanics in the railroad shops here are disgusted with Johnson, because he said in San Francisco that they were all Greeks. He knew this was not true. But he is a man readily given to the making of careless statements, under the influence of the demagogy of the moment. He has pandered shamelessly to the prejudices of the laboring men, but succeeded only in lying to and about them.

He was called to account here for his reckless assertion about the Greeks. In an interview given to the San Francisco News he had said that all the men employed in the railroad shops here were Greeks, although in truth there are no Greeks there. The league press bureau took up the interview three weeks ago and spread it broadcast. He never denied it until brought face to face with it here. Then he calmly repudiated the interview and his press bureau as well. Newspaper men are familiar with his kind.

TRIPPED.

He tripped himself, through his arrant demagogy, again, in telling his audiences at Dunsmuir and Sacramento, both railroad centers, that if he were elected Governor, he would see to it that an employers' liability law was enacted. Presumably he was simply ignorant of the fact that there is now such a law in California, passed three years ago, and signed by Gov. Gillett.

His views on this subject were also circulated by his press bureau, and copied by his newspaper supporters, chiefly Democratic. Johnson says his attention was called to the interview some time ago but that he did not deny it because it was "silly." Yet this week, his press bureau, not content with having sent out the interview verbatim the first of the month, sends it out again verbatim, and printed this time in black, heavy type, to attract attention especially to it. Evidently his press agent relies upon its being copied in many places which the contradiction will not reach.

The Chico Enterprise, published by Florence O'Brien, excuses Johnson on the plea that it was a "slip of the tongue." But on the same page and in the same issue, the Enterprise reprints the interview in another column, just as it stood originally. That also was a "slip" doubtless, but similar slips are being made by Democratic and Lincoln-Roosevelt papers all over the State at the instigation of Johnson's press agent.

DEMOCRATS HELP HIM.

The league candidate complains that he is getting fair treatment only from the Democratic papers as a rule. Without inquiring into his idea of "fair treatment" it is not strange that the Democratic papers exploit him. He is openly accused by the Nevada City Transcript of going into the back room of a saloon while in that city and consulting with the Democratic leaders. The league is plotting to work with the Democrats for the election of a Democratic Congressional delegation, and a Legislature in which the league and the Democrats will have a combined majority. Johnson alone, of the five Republican candidates for Governor, refuses to say whether he will support the nominee of the party after the August primary unless he wins himself. By inference, he will not. He declares that the others are creatures of the "machine," to destroy which is his only object. His newspapers are also supporting Bell, many of them, with the announced intention of urging Bell's election if Johnson is beaten at the primaries. He has repudiated President Taft, the leader of the Republican party. He is an enemy of the party whose nomination he seeks.

I predicted in the beginning that Johnson would defeat himself if he talked enough, and he is doing his best to justify the prediction. Johnson is neither a great man nor a sincere man. He is merely an irresponsible demagogue. His speeches are all of one tenor—"down with the Southern Pacific Railroad." He does not show where the Southern Pacific Rail-the present State officers who are running for reëlection, with just one exception, were nominated by the Santa Cruz convention in combination with Gillett; and practically every one of them is on the Lincoln-Roosevelt League ticket now with Johnson. If there is any Southern Pacific ticket in the field, it would seem to be the Lincoln-Roosevelt League ticket—which reminds me of a little story. A Sacramento woman remarked the other day that she could not understand Hiram's talk, because the only time she rode on a Southern Pacific pass was as the guest of Johnson's wife. It is openly declared that the railroad influence will be thrown to Johnson against Bell, in case these two are the final contenders.

THE MACHINE.

I am rather familiar with the circumstances surrounding the candidacy not only of Mr. Johnson but of all of his opponents, and perhaps particularly familiar with the conditions affecting the regular organization of the party in this State just now. And from this knowledge, I can say, unhesitatingly, that no candidate for Governor is backed by the Southern Pacific Railroad, nor by the party's regular organization. More of it is with Curry. Some of the leaders favor Anderson.

The "machine" consists, of course, of party leaders and party workers, and more definitely of party committeemen. This is the party "organization." At present it is split up into as many parts as there are candidates. The only real "machine" in evidence at all now is the Lincoln-Roosevelt organization. It is the purpose of this league organization to supplant the present organization, of which it was until lately largely a part.

Whether the opposition to the plot to turn the party in California over to a traitorous faction allied with the Democracy, can be united effectively, is a large question. The time for doing so is rapidly passing. Toward the end of the campaign it is probable that there will be a slump from some of the candidates to one or two of the stronger ones. If Johnson appears to be formidable then, Curry, Anderson or Stanton, whichever of the three seems the strongest, will naturally attract support from the other two—Ellery not being considered, at present, as a very important quantity. This being the case, as the discerning must be able to foresee, the question naturally arises whether it would not be wise to force to the front as quickly as possible this process of selection or elimination, whichever it may be called. That the traitors of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League can control a majority of the party vote is highly improbable. But a third of the registered Republican vote—including thousands of Democrats—might do it easily.

FOR EXPOSITION.

Despite the need for haste, if anything is to be done in the direction of a party conference, nothing seems to have been decided upon. Gov. Gillett is getting ready for a trip to Washington in the interest of the San Francisco exposition, and he may be absent a fortnight or more. Warren Porter expects to be in Sacramento about that length of time, I hear. The Governor has been outspoken in favor of the conference but has taken no steps toward calling one, nor will he do so. The acting Governor, during Gillett's absence, Mr. Porter, may take the lead in the movement. But whoever does can go no further than getting the attention of the State committee. I am assured that the sentiment in its favor is growing.

Alden Anderson absolutely refuses to be identified with it, however, and so does Curry. It is practically certain that none of the candidates will give it his indorsement. That is well enough. It will not, nor should it, be held in the interests of any one candidate. But this does not mean that many of them will imitate Theodore Bell, and decline to accept an indorsement. Several candidates long identified with the regular organization have sought the indorsement of the L.-R. League because of the advantage which organization and combination confers. There will be the same advantage to be sought if the anti-leaguers in the party—and the big majority are against the league—form a coalition. Always provided the conference materializes.

DISAPPOINTED.

For instance, there is Frank Caughey, the present clerk of the Supreme Court. Caughey has many friends in the league, and he was in hopes that the Rooster Boosters would at least leave that place on their ticket vacant. But last Saturday, in completing their nominations, the leaguers finally decided to indorse B. Grant Taylor of Santa Clara, and Caughey is left with a lone hand to play and at a great disadvantage, in the matter of expenses at least, unless he can get into another combination similar to made by the Democrats at Los Angeles last week. Then there is the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Mr. Hyatt of Riverside county, who was entitled to the indorsement of the league if he wanted it, fully as much as his fellow State officers who received it. Mr. Hyatt had some reason to expect an indorsement. But the league has picked out instead an unknown teacher in the State Normal School at San Francisco, Allison Ware. And Mr. Hyatt must go it alone. Whoever runs against Judge Works for the Senate must finance an extremely expensive campaign and be at a disadvantage as compared with either the league or the Democratic candidate, unless there is organization of the anti-league forces. And this is the case from top to bottom. In addition to having a barrel of money to spend, the league is spending it in the most economical way. And the Democrats, having annexed Tim Spellacy's oil profits, are in an equally favorable position.

DAZED.

The northern delegates returned from the Los Angeles Democratic conference in a dazed frame of mind. "What was it all about?" asked Mayor Beard of Sacramento, one of the local pilgrims. "I couldn't find out."

That Bell has proved himself a consummate hypocrite is the net result so far as public sentiment up north is concerned. After denying his responsibility for the original plan to nominate a ticket, the flea-bitten "Lion of Napa" was thoroughly exposed by Albert M. Norton to whom he had written in February fully committing himself to the nominating programme. Theodore was caught in a lie, and a miserable, cowardly lie at that. He is a disgrace even to the Democratic party.

In the East the Democrats have won some notable victories in special Congressional elections recently and are in high feather in consequence. But the domination of the party in this State by Theodore Bell has robbed it of the optimism felt elsewhere. And to complete the tale of woe, Hearst is trying to name party candidates in California by longest leased liar service. Joe Call is decidedly unfortunate in his sponsorship.

POINTS ON POLITICS.

There is a suspicion that more than one Democrat intends squirming his way into the Republican ranks by the L. R. League route this year. For instance Judge McLaughlin, formerly of the Appellate bench, and one of the ablest speakers in the north, a lifelong Democrat, is for Johnson for Governor. He evidently regards Johnson as half way between a Republican and a Democrat. The party will be fortunate if it can trade Johnson off to the Democracy for McLaughlin. Quite likely to happen, too.

A. J. Wallace does not seem to have been a great success on the stump with Johnson in the north. But reports say that he was right there with the check book all the time.

Walter Parker was here during the week, the first time in a long while.

Grove L. Johnson, father of Hiram, has been in feeble health since his return from Southern California.

Johnson has had trouble in getting men of any prominence to preside at his meetings. The "Big Noise" of the campaign has signally failed to attract to his cause the substantial class of citizens.

Stanton's petition is in circulation in Butte county.

With the passage by the Senate of the Rivers and Harbors Bill, nearly a million dollars becomes available for the improvement of the Sacramento River. It is a great victory for Duncan McKinlay. No Congressman from this district has been more successful in promoting its welfare at Washington. Yet the Link-Roosters propose to beat him for renomination with a Democratic member of the Legislature, John W. Preston of Ukiah. Nice Republicans, these Link-Roosters.

Nat Ellery is going ahead with his campaign just as though he expected to win. He has made arrangements to open headquarters in San Francisco and his petitions are being circulated in fifteen counties, including Los Angeles, Kern and Kings.

Jack Lowe to Tackle Iowa Mat Artist in Feature Bout Carded This Afternoon.

Jack Lowe is to meet E. J. Hall, a lightweight wrestler of Iowa, in a bout this afternoon in Chutes Park. "Dud" Hall, as he is more commonly known to his followers, has trained under Gotch and "Farmer" Burns, who is now with Jeffries. Lowe weighs 126 pounds, and Hall 135. A good match is anticipated.

Later in the afternoon, Jack Lowe will try to throw E. Robertson and O. Holst, both of whom will be pitted against him in the same match. E. Robertson weighs 170 and O. Holst 165.

NEW PLAN FOR CONSOLIDATION.

SENTIMENT IN ALHAMBRA TURNS TO LOS ANGELES.

Pasadena's Municipal Lighting System Fails to Create the Interest the Larger City's Proposed Water and Power Improvements Is Causing Among the Citizens.

Mayor Earley of Pasadena has struck a snag in his proposed consolidation of South Pasadena and Alhambra with Pasadena. The trouble comes from Alhambra, where a sentiment for consolidation with Los Angeles, rather than to Pasadena, has been growing since the circulation of petitions for annexation to Los Angeles, of the land which lies between Alhambra and this city.

The Alhambra people have considered the question of consolidation with Pasadena, to obtain the benefit of its municipal lighting system, and those opposed to the project point out that it will be but a little while until Los Angeles will not only be in a position to offer municipal light, but municipal water as well.

Since the voting of the harbor and power bonds in Los Angeles, the municipal lighting system is assured, and the offer of Pasadena is offset, while the question of water for the Alhambra dry section will be solved easily by the bringing of Alhambra into Los Angeles.

For a long time water has been needed for a strip of land between Pasadena and Alhambra, and it is this section of the proposed consolidation district that desires to come into Los Angeles instead of going into Pasadena.

J. C. Jenkins of Chicago, who is said to represent eastern owners of Alhambra real estate, and who has just completed his annual inspection of the property, said last night: "I cannot see anything in the joining of Alhambra with Pasadena.

"We want the lowering of street car fares between Los Angeles and Alhambra, for it is to Los Angeles that our people go for shopping and trading purposes. Consolidation with Pasadena could not give this.

"Owens River water and the immense amount of power that this will give the district will more than offset any present advantages that Pasadena municipal light offers at the present time. I believe that this is the feeling of other property holders in the vicinity."

DOING THINGS.

FIRST HARBOR STEP COMING THIS WEEK.

Condemnation Proceedings to Open City's Highway to the Municipal Docks—City Attorney and Engineer Getting Busy—Meeting Tomorrow.

CITY ATTORNEY HEWITT will probably make the first definite move toward the building of a city harbor this week. He has plans and specifications practically completed for the filing of condemnation proceedings to open up the public highways to the city's frontage in both San Pedro and Wilmington.

"We are thoroughly convinced," said Mr. Hewitt, "that the first step is to secure access to the docks and wharves which the city will build. Now that the bonds have been voted there is little doubt but that they will readily be sold. We shall not wait for that action to take our first steps. Just at present I am delayed by getting off the papers to the experts who will examine the validity of the bonds. As soon as they are out of the way, and that will be within a day or two, I shall be ready to ask the City Attorney for permission to file the condemnation proceedings for public highways.

"The first objective point of the city will doubtless be the 146 acres of land in the outer harbor, to which [illegible] clear. In order to reach that there will be some expensive work to be done on the approaches. There is no great obstacle in the city's way but there are lots of details to be worked out by the legal department. It will be our policy to go straight ahead and condemn the property we need, but the routes selected will not be made public until the proceedings have been filed.

"In Wilmington we shall improve two main thoroughfares to the water front, D street and Fries street. It is a simple matter to secure the right of way there and the city has something over 1000 feet of frontage in addition to the tidelands which are now the basis of suits in Judge Bordwell's court. We shall go ahead with our plans for opening up these thoroughfares as early as possible, regardless of the tideland suits which we expect will bring us a much greater frontage on the inner harbor.

"We have had a number of propositions from property owners on Knob Hill in San Pedro who are anxious to cut down the grade there and open a level thoroughfare to the water front. We hope to have assistance from them but are making plans that will give the city the right to carry out its whole scheme independently if necessary.

COSTLY STREETS.

"The opening up of streets will be expensive but it will be necessary. If the city were to build its docks first the rights of way providing access would become much more valuable and harder to secure through that very improvement. The two plans work together in that the city will be able to use much of the soil that is cut away from the hills to fill its 146 acres of tidelands.

"I can say for the legal department that so far we have encountered no insurmountable difficulties in the way of the plan that is being worked out by the City Engineer. Certain parts of the work will move slowly until the situation is cleared up and there is a tremendous amount of legal work involved, but it is only a question of time. We also expect to secure a number of important acquisitions to the city's rights and titles in San Pedro before long. It is our policy to take everything we can get on the water front and there are a number of valuable openings that the city is in a fair way to secure."

JOINT MEETING.

The Board of Public Works and the Harbor Commission will hold a joint meeting on Monday at 2 o'clock to discuss a general plan for the improvements to be made with the $3,000,000 harbor bonds voted at last Tuesday's election. The question of how and where to spend the money bids fair to occupy the time of these boards through many sessions. Serious problems have been confronted in working out the tentative plans.

For several months City Engineer Hamlin has been working upon tentative plans. City Attorney Hewitt has also been pursuing investigation into the legal phases of the situation. Both of them are ready to make reports, but these reports will leave various open questions.

Stoddard Jess, president of the Harbor Commission, and Gen. Chaffee, chairman of the Board of Public Works, have not so far committed themselves to any detailed scheme of improvement in the harbor. They say it is a matter to be worked out by the engineering and legal departments, and that all they will do is to exercise their judgment in expressing approval of the results to be obtained by the plans.

THE PLANS.

So far no portion of Mr. Hamlin's plans have been made public, and neither he nor any member of the Board of Public Works will discuss them until after they are formally presented. It is known that he has devoted considerable attention to a system of deep-water wharves and docks in the outer harbor and to opening an avenue to reach them.

"There are two or three difficult points involved," said Gen. Chaffee, in discussing the matter yesterday. "It will be of no use to build a harbor unless we have an approach to it. There are legal as well as engineering difficulties in reaching the city's deep water frontage.

"I do not know just how soon Mr. Hamlin's report will be ready. I understand that he has a large part of it completed, but no time has been fixed for bringing it in. It will be some time before the money is available and by that time we shall probably have a plan of operation."

"There is no one who knows what is going to be done at San Pedro harbor except in a general way," said Stoddard Jess. "The engineer has plans worked out but they are still subject to approval. We are interested in selecting the most practical and feasible way of getting a deep water harbor at as early a date as possible and this involves the problem of getting an approach to it. The rest involves engineering details upon which the City Engineer has been working for some time but which will not be made public for some time yet."

LOCAL MINER IS FORTUNATE.

G. A. GRAHAM FINDS WEALTH IN JARBIDGE.

At Thirty-five Feet Los Angeles Man Makes Rich Strike—On Way Here for Family—Smelter Owner and San Francisco Expert Also Lucky.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.)

TWIN FALLS (Idaho) April 21.—G. A. Graham started for Los Angeles from this city tonight to see his family, which he left four months ago in response to the call of the Jarbidge (Nev.) discoveries, feeling that he has a fortune assured, through disclosing enormous riches in one of the gold-bearing ledges on which he took a lease four weeks ago.

Almost with the first shots he encountered good luck, and as the work progressed he found values were richer. By the time the tunnel had reached a depth of thirty-five feet Graham was taking out ore that carries around $500 per ton.

He began sacking on April 14 and will bring his family into Jarbidge to witness his further operations, which are suspended until his return, for fear that high-graders might develop in the miners. Graham was formerly engaged in the mining business in Arizona and has many acquaintances in Los Angeles.

D. D. Calkins, manager of the Tacoma smelter of Tacoma, Wash., who had investigated the ledge during a ten days' visit to the district, arrived here with samples of ore from one of the ledges he had examined so favorable that he purchased same from the sheep-herder owner for $2100.

Until the disclosures of its riches in the ore from this ledge, which Calkins found upon reaching this city, he had supposed it would yield about $200 per ton.

Tests made today, however, show values of $400 to $1000 per ton. Calkins also started for his home feeling wealthy, if he never was before.

The sheep-herder had made boasts in the camp after receiving the small fortune that Calkins paid him, that he had sold a "pig in a poke," but indications now are that he parted with a bonanza mine for camparatively a few farthings.

Since the beginning of development of Jarbidge the last month, its street in the gulch receives reports of strikes every day. There are 1500 to 2000 people there, and the excitement is increasing regarding these many favorable discoveries.

W. A. Stevens of San Francisco, who was the first expert mining man that arrived in the camp last winter, just after announcements were made in Southern Nevada, has a bonanza in his Belmont, which is yielding high-class ore from the bottom of the shaft, varying in values from $200 to $600 per ton.

BUILDING CRITICISM.

LOS ANGELES, April 22.—[To the Editor of The Times:] As a stranger in the city, here for recreation and with much time in which to "take notice," I have been amazed by the manifest disposition on the part of the builders of "Lovely Los Angeles" to fly in the face of nature in the matter of the selection of colors used in the construction of the great buildings, especially in the business section of the city. To make plain my point, I will ask why in this land of brilliant sunshine so many buildings should be constructed of materials of dazzling whiteness as to so accentuate the brilliancy of the sunshine as to make travel through the city during the day almost unbearable?

Nature has been more kind. On the desert the fierce glare of the sun is tempered by subdued colorings of the mountains. The eye finds relief in the reds, blues, violets, purples and other shades of colorings reflected from the mountains. The same is true in the Grand Cañon of the Colorado and in other beauty spots in this in-many-ways-favored South West. But in Los Angeles, for the most part, the city builders have flown in the face of nature and have subverted her laws so far as regards color scheme at least.

Of course there are many exceptions to this general indictment. Not all buildings are of the dazzling, eye straining whiteness referred to above, but too many of the new buildings are. Among the exceptions may be mentioned the exquisitely beautiful new Federal building, the Los Angeles County Courthouse, the City Hall and many business houses including the office of The Times, but, the fact remains that too many of the more recent and largest business buildings are dazzlingly white and therefore not in consonance with the color scheme seemingly ordained by nature for lands of brilliant sunshine. Why not utilize the building material, subdued in coloring, though far from drab, which may be taken from hills adjacent to the city—the granites, the limes and sandstones, the marbles—the materials intended by nature for building purposes, and make Los Angeles in every respect a "City Beautiful."

SOUTHWARD HO!

BIG HOSTELRY FOR BROADWAY

Structure to Be Built Between Ninth and Tenth.

Will Reach Eleven Stories. To Be of Concrete.

Other Construction Projects Show Activity.

An eleven-story hotel structure of absolutely fire-proof construction and thoroughly modern appointment is the latest building project for South Broadway. The enterprise, which is being promoted by Mines & Farish, is particularly significant because the big hostelry is to pioneer beyond the present business portion of Broadway and occupy a site between Ninth and Tenth streets. Added significance is found in the fact that the structure is the second of the kind recently projected for the rapidly-developing part of the city's main thoroughfare below Eighth street. The other hotel mentioned, which is to be erected just north of the Majestic Theater building, was reported exclusively in The Times of March 20. Its promoters were Mines & Farish, and it will probably be extended to eleven stories instead of ten, as originally planned. John B. Nicholson is the architect of both structures, and will superintend their construction.

The building just designed will be of Class A reinforced concrete construction. The plans prepared call for a ten-story building, but another story has been practically decided upon. The front of the structure will be of a semi-Gothic and Moorish design, in white tile. The cost will be about $200,000. The ground area to be occupied is 60x155 feet.

The first floor will be given over to two stories, each 18x145 feet, and a handsome lobby, 15x145 feet in size, the walls and stairs being in marble. Two elevators will be installed.

The ten upper floors will contain 190 rooms, the smallest of which will be 12x15 feet, and the largest, twenty feet square. The bathrooms will number 160, and each will contain marble wainscoting. The woodwork is to be of Oregon pine, in white enamel finish. The conveniences provided for are the latest in every respect, and exceptional provisions have been made for ventilation.

OTHER BUILDINGS.

Other building projects of a more modest character, but of great significance in the growth and development of the city, follow: Architect C. F. Hemple has prepared plans for a two-story factory building, which is to be erected by the Kline Invalid Bed Company at Wilmington. It will cover a ground area of 50x150 feet. E. H. and E. B. Skinner have definitely decided to build the structure, which they are to erect for the Pioneer Roll Paper Company at Nos. 249-253 South Los Angeles street, five stories in height instead of four, as originally planned. The building will be of reinforced concrete and occupy a site 75x130 feet. Its cost will be about $90,000.

Charles E. Shattuck is drawing plans for two large brick stables to be built at Sixth and Mill streets for the Los Angeles Public Market Company. The buildings are for the use of patrons of the market. The Architectural Designing Company is preparing plans for a two-story brick store and apartment building, to be erected on Moneta avenue, near Sixth street. The same designers have completed drawings for a two-story brick store building to be erected by G. Gianquinto on Central avenue, near Ninth.

Carl Leonardt has been awarded the contract for the erection of the new Orpheum Theater building on the east side of South Broadway, between Sixth and Seventh streets, a perspective of which was published exclusively in The Times of December 21, 1909. The theater, designs for which were prepared in the offices of R. B. Young & Son, will be a five-story and basement Class A structure, the cost of which will be about $250,000.

A general contract has been let to Carl Leonardt for the construction of the six-story and basement block which is to be built for the Birkel Music Company on South Broadway, just north of Fifth street, after plans prepared by Morgan & Walls. The Llewellyn Iron Works will furnish the structural steel for the building. The first account of this project appeared exclusively in The Times of January 23.

EXTENDED.

WIDENED FIELD FOR MALAGAS.

FRESNO FARMERS WILL REAP GOLDEN HARVEST.

Owing to Cheapness of California Product Easterners Prefer It to Spanish Varieties and Shipments Will Be Continued Throughout the Season—Good Season for All Fruit.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

FRESNO, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Low prices for Malaga grapes in the East last year will bring a golden harvest to Fresno county farmers through the widened field obtained by the cheapness of the fruit last season. The easterners are preferring the Malagas to the Spanish varieties imported by the barrel and carefully packed in cork, says H. A. Sprague, a prominent fruit man of Fresno, who has just returned from an extended trip East.

Heretofore Malaga shipments have been stopped as soon as the Tokays and purple Emperors came in, but this year eastern shipments will be continued throughout the season. The eastern markets now prefer the white Malagas to the dark Emperors and Tokays. The veering in the East will mean much for local fruit growers, as there is a large acreage here in Malagas. The crop has in the past been used largely for State demand.

The eastern apple crop is poor, and there will be a good season for all California fruit.

MINES SHOW IMPROVEMENT.

Campo Seco Copper Is Now in the Field.

Plumas County After Copper Production.

Balaklala Must Install Its Fume Device.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, (Cal.,) April 22.—The Campo Seco Copper Company has organized in Calaveras county to operate the Gallagher group of mines at Campo Seco. This embraces five claims, all of which have been extensively developed.

The company is understood to be composed of eastern and Southern California interests, and plans to work the property along comprehensive lines.

The developements accomplished by former owners have demonstrated large reserves of high-grade copper ore, in addition to excellent gold and silver values. The workings consist mainly of adits and cross-drifts, and it is the intention of the new concern to open the mine to considerable depth beyond the present working levels. The gold and silver contents are sufficiently high to defray all operating and treatment charges, leaving the copper a clear asset.

The mines either adjoin or are close to the Penn Chemical properties, some of the richest copper producers in California.

In the same mineralised zone the Calaveras Copper Company is opening the famous Union mines and arranging for improvements to the plant which will enable a monthly production of 2,000,000 pounds of copper to be maintained.

The Penn Chemical Company ranks as the third producing copper company in California, being surpassed only by the Mammoth and Balaklala Copper companies of Shasta county.

It is reported that the Campo Seco Copper Company contemplates the instalation of a modern smelter as soon as developments have progressed sufficiently. In the meantime shipments of high-grade ore will be made from time to time to custom smelters.

A New Copper County.

Before the end of the summer it is expected that Plumas county will be among the active red-metal yielders of the State. The Engle Copper Company, operating the Engle mines in Light's Cañon, has started its new sawmill and is cutting timber for the smelter building, tramways, chutes and other purposes.

A 100-ton furnace has been purchased and will be installed at once. The condition of the mountain roads is interfering with the transportation of the heavy machinery for the plant, but the thoroughfares are improved under the hot sun and this difficulty will soon be removed.

At the mine, a large force of men are steadily employed in developement work. Large reserves of excellent-grade copper-bearing ore have been opened, while a large section of virgin country is receiving attention. The mine workings consist principally of adits and drifts. Sufficient ore has been extracted and is stored on the dumps to keep the new plant in operation for a considerable period.

Balaklala Active.

The Balaklala Copper Company continues to keep two blast furnaces in constant operation and is conducting extensive work at its mines. Orders have been placed for structural material for the building of a Cottrell fume-controlling device, and the construction of this annex will immediately commence.

The company officials requested a further postponement of the time-limit from July 1 to Ocecber 1, but this was refused by the Executive Committe of the Farmers' Protective Association, on the ground that the agricultural season would be practically over by October and that much damage has been done to crops by the escape of the fumes.

The Cottrell devices consists of the electrical precipitation of the solid particles carried by the smelter smoke.

An electrical energy of 24,000 volts is received by a series of positive electrodes in precipitating chambers and the solid particles precipitated against a battery of negative electrodes, which automatically shakes off the gathered material to the floor of the chamber in the form of dust. Extensive tests have conclusively demonstrated the efficiency of the arrangement.

The First National Copper Company, the holding concern of the Balaklala, has levied an assessment of $1.25 per share on its stockholders. This must be paid on or before May 10, and will be levied on all stockholders of record April 12. This explains the recent weakness of the stock on the Boston and New York exchanges.

Rich Strike in Red Sea.

The Red Sea mine, on the Forest Hill divide, near Auburn, is in the limelight with a series of important strikes. The strike consists of two distinct bodies of gravel, and appears to be the long sought "Blue Lead" channel.

The strike was made in a raise 23 feet above the adit and reveals gravel of splendid grade. Several small nuggets and much coarse gold have been taken out. All of the gravel lies in the blue strata that made this district famous in the early days.

Developments have not progressed sufficiently to demonstrate the extent of the strike, but indications point to its being one of the most important ever made in the district. Oakland people recently took charge of the property and have prosecuted vigorous work. The strike has created considerable excitement and the owners of a number of nearby properties are arranging for work along more comprehensive lines. Among these are the Excelsior, Three Queens, Lehigh and other properties of promise.

Alleghany Untroubled.

There is absolutely no foundation in the stories that have been sent out relative to a strike of the miners at Alleghany for higher wages. The only disturbance in the district occured when the management of the Sierra Wonder placed a number of Austrians at work, and the resident miners promptly refused to continue work.

The company at once discharged the foreigners and the Americans returned to their positions. There was no question of wages involved, the Americans simply stating that they would not work in company with the Austrians.

Miners at Alleghany are receiving $2 per day, and no attempt has been made by the men to secure a raise.

Activities in the district continue to increase as the weather grows warmer. Fully 60 properties are receiving attention, with the Sixteen-to-One, Rainbow, Tightner, Sierra Wonder, Twenty-one, Plumbago, Rainbow Extension and several others particularly active.

Attention is being centered on developments, little effort being made to maintain production with the exception of the Rainbow and Plumbago, which have their own mill. A number of minor deals have been recently transacted and the outlook is for pronounced activity during the spring and summer.

Kern County Mines.

The Atolia Mining Company has a force of 30 men at work in its properties and is actively developing a splendid vein of recently opened tungsten ore on the Churchill.

This vein promises to be one of the richest ever opened in this section. The company has arranged for the early installation of an electrical plant and is seriously considering the erection of a stamp mill.

The Little Butte property is showing excellently under vigorous developements at the hands of the leasers. On the Butte, an adjoining property, leasers are opening ore of excellent quality on the 160 and 200 levels. The veins are small, but the ore extracted is milling $90 to $300 per ton. Several leases are maintaining steady shipments. Benson & Ryan have opened an unusually strong ledge at the 160 foot point.

The concentrator for the saving of tungsten values has been installed at the Red Dog mill and is meeting the demands imposed upon it. Several shipments of tungsten ore from the Stringer district have been treated, the concentrates running about $800 in tunsten.

California Notes.

The Home Ticket mine at last chance has opened a large body of gravel carrying good values. This property is owned by W. S. Fletcher and associates of Los Angeles and Pasadena, and promises to again become one of the principal gravel producers in Placer county. Operations were greatly restricted last year owing to a strike of the miners, on the pretent that Chinese labor was to be employed. All trouble has been settled and the property is about to enter upon active production.

The Casa Diablo Company is sinking the shaft and extending the main adit at its property. The shaft is down more than 250 feet and is being sent down steadily to open the exposed ore bodies at depth. The main adit is driving for the Granite Mountain vein and expects to reach the objective within a few weeks.

Conditions at the property manifest marked improvements and the mill will shortly be operating at full capacity. W. W. Smith has been appointed to suceed Clarence S. Beall as superintendent, Mr. Beall having recently resigned.

The Cape Horn mine at Oroville has recovered the channel, which was lost about nine months ago, and a force of men will immediately be placed at work. The gravel is showing all its oldtime richness and the owners are elated over the find.

The United States Diamond Company is arranging for renewed activity in its properties at Cherokee and near Oroville. The suits [illegible] the owners have been compromised and all impediments to activities removed. It is reported that several small stones of excellent quality have been found since the work has been resumed. The holdings have produced a large number of small diamonds, and the owners are hopeful of finding large stones at depth. Several Southern Californians are interested.

The North California Mining Company has installed a Keystone drill at Halstead Flat and will prospect the ground for dredging. Several shallow working shafts have been sunk at this point and good-grade gravel exposed. The company is also conducting extensive prospecting on several of its Butte county holdings.

PRESCOTT.

NEW HUMBOLDT PLANT OPENS.

SMELTER HAS BEEN ENTIRELY REMODELED.

Labor-Saving Devices Are Installed, Coke Is Handled from Cars to Bins, and All Shovel Work Eliminated. Fifty Thousand Tons on the Dump at Present Time.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) April 22.—The biggest news item of the year to the mine owners and business men of this county of Yavapai, was the starting of the Humboldt smelter of the Consolidated Arizona Smelting Company last Saturday.

A new 350-ton jacket, 48x170 inches, has been kept running on copper ores all week, and has worked without the slightest trouble, with a high percentage of metallic extraction.

A converter stand is being operated also. Preparations are being made for the placing of a duplicate copper furnace and for two reverberatory furnaces, each of 300 tons daily capacity.

The plant has been wholly reconstructed and now is handling ore at less than half the cost known under the old and wasteful régime that ended in bankruptcy.

Practically all shovel work has been eliminated, three men handling seventy-two tons of ore an hour by means of labor-saving appliances.

The railroad coke cars are dumped directly into the feed bins. The charge floor has been floored with cast iron. Steam for a 100 horse power electric generator is secured by utilization of the furnace heat, heretofore wasted.

This electric power is largely used at the Blue Bell mine, near by, a property owned by the smelter company.

An ample supply of good water has been secured by wells in the Chaparral Creek Valley, and the old pumping plant on the Agua Fria River has been abandoned.

On the dumps already are 50,000 tons of assorted ores and large additions are being received daily. Heavy sulphides are coming from the United Verde at Jerome, for which are exchanged silicious ores from the Blue Bell, needed for converter linings at Jerome.

In charge of the company's interests as general manager is B. H. Bennetts, who has under him a force of 200 workmen.

Other Mines Active.

With the starting of the Humboldt smelter has come the starting of production on many mines which have been idle for years, many of them properties that have hard experience with the former management at Humboldt.

New shaft equipment is being added at the Humboldt Consolidated mines, mainly owned by Bowen brothers of Pasadena, Cal.

A new shaft, now 200 feet deep, on the Baumann property has developed a fine body of copper ore. Rich sulphides have been cut at depth in the Arizona Central property and the well-known Stark gold mine near Bumblebee is being worked again, for regular shipments to Humboldt. A new hoist has been put on the Grand Mountain property near McCabe.

The Tiger mill at Tiger camp is running on ore from the Ora Bella mine, producing both gold bullion and concentrates.

On May 1 the Ohio Mines Company will begin extensive operations on the Little Jessie mine in the Chaparral country, a mine with a bullion product record of $600,000. Under the management of A. L. McCarthy, the old shaft is to be retimbered and continued down to 1000 feet from its present depth of 625 feet.

John S. Jones, former owner of the Little Jessie, is now operating his Independence mine in the same locality. A mill run of the average ore has proved wholly satisfactory and preparations are being made for a large output.

Next Monday court will convene in Kingman, about the most important civil action being the suit of W. C. Fellows against the Tom Reed Gold Mines Company, which is charged with having allowed to lapse its claim on some of its richest and best-developed ground.

The Cobre Grande group of fourteen claims, twenty-three miles from Fort Thomas in the Aravaipa district, has been hought for $100,000 by the brokerage firm of Wheeler & Shaw of Boston. The mine has a forty-foot ledge of copper sulphide.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY AND CHEMISTRY.

To Correspondents:

This Department is not conducted for pay. Its object is to convey reliable information of interest and value to the public, and it is not for the private benefit of any miner, collector, speculator or prospector. Correspondents are particularly cautioned to take careful note of the statements and injunctions contained in the paragraphs below:

(1.) Specimens must be small and bear a tag giving name and address of sender, and the general—not the exact—locality from whence the specimen was taken, also the name of it as nearly as the sender knows. Send, also, with the specimen a clearly-written letter briefly describing the find and what the finder wishes done with it. The letter must be properly dated and plainly signed.

Letter and specimen must be in one package, not in separate inclosure.

(2.) No attention will be paid to anonymous letters or to letters signed merely with initials.

(3.) No examinations of samples or specimens will be made in cases where The Times may decide that the specimen and inquiry are not of public interest. This office does not undertake to perform the work of an assay office.

(4.) Inquiries relative to matters of purely personal interest will not be answered.

(5.) When no response to an inquiry made of specimens sent appears in these columns, the inquirer will understand that his inquiry does not come within the purview of this department.

(6.) It is impossible to return specimens, as they must necessarily be destroyed or impaired in the process of analysis.

Address, invariably, The Times.

Native Barium Sulphate.

BRECKENRIDGE (Colo.) March 11.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In separate container—in this sack—please find two samples of ore from a mine owned by me and located in the Ten Mile mining district, Colorado.

The ores of the district consist of lead, zinc and silver, with gangue of quartz-baryte and managanese. I know that sample No. 1 is baryte mixed with quartz. Question, How can the baryte be separated from the quartz on a commercial scale? If separated, would it be pure enough for paint purposes?

I believe that sample No. 2 is dioxide of managanese. Question, Is it pure enough for the chlorination of gold ores?

You will oblige me and other mine owners in the district referred to by answering this letter in the "In the Earth" columns of your peerless paper, the Los Angeles Times.

Sincerely yours, DR. J. C. B.

ANSWER: Glad to hear from you. You have properly named and described the two samples submitted.

Replying specifically to your questions: Sample No. 1 should be subjected to wet method concentration and separation on a concentrating table. It is chiefly a question of specific gravities, that of baryte being 4.3 to 4.7, and that of quartz being 2.7. By so separating the baryte content it would be pure enough for paint (pigment) purposes. Sample No. 2 is too impure for chlorination process.

Chromite and Chrysotile.

LOS ANGELES, March 11.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I offer two samples for classification, both of them from a claim twenty-two miles northeast of San Luis Obispo, Cal. Is the asbestos sample high grade quality? What is it worth per ton lots? It is found scattered somewhat, and in no great quantity.

The dark sample may be some kind of uranium ore, as it looks pitchy.

Thanking you in advance for an answer in the "In the Earth" column.

Yours truly, T. J. F.

ANSWER: The asbestos sample is high-grade serpentine (chrysotile) asbestos, and worth, at locality, approximately $125 per ton. Uranium values are not present in the dark sample, the specimen is chromic iron ore.

You are to be congratulated on the finding of chrysotile (asbestos,) it is the true variety, in matrix of serpentine.

Fuller's Earth and Steatite.

LOS ANGELES, March 11.—[To the Editor of The Times:] These samples come from the desert, about sixty miles from Los Angeles.

I believe No. 1 is kaolin and No. 2 talc. Have they any commercial value? I will be obliged if you will give me an ansyer in the "In the Earth" column.

Yours very truly, W. McC.

ANSWER: No. 1 sample falls to pieces in water. It is a good grade Fuller's earth, and worth approximately $4 per ton f.o.b. cars. Sample No. 2 is a steatite (soapstone,) resembling paraffine, somewhat, and it will make a fairly good grade of paint (pigment.)

Notice.

Owing to an unavoidable accident this issue of "In the Earth" is far from complete.

We hope to have matters up to date and more fully answered in our next.

There has been no recent report of metal values contained, though it is understood that the average is around 4 per cent. copper. MEXICO.

CHIHUAHUA MAKES COMPLETE REPORT ON MINING INDUSTRY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, April 22.—Accurate statistics as to mineral production for the entire republic of Mexico are difficult of access and slow of compilation.

The main reason for this is that numerous liberal producers are situated in isolated camps and often controlled by individuals, partnerships or close corporations, for whom there is no visible incentive toward publicity, and is, on the contrary, avoided because it is costly, from the public tax standpoint.

Only one source of reliable data is available. That is the Finance Bureau of the Federal government. Not yet has that office compiled the figures for the entire year of 1909. The latest reliable data are for the fiscal year of 1908-09, made public in the report of José Yves Limantour, Minister of Finance.

These figures, if belated, are sufficiently interesting, showing that among the nations of the world Mexico stands fourth in production of gold, first in silver, second in copper and fifth in lead.

Computed in Mexican currency, approximately one-half the value of United States money, Mexico's production in the fiscal year of 1908-09 was $45,015,000 of gold, $77,110,000 of silver, $20,383,000 of copper, $6,297,000 of lead, $1,043,000 of zinc, $1,200,000 of iron, $2,052,000 classified as "other metals," $4,400,000 of coal and $2,800,000 of mineral oil. That foots up to a total of $160,400,000 of metals and mineral substances, the total not including production in minor quantities of minerals less valuable.

In round numbers there are 27,000 active mines in Mexico, with an aggregate area of 372,500 hectares, equivalent to 920,075 acres, a hectare being 2.47 acres.

In the northern States are about 10,000 live mines of 165,000 hectares, in the central States 9300 mines of 102,600 hectares, in the Gulf States 200 mines of 5000 hectares, and in the Pacific States 7500 mines of 100,000 hectares.

Americans, with $125,000,000, gold, invested in mines and metallurgical plants, control more than half of all the operating diggings in Mexico, representing 70 per cent. of the mineral output. England ranks second, home talent third and France fourth. Practically all the foreign money staked on Mexico mines has come in within the last twenty-five years and the influx is now increasing more rapidly than ever before.

Chihuahua Active.

Because of its convenient proximity to the United States and its boundless riches of natural resource, the State of Chihuahua has enjoyed a more generous development attention than other sections of Mexico; yet the fact remains that this big commonwealth, where new and fabulous strikes are being made every month in virgin territory or old camps believed to have been worked out, may justly be classed among the mineral fields hardly scratched.

Chihuahua is this season forging to the fore at a remarkable pace, despite the low price of silver and the almost prohibitive tariff exacted against exportations of zinc ores to the United States.

Potent factors, making for the indisputable progress the country is scoring, are the recent revelations as to diversity of ores, erection of reduction plants that are lessening treatment charges to a point where silver ores are netting about what they did when the white metal was above 70 cents.

Uplift evidences are seen in numerous big deals now in process of negotiation. One of these, apparently upon the eve of consummation, is for the Candelnana mines, famous producers.

There is an English syndicate dickering for ownership of a valuable group at the camp of Santa Eulalia, and Americans and Frenchmen are after the José Lago and other zinc propositions at Plomosas.

Contributing materially to the current enthusiasm is the rediscovery of rich quartz and placer ground in the Placer de Guadalupe region, about ninety miles northeast of the city of Chihuahua, near the line of the newly-built Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railway.

On the old La Vargen, or Oaxaca mine, gold is being found in massive nuggets, where it had been believed the workings were barren.

The yellow metal, almost chemically pure, assumes fantastic and beautiful forms of natural jewelry, such as feathers, cubes and filagree.

Some of these have been sent to Europe, one wonderful specimen being in the possession of Emperor William. From one shaft, 300 feet deep, $125,000 worth of these nuggets has been taken, and as much more was probably stolen by the native miners. In neighboring properties the same formation has recently been encountered and a mild stampede is on to the diggings.

Two new lead furnaces have been blown in at the Chihuahua plant of the American Smelting and Refining Company, giving the works an aggregate capacity of 750 tons a day. New mills and alterations, modernization and enlargement of old ones are being built in almost every active camp in the State.

Tremendous Profit.

Only a few years ago the Naica Mining Company was organized upon a par value basis of $30,000, Mexican money, there being 100 shares valued at $800 each. There is now pending a deal for the sale of the property for $6,000,000, Mexican silver, which consideration places upon the shares a valuation of $60,000 each, an advance of $59,700 per share, or 19,900 per cent.

To secure the option the prospective purchasers have deposited a forfeit of $50,000, and it seems morally certain that the deal will go through. Among the near-initiated it is believed the ostensible buyers, Chicago men, are backed by the United States Smelting, Refining and Mining Company, which three years ago spent $5,000,000 for acquisition and development of the Real del Monte, at Pachuca, which is now netting the Boston office $150,000 per month.

This great Naica mine is yielding 300 to 400 tons of ore a day and shipping about 4000 tons the month. The company had recently planned to build a 600-ton smelter at the railway station of Concho.

From the camp of San Pedro the Congreso mine is shipping to the El Paso smelters 100 to 150 tons a day of lead carbonate, silver-gold ore. The property, which is most active just above water level, is being provided with a big concentrator and heavy pumping machinery.

The Isabelita, a mine north of the Congreso, is shipping steadily and the San Pablo, in the vicinity, seems to promise regular consignments at an early date.

Seven carloads of material and machinery have been delivered to the station of Summit, near San Pedro, for the Sierra Mining Company, upon whose estate there has been made a rich surface strike, heretofore unknown. The new lead is forty feet wide and gives healthy pay streaks of gold, silver and lead.

A new mill has gone into commission on the domain of the Mary Mining Company at Ano Nuevo, Chihuahua. There is in readiness for the grind an ample tonnage of high-class grist.

The Lujan lead-silver diggings have reverted to their former owner, Manuel Lujan, after futile negotiations inaugurated by Mexico City operators.

The Cigarrero mine, where there has been uncovered richer truck than the estate ever before showed, is being prospected by diamond drills.

MINING NOTES.

The Exploration Company of London has an option upon two likely silver-lead propositions in Santa Eulalia district of Chihuahua, from which it hopes to be shipping regularly before long.

An El Paso crowd, incorporated as the San Pablo Development Company, has acquired title to the Braxton group of silver mines in the Inas Hills, Bravos district, Chihuahua. From the allied claims of about seventy-five acres there has ben shipped silver ore to the value of $90,000 gold. Without sorting the product averages about $50.

New Yorkers, represented by L. Maurice Cockerell, are exercising a working option on the Princesa silver mine in the Cusihuiriachic district of Chihuahua. The Princesa has proved a generous producer of high-grade ores and this district is taking on new life since the announcement of the probability of its being entered by the Mexico Northwestern Railway.

The Rio Tinto Copper Company, owning producing diggings twenty-five miles north of Chihuahua City, is doubling the capacity of its smelter at Terrazas.

From the San Antonio vein of the mines owned by the Batopilas Mining Company, Batopilas district of Chihuahua, there have been taken some marvelous specimens of native silver, crystallized in calcite. This mine was discovered in 1632, and has been an intermittent shipper ever since. Several times the diggings have been abandoned as worked out, but every time a new owner or optionist has made a systematic search for new leads his efforts have been rewarded. The latest strike is as rich as any that have preceded it. Americans have owned and operated the property since 1904, and in the last five years the San Antonio vein has yielded nearly 3,000,000 ounces of silver. Batopilas is one of five Chihuahua camps where native silver has been found in paying quantities.

Ore blocked out at El Rayo mines, Santa Barbara district of Chihuahua, is measured at 50,000 tons, averaging $15.70 the ton. Of the five miles of workings on the estate, 8426 feet were driven last year. The output all runs some in gold.

La Republica mill in the State of Chihuahua, is treating an average of about 1250 tons of ore per month, yielding approximately $5500 in concentrates in $18,500 in bullion.

Rich dirt has been found at the Santa Domingo mine at Sabinal, Chihuahua, which is shipping to El Paso. The property belongs to Britton Davis and associates of New York.

Shipments to the border town have started from the Santa Elena mine at Terrazas, where there has been in progress for many months a campaign of deep development.

Britishers who have been working on the property since last June, have made the final payment in purchase of the Carmen-Negrita, in Santa Eulalia district. The new incumbents are organized as the Manta Mining Company.

WESTERN CHIHUAHUA.

Western Chihuahua is booming as never before, the impetus coming partly from new strikes and partly from the lengthening of the Mexico Northwestern Railway. In the extreme west of the State there are camps also benefited by the building of the Southern Pacific of Mexico.

The Rio Plata, one of the good ones of that region, paid for the first quarter of this year a dividend of 2 per cent., as against 1½ per cent. for the final quarter of 1909. All indebtedness, amounting to about $109,000, has been liquidated out of the mine's earnings. With the completion of the Orient railroad these diggings will be within twenty miles of rail, whereas, the distance before has been 85 miles, across which gap the company transported 500 tons of sectionalized machinery by mule back at a cost of $300,000. The 400,000 shares of the $2,000,000 company are distributed among 700 stockholders in every commonwealth of the United States.

For 110 years the Palmarejo mine, in the southwest of Chihuahua, has been a steady producer. For the last two decades it has been operated by an English company, which built a twelve-mile narrow-gauge railroad from the mine and mill to a point near Chinipas. The fifty-stamp mill is supplied with power through a fourteen-mile masonry ditch and there will soon be installed a new mill of 300 tons' daily capacity. The lowest level yet reached is by a tunnel that taps the lode 700 feet beneath the croppings.

In this neighborhood is the White Chief, which has for the last ten years kept its fifteen-stamp mill busy on ore that runs from $8 to $20 a ton. In the same diggings are frequent shoots of bonanza truck that goes $200 to $3000 a ton.

The Rio Plata has a 100-ton plant that has been in commission for three years, the feed going about 100 ounces silver. A fifty-ton mill has been installed at the Durazno, twelve miles from Chinipas, and Americans are preparing to redevelop the old Millonaria, once owned by the King of Spain and producer of millions in the colonial days. Americans are also negotiating for the purchase of the Fortuna gold mine, west of Galleg station.

High-grade silver sulphides in substantial quantity have been unearthed in a prospect on Haunted Mountain, Northwestern Chihuahua. A short depth below the croppings the main ledge in a property bought by El Paso people shows black streaks that give 6000 ounces of silver per ton. Some shipments have already been made. This wierd mountain was so christened because mirages of most fantastic and ghost-like appearances are of daily occurrence on its flat summit.

Gratifying results are following operations on the Tres Amigos, Silver King, Carolina, Mascot, Encina, Cinco de Mayo, Seven Stars and other properties, all in Western Chihuahua.

JOHN METEER.

COST OF BAD ROADS.

Annual Loss to People of the United States Exceeds a Hundred Million Dollars.

Careful estimates place the annual loss in the United States on account of bad roads at the staggering sum of $125,000,000, says the Manufacturers' Record. This includes loss of time, labor of man and beast, wear and repair of vehicles, etc., to those using the roads. There is no way of computing the loss to merchants, and all purveyors of trade who suffer because the farmer has less to sell and less with which to buy.

According to the formula of Sir John Macneill, a wagon weighing 1500 pounds and carrying a load of 1500 pounds will require a constant exertion of a force of 94 3-4 pounds to move it at the rate of 3.4 miles per hour over a well-made broken-stone road that is dry and in good condition. A force of 119 3-4 pounds will be required to move it at the same rate over the same road in a wet and muddy condition. It is found by these same tables that an animal can draw about four times as much over a good road as he can over a rough, soft and heavy road. Again, from this same basis of calculation, if the traffic over ten miles of good road engages fifty horses and twenty-five drivers at an annual cost of $21,750 (putting the cost of keeping men and animals at a very conservative figure,) it would cost $87,000 per annum to conduct the same amount of traffic over the same length of road when covered with deep ruts and thick mud. It needs no argument to establish the assertion that this difference of $55,250 expended in road improvement and maintenance would prove a wise and economical investment. Thus there would be saved the large amount wasted on extra men and animals and vehicles; the unnecessary time consumed traveling over bad roads; the shortened life of animals and vehicles so used. There would be gained the advantages of comfortable travel with freedom from excessive dust, mud and rough riding; the use of lighter and cheaper vehicles; the increase of population and traffic, attracted by first-class facilities for travel and transportation. These things cannot be estimated in dollars and cents.

More Than a Murderer.

During the delivery of an after-dinner speech to a gathering of lawyers recently, Joseph H. Choate told of a sentence once imposed by a Scotch judge. When this sentence had been pronounced, his lordship offered the following remarks: "Ye did not only kill and murder the man, and thereby take away his valuable life, but ye did push, thrust, or impel the lethal weapon through the band of his regimental trousers, which were the property of His Majesty."—[London Opinion.

large kettle in which to boil water; second, a vessel for cold water; third; a vessel for water at 120-132 deg. Fahr.; fourth, a vessel, barrel or tank containing water kept constantly between 132 and 135 deg. Fahr.; fifth, a drying place where the grain is dried so it will pass through the drill or seeder; sixth, an accurate thermometer to keep the temperature of the water within the above limits.

How to proceed: The vessels having been arranged and filled with water at the proper temperature, some convenient bulk of well-cleaned seed wheat is taken in a loosely woven bag and immersed in the first vessel containing water at 120-132 deg. Fahr., keeping the wheat in constant agitation by moving the bag in the water, or by stirring the wheat. In about five minutes when the seed will be well warmed and thoroughly wet, it is raised out and most of the water allowed to drain out, then immersed in the second vessel containing water at 132-135 deg. Fahr., moving or stirring as before, and keeping close watch that the temperature does not fall below 132 deg.

After twelve minutes it may be taken out and spread out to dry at some place where it will not be contaminated with fresh spores. When it is drying it may be sown. Some advise dipping in cold water at last, but that retards the drying, and should be omitted.

CAUTION.

(1.) Keep the water in the first vessel well up to 132 deg in temperature, as the cold wheat will lower it rapidly.

(2.) Keep the temperature within the limits stated for the second vessel (which should be a large one,) or the method will not give the desired results.

(3.) Be sure the thermometer registers correctly.

(4.) The seed wheat will swell somewhat, and one-third to one-half more bulk of seed must be sown to remedy this result.

PROGRESS NOTES IN THE MAGAZINES.

Using the Air Currents.

Germany's greatest achievement is not the technical perfection of the air-going craft; she has learned how to use the air currents, as the birds do, in traveling. This is a science; the ship is only its instrument. Airships will double and treble their speed by acting in harmony with the forces of nature, the primal speedmaker. There is a working force only lately reckoned with, even by builders of air craft—and that is the wind. Airships will use the tradewind to reach this continent because it always blows one way. That is as simple a proposition as that a low-powered steamer should use the gulf stream. Air traffic, to compete with rail or water, must maintain as sure a schedule of travel. Germany has already mapped her airship routes to and from America.—[Century.

The Cost of Our Rats.

Experiment shows that it takes about 60 cents' worth of wheat to feed a single rat for a year. The eggs, cheese, young chickens, and squab, which it prefers to wheat, increase proportionately the cost of its board. Even if there were no more rats in the United States than there are human beings, and if each rat consumed and spoiled only 25 cents' worth of food in a year, the total cost in a decade would be staggering. As a matter of fact, the rat population of most communities is at least five times that of the human. To this, moreover, must be added as many more mice; for the mouse is really a rat.

There are, then, probably five hundred million rats in the United States, not including mice and the various wild rats that for the most part keep out of man's way. This means a yearly cost for food alone, of $100,000,000. To this must be added the damage they do in obtaining material for their nests.

The total loss is largely a matter of guess work. A reasonable and semi-official estimate however, gives for Denmark, $3,000,000 annually; for France, $40,000,000; for Germany, $50,000,000; for Great Britain, $73,000,000; and for the United States, at least $100,000,000, of which $15,000,000 is from fires. Fifteen dollars a month is a loss reported from a single farm. No wonder that the United States Department of Agriculture in this country, in Europe L'Association Internationale pour la Destruction Rationnelle des Rats, and a similar society in England are trying to rouse the public to an appreciation of the gravity of this problem.—[McClure's.

Why France Is Rich.

Paris is the Mecca of foreigners. They come from all parts of the world to enjoy life in the great metropolis; and the yearly income from this source alone approximates $600,000,000. Along with this item the earnings of French capitalists on their investments in the securities and properties of other countries amounts to fully $250,000,000 yearly. On the other side of the account is an adverse balance of trade, which in 1907 amounted to $120,000,000. Deduct this outgo from her income of $850,000,000, and it leaves France with $730,000,000 to the good. Instead of getting an income of $600,000,000 from foreign tourists, the United States pays out at least $150,000,000 for the expenses of American tourists abroad. Again, instead of drawing $250,000,000 yearly from foreign investments, this country pays out $300,000,000 to foreign investors in our securities and properties. A third factor is the army of aliens who flock here from all parts of the world to hoard up money, which they take back to their own countries; this drain costs us $300,000,000 more. Add $100,000,000 more which we pay for ocean freights in foreign vessels and the yearly outgo is $850,000,000. Deduct our yearly income of $500,000,000 for favorable trade balance and it leaves a yearly deficit of $350,000,000.—[W. H. Allen, in Moody's Magazine.

Waterway Development Must Come.

"The traffic of the country needs, whenever normal conditions prevail, all the assistance that waterways can give," says James J. Hill in World's Work. "Their services are immediately important in two ways; first, to afford a larger number of distributing points, so that the piling up of freight in terminals may be relieved; second, to transport the bulkier and cheaper commodities, that can as well take a slower and cheaper route, over the main trunk lines of transportation in the country, thus lightening the burden that must, with industrial development, become too heavy for the railroads to bear unaided. How severe this pressure is may best be seen by looking quantitatively at the producing power of the Middle West; rich, busy and so situated that both what it sells and what it buys must be carried over long distances. The twelve States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri contain more than half the farm property value of the United States. They have about one-fourth of the total area of the country and one-third of its population. In agriculture they are as important as all the rest of the country combined. In 1908, these twelve States raised 456,521,000 bushels of wheat, or 69 per cent. of the total yield; 1,644,619,000 bushels of corn, or 61.6 per cent. of the entire crop; 608,237,000 bushels of oats, or 75.5 per cent. of the whole, and 144,289,000 bushels of rye and barley, or 72.6 per cent. of the total crop. Their production of butter, cheese, potatoes, hay, etc., is about one-half that of the whole country. They raise practically all its flax, and the aggregate of their farm products is not far from half that of the United States."

What Tuberculosis Does.

The striking thing about tuberculosis is that while scientists have known for a quarter of a century how to cope with it—and, indeed, a few of our larger cities have been successfully coping with it for the past twenty years—nevertheless, the "civilized world" has only just begun to stir itself to a systematic combat. Already, however, in the way of education great strides have been made. He would be held an ignorant person who should learn now for the first time that tuberculosis is a communicable, and, therefore, a preventable, disease, and that in most cases, if properly treated in the early stages, it is curable. At least, it is reasonably certain that there are comparatively few people in New York State today who could not "back the book" and recite for you these essential facts about tuberculosis:

Tuberculosis (or consumption) causes more deaths than any other single disease.

In the civilized world there are not less than a million deaths each year—or two a minute—which are due to this disease; in the United States this scourge claims no less than 200,000 of our citizens annually, and in the Empire State we sacrifice to it an average of 16,000 lives each year or one every thirty minutes.

One-third of all who die between the ages of 15 and 45, just at the time when they are repaying to society their debt for nurture and education, die of tuberculosis.—[John A. Kingsbury, in American Review of Reviews.

Seeing Virtue in Others.

Never think of yourself as a worm of the dust; rather remember the uplifting words of the Hebrew poet, "In the image of God did He create man." In thinking of other people, all other people, our very own as well as the more distant, let us recall the spirit of the Declaration of Independence, "All men are created free and equal." This, I take it, means that every soul has some gift of its own, which it must be allowed to work out in its own way. We can do much for another in giving him this freedom, and even more for ourselves in keeping hands off. In this way we enlarge our conception of human worth and thus our spiritual sense.

If we are unsuccessful in calling out the best in our associates, let us realize that our methods are wrong, retire to the stillness and find new ones. Spiritual awakening means, in one respect, clairvoyance—or clear seeing—in the discovery of virtue in another.

Let us remember the supreme benefit that we can confer on others is awakening them to the good and the strong in themselves. If they are not ready to be talked to we can afford to wait and to love. Give money and things, but above all give courage, hope and awaken a respect for self.—[Mrs. Vance Cheney, in Practical Ideals.

9000 ACRES OF
RICH ALFALFA LAND IN THE CORCORAN DISTRICT
$35 PER ACRE UP
1/3 CASH-BALANCE
TERM OF YEARS.

6000 ACRES NOW
in WHEAT and BARLEY

We've just secured a magnificent 9000-acre piece of alfalfa land in the famous Corcoran district at almost a sacrifice figure—and we are enabled to offer it in tracts of 5 acres to 1000 acres and up at prices away under regular market value. Never again will you be able to purchase land of this character at such absurdly low prices. It's a chance of a lifetime.

In the Heart of the Artesian
Water and Gas Well Belt

Artesian water, and gas for light, heat and power can be developed on these lands—gas and water flow from the same well without injuring the valuable properties of either. The beautiful fields of wheat and barley on the tract will run from 20 to 30 sacks to the acre. The entire property adjoins the fortune-producing alfafa and dairy ranches of Corcoran—where ranchers are making from $150 to $1500 per month! We have sold 6500 acres in this locality in the last 120 days. Many of the original purchasers have already resold parts of their land at an advance of $10 to $15 an acre! Don't overlook this wonderful land buying opportunity. It will never repeat itself. Land in the Corcoran district is increasing in value by leaps and bounds.

Join our excursion party Tuesday evening, April 26th. See the greatest agricultural proposition open to homeseekers and investors in California. If you do not find everything even BETTER than we have represented in this advertisement—we'll refund the cost of your fare.

We can prove to you that forty acres of Corcoran district alfalfa, stocked with from twenty to thirty cows, with the sale of such by-products as chickens and hogs, together with the increase of the herd, will insure you an income over and above all expenses of at least $2500 per year. Climatic, soil and water advantages are so favorable at Corcoran for the cheap production of alfalfa that almost ideal conditions are presented for profitable dairying and stock raising. The combination of alfalfa, dairying, hogs and chickens, from an income standpoint, cannot be surpassed.

The Corcoran district rancher can produce his own beef, pork, butter, eggs, poultry, milk, cream, vegetables, fruits and nuts. His water, light and fuel are free after the initial cost of securing the well. He and his family can be well fed, well housed and he himself as nearly independent as a man can be. He has all social and educational advantages. Corcoran district is an ideal agricultural community, with the highest type of citizens. Why not lift yourself from drudgery and dependence? Go and see these rich lands—the place of a thousand opportunities for the man of small or large means. Call or write for our new, handsomely illustrated booklet. Make reservations now for our special excursion, Tuesday evening, April 26th. Through Pullman sleeper direct to Corcoran.

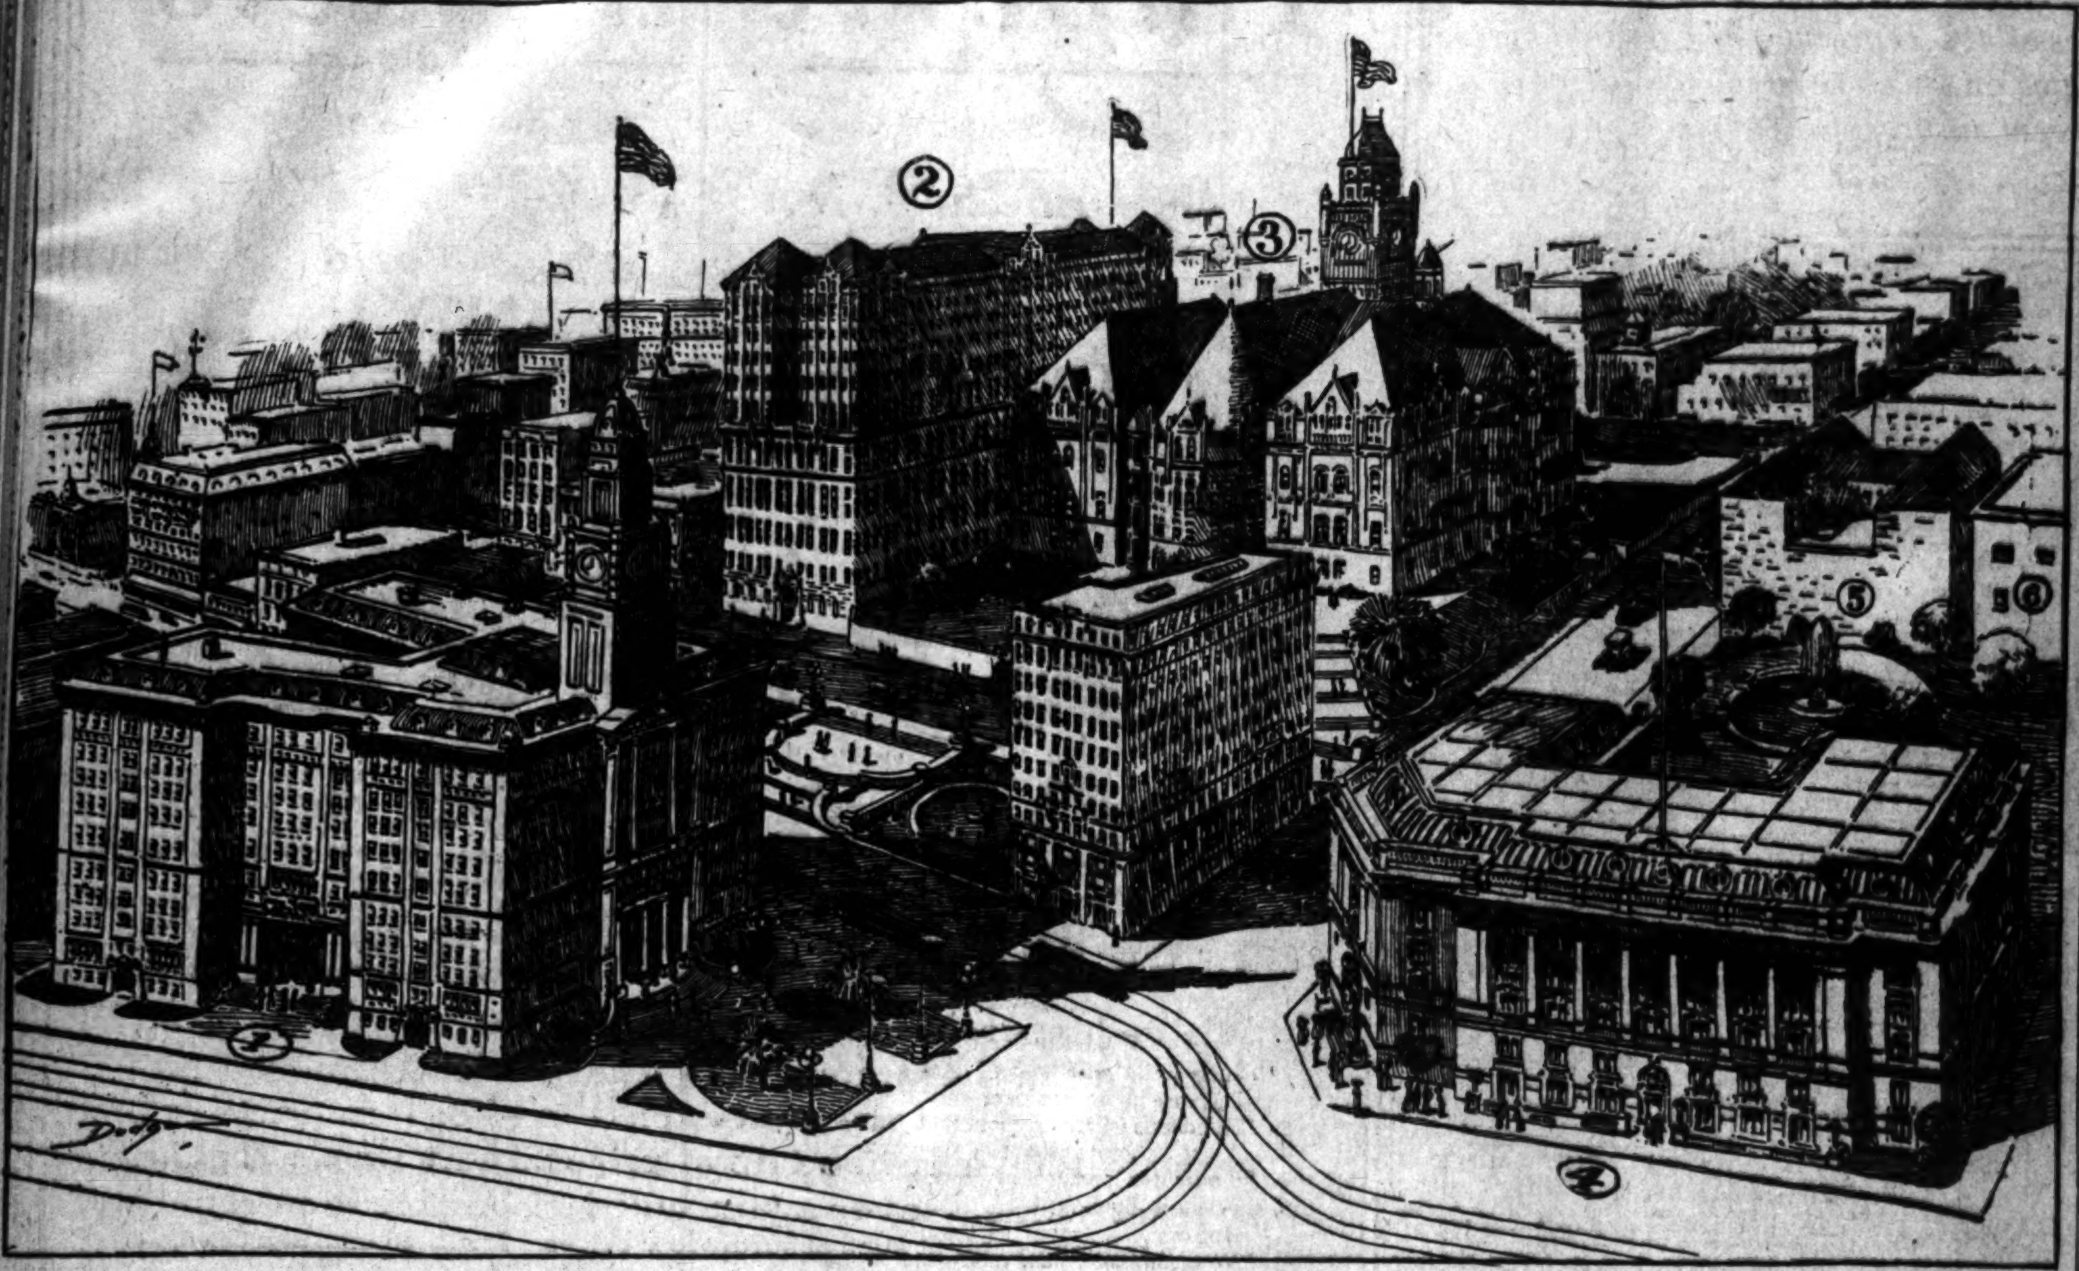
FINANCIAL SIDE OF THE NEW CITY HALL AND CIVIC CENTER PLAN FOR LOS ANGELES.



Outlined Plan for the Civic Center of Los Angeles, Surrounding the New Federal Building.

(1) Sketch of proposed new City Hall, to be a money-earner; (2) Hall of Records; (3) Courthouse; (4) Federal Building, including Postoffice and United States offices; (5) County Jail; (6) Hall of Justice.

THE next move of Los Angeles, now that the utilities of water, power, light and harbor have been secured for the municipality, will be in the direction of a new civic center, with an official home for the various city interests. With a half-million-dollar site already secured, the building of a City Hall adequate for business and architecturally inspiring becomes a comparatively easy task.

The proposed new City Hall figures in the minds of those who have investigated the situation as a necessity rather than a luxury, although it is reversely argued that a certain amount of extravagance is necessary to the welfare of Los Angeles. It is the conviction of very shrewd business men that to make Los Angeles the most beautiful city in America would pay in dollars and cents.

Los Angeles today has $750,000 in building assets. The property on Broadway is worth, at a conservative estimate, $600,000. Property owners in the vicinity of the new site gave $150,000 toward the securing of that location. The balance which the city will have—to pay will be $350,000. This leaves $400,000 already in hand for the building of a new hall.

Another economic feature is that the city at the present location is so inadequately housed that it is paying $33,996 annually in outside rentals. This represents 5 per cent. interest on another $600,000, which would make a round million dollars for a City Hall that would be a paying investment.

A million dollars expended on the site now occupied by the Temple Block, with streets on three sides of it, would go a long way toward realizing the architectural dream that has excited so much enthusiasm on paper. The Robinson plan for beautifying Los Angeles has not been lost sight of during the busy season of building the city's foundations.

Everyone connected with the city administration at the present time and the many citizens who have business to transact in city offices will testify to the great disadvantages of a scattered administration. To make a round of city offices requires an expert guide. Some of the outside offices and rentals now encumbering the city are these:

City Attorney, Merchants' Trust building	$ 240
Election (voting machines)	30
Park, Coulter building	30
Oil Inspector, Copp building	23
Civil Service, Mobette building	73
Gas Inspector, Ninth street	25
Prosecuting Attorney, Tajo building	65
Harbor Commission, Chamber of Commerce	25
	$523
Water Department, No. 446 South Hill street	650
Aqueduct Department, Central building	535
	$1,708
Library, Hagbutger building	1,125

"I am in favor of taking up this City Hall question at once," said F. W. Blanchard, who has represented both the city and the Chamber of Commerce in many public improvement campaigns. "The completion of the Federal building and the Hall of Records will open the way for that civic center which is going to be famous among American cities. The work should be carried to completion as rapidly as possible, and there are the best of practical reasons for building a City Hall at once.

"In the first place the City Hall now is so inadequate that we are paying rentals all over town. In the second place the business of the city is growing so rapidly that we shall have to have more room from year to year. The present location of no especial advantage to the administration of city business, while it is highly valuable for business purposes.

"The city has secured a site and will have from the sale of its present property the necessary funds for building, with the necessity of comparatively small additions. The additions to this fund could be made in bonds without increasing the city taxes, because the present rentals would more than offset the interest. It is, therefore, merely a matter of initiative to have the building begun.

"The plans for the City Hall have already been carefully studied by a number of architects. The exterior should be sufficiently ornate to make it an artistic gem, and the interior should be so constructed as to make an ideal building for doing the city work. Too many city halls have been built without particular regard to utility. Los Angeles should have a big-windowed, well-lighted and well-aired building and not a crypt.

The present status of the new site will permit the beginning of construction on very short notice. The Temple Block is now in charge of the city and a rental agent has been appointed. He collects rents from the present tenants and turns them in to the city. The terms of the sale are that the property owners in the vicinity pay $150,000 of the $500,000 which was the price to the city. The title to the property is absolutely secured to the city, and possession gives it practical ownership at the present time.

It is the ambition of many friends of the new City Hall movement to secure the Bullard Block and thus fill out the square with one magnificent structure. This is made more desirable by the plans for the building which contemplate opening up a sort of public plaza by carrying the building line back some distance from Temple street.

In order to give perspective to the various buildings in the civic center group it is planned to open up as much space between them as possible. The Courthouse has a natural advantage in its location. Both the Federal building and the City Hall are dependent largely upon the architectural plans for the latter. A space treated as effectively as a place in Paris or a plaza in Florence would make much of the difference between a civic center and an ordinary street corner.

A movement is on foot to submit the City Hall question to the voters at the next general election of city offices. If the conditions are generally understood no opposition is anticipated. The call will not be for more taxes to spend for the benefit of private interests, as it has been in the cases of some American city halls; but it will be a practical and economic demand for improvement.

SOUSA'S POSITION.

Bandmaster Tells Why He Makes His Frequent Contributions to Popularity.

John Philip Sousa, the bandmaster, was recently asked by an interviewer for the Philadelphia Record why he devoted so much time and energy to the writing of popular music and its presentation. Said he in reply:

"Washington, in my boyhood, was a vast military camp, and martial music filled the air day and night. It took hold of me, as it did everybody else. I early perceived that such music was closely allied in nature and effect to folk songs and dance tunes; that the universal heart responded easily and always to the simple in art. Home, love, joy, sorrow, patriotism, instantaneous conviction and power were discernible in this species of what might be called cradle song—the music of childhood. It seemed to me, in my early life, that the principles of this type of music might be so far elaborated and utilized as to reach the entire world directly and effectively. It occurred to me that the foundations of all music must be laid in this species of music and that upon these foundations in time might be reared a more complicated and classic musical structure. I considered the youth of the country and its absorption in practical pursuits. I knew the time was not at hand for the immediate adoption of the highest standards of classicism in music. I knew that the old nations of Europe were sufficiently mature in art to have passed the period of folk song and to have assimilated the classic. Therefore, it seemed to me that my best service in my chosen work could be given in an endeavor to beautify and improve upon the music which grew out of the Civil War, and which appeals so universally. My theory was, by insensible degrees, first to reach every heart by simple, stirring music. Secondly, to lift the unmusical mind to a still higher form of musical art. This was my mission. Just as armies were moved and drilled by simple music to perform great deeds, so I had dreamed that all people, by the same means, could be led to conquer the more difficult and classical forms of musical expression. It was a perfectly definite project. The point was to move all America, while busied in its various pursuits, by the power of direct and simple music. I wanted to make a music for the people, a music to be grasped at once."

When asked how he expected to carry the people by theory from the simple to the more complex, he replied: "By grafting upon the simple the more complex. The growth of band music since the Civil War has been enormous. In the Revolutionary War soldiers marched to the fife and drum. Other instruments were added now and then. During the Civil War, [illegible] employed, and they invariably used the simplest music. Since then many more instruments have been added, and gradually more complex music has been offered. At the present time, intermixed with simple musical forms are the most complex and classical. Symphonies are nowadays quite as much appreciated as the simple musical forms of war days. I already see that the masses of the people in our country are coming to demand and appreciate the severest classicism presented by bands.

"It is perfectly manifest, therefore, that the mass heretofore reached and controlled by simple band music is now reached and controlled by classical band music. The band is rapidly preparing the whole people for the highest and most finished types of musical expression. What my original theory led me to anticipate is already rapidly coming to pass. In time, every band, in the smaller as well as larger towns of the country, will be discoursing classic music as long since has been the case with bands in the old countries in Europe."

MODERN NECESSITIES.

Little Things Used by Different People Make Up the Expenses of Living.

One of the reasons why it is expensive to live today is that people buy wholly unnecessary things. The fact is illustrated by a conversation which, as reported by Le Figaro, took place in a "novelty shop." A reporter went in to look around. A shiny object having attracted his attention, he inquired its use.

"Those are gilded pincers," said the clerk. "They are used to pick up letters you have put on the letter scales."

"That square of morocco, about the size of a nut, what is that for?"

"It's a tampon, used to press down stamps after sticking them on envelopes."

"That shell roller?"

"To flatten out the corners of photographs."

"That ornamental box with a whole battery of tiny brushes?"

"They are used to clean other brushes; brushes to clean hair-brushes, brushes to clean tooth-brushes, brushes to clean nail-brushes, and so on."

"I see. And those Russian leather tubes?"

"Eye-protectors, to look at colored photograph projections in rooms adjoining lighted rooms."

"That little doll's funnel?"

"Oh, that is indispensable to pour perfumes into the vials in traveling cases."

"And that jigamaree of complicated little silver sieves?"

"A novelty; it's a cleaner to take off spots of ink on lead pellets."

"Lead pellets?"

"Certainly; the shot you put into those little cups to stick pens in after using them."

"Are there many who use them?"

"No, but they are easy to sell."

Dalzell expressed the hope that God would not inflict such a visitation on the country as to elect a Democratic House of Representatives, but if such a thing happened, he said, he hoped Champ Clark would be Speaker.

CHAMP CLARK, THE CLASSIC.

Champ Clark, the minority leader in the House, is the ranking Democrat on the new Rules Committee, as he was on the old. In the caucus which nominated him for the Rules Committee he received twenty-three more votes than were cast for the next most popular candidate.

Clark is by all odds the most striking looking man in either House of Congress. He has a face which would have made him a fortune on the stage—a face which would go perfectly with the white wig of the eighteenth century courtier, the inky cloak of Hamlet or the toga of a noble Roman. He is smooth shaven and has almost white hair, dark eyebrows, a deep head, high forehead, large, deep-set gray eyes, a long, well modeled nose, and eloquent mouth and chin. He is six feet one inch in stature, broad-shouldered and just round enough to look well-nourished and even-tempered. He daily appears in the House wearing a flaming red necktie.

Although a southerner by birth, by speech and by sympathy, Mr. Clark comes from Yankee stock on his paternal side. His grandfather, Adrian Clark, a one-time rich glass manufacturer and shipbuilder of New Jersey, lost his money and apprenticed his son to a carriage maker. This son worked in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and finally in Kentucky, where he became a dentist and also the father of the present Democratic leader. The family was poor and the mother died young, so that Champ Clark and his little sister had to be left with a farmer. The boy was then ten and he paid their board by doing farm work, but he went to school between chores. At 14 he got work in a country store at $8 a month, and soon afterward he organized a country school of his own and did farm labor while teaching. Thus he worked his way into the University of Kentucky, from which he was expelled in his senior year for getting into a shooting scrape, which, however, had no more serious sequel. Then he finished at Bethany College, being graduated at the head of his class. On reaching home he found the offer of the presidency of Marshall College, West Virginia, at a salary of $1400 a year. Clark, although only 23 years old, took the position for a year, and for twenty-two years held the record for having been the youngest college president in the United States.

Next he went to Cincinnati and was graduated from the law school which Mr. Taft was to enter two years later. Then he went to Wichita, Kan., to start a law practice, and got stranded, but made enough to get out of town by writing an essay for a student. He went to St. Louis, where he borrowed $10, and put out for Louisiana, Mo., where he taught school, practiced law and ran a weekly paper. Another move brought him to his present home, Bowling Green, where he entered politics, being first elected to Congress in 1893. At the end of that term he and his colleague, "Silver Dick" Bland, were both defeated for reëlection, Clark by a music teacher and Bland by a horse doctor. But Mr. Clark was never defeated again. He is now in his eighth Congress. He is 60 years old and a Campbellite by religion.

A STUDENT OF OLD HEIDELBURG.

Among the new Republican members of the enlarged committee is Jacob Sloat Fassett of Elmira, N. Y., the pire State in 1891, but who was defeated by Roswell P. Flower. He is German on his mother's side, his grandfather, Jacob Sloat, for whom he was named, having come from the fatherland to Newberg, N. Y., where he made some money. Fassett and David B. Hill were neighbors and friends, although the latter was the older by ten years. After Fassett had gone through the University of Rochester, and had studied law, it was Hill who made the motion admitting him to the bar. The next year the young man was appointed District Attorney, and a year later he went over to Germany and took a course in the great University of Heidelburg. After returning home he was elected to the State Senate, where Hill welcomed him from the exalted seat of the Lieutenant-Governor, the presiding officer of the chamber. Hill soon found his younger neighbor a dangerous political foe whom he had to campaign against, vigorously, on the home ground, but Fassett had won his seat in the State Senate for the fourth time and had become president pro tem. of that body when his party nominated him for Governor. In the victorious Harrison campaign he held the secretaryship of the Republican National Committee, the office which Frank Hitchcock held in the Roosevelt-Parker campaign, and which started him upon his meteoric political career. Harrison appointed Fassett collector of the port of New York, the office which Mr. Taft has given to President Roosevelt's faithful secretary, Mr. Loeb. And at the national convention which renominated Harrison in 1892, Mr. Fassett was temporary chairman. He is vice-president of a bank in his home city, and has large mining and cattle interests in the West.

His wife is very rich. She was Miss Jennie Crocker, daughter of the late E. B. Crocker of Sacramento, Cal., who was the brother of Charles Crocker, the multi-millionaire. The youngest of their five children shares not only the full name, but the birthday of the father. Mr. Fassett is 56 years old, and now in his third Congressional term. Both he and his wife are Baptists, and he both reads and speaks German, the language of his maternal forebears.

TWO IOWA SMITHS.

The two Republican Smiths on the Rules Committee are both natives of Iowa. Walter I., who received more caucus votes than any other Representative for membership on the House's board of directors, was born and bred right in Council Bluffs, where he now lives. He got his education in the common schools there, then studied in a law office, and after being admitted to the bar practiced for eight years. Then, when only 28, he was elected district judge, holding the office until elected to Congress ten years ago. He is now 47, and serving his sixth term. He was one of the "triumvirate" on the Rules Committee just before it was enlarged. He and Dalzell are the two Republican holdovers.

The other Smith—Sylvester C.—was one of the many farm boys who went to the district school between chores and then became famous. He took a finishing course at an academy in the nearest town, and when 21 and "free," put out for California. This was in '79. He took up a piece of land, laid out a farm, and got a country schoolmastership, which helped keep the wolf from the door while he studied law. It was hard work, but he got admitted when 27. It was then that he located in the California district which he now represents.

A question of water right was then engrossing the attention of the farmers in his locality. They were hustlers, and knowing the value of publicity, bought a plant with which to estabtheir views on the matter in dispute. They selected Smith to edit this journal. This was twenty-four years ago. After three years he had bought the paper himself, and later made it a morning daily. He is still its principal owner. He came to Congress by way of his State Senate, and is now serving his third term in the national House.

The Yankee member of the new House directorate is George P. Lawrence, who is now serving his seventh term. He is the son of a doctor of Adams, Mass., and was educated both at Amherst College and Columbia Law School. He was a judge for nine years, then entered the State Senate, of which he was elected president by unanimous vote. Then he came to Congress in 1897. He is 50 years old and lives in North Adams, a section of his birthplace.

The good patriot father, Roger Sherman, one of the committee of five who drafted the Declaration of Independence and one of its signers, has a great-great-grandson on the committee. This is Henry Sherman Boutell of Chicago. He was born in Boston fifty-four years ago, but was taken by his parents to Chicago when 7 years old. He is an A. B. and A. M. of Northwestern University, after leaving which he went up to Harvard, joining the class of '76, to which Justice Moody, Walker Blaine and Percival Lowell also belonged.

He was bent upon the higher education, for, after getting another A. B., he remained in Cambridge a year studying for an A. M. in constitutional history and international law, which he got in 1877. He came to Congress in '97 by way of the Illinois Legislature, where he was one of the "103" who elected John A. Logan to the United States Senate in 1885. He nominated Speaker Cannon for President at the convention which named Taft.

Among Champ Clark's three colleagues on the committee he finds a fellow Kentuckian, Oscar W. Underwood, who was born in Louisville forty-seven years ago. But, like his Democratic leader, Mr. Underwood left his native State. After going through the University of Virginia he went to Birmingham, Ala., his present home, was first elected to the House when only 32, and is now serving in his eighth consecutive Congress.

There is a Hoosier Democrat, too, on Dalzell's board—Lincoln Dixon, who was born the year of Abraham Lincoln's first nomination, and who, although named after the first Republican President, grew up to be a Democrat. He was born in his present home town of North Vernon, Ind., and, after taking his A. B. at his State university, became prosecuting attorney when 24, and held the office continuously until elected to Congress in 1904.

The youngest man on the committee, and its only Roman Catholic member, is John J. Fitzgerald of Brooklyn, who is only 38. He was born in Brooklyn, took a B. A. and M. A. at Manhattan College, went through the New York Law School, received the degree of "Bachelor of laws cum laude" from the State regents when 21, got right into New York politics and was elected to Congress when only 26, or one year over the age limit. In the House he soon earned the reputation of a skilled parliamentarian and also the sobriquet, "Fighting Fitzgerald." At the beginning of the special tariff session last year, when the combination of Democrats and Republican insurgents had defeated the adoption of the rules of the Sixtieth Congress, and were in readiness to reduce the Speaker's power, it was Fitzgerald who, followed by twenty-two high protection Democrats of New York and the South, made the sortie which saved the day for "Uncle Joe." Fitzgerald was Champ Clark's sole Democratic colleague upon the former Rules Committee.

JOHN ELFRETH WATKINS.

New York's Great Library.

One of the most remarkable features of the New York public library, now slowly nearing completion, will be the huge stack room, 90 feet wide, 300 feet long and 60 feet in height, containing seven tiers of stacks. The metal work of the stacks alone weighs about 3000 tons, and recently in estimating for the plating contract, it was found that merely to pass once through the multitudinous nests of stacks it would be Enormous Canal Locks.

Some idea of the magnitude of the great locks to be placed in the Panama Canal can be gathered from the statement in the Canal Record just received, that if all the leaves of the locks should be piled one on top of another they would make a tower a mile and one-fifth high.

The Canal Commission has just placed the order for some steel to be used in the construction of these locks, which was the largest order for material given since the canal work started. This was for 58,000 tons, out of which it is expected to construct forty-six mitering gates, one set of which, at Miraflores, will be eighty-two feet high.

SOME CLOSED-SHOP TRYANNIES.

BY AN OPEN SHOPPER.

Some years ago there was discovered in a tract of land in Northern Alabama, in which I owned a one-half interest, a large deposit of gray marble. It was submitted to experts, and pronounced to be of the first quality. It was situated about half a mile from a railroad station and two miles from the Tennessee River, at a point where the stream is navigable.

I ascertained in New York City that marble of no better quality was purchased by builders at a rate of $3 for cubes of certain dimensions. I further ascertained that the cost of quarrying, cutting, polishing and landing in New York City similarly-sized blocks of the Alabama marble would be $1.20, and that $6000 would equip a plant for preparing the marble.

Naturally, I thought that here was a fortune in sight. I submitted samples to marble dealers in New York City. Each pronounced the marble to be of the highest quality, each made the same reply, "We cannot handle it for you," and each declined to give any reason for his answer.

Finally I found a dealer who was a namesake and a distant relative, and with some hesitation he said to me: "We are all members of the marble trust, and have agreed not to sell marble produced in any quarry not owned by a member of the trust."

"What will it cost to join the trust?" said I.

"Ten thousand dollars is the membership fee," said he, "if you are accepted as a member, though I doubt if the directors would admit you."

"What will I get for the $10,000 in case I am admitted?" queried I.

"A right to sell, at a price fixed by the trust, your proportion of the marble used in New York City," answered he.

"And what would that proportion be?" I asked.

"Mighty little," he replied.

"Well, I can get along without the membership," was my answer. "I can land the marble here for $1.20, and I can sell to builders for $2 the same quantity of marble for which they now pay $3, and then make 65 per cent. profit."

"The builders will not buy of you," said he.

"Why not?" I asked.

"They are not allowed to buy marble except from dealers who are members of the trust, nor to use marble that has not been shaped and polished in New York City by members of the Marble Cutters' Union; and if they should transgress this rule, they could not buy lumber, or hardware, or plumbing material from dealers, who are nearly all members of the builders' trade union, and union carpenters, plumbers and masons would not work on any building in the construction of which any material made by non-union workmen was used. The labor trusts and the marble producers and marble dealers are tied to each other by hard and fast agreements, and if any of us should break our agreements, or attempt to do business outside of the combination, we might as well close our establishments."

"The Sherman Act would protect you," I ventured to remark.

"May be so," was the answer; "but it wouldn't pay me to lose my business by beginning suits that would bankrupt me in lawyers' fees and court costs, and that would last for years before they were finally decided by the Supreme Court of the United States."

I reported the situation to my co-owner in Alabama. He mentioned the name of his Redeemer, and replied that he could make gravestones for Confederate soldiers who might pass away, but that there were not many of the old boys left, and their relations were mostly too poor to invest much money in monuments.

But the Sherman Act has sometimes afforded relief against unlawful combinations. In Honolulu a member of the Master Plumbers' Association employed some workmen who were not members of the Journeymen Plumbers' Association. For this act of moral turpitude he was expelled by the Master Plumbers' Association and all the members of the Journeymen Plumbers' Association quit his employment.

The Master Plumbers' Association offered to reinstate him if he would sign an agreement never to again employ a non-union plumber, and would pay one hundred and fifty dollars for such reinstatement. He met this amicable advance by inviting the secretary who brought him this offer to repair to a region where the climate is too sultry to be salubrious, and upon the secretary replying with cuss words he kicked that official out of his shop.

Then as there was a small band of non-union plumbers who remained in his employment, he took a contract for plumbing from a gentleman who had erected a large office building, and started out to purchase plumbers' supplies. Every one of the three dealers in those articles refused to sell him, as they were under contract not to sell such supplies to any person not a member of the Master Plumbers' Association.

Then the gentleman thus baffled by the combination of journeymen plumbers, master plumbers and dealers in plumbers' supplies, began suit in the United States Court under the Sherman Act, against all three of the conspirators. He proved actual damages to the extent of $400, for which sum the jury gave a verdict. Under the Sherman Act judgment was entered for three times the amount of the verdict, with an allowance of $250 for counsel fees.

He was indebted to one of the dealers in plumbers' supplies in the sum of $1200. His creditor began suit against him in the Territorial Court and obtained there a writ attaching, or attempting to attach, the judgment in the Federal Court.

A friend came to his relief by buying from him for a valuable consideration the judgment in the Federal court and taking an assignment of it and the next steamer carried away the ex-master plumber.

His lawyer moved to vacate the attachment on the ground that a judgment in a Federal Court could not be attached by a writ issued from a Territorial court.

The motion was granted and the defendant associations being advised that an appeal would be fruitless, paid up—that is, the hardware merchants and the Master Plumbers' Association paid up. The motto of journeyman plumbers was that of Ancient Pistol: "Base is the slave who pays."

But for brazen trade-union thievery, New York City takes the cake.

A gentleman who had rented a suite of rooms in a New York City apartment-house desired to have them repapered.

He selected a plain paper at a leading establishment on Broadway and bargained to pay 50 cents a roll for the paper and 40 cents a roll for hanging it. Having had some experience in paying for lathing and plastering "openings," that is, the space occupied by doors and windows, he contracted to pay only for the paper actually used, and not for paper which might, could, would or should have been used.

The job was finished and a bill presented of $36 for furnishing and hanging thirty-six rolls of paper.

"The price agreed upon," said the customer to the collector, "was 50 for preparing the walls," said the collector.

"Preparing nothing," was the rejoinder. "The new paper was pasted upon the old paper and no preparation was necessary."

"Well, you will have to see the boss," said the collector. "I have no authority to make a reduction."

"All right," replied the customer, "I will call at the store tomorrow morning."

Then the customer put on his thinking cap, and proceeded to carefully measure the walls. He knew how many square yards there are in a roll of paper, and his measurements showed, allowing for everything, less than twenty rolls of paper on the walls.

He sent for the house carpenter, and requested him to measure the walls and report the number of rolls of paper thereon. He did so, and reported that there were but nineteen rolls thereon.

"Will you please give me a certificate to that effect?" said the gentleman.

"I can't do that," was the reply. "I can't interfere in any controversy with a member of the Paper Hangers' Union. But anybody with a three-foot rule can measure the walls; nineteen rolls of paper will cover them."

The next morning the gentleman called at the Broadway store.

"Your man made a mistake," said he, "about the quantity of paper on the walls of my apartment. He charged for thirty-six rolls, and I cannot find that more than nineteen rolls were used."

"Maybe you didn't allow for the quantity used in matching," said the manager.

"It was plain paper and no 'matching' was necessary," said the customer.

"I will have the walls remeasured," said the manager, "and if a mistake has been made it shall be corrected."

"I will call tomorrow," said the customer.

The next morning the manager said: "Our paper hanger remeasured the walls along with a delegate from the Paper Hangers' Union. The delegate reports that the thirty-six rolls of paper was used. Here is his certificate to that effect."

"Certificate hell," said the customer. "You might as well bring me a certificate of a wolf that another wolf killed only one sheep when two were found dead by his side. I will tell you what I will do with you. I will put up $1700 forfeit and you shall put up a similar amount. You and I shall go to the apartment together with a roll of the same paper and with the professor of mathematics of any college you may select. We will measure the walls and measure the roll of paper. There can be no disagreement possible for figures of arithmetic are unlike walking delegates, they don't lie. I will give you a hundred dollars a roll for every roll of paper above nineteen that there is on the walls, and you shall give me a hundred dollars a roll for every roll of paper under thirty-six that is not on the walls.

The manager winced. "I am not a gambler, sir," he said.

"Well, I won't say what I think you are," said the customer, "but jail doors have yawned for men for smaller swindles than you are trying to perpetrate on me."

The manager paused. "You don't appreciate my position," said he. "I dare not go behind this certificate of the delegate of the Paper Hangers' Union, I must pay the workmen for hanging thirty-six rolls. If I were to refuse to do so, my establishment would be boycotted and I could get no union paper hanger to work for me. You can pay for nineteen rolls of paper only and I must stand the loss. But I beg of you as a personal favor to me not to tell anybody that I made this concession. It would get me into trouble with the delegate from the Paper Hangers' Union."

And I never did tell until now, when I tell it in strict confidence to the readers of The Times: ["Hear! hear!"]

YOUNG SIDIS OF HARVARD.

His Father's Training to Develop the Right Use of His Mental Faculties.

[Boston Transcript:] As soon as Dr. Sidis's son was old enough to utter the first incoherent sounds which precede real talking he set to work, as he phrases it, to train him in the right use of the mental faculties. Every day, for an hour or more, he played with him with a set of alphabet blocks, forming and reforming them into word combinations, using them to spell out the names of simple and familiar objects—such as "cat" and "door"—and showing him how they could be rearranged to spell out other names. In this way he taught him before he was 3 to talk, spell and read simultaneously; and also developed in him an almost instinctive appreciation of the the principles of reasoning—close and accurate observation, analysis and synthesis, and the drawing of correct inferences from what he observed.

Later, as the boundless curiosity which is one of the most conspicuous traits of childhood began to show itself, he gave it every encouragement. In his view, the parent who represses his child, who refuses to answer his "foolish questions," or puts him off with evasive or incomplete replies, is making a grave mistake. He is unconsciously sealing up the channels to the child's "hidden energies," is accustoming him to the misuseof his mind, is allowing him to slip into the fatal habit of letting others do his thinking for him. Dr. Sidis, in opposition to this, answered all his son's questions frankly and fully, at the same time dexterously contriving to turn his interests in the directions which he believed would be most useful to the boy.

And the more he learned the more he seemed to want to learn. Study became, and has remained, as much a pleasure and delight to him as the ordinary games of childhood. He finds as much satisfaction in solving a problem in physics as in playing a game of dominoes. But, according to those well acquainted with him, he also enjoys the dominoes as intensely, and perhaps more so, than the average boy of 11. Fairy tales, tales of wonder and enchantment, of romance and battle, appeal to him just as they do to the small boy who can find nothing whatever enjoyable in his school books, and who struggles desperately with the mysteries of the multiplication table.

Private Property.

"If I had a dollar for every time a barber has asked me if I wanted that mole removed," remarked a man yesterday, after he left a tonsorial shop and was drawing his hand across a smooth-shaven face, "I would go down to the office in the morning, tell the company to give my job to some one who really needed money, and then I would start on a long trip and just enjoy myself the rest of my days. Every time I strike a new barber he asks me if I want him to remove that mole and I tell him I do not. As a rule I can train a barber in four lessons not to ask the question, but a man can't always get the same lather peddler in a shop and the question continues to come at me. As a matter of fact. I need that mole. If I wanted it removed I would not expect a barber to do it anyway. Why can't they refrain from asking the ques-

Why Should You Buy Land at Oceano Beach?

Why Are the Various Shipping and Railroad Lines Converging There?

One question answers the other. You should buy land at OCEANO BEACH BECAUSE steamship and railroad lines are converging here. Ships have been landing in the outer harbor for quite a period of time and are anxiously and interestedly looking forward to our completing the dredging of our natural inner harbor, which is of such dimensions and location that it is almost bound to rival San Pedro. The Southern Pacific Railroad, a transcontinental line, has at OCEANO the most active and thriving station on that entire division. Figures prove that and just those figures are bringing about the building of another steam railroad from Bakersfield and the San Joaquin country to the ocean front at OCEANO BEACH;—the electric railway line circling from San Luis Obispo around by the way of Guadalupe also looks forward to prosperous trade at OCEANO BEACH. Every pipe line carrying oil from the California fields to the ocean front is being built via OCEANO because our complete shipping facilities will out-rival and out-distance all other ports. WASHINGTON.

Californians in usual at Former Gov. Gage, Portugal, came to ago, and Senator Flint, who the surprise not ceased to Philadelphia, where he took some legal depositions, came and was admitted to practice before the Supreme Court on motion of Oscar Lawler. Franklin K. Lane, who ran for Governor of California with Dockweiler as a running mate for the second place on the ticket, entertained his old friend at dinner, Lawler and John B. Elliott, formerly of Los Angeles, also being at the table. If the Democracy of California had Lane and Dockweiler to head their ticket this year they might give the Republicans a hard rub, but while Lane was urged to take the nomination, he would not consent to sacrifice himself again.

Peter F. Dunne, of San Francisco, chief counsel of the Southern Pacific Company, is dividing his time between here and New York because of some matters of special interest in the railroad world. And there are scores of others all more or less well known outside of their own bailiwicks.

INSTITUTE OF AGRICULTURE.

David Lubin has been here trying to get Congress to make adequate provision for representation of the International Institute of Agriculture, of which he is the inventor, originator and founder. For some reason, although other governments have seized on this idea, elaborated by Lubin, our own has turned the cold shoulder to it and has begrudged the appropriation of the few thousands of dollars necessary for participation, although it is one of the signatures to the agreement and so morally bound to contribute to its support, and to pay the salary and expenses of one member of the permanent committee. Since 1906 the State Department has asked annually for this appropriation but every year Congress has appropriated only $4800 for the support of the institute and has cut out the $3600 for the salary and expenses of the member of the committee. This member happens to be Lubin himself. The action of Congress in denying the real founder of the institute the courtesy of meeting his salary, or even his expenses, seems passing strange.

The Secretary of State says: "The government of the United States having become a member of the institute, it should. . . . stand on an equal footing with any other country, and this. . . . may only be done by representation both on the permanent committee and in the general assembly."

CHIEF FORESTER COMING.

Henry S. Graves, Chief Forester of the Department of Agriculture, has started westward on a trip of inspection, and expects to reach California in May. He will look over the various offices maintained by the service, and will discuss the season's plans with his assistants. He will also visit some of the forest reserves, but this part of his journey has not been fully mapped out. Mr. Graves will visit Los Angeles, San Francisco, and other points in the State. The service is doing a great deal of work with eucalyptus, and it is planning for a much larger campaign in this line. More experimental work has been inaugurated, and the service is about ready now to begin the practical work of setting out eucalyptus in some of the forest lands where it is believed the exposure, soil and general conditions are most favorable for their growth.

FOR RELIEF OF SETTLERS.

Congressman Bartlett of Nevada, has introduced a bill which will be of interest to all settlers on lands under the government reclamation projects. The bill authorizes the Secretary of the Interior in his discretion, and under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, "to grant extensions of time for payments of the annual installments to any person who has made application for water rights under the provisions of the Reclamation Act of June 17, 1902, chapter 1093, and to provide for graduated payments of such annual installments: Provided, that in making application for such extension the applicant must show, to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Interior, that he has in good faith established a home on the land and made substantial improvements thereon, and that peculiar and unusual hardships or conditions rendered it impossible for him to make the payment required, and that he has made reasonable effort to irrigate and cultivate the land and secure crops therefrom. Provided further, that prior to the granting of any application by the Secretary of the Interior each application shall be investigated by and reported with a recommendation of the officers of the local organization of water users' association, if there be one."

DIED AT POST OF DUTY.

Acting in accordance with established precedent, Congressman Needham has introduced a bill for the relief of the widow and children of William N. Wightman. They are now resident in Santa Cruz. The bill proposes paying to Wightman's family a sum equal to his salary and allowance for two years. The bill has gone to the Committee on Claims.

William M. Wightman was a martyr in the cause of humanity. He was a passed assistant surgeon and a commissioned officer in the United States Public Health and Marine Hospital Service, and contracted yellow fever while performing his duty as a passed assistant surgeon in an infected city of Ecuador, where he died of that disease at his post of duty, May 16, 1909.

PRESS COMMENT OF THE PASSING HOUR.

Cowardly Tipping.

Tipping seems to furnish us with evidence of a strange complexity of the mental fabric of the average diner-out.

Why otherwise sane persons would deliberately present gratuities to those who have aggravated them or wrought injury to their possessions, but this they will, and the reason will probably remain a mystery. The nearest satisfactory solution is afforded by the two words "custom" and "conceit."

A waiter, through ignorance or disregard of a patron's best activity, causes unnecessary delays; he chooses to be overbearing or patronizing, yet he frequently gets the tip, whereas an ordinary clerk would be roundly berated for having occasioned half the annoyance.

The hat-check boy places one hat upon another so that the oil and moisture from the inner band of the upper one leaves a well-marked ring about the crown of the under one—yet he gets the tip. Why?

Tipping is proper when the tip goes as a reward for special attention that tends to increase one's peace of mind—not to encourage idiocy or high-handedness.

Is it possible that cowardice is the cause of indiscriminate tipping?—[New York Telegraph.

Reform Politics.

A great many people who are now clamoring for the distinctive variety of reform are doing so only because they think that is the surest method of defeating the constructive kind. The tearing down process is never justifiable except as a preliminary to rebuilding, and it always is in order to draw the plans for rebuilding before we tear down.—[Bakersfield Echo.

Sacramento Song Birds.

The broad stretches of green fields in the Sacramento Valley are now in exquisite harmony with the matchless golden poppies that nod and bend in the breezes of spring. Nowhere in the world is there a more beautiful blending of color made by the hand of nature to gladden the hearts of men. The song birds, generous in sounding their notes to Heaven; the warm sunshine; the pure and wholesome atmosphere, make an environment akin to paradise.—[Sacramento News.

Lawyers and Extortion.

In view of the unmistakable trend of Judge Holt's charge to the jury in the United States Court in New York on Tuesday, a finding adverse to Hartridge's claim for $94,000 additional fees for legal services in the notorious Thaw case was not unexpected. The further action of the court in ordering disbarment proceedings to be brought against the attorney will be hailed as a necessary and commendable precaution for the protection of the reputation and integrity of the legal profession in America. There was a great deal that was unsavory in the trials of the Thaw case, but the revelations during the hearing of the present suit, an attempt to extort further payments from Thaw's mother, went beyond anything on record in the legal annals of this country in flagrant indecency and impudence. Hartridge made claim for reimbursement for enormous sums spent in nightly carousals in the "Tenderloin" of New York, claiming that these expeditions and outlays were a necessary part of his client's defense. The action of the court, it is to be hoped, will mark the end of this sort of thing. It will at least lead to such a ventilation of the subject that the public will be on its guard against a form of extortion that is all the more serious because practiced by officers of the courts. Those lawyers who retain and prize the reputation of their profession will, it is to be supposed, take an active interest in the proceedings to be taken against Hartridge.—[Philadelphia Ledger.

Swapping Bugs.

It may surprise some readers to learn that Uncle Sam does considerable business in swapping bugs, but it is a fact, nevertheless, and one which has an important relation to American agriculture. The purpose of it all is to introduce parasites and predatory insects which prey upon destructive species common to this country—a crafty scheme to array one section of the insect world in war against another.

For example, foreign parasites have been imported to fight the gypsy moth in Massachusetts. Last year twelve species of foreign parasites were introduced in various parts of the country, each for the purpose of destroying native insects which prey upon some form of plant life.

On the other hand, we send some first-class American parasites and insect destroyers to other countries. The American parasite of the mulberry tree is doing fine work in Italy. Our ladybird beetles are exterminating the mealy bug in the region of Malaga in Spain, and parasites of scale insects sent to Peru by the Department of Agriculture are producing excellent results.

Even the American bumblebee has been pressed into foreign service, a shipment of that species having been sent to the Philippines, where they are working to fertilize clover.—[New York Mail.

More Gold, Higher Prices.

In their daily transactions, most men either do not think of gold at all, or they think of it as having a fixed and stable value. It is easier for us to say that "the price of wheat has risen 5 cents a bushel" than to say that, "as compared with wheat, the price of gold has declined 5 per cent." Yet the two statements mean the same thing fundamentally. If then, we substitute for wheat a composite unit of all commodities, and find that the price of this unit has advanced 61 per cent. in thirteen years, we can state this same fact by saying that gold has depreciated 39 per cent., approximately, during this period.

But what causes gold to depreciate—that is, prices to rise? The cause is the same in the case of gold as in that of any other commodity—relatively cheaper cost of production. This cheaper cost shows in an increased supply of gold, and results in making it necessary to give a greater quantity of gold to get the same quantities of other things.—[Byron W. Holt, in the April Everybody's.

POISON THAT KILLS FEAR.

Mysterious Vegetable Product Prepared by the Indians of the Upper Amazon Country.

[National Geographic Magazine:] Curari, the vegetable poison with which the Indians of the Upper Amazon tip their hunting arrows, remains a mystery in its composition after 100 years of investigation by scientists. The Indians will sell it for its weight in silver, but will not reveal the plants from which it is derived. Not long ago a professor in a German university was sent to the Amazon wilderness for the express purpose of discovering the secret, for curari, or urari, as it is otherwise called, is now thought to be of great value in medicine. The professor lived two years in Indian villages and, while he was permitted to witness the boiling of the "witches' broth," which lasted several days, he could not tell what plants went into the brew. Returning from his baffled quest down the Amazon with a quantity of the poison, the professor was met by another traveler, Dewey Austin Cobb, who had got possession of a native blow gun. The latter tells how he put some of the professor's curari on some of his blow gun arrows, which are like toothpicks feathered with cotton, and tried it on a buck deer in the forest.

"After a deliberate aim our hunter fired," says Mr. Cobb, "if I may use such a word for the little puff, scarcely heard by us, and entirely inaudible above the rustling corn leaves at the distance of the deer. The animal gave a slight start as it felt the prick of the arrow on its flank and turned partly around, sniffing the air for a scent, and looking about as if searching for the insect that had bitten or stung it. Detecting nothing, it stood still and unalarmed. At the end of a minute, or a minute and a half, at most, its head dropped a little, as if it were sleepy.

"When the hunter saw this he arose and stepped out in plain sight. The deer turned his head and looked at him, and moved forward, not away from him, a few steps and stopped. It showed no fear, but simply curiosity. After another minute the professor and I arose, and all three walked quietly within reach of it. It made no movement to run away, but watched us intently, and shifted its position a little. Its movements seemed perfectly easy and natural. Absence of fear was the only observable change, until at the end of three minutes more; then it lay down, not falling, but as naturally as a cow or sheep when ready for sleep.

"We all approached its side, and the hunter laid a hand on its shoulders. It looked up at him, but showed no resentment or fear. Even its breathing seemed easy and natural, which surprised me, as I had heard that death resulted from paralysis of the lungs when caused by urari. At the end of ten minutes, though, it opened its eyes when touched, its breath became shorter and slower. Eighteen minutes after it was struck by the arrow it was dead."

Public bequests amounting to nearly $200,000 are made in the will of David Cummings of Somerville, a well-known shoe manufacturer. Among the bequests are $65,000 to Tufts College, $40,000 to Dean Academy at Franklin, Mass., $40,000 to the Somerville Home for the Aged, $5000 each to the New England Home for Little Wanderers, the Hunt Asylum for Destitute Children, Perkins Institution for the Blind, the Burnap Free Home for Aged Women and the Danvers (Mass.) With every arrangement made for a

Consternation seized the local agita-

Remarks of this same character were subject of debate last Wednesday ght at the regular meetings of the

o. 884. The publicity given by The stop, for the present at least, to the While these stumbling blocks were rousing the ire of the displeased alking delegates, others of their ilk ave been as busy as ever in this city nd vicinity. Marcel Wille, the San rancisco chief of all the unions of akers in California, has been sending is voice down here through the medium

f human-megaphones who do his bid-

Electrical workers in Los Angeles

Uneasiness is stirring the Machin-

f this organization has been in cor-hat it has levied an assessment on all embers for the purpose of carrying n the fight for an eight-hour day for his is in line with the statements rinted a few weeks ago in The Times,

n active campaign all over California, nd especially in Los Angeles, i the ope of being able to bring about the stablishment of an out-and-out mo-etropolis.

Another bunch of woe for the Mche International Presidents of the rinting Trades Unions, who have anounced their opposition to the Gomers-McCarthy scheme of forming a rinting trades department in the merican Federation of Labor. The rinting bosses don't propose to risk heir own little kingdom by getting ithin the reach of Sammy or Pin-

The cry for help from the Philadel-

he Los Angeles unions. The jobless ar men are now shouting that it was lockout instead of a strike and they ant money to help them keep alive nnounce that "they will fight to a he Los Angeles unions would fill two

ARIZONA FOREWARNED.

The laborite organizations in the Territory of Arizona have gone deliberately and forcefully into politics. This action is taken in view of the approaching constitutional convention in Arizona when an enabling act is passed by Congress to admit the Territory as a State.

The labor organizations (composed mostly of the Independent Workers of the World) are not at all secretive as to the inspiration which impels this action or the motive in the minds of its promoters. They say it is in order to put into the convention enough of their own kind to see that the constitution of the new State shall favor the organizations in question. They specify, and in doing so as usual go beyond all reasonable limits and bounds of justice and come out openly for favoritism to their own people. They propose to make a constitution which shall not stop at guaranteeing laboring people the right to form voluntary organizations as they may see fit and to use these organizations for their own welfare to procure the best terms from the employers, secure the highest wages and the lowest hours to constitute a day. Beyond all this they aim openly at putting into the constitution certain clauses which shall forbid courts of justice in cases of dispute between them and their employers to issue injunctions against strikers bent on committing violence.

All the right things that labor unions in Arizona or anywhere else demand are guaranteed them by the Constitution of the United States. If the constitution formed for the guidance of lawmakers in the new State of Arizona should undertake to curtail any of the rights guaranteed under the Constitution of the United States that State constitution would be in contravention of the Federal Constitution, and therefore would be nullified thereby.

On the contrary, if the laborites in Arizona succeed in packing the constitutional convention with a sufficient number of delegates to make the constitution such as they propose, they will then produce a State organic law contrary to the Federal organic law, and it will be declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States, and Arizona will be under the necessity of making a new constitution. No State in this Union, new or old, will be permitted to incorporate in its organic law any provision which will prevent courts from resorting to the legal method provided by the issuing of injunctions, a method which is as old as Anglo-Saxon law. No State constitution will be acceptable to the Supreme Court of the United States which formally justifies the boycott, picketing, rioting, destruction of property, assault upon persons and the taking of human life. These are the things that would exactly result if courts of justice were forbidden from issuing injunctions in case of strikes culminating in riots and threatening the person and property of those opposed to the Independent Workers of the World.

The purposes and gentle tactics of this organization are too well known throughout the West to leave the people at all in doubt as to what would take place if they should succeed in getting control and imposing their policies and practices upon any State. It is a little unfortunate for the cause of laborism that in Arizona that propaganda is represented for the most part by the Independent Workers of the World. In that Territory, in the State of Nevada, and on up through western Washington, Idaho, Montana, Utah and other Western States the Independent Workers of the World and the Western Federation of Miners are known as about the most lawless, brutal and insufferable labor organizations in the world.

Of course it is the business of the people of Arizona themselves to take what action they please, but if being forewarned they fail to be forearmed and permit this propaganda to capture the constitutional convention, in one way or another, in fact in every way, it will be so much the worse for Arizona as a Territory or as a State. If they impose their views upon the convention and draw up a State organic law agreeable to their purposes and practices it is a pretty sure conclusion, although arrived at beforehand, that it will not be upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States. If by chance it should be so framed as to meet with the quasi assent of that high tribunal and the new State of Arizona should be left to work out its own salvation under such a questionable organic law, the fate of Arizona would be still worse. The very best thing that could happen to the new State would be to have such an organic law declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court, and thus compel the drawing up of another one free from such gross objections.

The people of Arizona are very well acquainted with the mind and spirit of the labor union organizations. They have had trouble enough with them time out of mind. They have paralyzed mining industries and others in the Territory often enough and with sufficient lawbreaking features about these disturbances to put the good people of the Territory on their guard. We can scarcely imagine that Arizona will permit these riotous, rebellious, unjust organizations to capture their constitutional convention and impose on the new State an organic law which must either be declared null by the Supreme Court of the United States or exist as a perpetual trouble-breeder to the people of the Territory and a menace to every legitimate enterprise in the State.

The election of the delegates to the constitutional convention will be watched with interest by the whole Southwest. Arizona has a great future before her. Her interests are wrapped up with the interests of many States and Territories in all the Great Southwest. The complexion of the constitutional convention will be analyzed keenly by the thousands of people who have a deep interest in the affairs of the Territory, whether as a Territory or as a State, and when the constitutional convention has done its work there will be a similar analyzing of the result in the proposed constitution.

Of course the final decision short of the bringing of the affair before the Supreme Court of the United States rests with the President. But we can readily realize how loth the Chief Executive of the nation is to interfere with the will of the people as expressed in a constitution drawn up by the people of a Territory for admission into the Union. Mr. Roosevelt, when President, declared, without mincing matters, his disapprobation of the constitution of the new State of Oklahoma, but decided that it was a matter for the people of the State to settle for themselves, and so let it pass. That very queer State organic law has not proved a peacemaker nor a progressive influence in Oklahoma.

Arizona has the example of the last State admitted to the Union before her, and we are sure that she is forewarned.

A DISTURBER.

USUAL METHODS OF UNIONISM.

NO RESPECT FOR FAIR TREATMENT BY EMPLOYERS.

The Treatment of the Loewe Concern Proves Unionism to Be a Business Disturber and to Have no Proper Place in a Prosperous Community.

The manner in which the Hatters' Union treated Loewe & Co. in its attempt to compel that firm to bend its knee to unionism proves that unionites know no principle save that of unionism. This is why it is dangerous to a business community for unionism to secure a foothold.

The attack upon the Loewe concern was of the most wanton and malicious character because of the complete satisfaction and harmony that prevailed in that factory. Mr. Loewe was a man who had himself been a workman at the bench and had gradually, through his ability and through the opportunities afforded by this democratic country, climbed the ladder of success until he had a very creditable and prosperous business, but at no time had he ever lost sympathy or consideration for the working people who had been less successful than he.

It is remarkable that in the trial of this case, a manufacturer like Mr. Loewe, who employed 250 hands and in the course of his business career had come in contact with a great many different workmen in addition to this 250, was so free from criticism and complaint that the defendants, driven to the very verge of desperation to find some defense to the suit, could produce no employé who could say anything against Mr. Loewe which might in any way be a justification and excuse for the disruption of his business. It is equally remarkable that in the case of customers with whom he dealt, no one could be produced who would reflect in any way upon the integrity of this man or upon the excellence of the merchandise which he had sold them. It is this remarkable righteousness and liberality in his business career that made Mr. Loewe an ideal plaintiff and made the jury willing to award him nearly the full amount of damages which he claimed.

When unionites will deliberately attempt to destroy such a firm because it objects to being required to unionize its shop, they are entitled to no standing in a community, and the cause of unionism should be treated as if it were a stick of dynamite. Mr. Loewe's employés had never asked for any increase of wages; for any shortening of hours; for any improvement in the condition prevailing in the factory, or many ways and their preference to work for him over many union manufacturers. Into this peaceful community the cause of unionism was injected by Mr. Moffitt, who, finding his arguments did not work with Mr. Loewe, said:

"We have talked this matter over. We have endeavored to show you that it would be to your advantage to unionize your factory, and we might just as well be frank with you, we have made up our minds that this factory is to be unionized, and we hope to accomplish this in a peaceful way. If you don't come in that way, we shall use our usual methods to bring it about."

Mr. Loewe replied: "Mr. Moffitt, do you mean to say that if I am not willing to unionize the factory that you will use force?"

And Mr. Moffitt, answering, said: "Yes, Mr. Loewe, to be frank with you, we shall use force."

The history of this attack on the Loewe concern, and the final victory in the Supreme Court in its suit for damages against the Hatters' Union, have been published. The point to be kept in mind is that if unionism secures a hold in an industrial community no firm is safe from attack, no matter how kindly its employés have been treated, now how satisfactory have been the wages paid.

Strikes and industrial disturbances are the prominent features of every community where unionism secures much numerical strength. Los Angeles does not want to suffer as has San Francisco from industrial strife. Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and other cities have had their strikes and lockouts because of unionism. Murders have been committed in all such communities, assaults perpetrated, and vast quantities of property destroyed in the attempt to make the cause of unionism triumphant. At the same time the unionites have been assessed for the support of strikes, they have lost time and needed wages because of having been ordered to go on strike by union officers, and much personal suffering has been endured because of the abject slavery to which they have been subjected by their well-paid officials who earn their salaries in no other way than by keeping industrial communities in an uproar.

Could the working people who have bowed their necks to unionism strike a balance on their present and previous conditions, they would find it difficult to prove any benefit from unionism. Employers who have, on demand, unionized their shops, have been the victims of so many petty demands and annoyances that they have found no advantage accruing to themselves.

Unionism is, in fact, of chief advantage to the men who are drawing salaries from the union treasuries. They retain their jobs by being active disturbers of industrial communities. They do nothing to put labor on any higher plane, or to make its devotees better workmen. Unionism actually lives by playing upon the ignorance of the working people, and the desire that can be created for petty authority. The result is a feeling of unrest regarding wages and hours of labor, and a growing hostility toward employers who have succeeded in building up a prosperous enterprise. In its

RUBBER PLANTS.

PROPAGATING THE GUAYULE.

NO STRANGER IN MEXICO AND SOUTHERN TEXAS.

Senator Aldrich and Mr. Rockefeller Interested in a Guayule Rubber Factory at Torreon—The Extraction of Vegetable Wax from the Candelilla Plant.

LOS ANGELES, April 15.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I am very sorry that I must positively contradict some statements made in your Sunday paper of March 27, about the cultivation of the Mexican guayule. I do not doubt for a minute that Arthur Burbank has propagated the plant at Prado, although the article does not say if he has done so by transplanting the imported specimen from Mexico or by growing it directly from the seed.

Propagating the guayule has been done for several years by the Continental Rubber Company of Mexico at their Hda. de Cedros and by the Germans in their East African colonies, although it cannot be said that these experiments have met with any degree of success as far as the most important factor is concerned, the rubber percentage of the cultivated plant. It will, however, show that Alfred Burbank's achievement is no novelty and that it has been known for several years to yield to the hand of man in cultivation.

The India Rubber World has for some years been giving valuable contributions about guayule and the manufacture of guayule rubber, and several French and German scientific periodicals have repeatedly published interesting articles going into details about everything in connection with guayule.

The guayule is no stranger in the United States, growing in Southern Texas, where a rubber factory is in operation at Marathon. That Alfred Burbank, during his visit to Mexico a year ago, was told that about two years before guayule had been found to contain rubber of a very desirable quality and a few crude factories had sprung up is rather astonishing. That guayule contained rubber was known by the natives of Mexico for at least a century and it is more than fifteen years ago that the first factory to extract rubber from the plant was established at San Luis Potosi.

The plant produces rubber, not of a very desirable quality, however, as it is soft and has a very high percentage of resin, but it is possible to extract the product that has found a ready market in the cheaper grades of rubber. Personally, I went more than five years ago to take the management of a guayule rubber factory in Mexico, which was by no means the first one, and, as for some crude factories, it is sufficient to name only the Continental Rubber Company at Torreon, in which Senator Aldrich and Mr. Rockefeller are prominently interested. The building of their factory, which has been in operation for about five years, cost $1,500,000 Mexican.

As to the Mexican candelilla, it is four years ago that I began experimenting with the extraction of wax from this plant, preparing the first samples, which were sent for examination from Mexico to Newark, N. J. Since then I have gradually perfected the extraction and refining until a perfect vegetable wax was produced, in every respect identical to the Carnauba wax, but for a slight difference in melting point.

The candelilla propagates from the roots similarly to ginger. That the natives say it never blooms seems preposterous, as by my own observation it blooms regularly every year. That Alfred Burbank by testing it in a crude way obtained seven pounds of wax from 100 pounds of the plant is most remarkable, as my experience shows that the best quality of candelilla plants do not yield one-tenth of that amount; in fact, barely six-tenths of 1 per cent. of commercially pure wax. That one acre should be made to make a cash return of $840 seems still more astonishing, for, even at a wax yield of 7 per cent., as claimed by Alfred Burbank, this would amount to ninety-eight pounds of wax per acre for the 1400 pounds of candelilla plant, this making the value of wax $8.57 per pound, whereas the value is between 20 and 25 cents per pound. As originator of the wax, I have left nothing undone to try it out, but I am sorry to say that it has proved to be as large a commercial failure as it has been a productive success.

The candelilla is also no stranger in the United States, growing extensively in Texas, where in San Antonio a couple of years ago a company was formed for the very purpose of making candelilla wax, but thus far without any success. Papers at San Antonio and Monterey have published misleading and exaggerated statements about the profits to be made from the manufacture of candelilla wax, but these statements were based upon no absolute proof and with the only object to float stock in companies to be organized, but which have never been formed.

The candelilla has been propagated in the government experimental station in Arizona—but it is not a question of propagating the plants here or somewhere else. That such is feasible has been repeatedly shown, but, to propagate the guayule with at least the same or a higher percentage of rubber and to create candelilla with three to four times the yield of wax which it now produces, is the point. Now Alfred Burbank seems to have observed the fact that the layer of rubber between the wood and the bark is a protection against the scorching heat and continuous drought which is only occasionally broken by showers. Will the guayule, grown under other conditions, develop the same protective layer of rubber which it will not need? This is against the laws of nature and it is just this which has made the propagation of guayule a failure.

As Alfred Burbank only had the opportunity to spend a couple of months in a very small part of Mexico's central table lands he must not judge the country by the impression he received and which certainly would have been materially changed during a prolonged visit, say of a couple of years. He might, for instance, have found out that under more favorable climatic conditions a variety of guayule is found growing which is known as "Mariola," and which is absolutely valueless for rubber extraction as the rubber percentage is hardly over 3 per cent. He might have discovered that the destructive method of gathering the guayule is more the result of the greed of the Haciendados, who allow the peons to pull out the young plants hardly a few inches high and absolutely valueless for rubber extraction.

The guayule propagates excellently from the seed if weather conditions are not unfavorable, and the pulling out of the mature plants instead of being destructive will allow a new growth to come to successful development, but for the reason above mentioned it is to be feared that in some localities the plants have almost entirely been de-

CHAPTER V.

END OF THE STRIKE.

For weeks Lorin French lay wounded almost unto death upon his bed, but his splendid constitution and intense vitality soon placed him on the road to recovery, while the revulsion of feeling even among the strikers themselves which followed the Market-street massacre speedily restored order to the distracted city.

The cities of Southern California had profited by the strike in San Francisco, especially Los Angeles, where, through the courage and influence of Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, in control of the great Times newspaper, the labor unions had never been able to establish the closed shop. The San Francisco emigrés who had been forced from their homes and business by the drastic boycott of the rioters now returned and conditions of peace and order were soon reëstablished.

One week after the strike was ended there appeared in the Bay City papers the following advertisement.

TO THE PEOPLE OF SAN FRANCISCO:

The members of the Employers' Union of San Francisco recognize the fact that the time has come when the disastrous conditions which have driven capital from our midst, which have brought thousands of laborers to poverty and hunger, and which have inflicted greater suffering and loss upon the people of this once proud city than was caused by earthquake and fire, should now cease, and the pursuits of peaceful industry should be permanently reëstablished. To that end we are willing to rehabilitate our several manufacturing and mercantile establishments upon a basis that shall secure to all laborers and all capitalists their lawful rights.

We concede that every worker, skilled or unskilled, has the absolute right to work or remain idle as he chooses. He has the right to prescribe the terms upon which he will accept employment. He may leave his job at his pleasure if he does not like it, or for any other reason, or for no reason at all. He has the right to strike for higher wages or for lesser hours of work, or for the right to direct his employer how to carry on his business, or because some other worker at some other trade has been discharged by some other employer, or because somebody has insulted his walking delegate, or because his labor union has ordered him to strike. He has also the right to use all lawful and peaceful methods of persuasion to induce other laborers to join the strike, and to persuade anybody and everybody who will listen to him not to buy meat, or bread, or drygoods of any merchant who does not sympathize with his strike.

But, he has no right to attack, or beat, or insult or threaten any other worker who picks up the trowel or the hammer that he has dropped, or who accepts the employment that he has abandoned, and he has no right to enter the shop or factory of his former employer to persuade or threaten the workers who have not left their jobs, and he has no right to parade in front of any shop or restaurant denouncing its proprietor as unfair and its workmen as scabs; neither has he any right to throw stones at street cars or assault the passengers thereon.

In brief, the striker has a right to do anything that it is lawful for him to do, and nothing that it is unlawful for him to do.

The employer of labor has a right to invest his capital or withdraw it from investment at his pleasure. He has the right to open and close his factory when he will. He has a right to fix the wages he will pay his workmen, and the hours of labor he will require of them. He has the right to select his employés. He has a right—when not restricted by contract—to discharge any man for any reason or for no reason at all, and to bring in workmen from any part of the United States. He has the right to employ sober men in preference to drunken men, or relatives in preference to strangers, or friends in preference to enemies, or men who will be loyal to his interests in preference to men who will be indifferent. In brief he has a right to conduct his own business in his own way, subject to the laws of his country.

In selecting employés we will make no distinction between union and non-union men. We propose, however, for the present, as a necessary precaution, to select fully one-half of our workmen from those who did not foment or actively participate in the recent disturbances. We will select our men individually upon their individual merits as workmen, and we will not give recognition or audience to walking delegates, or professional labor agitators.

Our principle is that all men are equally entitled to the protection of the law and equally amenable to punishment for violation of the law.

Our motto is the open shop, protection to both labor and capital, and prosperity for all.

Applicants for employment will be requested as evidence of good faith to sign an agreement, which will also be signed by the employer, embodying the foregoing principles of action. Our several factories and shops will be open on Monday morning, next to receive applications for employment.

This advertisement was signed by over five hundred employers and within a week thirty thousand men were at work, and the furnaces were lit, and the chimneys flamed, and the hammers clanked, and the city resounded with the music of contented and well paid toil, and San Francisco was herself again.

CHAPTER VI.

CO-OPERATIVE LABOR TRUST.

"In the matter of the estate of James Melrose, deceased, the application for letters executory under the will is before the court. Who represents the applicant?"

"The firm of Bruff & Baldwin, your honor," replied a tall gentleman, with spectacled nose and a beardless face.

"Are there contestants?" said the court.

Then from their seats within the bar of the courtroom there arose a decorus multitude of lawyers, short and tall, old and young, fat and lean, the white-bearded Nestors, and the complacent, chirping chipmunks of the bar, and in various forms of expression it clearly appeared that there were contestants.

"I think," said his honor, with a weary smile, "that my associates might have sent this case to another department, for I have had a surfeit of contested will cases. Proceed, Mr. Bruff."

"In behalf of the Society of Bug Hunters, who are legatees under a former will," said a sepulchral voice, proceeding from the rotund diaphragm of a bald-headed and full-bearded gentleman, "I have twenty-three ob-probate of the alleged will of James Melrose, and——"

"Will my learned Brother Lester permit me to interrupt him for a moment," twanged a catarrhal tone, "while I state that I wish my appearance entered here on behalf of a recognized natural son of the deceased, and I protest——"

"On the part of the Australian cousins of James Melrose," shrieked a lean man with red hair, "I have a preliminary objection to offer to the will being read in court at all, and——"

"I object."

"I except!"

"Will your honor please note the exception of the Nevada heirs?"

"I demand to be heard!"

Then, from the entire front of the bar, came cries of excited counsel, learned in all law save that of decorum, while the court rapped for order.

"Gentlemen," said he, "you will all please be seated. The court itself would like to be heard. The will of our deceased fellow citizen, James Melrose, who was never more regretted by me than at this moment, or"—and the court smiled, deprecatingly—"the paper which purports to be his will, is presented here by our Brother Bruff. Now, unless some gentleman denies the death of James Melrose, it occurs to me that the reading of the paper offered as his will can but tend to our common enlightenment——"

The deep-voiced Lester, with his twenty-three objections, sustained by a "brief" which covered ninety pages of manuscript, arose.

"I have not yet finished," said the court. "It is apparent that many of the objections urged will be against the reading of the will. Such objections may be discussed more intelligently if the court can be suffered to gain some knowledge of the contents of the paper offered, and I shall ask, gentlemen, that you suspend argument or motions while the clerk reads the will. It will then delight the court to devote the remainder of the term to hearing arguments why the will ought never to have been read. Mr. Clerk, proceed, and I will send to jail for contempt any member of this bar who shall interrupt you until the reading has been completed."

There was silence in the crowded courtroom as the clerk opened and read the document:

In the name of God, Amen. I James Melrose, of San Francisco, California, being of sound and disposing mind and memory, but being assured by my physicians that I must soon leave my earthly tenement, do make, publish and declare this my last will and testament, revoking all wills previously made by me.

The free use of my hand enables me to make this will holographic, and this labor I undertake in order to more completely demonstrate to the court where it may be offered for probate that it is altogether my own act, and that I am sane, clear of mind, and fully possessed of my memory and judgment.

I am unmarried and childless, and my nearest living relatives are cousins of remote degrees, with whose names and places of residence I am scarcely acquainted. No relation of mine has any moral or rightful claim upon my estate, and the disposition I am about to make of my property will work injustice to no living creature.

I appoint as executor of this, my last will and testament, my friend, Lorin French, to serve without bonds, and I direct that for his services as executor, and in lieu of all commissions, he receive the sum of $50,000 out of my estate.

I direct my said executor to forthwith pay to each man who has been in my employment for two years or more a sum equivalent to his salary or wages for the period of one year.

I direct my said executor to proceed as speedily as possible to prudently dispose of all my estate, and convert the same into money, to be paid over by him, after first paying my funeral expenses and my just debts, and the legacies hereinbefore named, to the corporation hereinafter named.

I request that my said executor, Lorin French, shall, in coöperation with the Governor of California, the Mayor of San Francisco, and my friends, David Shelburn, Lawrence Slater and Francis Dalton, proceed forthwith to form a corporation under the laws of this State, to be entitled the "James Melrose Labor Aid Company," to which corporation, when organized, I direct that the proceeds of my estate be transferred, to be used by it in providing capital for the use of such coöperative and profit-sharing corporations as may, from time to time, be organized to avail themselves of its aid.

The James Melrose Labor Aid Company will not itself engage in any industrial enterprise, but will confine itself strictly to donating money to such organizations of mechanics as may seek its assistance and comply with its rules.

My meaning may be made more clear by the following illustration:

Suppose that 200 men shall desire to establish a coöperative foundry. They will make a preliminary organization and apply to the officers of the James Melrose Labor Aid Company for the capital necessary to conduct the enterprise. Those officers will—after careful inquiry—ascertain that the buildings, land, machinery and plant of such a foundry will cost $900,000, and that it will require a cash capital of $100,000 to carry the current business. They will purchase such a foundry, taking title in the James Melrose Labor Aid Company in trust, and will select a general manager, who will employ and discharge men, fix the rate of wages and hours of labor, and have full charge of the works. After the indebtedness of the Foundry company to the Aid company shall have been fully paid, with interest, the members of the Foundry company may elect their own general manager, but, until then, that officer shall be chosen by and be subject to the control of the directors of the Aid company.

Each man employed in the works, from the general manager to the lowest-paid helper in the yards, must be a stockholder, the number of shares to be held by each being regulated by his wages. If a workman should die or leave employment, either on his own motion or because of his being discharged, his shares would be turned over to his successor, who would be required to make good to the outgoing man or his widow or heirs whatever amount had been paid upon the shares, and the money for such payment might be advanced when necessary out of a fund for such purpose provided by the Foundry company, the shares standing as security for the advance. No shares could be transferred except to a successor—employed in the foundry.

A portion—say one-fourth—of the shares of the corporation should be reserved for allotment to workmen whose employment might be required by the growth of the works, though it will be the object of the James Melrose Labor Aid Company to encourage the continued organization of new coöperative labor corporations, rather than the enlargement of old ones. "'Deed, and it wasn't a sand-lot law at all," interrupted a stalwart, red-bearded attorney with a slight Milesian accent. "It was passed away back in the seventies. Old Moriarty was down with typhoid fever, and the head guy in the Holy Jumpers was pressing him every day to save his soul by lavin' his millions to the Jumpers College and Hospital. But before the priest could get the old man in condition, Mike Moriarty slipped Nat Bronton—the king of the lobby—up to Sacramento with $20,000 rint money that Mike collected while his father was ill, and the bill was rushed through under suspinsion of the rules. Two days after the bill became a law, the Head Jumper coaxed and drove old Moriarty into signing a will that cut Mike off wid $50,000 and left $3,000,000 to the hoppers, and the next week they buried the old man with ceremonies enough to start him to heaven on an express train. They say that there was a scrappin' match between the head Jumper and Mike when the holy hopper found that he had been outgeneraled and Mike lost the top of his left ear, but he saved his father's estate. Sure, the whole case is reported in the Fortieth California under the title of the Society of Holy Jumpers against Moriarty, and it decides this will of James Melrose, sure enough."

When the ripple of laughter which this interruption provoked had subsided, Mr. Longridge resumed:

"My learned friend Casey, is right, your Honor; the case he quoted does decide this one. If this will had been made more than thirty days before the death of Mr. Melrose, it could at most have disposed of but one-third of his property. But it was made only two days before his death, and, under section 1313 of the code, is utterly void," and the speaker resumed his seat.

The court turned to the attorney who had offered the will for probate.

"What have you to say to this, Mr. Bruff?" he inquired. "All the claimants for the estate will doubtless agree with the position taken by the attorney for the public administrator. They are joined in interest in overturning the will. You alone defend the beneficent purposes of the dead man. What have you to say?"

"What can I say, Your Honor?" said Bruff, bitterly. "It is another instance of a man conceited and obstinate enough to attempt making his own will. If my old friend, Melrose, had called me in, I would have told him that courts and juries in California seldom allow a man to dispose of his own estate, if it be a large one, and he must give his savings away in his lifetime if he wishes to prevent his sixth cousins from rioting on them. I would have had James Melrose convey his vast property to trustees to carry out his plans, and have effected the transfer completely while he was yet alive. But he, great and simple soul, supposed, naturally enough, that he had a right to do as he pleased with his own, and that, being without near kindred, and no person having a claim upon him, he could help the poor with the money which it had taken him half a century to accumulate. He was originally educated to the law, and, although he had been out of practice for thirty years, he knew how to formulate a will. But he was not aware of the ravages committed by a California Legislature among the time-honored principles of the common law. Mark the result of legislative folly and individual inadvertence. Twenty millions of dollars, which their owner proposed to devote to a grand and comprehensive experiment for adjusting the vexed relations of labor and capital, will now be consumed in court costs and witness fees, divided among a horde of attorneys and finally scattered in selfish enjoyment, and in ways unuseful to man all over the world, from Australia to Elko. It's the law, I suppose, and neither Your Honor nor I can help it, but it's an accursed shame, nevertheless."

And Mr. Bruff, pale with excitement, resumed his seat.

"The court can not only pardon your emphatic language, Brother Bruff," said His Honor, "but indorses it. If I could discover any loophole which might be crawled through, or any way by which I could break down or climb over the legislative barrier, and validate the bequest of James Melrose, I would certainly do so. I will reserve for further consideration the question of the validity of the legacies to the employés of Mr. Melrose. I am inclined to think that portion of the will may be good, and so carry with it the right of the applicant to letters testamentary. For the present, however, I am reluctantly compelled to sustain the objection of the attorney for the Public Administrator, and refuse the will admission to probate. It is ordered accordingly. Mr. Clerk, note the exception of Mr. Bruff to my ruling. I will take my summer vacation now and go fishing. I shall adjourn court for one month, and the further hearing of this case for two months. In the meantime, if the gentlemen who represent the various applicants for letters of administration will leave their papers wtih the clerk, I will, upon my return, give them careful attention."

"Does Your Honor desire that I leave all my papers?" queried the sepulchral-voiced Lester.

"All," replied His Honor, and he paused for a moment and glanced at the ninety pages of manuscript lying in front of counsel learned in the law, "all except your brief, Mr. Lester."

"Will Your Honor continue the further hearing of this case for a few minutes," said a tall spectacled lawyer who had been an attentive auditor, "while I appear in answer to the published citation, and offer for your consideration a later will made by Mr. Melrose?"

The court signified its acquiescence in his request.

"I chanced," said the speaker, "to be stopping at the St. Francis Hotel during the illness of Mr. Melrose, and occupied a room adjacent to his. I formed a pleasant acquaintance with him, and visited him daily. On the afternoon of the day on which he died I made my usual call. He was very feeble, but in the full possession of his mental faculties. His physician, Dr. Kurem, was in the room, as was the nurse who attended him. He asked me to take from the drawer of his desk the will, which has been the subject of discussion here today, and read it. I did so.

"'Is it all right?' said he.

"I told him that I feared it was all wrong, for the reasons which have been urged against its probate here.

"'Cannot I make a new will,' said he, 'leaving my property in a differently framed trust to Lorin French for the same purposes?'

"I told him that the same objections that applied to the will might be successfully urged to break the trust.

"'Well,' said he, after a pause, 'Won't you prepare a will in which I can leave all my property to my friend, Lorin French, without any conditions?'

"'And please prepare it now,' said he, 'for I am liable to pass away any minute.'

"I seated myself at the desk, and under his direction, I prepared a will, which I will now, with your honor's permission, read."

The court signified its assent and the lawyer thereupon drew a paper from his breast pocket, and read aloud its contents.

"'I, John Melrose of San Francisco, being near unto death, but of sound mind and memory, hereby make public and declare this my last will and testament.

"'I revoke all wills heretofore made by me, especially a certain holographic will now in my safe at my office, in which will I attempted to leave all my property in trust for the formation and conduct of coöperative labor associations.

"'I declare that I have no wife, and no children or descendants of children, legitimate or illegitimate. I bequeath to any woman who may claim to be my widow, or to have been my common law wife, and to any person who may claim to be my child, legitimate or otherwise, and who may succeed in establishing such claim, the sum of $100.

"'I appoint my friend, Lorin French, as sole executor of this, my last will, to serve without bonds.

"'I leave all my property, of whatever kind and wherever situated, to my friend, Lorin French.

"'I leave my everlasting denunciations to any rascal of a lawyer who may pretend to misunderstand this will.

"'In witness whereof I have hereunto affixed my hand in the presence of Dr. Kurem and my nurse, William Brown, this day of May 1911.

"'JOHN MELROSE.'

"'Mr. Melrose,' said I, 'is this will accompanied or preceded by any direction or request, written or verbal, to Mr. French, with respect to the disposition he shall make of the property or any part of the property bequeathed to him?'

"'None whatever,' replied Mr. Melrose, 'the bequest is unconditional.' Dr. Kurem and Nurse Brown then signed the will in due form as witnesses, and at the request of Mr. Melrose, I took charge of it with directions after his death to present it for probate.

"'My friend French,' said Melrose, with a smile, 'will I am sure put the property to good uses,' and with these last words, John Melrose turned his face to the wall and passed away.

"I have attended upon these proceedings, in compliance with the published notice of application for probate of the former will, I now object formally to the probate of that will on the ground of the existence of this later will, which I now file with the clerk and offer for probate."

There was a dead silence for a minute, which the court was the first to break.

"Mr. Bruff," said the court, "you represent the application for the probate of the first will. What have you to say?"

A broad grin illuminated the countenance of the saturnine, as he replied, "Nothing, your honor."

"Mr. Lester, you represent the Bug Hunters' Society. What have you to say?"

"Nothing," replied Lester, gloomily.

"Mr. Longridge, you represent the Public Administrator, what have you to say?"

"Mr. Longridge uncoiled his six feet three, from his chair and extending his skeleton right arm in a sweeping gesture, adjusted his spectacles and replied with feeling, 'Your Honor, for the first time in a professional career extending over a quarter of a century, I have nothing to say.'"

"Mr. Goslinkskey, you represent the Australian third cousins. What have you to say?"

"I don't see that anything I could say would avail my clients anything," replied Goslinkskey, "but personally I may remark that I am glad that I collected my retainer in advance."

"Mr. Contingent Halfresults, you represent an alleged illegitimate son of Melrose, and if you can prove his parentage, he will come in for $100 under this later will. What have you to say?"

Mr. Halfresults arose and started for the door, remarking only as he left the courtroom, "Oh, hell, your honor."

"Mr. Clerk," said His Honor, blandly, "enter a fine of $10 against Counsellor Halfresults for contempt of court. The first will of John Melrose is refused probate. The second will is admitted to probate. Mr. Sheriff, adjourn court."

TRUTH FOR CONSUMERS.

CLOSED SHOP DEMORALIZES.

LOSSES IN CONTROVERSY ARE CHARGED TO CUSTOMERS.

Plain Talk by People of Portland Against the Attempt of Labor Agitators to Stir Up Industrial Strife in That City—Employers Organize Against It.

The attempt of labor unions to force closed-shop conditions upon the industrial establishments of Portland has received the condemnation of the Chamber of Commerce of that city. Statements made by members present at this meeting will apply as well to other communities where agitators are working as to Portland. President MacMasters, who presided at the meeting said:

"We do not desire to see Portland undergo the same trying circumstances which resulted in San Francisco from the 'closed shop' policy. If the workingmen want to organize, that is none of our business. When they make demands upon the employers as to whom we shall not employ, thus precipitating industrial troubles and demoralizing the business of the city, it is time for the interference of business men."

W. H. Corbett said: "We know that the skilled mechanics and the laboring men in general are well satisfied. They are getting good wages, are provided with steady employment and have no cause to complain. It is the agitators sent in from other places who are giving the present trouble."

The Portland "Spectator" editorially takes the side of the open shop, and says: "The terms closed shop and open shop are easily understood. In the closed shop, the walking delegate of the union is boss; no man shall work there who cannot show a union card; no material shall be handled there that does not bear a union brand—the number of men to be employed; the number of apprentices; the amount of work each man and apprentice shall do; the wages to be paid; the hours of employment—all these are dictated by the union, which through the closed shop aims to dominate employé and employer alike. The closed shop is illegal, criminal, and a violation of the Constitution, and the employé who enforces it and the employer who agrees to it are equally guilty of conspiring to injure the property rights of workmen in their labor. The closed-shop town is shunned by the man seeking investment; by the business man looking for an opening; by the workman in need of work.

"The open shop is under control of the wage-payer, who employs, irrespective of union and non-union affiliation, competent men owing allegiance to him and not to the walking delegate, and who expects a fair day's work for a fair day's wage.

"The public can take its choice as to which of these shops is the better for Portland.

"The wage-earners in a published statement tell us 'that there is no more potent factor for industrial peace than the strongly organized labor unions.'

"Employers who have had demands made on them by strongly organized labor unions know what sort of peace that it; it is the peace that falls on the proprietor has neither the money nor the strength to meet the strongly-organized union's exorbitant demands.

"The unions declare the open shop a humbug, and the closed shop the finest thing in the world. Then they turn from vapid argument to what they no doubt consider most sarcastic reference to the wage-payer. When they discuss the strike we find how near the truth they are; here is what they say they do:

"'The workers strike when refused conditions they believe they are entitled to. Then they use the right of free speech and free press to keep other workers from taking their places. They invite these other workers to make common cause with them, to join their ranks. That is all there is to a strike.'

"That is all there is to a strike! The use of free speech and a free press, and a pleasant invitation to other workmen to join the ranks! About business affected by the strike there are no scurrilous lies printed and uttered? as, for instance, have been printed and uttered against the Frank L. Smith Meat Company. And the weaponry of the illegal boycott is not used, with profane ruffians carrying banners in front of Smith's shops, swearing at women and intimidating men? And no bludgeoning, stoning and shooting wage-earners and wage-payers, as in Philadelphia and in every place where there has been a strike? Just a quiet invitation to join the cause!

"All the people of Portland are interested in the contest between the open and closed-shop forces, because the burdens of industrial disputes, no matter which party wins, fall heaviest on the consumer; when the unions make a demand which the employer cannot meet, the walking delegate says: 'Charge the raise to the customer.' During the fight the supply is reduced, and the consumer pays the difference between the long demand and the short supply; when the fight is over, the losses on both sides are charged to the consumer. Portland does not want the criminal closed shop; we are sending invitations to all classes of people to come here and help develop the city and State; we do not ask the newcomers to show us their letters of transfer from the churches of the East; why, then, should we demand that they present union cards as tickets of admission to Oregon?"

The situation thus presented to the people of Portland may well be considered by the people of Los Angeles.

INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS.

The growth of the cement industry of the United States during the past ten years has been phenomenally rapid. A decade ago the business of making cement was confined to a number of comparatively small mills. Today the output and consumption is upward of 50,000,000 barrels annually, valued at a little over $1 a barrel, and cement constitutes one of the ten leading mineral products of the United States. Concrete is coming into general use in building of every kind.

Over 25,000 tests have been made by the technologic branch of the United States Geological Survey of plain and reinforced concrete beams, columns and blocks, under every possible condition, to determine their tensile and crushing strength and fire-resisting qualities.

To accomplish these tests a number of heavy machines have been used, several of 200,000 and 300,000 pounds and one of 600,000 pounds capacity. There is now nearing completion at Pittsburgh the largest machine in the world for testing the strength of structural materials used in great buildings and engineering works.

The people of England will enjoy the apples raised in the orchards of Washington, as the result of a six months' munds, a prominent fruit grower of Wenatchee Valley. He took with him to England 17,000 boxes of Wenatchee Valley apples, all of which were disposed of and arrangements completed for the shipment of double that number this season. Mr. Edmunds has arranged with British dealers to handle the Wenatchee Valley shipments, and will also maintain headquarters in New York City, from which point he will distribute Wenatchee fruit to French, English, German and South American ports. It is expected that 2500 carloads of apples will be produced in the Wenatchee Valley this year.

"At Mulhausen, Alsace, there is being manufactured a new nitrous product for use as fertilizer, in the shape of a nitrate of aluminum, the combination of nitrogen and aluminum being obtained by a new process recently invented," says the American Fertilizer (Philadelphia, Pa.)

"The inventor first studied the preparation of carbide of aluminum, which he obtained in the form of yellow crystals by heating a mixture of alumina and carbon in the electric furnace. This carbide, like the other carbides with which we are acquainted, has the property of fixing gaseous nitrogen, and thus gives nitride of aluminum. To obtain an economical production of this latter, he does not isolate the carbide of aluminum, but after the formation of this body in the electric furnace it is at once mixed with a fresh quantity of alumina, and is then treated with nitrogen gas. He thus obtains masses which contain 20 to 24 per cent. of nitrogen. Under the influence of atmospheric oxygen and moisture we have ammonia given off, which is transformed by bacteria into nitrates and alumina.

"The inventor is working the new process in a small factory which he installed, and has realized some interesting results during the last year. He now produces crystallized nitride of aluminum, which has a high percentage of nitrogen—as much as 34 per cent. An advantage of his process is that we do not need to use pure nitrogen, which requires an expensive plant of Linde or other machines, but the gas from the producer is employed, this containing 77 per cent. of nitrogen and 23 per cent. carbon monoxide with a little carbonic acid. Thus we have a very simple and rapid process for the commercial production of the crystallized nitride."

Charles M. Schawb is installing at his Bethlehem plant seven modern blast furnaces, one of which has been completed and put into operation. The new furnace will produce 150,000 tons of pig iron in one month, and when the whole seven are completed, 1,000,000 tons a month can be produced.

The amount of steel required by the industries of the country can be estimated to a certain extent by the fact that during the month of March the United States Steel Corporation alone averaged 40,000 tons of daily orders.

There is a great demand for cottonseed oil for soap making purposes, owing to the shortage of hogs, and as the amount of American cottonseed oil produced this past season will be needed almost entirely for food purposes, the price situation is somewhat disconcerting. According to leading Liverpool authorities, the position of English cottonseed oil for 1910 is discouraging. In July last it was estimated that the Egyptian cottonseed would be 80,000 to 100,000 tons more than the previous crop, but owing to sudden weather change at crop maturity the estimate dropped to 80,000 tons less than last season. Seed prices rose $33.50 to $45 per ton, the highest ever recorded. The cottonseed supply from Brazil is also disappointing, but from Bombay imports are likely to be large, which may make up some of the deficiency in other quarters. There is no hope for even moderate prices for DERRICK DRIPS.

EAGLE CREEK'S WELL IS GOOD.

Intermittent Flow Estimated at Twenty Thousand.

Company After Gusher Sand in the Old Midway.

Overproduction Fear Allayed by New Pipe Lines.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

BAKERSFIELD, April 22.—During the past week another important addition has been made to what may be called the potential gushers of the North Midway field in the Eagle Creek's well No. 3, on section 31, 31-22, which flowed intermittently on Sunday and Monday at a rate estimated at 20,000 barrels per day. The well is a mile south of the Mays, and is very like that spectacular spouter in most respects. On both days it alternately flowed and sanded up, making about ten hours run altogether. The well is 1430 feet deep.

The company was prepared for the performance and had ample sump holes to catch the oil. A "T" had been placed on the top of the casing so the oil was shot out to one side of the derrick instead of being sent straight up in the air.

When the Eagle Creek's well came in the Santa Fé's big No. 2 on section 6, 32-23, just across the section line, stopped flowing for a little while and then resumed at a greater rate than ever.

The Santa Fé's well No. 1, on section 25, 31-22, about a mile northwest from the Mays, flowed for a short time Saturday night at a tremendous rate—said to be about 10,000 barrels per hour—but sanded up and has done nothing since.

La Belle Oil Company on section 4, 32-23 is having some trouble with its casing, but oil men from the North Midway say it promises to be one of the best producers in that famous gusher belt. The well is now over 3000 feet deep.

To date there are no fewer than ten wells on seven sections grouped about the end of the Sunset Western Railroad at Fellows that may properly be placed in the great gusher class, although only the Santa Fé's well on section 6 has as yet a record for consistent and continued performance. It is universally accepted, however, that the Mays, the Pioneer Midway, the California Midway and others now sanded up can be made to flow by agitating, or breaking the bridge of sand in the casing whenever a means of disposing of the oil makes it desirable to start the production.

Across the section line to the west of the Eagle Creek, on section 36, 31-22, the American Oilfields Company has finished four wells at depths varying from 1000 to 1500 feet, all of them being big producers. To take care of the product four more 55,000-barrel steel tanks have been ordered. These will give the company a total tank capacity on this section of 400,000 barrels. The company has spudded in well No. 58.

The California Midway has completed its cement reservoir and other facilities for handling the big production it expects from its well in section 32, 31-23 and is preparing to clear the casing of sand and keep it clear by pumping oil from the sump back into the well. By this means it is expected the bridge will be broken and further sanding up prevented.

The St. Lawrence has begun its fifth well on section 5, 32-23.

E. J. Miley and D. J. Graham have leased forty acres in the south half of section 17, 31-22 from Miller & Lux and are getting materials for drilling on the ground. The land is about six miles northwest from Fellows where the Mays, Eagle Creek, Pioneer Midway and other big gushers are located, and is well beyond the proven belt. Several companies are working in the vicinity, however, with bright hopes of success. The Starlight is down some 500 feet, Fred Kimball is something over 700 feet with a well on the same section, and J. C. Yancey is drilling on section 15. On section 19, 31-23 T. M. Hodgens and J. B. Dabney are preparing to drill.

IN OLD MIDWAY.

Dos Pozos Oil Company on the northeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section 26, 32-23, has started after the gusher sand found by the Standard at a depth of approximately 2400 feet in its wells on section 30, 32-24. The Standard's wells are near the center of the section; and the Pozos' property is therefore a little over half a mile from the gushers. The two tracts lie on about the same level, both being well down on the slope of 25 hill, and Dos Pozos expects to get the gusher sand about the same depths as the Standard. The well was started with 16-inch stove pipe casing. The company is owned by San Francisco capitalists headed by Howard E. Wright. It paid $60,000 for its forty acres.

The Pierpont Oil Company has finished a 300-barrel well in the southeast quarter of section 25, 32-23. This well also, is a little over half a mile from the Standard gushers on section 30, and shows strong gas pressure. The Paraffine has just reached the sand in its sixth well on the northeast quarter of the same section. The Pierpont has finished well No. 7.

The North America Oil Company has finished well No. 5 on section 26, 32-23, and has built three 1500-barrel tanks to help in handling its production. The company is drilling a water well.

The J. M. S. Oil Company on the same section is pumping 200 barrels from its well No. 1.

The Twenty-five Oil Company, one of the pioneers of the Midway field, has finished wells numbers 28 and 30, both good producers and declared a second dividend of 25 cents per share. The total amount of the dividend is $10,000. The checks will be sent out on the 25th.

The Tight Wad is down over 1400 feet in its well, No. 3, and expects to reach the oil sand in another 100 feet. The Elkhorn, another section 25 company, is shutting off the water in its well No. 2, at 1100 feet.

The Paula Oil Company has finished its well No. 2 on section 23, 32-23 at a depth of 1135 feet. The drill penetrated 175 feet of oil sand and the well is expected to do about 150 barrels. Well No. 1 is pumping about 135 barrels.

The Cresceus is planning to go down after the gusher sand on its forty-acre lease in the southwest quarter of section 25, 32-23. The Cresceus is now down 1500 feet with a 9 5-8 casing.

The Hamilton Oil Company has sold forty acres in section 35, 32-23 for $1500 an acre and leased the remaining 120 acres of the quarter section. The sale is interesting from the fact that not many months ago section 35 was considered too high up in the hills to be in oil territory, the impression prevailing that the oil sands outcropped farther to the north. The Hamilton brought in a good well on the property last fall at a depth of 850 feet.

The Santa Fé's well, No. 1, on section 25, 31-22, is flowing 1000 barrels of twenty-three gravity oil per day by heads and gradually increasing its yield. The well is 250 feet deep.

SOUTHEAST OF SUNSET.

A strike of great interest to companies operating south and east of Sunset has been made by the Western Minerals Company on section 25, 11-24, where nineteen gravity oil, apparently in good quantities, has been found at 1200 feet. The oil is of a greenish color and is strongly impregnated with gas that blew oil and sand out of the hole. Further drilling has been stopped while the water is being cemented off.

Oil has been found on section 24, just north of 25, but the strike on the latter section is the farthest southeast of any yet made in the Sunset field. The well is about five miles from the Hazelton Crude, six miles from the Johnson and nine miles from the town of Maricopa. From Old Sunset the hills bear east, and oil seeps low down on the hills have been taken as indicating that the formation which in general runs northwest and southeast, makes a similar turn. Geologists, however, have insisted that the oil sands extend back into the bay of the hills where section 25 is located, and the recent strike appears to prove their contention. The finding of the oil at this depth raises the presumption that it will be found in all directions from the Western Minerals' well for a considerable distance. If further drilling by other companies that are working in the vicinity proves successful, another large and important addition will be made to the present Sunset field.

The Sunset Security Oil Company, which many months ago began a well on section 29, four miles west of the Western Minerals' new well, has levied another assessment and will use the money in completing its hole, which is now 730 feet deep. A. R. Wilkes, the Thirty-Four Hill Oil Company, George Haberfelde and associates, all lessees of the Sunset Security, have derricks up on adjoining sections, and another company, which has recently leased section 30 and a portion of section 29, will soon be ready to drill. Farther out on the flat to the north are more than a dozen new derricks on unproven ground.

The Pluto and Cosmos Oil Companies on sections 21 and 19, 25, 19, Devil's Den district, are preparing to resume operations. The Cosmos has a hole down more than 1000 feet. The Pluto suspended operations while an assessment was levied to replenish its exchequer.

PIPE LINES ALLAY FEAR.

The lurking fear of over-production, aroused by the increasing list of gushers, present and prospective, has been greatly relieved by the frequent announcement of new pipe line projects for the west side fields. At the present time the Standard and Producers' Transportation Companies' pipe lines are in full operation, the Associated is at work on its line into McKittrick and Midway, the Standard has ordered materials for duplicating its line from Midway to Kern River, the Producers' Transportation Company is considering the question of duplicating its line and the California-Arizona line, the Southern Pacific's line over the mountains into Southern California and the Refining & Producing Company's line to the coast are all in various stages of planning.

These seven pipe lines, when they are all completed, will have a capacity of not less than 140,000 barrels of oil per day, and besides there will be whatever facilities for transportation that the two railroad lines into the west side fields will be able to supply. The present estimated production of the west side fields is a little less than 70,000 barrels per day.

ROUMANIAN PRODUCTION.

EXPORTS TO FRANCE.

That the oil producers of Roumania have profited by the temporary cessation of American trade with France in petroleum may be gathered from the statistics of production in, and export from, that country. The following figures of the Roumanian production for January, 1909, and the same month 1910, reduced to American barrels, are instructive:

Total or Field—	Jan. 1910.	Jan. 1909.
Bustenari	217,242	248,643
Campina-Poiana	192,706	137,363
Moreni	304,706	176,407
Baicoi-Tintea	127,277	32,628
Miscellaneous	6,319	5,394
Total	858,697	644,350
Increase	214,347

The exports from Roumania to France in January, 1910, were 77,658 barrels, divided as follows: Crude, 1519; refined, 52,501; naphtha, 23,638. This was one of the months that American petroleum was barred from France by the tariff, and nearly one-tenth of the entire Roumanian production found a market there.

SHIP CONSUMPTION.

CALIFORNIA OIL FOR FUEL.

In its weekly market letter the firm of E. F. Hutton & Co. of New York and Los Angeles has the following to say about the oil industry of California:

"The international markets for petroleum and products therefrom are in a stronger statistical position than ever before. For fuel purposes petroleum is making new high records at home and abroad. The continuously increasing costs of hoisting coal from ever-increasing depths in European and a number of American mines is giving markets almost wholly to crude oil that were formerly large factors for British and domestic coal. There are today at local docks a number of steamships that came here from the Pacific Coast by way of Cape Horn with sufficient crude petroleum for that voyage and to carry them from here to ports in Europe. For ship consumption California petroleum is in demand 350 per cent. higher than the consumption for the same purposes five years ago. All sound stocks based upon petroleum are exceptionally strong.

"One factor showing the strength of the industry is that within a few days makers of cans for the shipping of petroleum bought all the tinplate of certain sizes possessed by the Steel Corporation and the independent interests, and then bought of distributors here and in ten other cities all the tin plate in stock of the required sizes, and then the supply was inadequate for pressing wants by the exporters of petroleum. National production of petroleum is moving at the rate of as much in a fortnight as the year's production in 1873."

FOURTH DIVIDEND ANNOUNCED FOR MAY 10.

I. L. Miller Resigns and W. L. Twining Elected Secretary-Treasurer. Number of Wells Contracted for Is Doubled—Eight Wells Now on the Pump.

The Ojai Valley Petroleum Company will pay its fourth dividend, amounting to 1 per cent. on the par value of stock, May 10. At the directors' meeting held last Thursday I. L. Miller severed his official connection with the company and with his former associates will not be connected with the company management in the future.

W. L. Twining, secretary of the Melwood Petroleum Company, was elected secretary and treasurer of the Ojai Valley Petroleum Company to succeed Miller.

The Ojai is vigorously pushing development on its Kern River property and on its Ventura lease. The sixth well on the first named is nearing completion and will be finished, according to indications, the early part of May.

Material is on hand and rigs will be installed on two additional wells at once. The contract, which the Ojai Valley entered into with the T.M.B. Company, calling for the drilling of eight wells during the coming twelve months, has been amended and instead of eight wells, sixteen are to be put down in that time.

To carry out this contract the T.M.B. Company, is increasing its force and equipment, and will put the wells down in record time.

No. 5, which came in a short time ago, has maintained a steady production from the day that it was brought in, and has increased materially the Ojai's production from its five Kern River wells and the three on its Ventura lease.

The Melwood Petroleum, adjoining the Ojai property, has put its Nos. 1 and 2 on the pump, has erected a derrick and is rigging No. 3. It has material on the ground for its fourth well.

PUSHING THE WORK.

AMERICAN MIDWAY PLANS.

Rapid work in order to reach a producing stage is being done by the American Midway Oil Company, a concern recently organized by well-known oil men and capitalists, owning considerable property in the gusher territory of the Midway district. J. M. McLeod and W. D. Wilson, officials of the company, are now in the field pushing the work.

On property No. 1, eighty acres located on section 22-32-24, in addition to the standard rig already drilling, Mr. Wilson is contracting for a rotary rig and work with it will begin as soon as it can be erected.

On property No. 2, comprising 160 acres on section 32-31-24, a camp is being built for the men and tanks for the water supply are being erected. It is expected that drilling will begin on this property a week from next Monday.

On property No. 3, comprising 160 acres on section 11-31-24, three standard rigs are being placed in position, a water line is being carried to the property and tanks are being erected. The work of drilling here, according to Superintendent F. H. Cooley, will start within ten days.

The company only received its charter a week ago last Wednesday, and expects to get results within ninety days, it is announced.

Goes to See Gusher.

W. W. Orcutt, president of the Lakeview Oil Company, left for Bakersfield Saturday and will pay a visit to the famous gusher. Just before leaving he received information that the well is still spouting oil at the usual rate.

SELECTIVE DUMBNESS.

A Father's Vow Descended Upon His Son as an Apparent Punishment.

The London Lancet recently dug up from its old files the following story: "A farmer of Somersetshire made a vow in the presence of his wife never to speak to her again if she bore him another daughter. He already had three. A son was born, but, strange to say, when the child became old enough to talk and did talk to his mother and sisters, the father could never get a 'word out of him,' and what was more the boy could not talk to any man. This was assumed in the neighborhood to be a punishment of the man for his rash vow.

"The republication of this curious case led to the appearance of another similar tale of intermittent aphonia, vouched for by a clergyman of Bath. In this instance a young man of 28 years had never spoken to his father nor to any one in the neighborhood but his mother and sisters. And he could not talk with them in the presence of his father. But when he visited the clergyman in a neighboring town he talked as well as any one. When asked for an explanation of his curious actions, he had none to offer. 'I simply can't talk, no matter how hard I try,' was the substance of his answer. He had heard something of a 'rash vow' by his father, but could give no further details.

"If these stories are to be accepted as true, they may perhaps be explained as the result of what are called 'fixed ideas,' which sometimes dominate slightly disordered or unsteady minds.

Had Abundant Time.

There was a loud splash and a moment later a dripping head appeared above the waves. On the end of the dock was a stevedore nonchalantly lighting his pipe.

"Help, man!" cried the chap in the water. "Can't you see I am overboard? I can't swim."

"How often you been down?" asked the stevedore, shielding the flickering match from the wind.

"Once, I believe, but hurry up, man! Give me a hand!"

"You wait!" You have two times yet to go down and I have only one match. I'll catch you on the last trip."—[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

GROUND FLOOR OFFERING

OF THE

Puritan Oil Company

We sold one hundred thousand shares of Puritan Oil Company stock at the ground-floor price before the first week had passed. We repeated the next week, and we say to you in all sincerity that this ground-floor opportunity may not appear in this paper again. This is the third time, and we expect to sell out our small allotment before the end of the week. We have enough inquiries in the office today to take up the entire offering at the ground-floor price, providing they all buy as much stock as others have done in the past two weeks.

Remember all of this has been done without a prospectus or literature of any kind. Clients who know the reputation of our firm have picked up this stock, which is acknowledged to be the one best buy in the oil stock market today.

We will have our prospectuses ready on Monday morning, giving complete data, maps and all information regarding the Puritan Oil Company, and we are inserting this advertisement just to notify the readers of The Times that today may be your last chance to get in at the ground-floor price of 10c per share, as we will mail the prospectus to all who have made inquiry, on Monday, and we expect to meet tardy inquirers with the words: "Our entire allotment at the ground-floor price of 10c per share is Gone." This has happened to our offerings before.

A small block of Puritan Oil Company stock will be offered to the public at an advance price, but we desire to notify you to call at our office today if you wish to get in ahead of the out of town people who are obliged to wait until our literature reaches them.

"First come, first served," is our motto. "Where there is a will there is a way," and the way to our offices in the Phelan Building is known to every investor in San Francisco. We advise you to meet this great opportunity to get in on the ground floor of the Puritan Oil Company at the door of our office the first thing Monday morning. If you cannot find a way to buy a block of Puritan stock, make a way, because we believe the Liberty Oil Company, whose property immediately adjoins Puritan, will bring in a gusher before long. That would cause Puritan Oil Company stock to go to par in a day. Think of the profit.

Rig-building has begun on the 80-acre lease of the MIDWAY-MARICOPA CRUDE OIL COMPANY, in the southwest quarter section of 34-12-23, of the Midway-Maricopa field. Funds are available for machinery and drilling equipment, which will be stripped to the ground as soon as the rig is up. A fine crew of drillers has been engaged. No time will be lost in drilling our first well.

Every day that the Lakeview Gusher, to the west of us, continues to spout forth her torrents of crude oil proves the enormous productivity of this part of the oil fields and urges us to strenuous efforts to bring forth as productive a well as our ground would indicate is possible. Land around is rising in value. Our property looks better to oil investors every day. We have been overwhelmed with inquiries and deluged with reservations.

The board of directors of the MIDWAY-MARICOPA CRUDE OIL COMPANY have decided to advance the price of its stock to 6 cents. They are perfectly justified in so doing. We have asked that we be allowed a few days to communicate the contemplated advance to those who have made reservations at 5 cents. That time is extended to SATURDAY NIGHT, APRIL 30, AND NO LONGER. Accordingly, we hereby announce that all persons holding reservations at 5 cents must close them by cash payment between now and the hour of midnight next Saturday. All who have not yet sent us their orders at 5 cents and who desire this stock at that price, must file their orders with us before the end of this week.

THIS IS POSITIVE. Orders mailed from out of town must bear postmark not later than Saturday, April 30. Orders will be accepted by wire or phone only when followed by cash, which must be in our hands not later than Saturday night.

CROWN OIL
TWO FOR ONE

An investment in CROWN OIL today is as good as any two other oil investments. CROWN OIL is two companies in one. We are in Ventura, the high-gravity land. We are in Midway, the Giant Gusher Zone. In Ventura, we have struck oil. We are drilling deeper—to get a Big Oil Well. In Midway we go for a Gusher. We are actively operating in both fields. We have not increased our capitalization. We have not raised the price of our stock as yet—BUT SOON WE SHALL.

Winner on Ventura Ground

We have demonstrated the value of the 320 acres which we hold in the Sespe district, by our Well No. 1, which last week was cased with 7⅝-inch casing to 900-foot depth, and on which we have now resumed drilling, with instructions to go down to 1500 feet and bring in the full capacity of the deep oil sands. We shall go to 1800 feet, if necessary. We are going to make a deep well, and thereby secure a heavier flow. We expect from 100 to 300 barrels daily.

The accompanying cut shows the formation of our Ventura Well No. 1. This well gives every indication of being a big producer. We shall not sell much more stock. We shall not need to. Now is the time to become a CROWN OIL stockholder, if you are not. Now is the time for every stockholder to take up more stock and increase his winnings, since winnings are sure.

Our Midway Ground is Prime

Every day and the events thereof make us more and more certain that we made a splendid bargain when we took this lease on 100 acres in Section 30-32-25 in the Midway Basin. Development is going on all around us. The Lakeview people, on Section 24, touching us diagonally on the northwest, are drilling with a rotary and are down 600 feet. The Pyramid on Section 30 and the Midway Hills on Section 18, northeast and north of us, are preparing to drill. A line drawn diagonally from our property through Section 24-32-24, and extended clear across the map of Midway field, will show development in progress on every section, the Honolulu gusher and the Barnodon Oil Combination's properties being in this line.

That's how good our Midway prospect is. Oil experts tell us that we are practically certain of striking a big flow of oil at 2300 feet. It won't be long before we are down that far. We shall lose no time. We have the ground on lease with option to buy at $500 an acre. The discovery of oil on this 100 acres will make us all rich.

UP GOES THE PRICE

Price of Stock Will Advance

Our price of stock will remain unchanged at 15 cents a share, cash, and 16 cents, on time, for a few days longer. Early in May the price will advance. We expect to complete our Ventura within twenty days. Buy BEFORE THEN. BUY NOW.

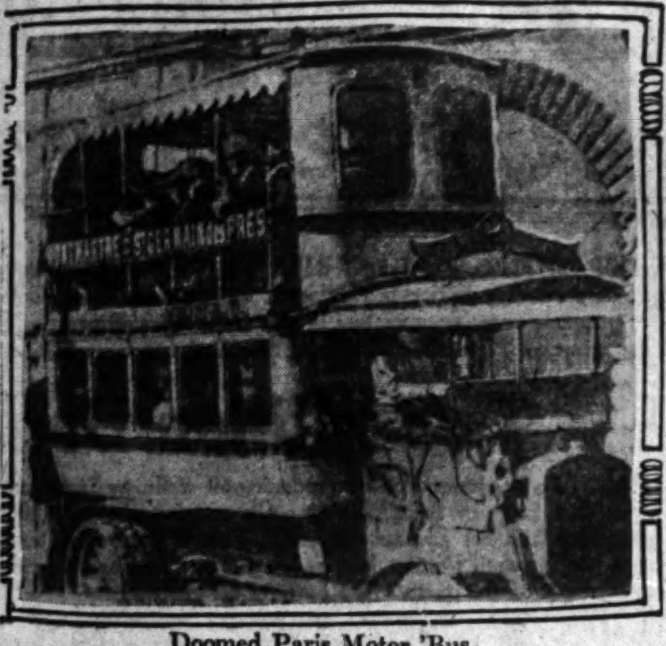
DOUBLE DECK AUTOBUSES ARE DOOMED IN PARIS.



Doomed Paris Motor 'Bus.

This type of vehicle soon will disappear from the streets to be replaced by one without the seats on top.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PARIS, April 5.—The dashing, breakneck autobus, the terror of the Paris streets, has had a short career but a mad one. Now comes the edict that the "upper deck" 'buses, as the foreigners call them, are to be taken from service and replaced by an autobus without seats on top, the change to take place as quickly as new machines are in readiness to supplant those at present in service.

That these autobuses have always been dangerous and a menace to public safety has been proven by the fact that there have been several accidents. In some cases the omnibuses, whirling around a short turn at a corner at an unwarrantable speed, have toppled completely over, scattering helpless passengers in every direction. The present style of autobus is familiar to every visitor to the French capital. It is long, narrow and top heavy, it bends and groans and creaks at every revolution of the wheels, and it plows its way through the crowded streets regardless of frailer vehicles or frightened pedestrians.

Unaccountable as it may seem, however, there are some people who simply revel in these thrilling trips, the very risk and uncertainty making the ride a delightful affair. They scoff at the idea of any necessity for a change of system and unhesitatingly say tha the Paris public is in its dotage and should remain at home by its fireside and dream at its leisure instead of trying to mingle with the busy world.

With the passing of the reckless autobus will come the end of the scientific stair climbing in which the Parisian public have become so adept after the few years of severe training. These vehicles pitch and toss as though they were ships in a heavy sea; but the active Parisians scramble up utterly undisturbed by the knocks and jostles that come to them in their ascent. A first experience with the Paris 'bus is generally demoralizing and most mortifying to the newly-arrived American. In her endeavor to keep her equilibrium she frantically clutches at the rail; then comes a sudden lurch and the helpless new arrival is forced to perform the most laughable acrobatic feats before the last stair has been conquered; for be it known, a Parisian public bubbles with mirth and the ridiculous drowns any pity that might lurk in their souls.

But all this will soon be at an end. The Autobus Company fought hard to retain the present machines in the service. Twice the number of passengers can be carried by the 'bus with the top seats and the official order to abolish them will put the company to a much greater expense.

When Eggs Are Fresh.

According to the secretary of the National Poultry Organization of England, an egg should be either three or four years old or not more than three or four days. He says: "I have eggs from China which are excellent. The Chinese wrap them in clay, put them away for three years and then bake them. The clay pulls off the shell and the interior resembles a plover's egg in appearance. They are much nicer than a stale English egg, because the chemical process of change is complete. The abomination is the month-old egg, which the coöperative depots we are establishing are designed to abolish."—[Kansas City Star.

Almost Perfect Doubles.

Those almost perfect "doubles," George du Maurier and Sir Lawrence Alma-Tadema, were nearly indistinguishable. The story goes that a woman sitting beside Du Maurier at dinner started conversation by pooh-poohing all idea of a resemblance. "You know, Mr. Alma-Tadema, I think it's absurd to say that you and Mr. Du Maurier are so awfully alike. There's really no resemblance at all. Don't you agree with me?" "Quite," was the polite answer, "but, you see, I happen to be Mr. Du Maurier!"—[St. Louis Times.

ate Meteoric Career of Two Listed Stocks.

peculator Follows Pioneer in Rich Strikes.

It has been the history of gold excitements and oil exceitements that fter big strikes have been made, the ioneer is followed by the speculator. Then a great mining camp has been stablished, and it begins to take on an ir of permanency, then the stock exchange becomes the scene sometimes f almost frenzied speculation. This condition generally lasts until the companies whose stocks are being bandied about either go to the wall, or become xtures in the great bulwark of conservative financial institutions. In either case they lose their interest for the mere speculator, and he hies himself to green fields and pastures new.

In a measure, stock speculation is a azy man's job. Of course, to be successful, he must have an alert mind, capable of doing quick thinking, but the speculator does not have to work with his hands—at least temporarily—and while the market is coming his way he lives high without the expenditure of physical energy. To many men such a condition is very alluring. When the slump comes—back to the mines or the oil fields.

There was a time when the Los Angeles Stock Exchange depended largely for the volume of its business upon the trading done in mining stocks. That day has gone by—possibly may never return—and for all the trading done in the shares of mining companies at the present time the institution might better be named the Oil Stock Exchange.

The great speculative activity in oil stocks on the local exchange has been more in evidence since January 1, 1910, than ever before. The enlarged activity in trading, in fact, was coincident with the bringing in of the big gushers in the newly-developed Sunset-Midway field. The actual activity in the oil fields has had a stimulating effect upon the stock issues that may be classed as more or less speculative, but most of the dealing in the stocks of new companies that expect to operate in the Midway field have been done directly with the new companies. The explanation for this is very simple—but very few of the new companies are listed on the Stock Exchange.

METEORIC CAREERS.

Probably the companies whose stocks have had the most meteoric careers on the board in the past two months are the California Midway and the Oleum Development Company. Take the rompings of these issues, for instance, over the March hurdles: California Midway stock was as low as 33 cents and as high as 87 cents. During the month there changed hands 579,840 shares of the stock, of an estimated value, based upon the price at which the stock was sold, of $480,644.60. Since the close of March the issue has declined still further, under the pressure of a Bear raid, and on Thursday closed at 64 cents bid. This company has one big well and is drilling two more. Its property is located in what is supposed to be the gusher territory of the Midway district.

During the same month, Oleum Development, as a speculative issue, varied in about the same proportion as California Midway. It sold as low as 6 cents a share, and as high as 15 cents. Actual figures for the month show how Oleum was regarded as a speculative proposition by the brokers and the public. In that time the number of shares sold aggregated 1,125,190, and the estimated value of these shares was $134,289.21.

In the high-priced oil issues, Union's low mark for March was 104.00 and the high figure 106.00. On last Thursday Union sold at 107.12½. During the whole month of March only 1942 shares of Union were sold on the local exchange, and the estimated value was $201,601.25. During the same period, Cleveland Oil also had quite a varied career. Its low point was 25 cents and its high point 55 cents. There were sold 109,000 shares of an estimated value of $50,379.75. The price of Jade Oil on the board, during March, varied from 30 to 47 cents, and 81,053 shares changed hands, valued at $34,046.94.

In the month of March there were large and frequent sales of the shares of the Doheny properties and of Associated Oil, but the market price did not vary to any great extent.

For a period of about thirty days there was a strong bullish tendency to the local market, especially toward oil shares, but for the past two weeks the Bears have been in the saddle.

Old-Time Southern Gentlemen.

"Mississippi is full of characters like Senator Gordon," said J. C. Lowry of New Orleans. "These men are gentlemen of the old school of the era before the war, when every planter in the State who owned slaves rolled in wealth and lived like a lord. These conditions bred a race of men who never will be surpassed for hospitality and courtesy. In almost any part of Mississippi, in the country districts, it is the custom for travelers to stop at the dinner hour at the first plantation they come to. Even if a perfect stranger to the planter the traveler knows that he will be received as an honored guest, his horse fed and taken care of by the numerous darkies around the place, and himself regaled with the best that the wine cellar and the planter's table afford. He always is pressed to stay for supper and the night, and when he departs the planter, with every member of his family, is genuinely sorry that the guest will not stay longer. The hospitality is unbounded. Nothing is too good for

"PURE FOOD" LABELS.

Manufacturers Do Not Like to Name Ingredients of Some Preparations Foisted on the Public.

[Washington Post:] The most imposing literary effort in label production encountered by the authorities enclosed bottles of "Mother's Friend," an alleged medicine compounded at Atlanta, Ga., and warranted to cure all the ills of womankind. The mixture was found to contain "an oil and a small quantity of soap." The goods were condemned and the firm warned to tell the truth on the label. "Cane and maple syrup" from Denver had on the label the words "cane and" almost invisible and the makers were induced by a fine of $20 and costs to make the print visible. A brand of pepper put out by a St. Louis firm, consisting chiefly of ground fruit stones and pepper shells, brought a fine of $50. A dozen instances of adulterated milk and ice cream prosecuted in the District of Columbia netted fines ranging from $10 to $25. Boston sent a consignment of "dessicated eggs" paddled with formaldehyde, to New York, and were found so strong on reaching the latter port that they were destroyed. The goods were headed for a bake shop. Doped cure-alls, frightened into obscurity two years ago, appear in the limelight as deadly and brazen as ever. Failure to mention in the label that the goods contain cocaine, the correct percentage of alcohol and the dangerous acetanilid, cost the makers or dealers from $25 to $50 each. Penalties in most cases of first offenders are moderate, but should the makers or dealers be called to account a second time they will get all that the law allows, with board and lodging thrown in.

PROTECTION.

QUAINT RISKS OF INSURANCE.

COMPANIES ACCEPT EVERYTHING OFFERED.

Londoners Lead in Writing Policies on All Sorts of Curious Things for Which People Want Protection—Americans Are Also Following the Example.

Despite the natural assumption that American surety, fidelity and casualty companies are in the van of institutions that guarantee all the normal and abnormal activities of man, the fact remains that they are conservative and even backward compared with such a body as Lloyds of London. Before the American companies were born Lloyds was issuing insurance against such calamities as triplets in the family and a chain of grandmothers and uncles failing to die in proper order so that one missed the title and estates of Lord Soakerville. The Britons may be slow, but they have had time to figure out the acturial risks on all mortal happenings and many things that can't happen. A young nation cannot hope to compete with a country which invented Lloyds instead of faro and poker 240 years ago and has been perfecting the system ever since.

The official and irreproachable side of Lloyds associations of underwriters is maritime insurance. It is the little groups of independent Lloyds which get together to guarantee no triplets, shortlived uncles and the like. These groups will take a chance on anything. They issue policies on elections, Thaw trials and the possibility of the czar's visit being cut short by a bomb. They have insured a shopkeeper in the Strand against the danger of Nelson's monument falling down and wrecking his store. Not that there is any more chance of the casualty than of the Washington monument toppling over. In war times ships are insured against capture, and in peace vessels overdue are guaranteed to reach port safely. Once there was a ship four days overdue. Lloyds advanced the premium to $10 in $500. On the fifth day the rate rose to $25 in $500, and the day following it reached $50. On the next day Lloyds philanthropically offered to guarantee the cargo for $100 in $500, and many merchants thankfully paid the enormous premium. The next day the ship came safely in.

Perhaps the apex, and the apotheosis of the insurance idea was attained when a Lloyds group offered to guarantee mankind against the material consequences of lying. If the moral and spiritual consequences had been insured, not to mention the reception of the liar in the next world, the proposition would have overstepped the limits of good business and encroached on the preserves of theology.

AMERICAN COMPANIES SLOW.

American companies, as was said, are conservative and backward, compared to all this, although there are about 100 of them, and their total annual premiums amount to hundreds of millions of dollars. Each company carries from three to a dozen lines of more or less allied insurance. Items like Paderewski's $50,000 fingers, Caruso's valuable voice, the monkey Consul's $100,000 personality, celebrated dogs and famous race horses are usually carried by groups of Lloyd's underwriters.

The mere fact of insuring all sorts of things is not as significant or important as the indirect result of the insurance system. The development of universal insurance in America means less dishonesty, crime, cruelty and misery. It is not that the companies intend it that way; far be it from them to pose as moral forces for the betterment of mankind. But their profits depend on morality in many directions, and they have compelled morality in places where laws, courts, societies and reformers have failed.

Take some examples: Ohio was known as a State of official embezzlers. The public Treasurer at Cleveland got away with more than $350,000, and the smaller officials skipped off with their proportionate booty from time to time. Surety companies of repute stopped giving bonds for Ohio officials, and when asked their reason, said bluntly that there were too many chances for crookedness in that State. Ohio would have to reform her book-keping and make it harder for tempted treasurers to abscond with the cash before the companies would oblige with their indispensable bonds. The boycott against Ohio did not last very long, for the State did reform her book-keeping system, and the companies reëntered the field. Just now the companies are trying to have amended the bad accounting system prevalent in the rural treasurers' offices in New York State and in Pennsylvania and California. The Western States generally have more up-to-date accounting methods than the East. As for corporations and individuals seeking fidelity bonds, the first inquiry is into the system of accounting, whether an employé can draw cash on his single signature, how well the books are kept and how often they are audited.

Some county treasurers, as in the case of the Treasurer of Cook county, Ill., are bonded as high as $20,000,000. This insurance may be carried collectively by the banks which the Treasurer designates as his depositories.

Thousands of agents of surety companies in all parts of the country make a personal investigation of the desirability of the risks taken in their neighborhood. The agents often discover facts which prompt the insurers to decline bonds on certain individuals, and in that case the employers generally discharge the men involved and engage more trustworthy workers. In fact, the single feature of investigation, without regard to insurance, is said to compensate employers for their premium investment. The vast records of employés, though stored away by the ton, are scientifically arranged and easy to consult. One surety company has 3,000,000 individual records on file. Armour & Co., the Chicago packers, are said to carry the largest fidelity bond for their employés in the United States, their drivers, agents, cashiers, collectors and other workers in all parts of the country being bonded for $10,000,000. The annual premium on this amount is between $25,000 and $30,000. Many railroads bond all their ticket agents, conductors and other employés who handle cash.

As a detail of unintentional morality the surety company hesitates or refuses to bond a cashier with five children and $12 a week salary. Such an attitude on the part of the insurer has prompted not a few employers to raise the wages of their trusted men to a living scale or to take extra precaution against defalcation.

LIVE STOCK INSURANCE.

Live stock insurance supplements the work of the humane society by the inspection of the animal risks undertaken. A race horse or course, is bound to be well cared for and needs no outside protection. It is different with work horses, and many of underfed, overworked and badly stabled beast owes a debt to the insurance veterinarian, who demanded better conditions before approving a policy. A firm of horse underwriters, for an additional fee, supplies expert veterinary care during the contract. There is frequent, and often daily, inspection of the animals regardless of veterinary service. The premium on a work horse is 8 to 10 per cent. of the value, estimated to average $250. While the insuring of work animals is rather new in the East, western companies have for some time been insuring all kinds of live stock, including cattle, mules and hogs. One of the biggest race-horse policies is carried by James R. Keene on his Colin, the amount being $150,000.

A recent news item telling of a jury verdict of $20,000 against an Iowa surgeon for malpractice may have the effect of stimulating the growing line of physicians and druggists' liability policies. A small error in an operation for which a nurse is really responsible, or a prescription wrongly compounded by a clerk, may inflict heavy financial loss on surgeon or apothecary. The rates for physicians' defense, with limits of $2500 for one suit, or $15,000 for any number of suits, are from $10 to $15 a year.

Health insurance is issued to men and single women only, the annual premium being $7 to $9 for each $5 of weekly indemnity. It seems rather surprising that no medical examination is required and that a policy holder may draw his indemnity without being confined to the house. A period of fifty-two weeks' consecutive sickness is paid for. One form of policy insures against thirty diseases, paying medical fees as well as weekly indemnity. It would appear to an outsider that health insurance would be a magnificent chance for grafters and those afflicted with a constitutional distaste for working for a living. There are several diseases easy to simulate, and an expert malingerer might spend all his days in luxurious invalidism.

In accident insurance, which costs from $4 to $20 a year, according to the hazard of occupation, for $5 weekly indemnity and $1000 death payment, the accumulative bonus and pension features are comparative novelties. Under the accumulative feature the principal sum is automatically increased 50 per cent. in five years, so that a $1000 policy becomes worth $1500. The pension feature is a limited indemnity to be paid for continuing disability after the period of the full indemnity has terminated, and lasts until the policy holder is seventy years old. Among the "accidents" insured are "unprovoked assaults" upon the policy holder. If the insured is lucky enough to be injured in a train accident he gets double indemnity.—[Omaha Bee.

and those who achieve will always exaggerate.

ENJOYS HIS WORK.

"I am simply a normal man," Mr. Weeks observed to me, just as impersonally as if he had been talking about astronomy or a tax on incomes. I have no aptitude for anything. One kind of work is as satisfactory as another. I like to work, I suppose. No doubt I should enjoy life were I to devote myself to travel or to other forms of self-entertainment. When Congress adjourns I go home, and I am at my desk the morning after I get there."

"In what way, if I may ask the question, do you account for your remarkable prominence in Congress after so short an apprenticeship in public life?" I asked.

"I am not egotistical enough to attempt an explanation," Mr. Weeks replied. "Eliminating myself from our conversation, let me observe that the man in Congress who is accurately informed about some one particular subject will invariably obtain an audience—a fact I learned very early during my life in Washington. A measure was up further to regulate hazing at the Annapolis Academy. A colleague from Massachusetts urged me to say something with respect to the bill, reminding me that I could thus introduce myself to the House on a matter with which I was reasonably familiar. 'You may not have so good a chance,' he assured me, 'in the next five years.'

GAVE EXACT KNOWLEDGE.

"I saw the Speaker with some feeling of reluctance and he promised me the floor for a few minutes. When I arose to make my first speech, the members were in their usual state of disorder, coming and going, and talking among themselves, or busily writing. 'Mr. Speaker,' I said, 'I was graduated from the Naval Academy at Annapolis.' To my great embarrassment, the House was silent in an instant. The noise of conversation ceased. Members who had been moving about stood still. 'Here,' they thought to themselves, as I now understand it, 'is a man who ought to know what he is talking about. At all events, we shall listen for any information that he may have to give us.'" "Since then," Mr. Weeks went on to say, "I have found that exact knowledge will invariably get an eager hearing in the House of Representatives."

Although he left the navy twenty-seven years ago, while a midshipman, Mr. Weeks has the square shoulders and the martial bearing of a line officer afloat. A six-footer, he weighs 260 pounds, but he walks briskly and has none of the customary bulges or vast surfaces of corpulency.

As a cadet at Annapolis, he could slowly put up a 112-pound dumbbell with his right hand, and then kneeling with one leg, could lift an 87-pound dumbbell with his left hand and slowly put it above his head. Thus he would have 199 pounds, or the equivalent of a barrel of flour in the air, which, as a further test of his strength, he could lower to his shoulders and raise again, arm-high. By the methods of modern measurement, he would have been one of the most powerful men in the United States. Still a giant in strength, I asked him the character of his usual exercises. "Automobile riding," he said with a smile, "and bridge whist." Bluff, but personally attractive, direct but courteous, he cherishes no delusions concerning himself.

OPPOSES ROUGH HAZING.

"Did you oppose hazing?" I inquired, following up his first speech in the House.

"Of a rough kind, yes. The reports of hazing, however, are usually overdrawn. Moderate hazing in some instances is not without a measure of disciplinary force. A new man is supposed to stand up when an upper classman enters the room. There is nothing bad in that. If addressed, he is expected to add the word 'sir' to his answer. The most violent hazing I ever saw had to do with a bombastic youth who threatened to work a revolution in old and venerable customs. I heard a commotion and looked into his room. Thickly lathered, he was being shaved with the lid of a tin bucket—to reduce his cheek, so I was informed by the several barbers. The operation was never repeated. It wasn't necessary. From that night on the bombastic and revolutionary youth was as meek as Uriah Heep or Moses."

"How did you get into the Naval Academy?"

"Walking three miles to school one morning from our home in the country to the village of Lancaster, I was hailed by the Congregational minister. I wasn't acquainted with him, because my parents attended another church. His stepson had gone to Annapolis and failed at the examination. Senator Henry W. Blair, therefore, had asked him to suggest some one else. The principal of the Lancaster Academy had mentioned me. So far as I knew, there had never been a sailor in the Weeks family. I had not thought of the navy as a profession. I hoped to enter Dartmouth College. Beyond that I could not see, and didn't much care. I went to Annapolis, was admitted, and was graduated at the age of twenty-one."

"You lived in New Hampshire?"

FROM OLD ENGLISH FAMILY.

"Yes; and I am one of the few men of my name to leave the State. However, I got no farther away than Boston. Leonard Weeks came from England about the year 1650. Curiously enough, there is a house in Greenland, N. H., occupied by another J. W. Weeks, that was built by one of my ancestors of bricks brought from Great Britan. It was a dwelling and fort combined, and is still in a sound and habitable condition. My father cultivated land, but, like most men of common sense and ability, did other things as well. He was not a lawyer, but he was judge of probate for many years, and none of his decisions was ever reversed by a higher authority. As a boy, I worked on the farm, and at the age of 13 gathered the sap, carrying it in buckets with a yoke over my shoulders and boiled half a ton of maple sugar. I taught school when I was 16."

"You left the navy in 1883, after two years at sea?"

"I served on the Richmond and Admiral Charles O'Neil, long chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, was my executive. In those days we had no navy, and more cadets were graduated at Annapolis than were needed. The ten highest men in my class of seventy were kept and given permanent commissions, but I was not among them. Mustered out of the service, I went to Florida, where I did some surveying, running out the lines of the old Spanish grants under contract. I didn't know anything about surveying, but I needed money to live on. Before long I was made land commissioner of the Florida Southern Railway. I was drifting, you see, and I might say that I have been drifting ever since, taking whatever comes to hand and doing it the best I can. While eating breakfast in Florida with a gentleman, I was introduced to his daughter, who had just arrived from the North. I married her within a year. And that's the way my life has been.

ENTERS BROKERAGE FIRM.

"A friend from Boston happened along. I told him I meant to leave Florida because the climate was not good for Mrs. Weeks. When he reached home, the brokerage firm of Hornblower & Page was entering the last stages of dissolution. Page had died. Hornblower was blind, and his son desiring to continue the business, asked my friend to join the partnership. He declined and wrote to me.

"I took the chance, even if I could scarcely tell a share of common stock from a first mortgage bond, and had to borrow the money with which to begin. We bought a seat on the stock exchange. Mr. Hornblower represented us there. I kept the books and waited on such customers as called on the firm. We had one clerk—accurately speaking, he was a boy and ran errands. That was twenty-one years ago. We now have offices in nearly all the large cities of New England and at points in the West, Chicago among the rest. There are eight partners in the firm—not enough, however, to keep things moving, and more must be taken in. We do a general banking business, buy and sell bonds, and finance manufacturing and other concerns."

"Tell me about your experience during the Spanish-American War."

"I have always loved the navy, as a matter of course, and many of my best friends are in the service. Naturally, I joined the Massachusetts Naval Brigade. I was the commanding officer at the outbreak of the war with Spain, and had been for six years. I hoped for a small cruiser, but was assigned to protect the Massachusetts coast, and was given a miscellaneous collection of converted tugs, ferry-boats, old yachts, and a monitor or two left over from the Civil War, for that purpose. Fortunately, the coast didn't require any aggressive operations."

"Why did you go into politics?"

HOW HE ENTERED POLITICS.

"A party of my neighbors called on me and said it was my turn to act as Alderman. Newton is composed of a line of villages a few miles outside of Boston and contains about 40,000 inhabitants. I didn't want to be an Alderman, but it was my turn, you understand, and I consented to run, although the prospect was far from being pleasing to myself. I served for three years, and then was elected Mayor twice. My political stunt was done, as I supposed. However, Congress was mentioned. Sentimentally, the suggestion was somewhat attractive. A great-uncle for whom I was named served in the War of 1812, and was a mighty good soldier. He afterward came for a term or two in Congress. So I thought of Uncle John and accepted the nomination. That was in 1904. My plurality—Mr. Roosevelt had run for President—was 8500. In 1906, an off-year, it was called, my plurality was 200 votes less than in 1904. But in 1908 my plurality was greater by 3000 votes than the total vote of the candidates who opposed me.

HIS VIEW OF CANNON.

"There is much harsh censure of Speaker Cannon these days, but he is doing no more than was done by Thomas B. Reed, nor more than was done by Speaker Crisp, a Democrat. And he is the same Cannon that he was when I entered the House. Then he was about the most popular man in the United States. A fine silver service had been given him, and Democrats united with Republicans in praising his patriotism, impartiality and wisdom. Today he is the identical man that he was at that joyful time of eulogy and affection—thinking the same, acting the same, governed by exactly the same principles and motives. I respect him because he is honest and brave. His courage is unfaltering, and will win the heart of any one who knows him. I saw him back against the wall and defy a powerful company of men, representing other powerful men in every city of the United States, at a period when there were good grounds to believe that he could be nominated for President. Joseph G. Cannon has saved this country hundreds of millions of dollars, and men who are heaping abuse upon him now may be contributing ten years hence for a monument to his memory.

"The people should realize that they need more than ever before strong and brave men in Congress. If we are not watchful, we shall have a government by government employés. With the tenure of office made permanent and removal from office almost impossible, employés or the government are organizing and demanding more pay and privileges. There are 41,000 carriers on our rural mail routes. Soon there will be 50,000. They come into familiar contact with the people every day. Government employés defeated Eugene F. Loud of California, after a service of twelve years in the House, and probably Jesse Overstreet, of Indiana, who had been in Congress for fourteen years.

MUST GET AT PORK BARREL.

"Out in the country, you know, and everybody knows, that the measure of a Congressman depends on the length of arm he can get into the Treasury for public money to be spent in his own district. On all sides, jostling and threatening, are the sons or the two daughters of the horse-leech, crying 'Give, give.' The 'regulars' in the House of Representatives believe in checking the dangerously growing expenses of the national government, in doing business on a rational basis, and in keeping the treasury clear of looters and visionaries."

"How would you describe an 'insurgent?'"

"That would be a difficult task because no two 'insurgents' are alike. As a policy, if it can be so called, insurgency is the easiest trick in public life. Neither labor nor responsibility attaches to it. All an insurgent has to do is to stand up and complain. One of them told me last year, being rather weary of the company he was keeping, that he felt as if he were in a pack of jackals who were worrying and trying to pull down an old lion, meaning Speaker Cannon.

"New England money," I said, "is invested all over the United States. Where does it come from?"

"Not living in a rich farming country, the men and women of New England have found it necessary to be industrious and economical. The early settler was an able and resourceful man. He had land, but was compelled to turn elsewhere to make both ends meet. Money was made in ships, and when shipping dwindled, he turned manufacturer. We have but two assets in Massachusetts—the seacoast and the protective tariff. Men, ignorant of the facts, wave their arms toward Canada as being a guide in the business of safe and scientific banking. The mutual savings banks of Massachusetts, with single accounts limited to $1600, contain $700,000,000, which is more money than all the deposits of Canada put together.

"New England is rich because the people know how to count their pennies, how to adjust themselves to economic conditions, and because they do not look to State legislatures or Congress to perform some legerdermain that will fill their empty pocketbooks."

Aeroplaning in Mexico.

The City of Mexico, if we remember rightly, is something over 9000 feet above the sea. The question was whether an aëroplane could be worked in Mexico City, and to make an outside test, the Mexican Herald says, "several buzzards were brought from Vera Cruz, on sea level, where, as every one knows, they will fly straight up into the air until they are lost to sight. But those birds in the City of Mexico could fly no higher than fifteen meters from the ground, and within three days all had died." This is taken as conclusive that an aëroplane cannot navigate the air at the City of Mexico, and the Herald says no other experiments will be tried.—[Salt Lake Telegram.

In Weekly Consular and Trade Reports, Special Agent Henry Studniczka of the Bureau of Manufacturers, Washington, D. C., makes an exhaustive report on the wages paid to the laboring population in London, from the following are culled as examples: Workers in similar trades in Los Angeles can make their own comparisons.

COMMON LABORERS.

Common day laborers receive for various work from 10 to 14 cents an hour. Gas works stokers get $1.39 to $1.46 for 8 hours' work, double time being given for Sunday work.

"This is unquestionably the best paid class of workmen I found in London," says the special agent, "where they number about 4000. They receive 25 per cent. of the money they collect. Out of this they furnish their own gasoline and do the minor repairing themselves. As an average the men interviewed stated that they can make $15 to $20 a week, according to how fortunate they are in securing passengers.

Each street cleaning wagon has one driver and one loader, each of whom receives $1.12 per day, 58 hours constituting a week.

COST OF LIVING.

Taken all through these are very much lower wages than are paid in Los Angeles or in any other American city. In return it is persistently stated that the cost of food is very much lower in London than here, but is it? Here are the prices of staple foods in the most prominent laboring districts of the city: Islington, Hackney and Whitechapel, as ascertained by the special agent in personal visits to from ten to fifteen stores in each of the districts named, pricing two or three articles in each store (or shop as they say over there). Prices in the better resident districts were from 25 to 30 per cent. higher.

Has a Varied Language.

David Detwiler of Oxford, Mich., has recently undergone a peculiar experience that is puzzling local physicians. He originally came from among the Philadelphia Dutch, but for twenty years has not spoken a word of that language. Recently he underwent a stroke of paralysis, after which he began to speak Dutch, and could not speak a word of English. Gradually his command of the English language has returned and at the same time the Dutch has fled.

Today, nearly fully recovered from his experience, he can speak but a few words of Dutch.—[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Confined at Home.

It was in one of the colored schools of Baltimore, and the teacher was an inexperienced one. There was talking among the little negroes before her. "I want absolute silence," she said severely. Still the talking continued. "I want absolute silence," she repeated again. At the third demand one very small girl spoke up boldly. "Assaluta Silence ain't hyar," she said. "She's got de toofache."—[Lippincott's.

REVIEW OF THE WEEK—Lots, Lands and Building Developme

DISAPPOINTING.

DEALERS FIND BUSINESS DULL.

Inquiry in Crown City Good But Trades Few.

Big Building Activity Makes Up for Lull.

Continued Activity in All the Near-by Towns.

PASADENA, April 23.—Realty sales during the past week have been disappointing to dealers. The weather has been excellent and lookers have been many, but "close-ups" have been few. Several small sales were made in outlying districts, such as Lamanda Park, Sierra Madre and the northeastern part of the city. Altadena property has also shown much activity, but close-in property has been very dull. A careful inquiry from many of the active and prominent firms has not brought forth a single sale of consequence.

Building activity in outlying districts outside of the city limits of Pasadena is decidedly on the boom and, during the past two weeks, many new homes have been started and plans are being drawn for many more. For the most part these new homes are being built in the eastern end of South Pasadena between Oak Knoll and Alhambra, as well as around Oneonta Park and Sierra Park. The Arroyo Drive district is also extremely active and the prospects of the width and ownership of that scenic driveway being speedily established is bolstering up the building of many fine homes on the western hills of the city.

However, while the dealers have not reported sales, many private sales have been made and in each case good prices have prevailed. Just now property owners are in a state of expectation over the coming election for the High School bonds. Many of the conservative owners are working against the bonds on account of a slight increase in taxation, while the more progressive citizens are working "tooth and toe nail" for the bonds, believing that a fine new High School building, such as is now proposed, will add much to the value of Pasadena real estate.

Building permits taken out at the office of the Pasadena Building and Plumbing Inspector during the month of April are showing up well and promise to make this the banner month. For the first twenty-one days the total permits have been $174,131, which is but $10,000 behind the total for April of last year, the biggest month in the history of the city. Two good permits were taken out during the past week, one for $50,000, by the Mutual Building Company for the new store building of the Model Grocery Company on West Colorado street, and the other by the Rev. W. Quinlin for a new rectory building on North Fair Oaks avenue, to cost $8000. The Mutual Building Company has started work on its other big business block on West Colorado street and should take out the permit during the present month. The permit for the Hotel Maryland annex should also be taken out during April, as it is announced work will start about the first of May.

Permits for the past week are: J. A. Culberson, addition to residence, No. 222 North Grand avenue, $1500; E. H. Ogier, five-room bungalow, No. 1270 East Mountain street, $2500; W. W. Ogier, seven-room bungalow, No. 897 North Hill avenue, $4000; G. S. Blass, eight-room residence, No. 897 North Holliston avenue, $6000; Albert Mercer, six-room bungalow, No. 899 North Michigan avenue, $2500; Albert Mercer, six-room bungalow, No. 900 North Chester avenue, $2500; Mrs. F. L. White, six-room bungalow, No. 487 California street, $2000; Mrs. Carrie Noble, five-room bungalow, No. 1182 East Villa street, $1250; R. W. Yardbrough, eight-room bungalow, No. 75 Elevado Drive, $1800; R. W. Yardbrough, four-room bungalow, No. 276 South Delacey street, $1000; William Oscar Ludodiol, addition to residence, No. 167 North Orange Grove avenue, $4500; Miss Edith Carnwall, five-room bungalow, No. 788 Stevenson avenue, $1800; D. G. Carter, six-room bungalow, No. 1029 North Marengo avenue, $2800; H. M. Thompson, garage, No. 208 Columbia street, $2000; S. T. Phillips, five-room bungalow, No. 1678 North El Molino avenue, $1500; Mrs. Henry Forrester, six-room bungalow, No. 708 Huntington Drive, $2565; Mutual Building Company, two-story and basement brick business block, 135x201 feet, Nos. 56 to 76 West Colorado street, $50,000; Rev. W. Quinlin, thirteen-room concrete residence, No. 232 North Fair Oaks avenue, $8000.

CITY IS PROSPEROUS.

BUILDING RECORD IS LARGE.

SOUTH PASADENA, April 23.—One of the best evidences of prosperous conditions in this city is found in the statement of the First National Bank, which has just been made in response to a call from the Comptroller of the Currency. This statement shows a big increase in deposits as compared with the report made about three months ago, and a decidedly healthful condition of affairs generally.

The following recent realty transfers have been reported: Dr. R. B. Chapman to E. L. B. Godfrey of Camden, N. J., lot 50x160 feet on Mound avenue, between Monterey Road and Oxley street, improved with an eight-room bungalow, for a reported consideration of $4500. Dr. Chapman will, this fall, build on his lots in Oneonta Park.

H. A. Vatcher, Sr., has acquired two lots on Pasadena avenue, and Railroad street, adjoining a lot already owned by him. The property has a frontage of 288 feet, and overlooks the Arroyo. The consideration was $5500. The site is improved with two cottages. W. B. Allen is preparing to erect a $10,000 house opposite his present home on Fremont avenue. It will contain twelve rooms.

Sixteen rooms will be contained in a three-story residence to be erected on Monterey Road by C. W. Gates. It will have an interior finish of oak, mahogany and white enamel, four tile mantels and four bathrooms, and a billiard room. The exterior will be shakes and plaster.

The building record for April as indicated by the report of Building Inspector Saylor, is showing considerable improvement over the earlier months of the year. The total of permits issued up to the present time is $36,030. Included in the list are three expensive residences.

BOOM IN SIGHT.

VALLEY MEN ENTHUSIASTIC.

LANCASTER, April 23.—Unless all indications betray, Antelope Valley stands at the door of a big boom. Every train brings newcomers who seem to realize the possibilities of this region and to be anxious to buy land. C. H. Lippincott & Co. have just bought an entire section in order to subdivide it and sell it in small portions. Other concerns plan to follow and to purchase and resell on the installment plan, and this summer and fall will probably witness a great influx of settlers.

M. J. Reynolds has sold eighty acres to J. L. Roberts, at a good advance. Henry Braun, who, four years ago paid $2500 for his ranch, has received $10,000 for it.

The development of Lancaster, the commercial center of the valley, is proceeding rapidly. Editor Jones of the "Ledger," is making preparations for the construction of a fine mission style cement block building that will furnish quarters to the newspaper and two commercial houses. George Webber is enlarging his Hotel Western. G. G. Bennett is building an additional structure for his blacksmith business. Other building schemes are on the way.

MARKET HAS BRACED.

COPPER MAN BUYS RANCH.

SAN DIEGO, April 23.—The realty market, both urban and suburban braced during the fore part of the week. The biggest deal was the transfer of the suburban property of the San Diego Flume Company, consisting of the renowned Cuyamaca Lake, thousands of acres of surrounding timber lands and about forty miles of flume supplying water to the towns of La Mesa Springs and Lemon Grove and the intermediate territory. The value of the property transferred is said to be $300,000, the purchaser being James A. Murray, a wealthy Montana copper miner, who three months ago bought a 300-acre ranch in El Cajon. Murray says the water system is to be further developed.

In city property the transfer of a fifty-foot lot and two-story apartment house at the northeast corner of Ninth and C streets was recorded Wednesday, the purchaser being G. W. Miller. A price of $35,000 was paid. The purchaser has absorbed a local undertaking firm and will remodel the building purchased for an undertaking establishment. The property was sold by N. K. Campbell.

Thursday, trustees of the First Presbyterian church acquired by purchase a site for a new edifice at a cost of $31,000, the location being the entire half block bounded by Third, Fourth and Elm streets. The lots were purchased of Mrs. Hannah Prentice through J. C. Rice. The church intends to sell its property adjoining the business district at Eighth and C streets, and has a price of from $100,000 to $125,000.

Other recent sales of importance include fifty feet on the east side of Seventh street, between C and D, sold by J. C. Rice for Mrs. Sarah J. Smith to Judge M. A. Luce. The consideration being $25,000.

Rice also sold for J. D. Dunn, of Salt Lake, a fifty-foot lot on the west side of Second street, between C and D, to the Union Title & Trust Company for $27,500. The buying company will in the near future erect a modern building for its own occupancy. The property purchased adjoins the Elks building and is occupied by a frame structure formerly used as a police station.

Abraham Beller has sold to a local investor 100x100 feet at the southeast corner of Tenth and H streets for $23,000. The lots are occupied by a storeroom and three cottages.

William Berin has sold to Charles Schenck a vacant corner at Tenth and K streets for $6000. The lots occupy the northeast corner of the block.

B. B. Boyd has sold to William de Pons, fifty feet near Seventeenth and F streets for $4000.

BIG TRACT TRANSFERRED.

MANY HOMES ARE STARTED.

GLENDALE, April 23.—This week a large piece of land comprising 197 acres in the foothill section was purchased from Frederick Verdugo by a Glendale syndicate composed of Tupper & Co.; R. A. Blackburn, J. H. Vesper and J. P. Shropshire. This land adjoins the old Verdugo rancho on the east. The price paid was $16,000. After a number of improvements the property will be cut into five and ten-acre pieces and offered for sale.

Chandler & Lawson report the following sales: A six-room bungalow on Tenth street to Mrs. Rose of Palms, $3250; a six-room bungalow to E. D. Reynolds on Ivy street, $3250; four lots on Seventh street to Alexander Mitchell of Goldfield, at $800 per lot. The owner is erecting a seven-room house to cost about $3000, and plans other houses. This firm is building a six-room house on Fourth street and Ivy to cost about $2200. R. A. Blackburn sold this week a lot in the Livingston tract on Jackson street to Phil A. Olsin of Los Angeles for $700.

The Cooperative Building Company is erecting thirty-four bungalows in the region of the foothills of Casa Verdugo. These range in price from $1200 to $2500. The Peerless Building Company has just finished four homes on Milford street, west of Brand boulevard, and is now working on five others on Fairview street, east of Brand. O. W. O'Dell has just finished fifteen new homes on Dryden street, near Louise. N. C. Kelly is starting thirteen residences two blocks west of the Casa Verdugo restaurant.

TO RUSH IMPROVEMENTS.

COMPANY TO BUILD HOMES.

TROPICO, April 23.—The G. H. A. Goodwin Company, which is improving a 75-acre piece at the west side of Tropico, has decided to wait no longer on the railroad company and the improvement work on the tract will be rushed to completion. The average size of the lots will be 50x150 feet. The opening up of this tract will practically be the salvation of this western section, which has been almost at a standstill for the past few years. The company will erect twelve or fourteen bungalows.

Some work is being done on the Sprague property, at the corner of Central and Parke avenues. The Davenport tract, in the heart of Tropico, is almost sold out and several other small tracts are going fast. Generally speaking, home builders are purchasing this land.

Davenport & Black have sold the building on the Oak Knoll place to H. P. Myers, and the new owner will move the structure from the property. Thomas M. Ziegler of Los Angeles has bought a lot on Boynton avenue in the Boynton tract for $600. The new owner will erect a bungalow.

The work of clearing the ground for the foundation of the new bank building at Central avenue and San Fernando road, was effected this week. The Tropico Feed and Fuel Company, which occupied a building on the land, has moved to San Fernando road, between Central and Tropico avenues.

MODEL BUILDING.

Tubercular Ward of County Hospital Is Planned Along Scientific Principles.

The tubercular ward building of the County Hospital group, is said to be one of the most scientifically designed and appointed structures of the kind ever built in this country. It is three stories in height, each floor being given over to two wards. Diet rooms and kitchens of the latest types approved by medical authorities are located in the basement. The entire building is surrounded by a sixteen-foot porch, connected with the interior by French windows. Patients thus practically sleep out of doors. The structure is practically completed.

A notable feature of the arrangement plan of the hospital group is the series of connection corridors, linking the principal buildings together. These are of the arch type of construction and floored with cement. Hudson & Munsell, architects of the new County Hall of Records, are the designers of the hospital group in its entirety.

BUYS HOME SITE.

U. S. Grant Hinton, general sales agent for the Riverside Groves and Water Company, the owners of La Sierra Heights at Riverside, reports the sale to W. P. McClaskey of six and a third acres in that tract. Mr. McClaskey will build a home on his property.

MAY SUTTON BEATEN BY HAZEL HOTCHKISS IN SECOND DEFEAT OF HER TENNIS CAREER.

MISS HOTCHKISS of San Francisco, after many attempts, beats Pasadena world's champion, and puts her to utter rout.

Miss Sutton lost through overconfidence and later she was unable to make up lost ground and went to pieces, losing every game in the last set.

The only other time Miss Sutton has been beaten was in England, when she lost to Miss Douglass, whom she met on a grass court and in a rain which made the court very slippery. May afterward defeated her conqueror under better conditions, showing her conquest was a fluke.

Miss Hotchkiss is the only American woman who has ever given the former champion a hard match for the honors.

Miss Sutton announced her intention of immediately challenging the new champion and expects to practice up for the match.

NORDHOFF, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Hazel Hotchkiss of Berkeley, defeated World's Champion May Sutton of Los Angeles, in a sensational three-set match here today by the score of 2-6, 6-4, 6-0.

Playing more brilliantly than ever before, and meeting the champion at her own driving game the northern challenger won the honors from the premier player by superior head work.

May started the match supremely confident as she was has always appeared when meeting the Berkeley star. Miss Hotchkiss displayed wonderful coolness and unsurpassed accuracy in driving, in placing her lobs, and in her strong service. Her consistency nettled the champion. May grew more anxious in every game after the first set. Driving her hardest and fighting desperately for every point, the champion was unable to save her honors.

TRIED FOUR YEARS.

Hazel's victory was the culmination of a series of matches played with the former champion during the last four years. Hazel has solved the service of the redoubtable May.

Under the splendid coaching of Maurice McLoughlin, Miss Hotchkiss perfected her service and developed the strongest backhand drive of any woman player in the country. She gained confidence in every succeeding match; May's terrific drives grew less formidable, and today, playing with remarkable coolness, perfect strokes and unswerving steadiness, she beat May at every point.

Miss Hotchkiss's victory was thoroughbly decisive. For the first time May has been beaten by an American, and for the first time in her tennis career May was forced to lay down a set without getting a game.

May is to challenge Hazel to a return match. The victory was so surprising that Miss Sutton is unwilling to relinquish her title without another meeting. May has not been practicing steadily for the match, while Hazel has been preparing earnestly since her last defeat by May at Long Beach.

WORKED UP FOR IT.

Both victor and vanquished in today's memorable struggle have been playing excellent tennis in the preliminary matches, each veteran disposing of the opponents in the early rounds without much trouble.

It was early evident the two rivals would meet in the finals.

The match opened with May playing exceedingly confident and Miss Hotchkiss meeting every drive with surprising steadiness. May captured the first set on service aces before the northerner got fairly set. From the opening game it appeared that the Champion was only to duplicate her former defeats of Hazel. Hazel was steady and careful, while May, with reckless confidence, succeeded in passing her opponent for the winning points taking the set by a 6-2 score.

STEADIED HER GAME.

In the second set the Berkeley girl was playing a steady and careful game and that her strokes, lobs, drives and volleys were as near perfection as it was possible to make them. Overconfidence on the part of Miss Sutton and careful work on the part of Miss Hotchkiss gave the second set to the Berkeley girl.

The score caused the tennis fans to begin to take notice. The third set was started with Miss Hotchkiss apparently in the better condition. Her nerves were good and her play even more accurate, while the strokes of Miss Sutton were not well controlled. Hazel took the first game, and then followed game after game for her despite the heroic efforts of Miss Sutton to head her off. The champion was not allowed to get a single game in this set.

DAWSON WINS.

The interscholastic singles trophy will remain with Dawson of the Los Angeles High School. In a spirited game today he defeated Herd, the Throop wonder, who was expected to defeat Dawson, and who, with his partner, yesterday, won the interscholastic doubles trophy for his school.

The score for the singles match was 6-4, 6-4. It was a pretty game and closer than even the score would make it appear.

Maurice McLoughlin won the men's singles trophy today by defeating Dawson of the Los Angeles High School, by the score of 8-6, 6-1. Both Sinsabaugh and Browne being out of the game, and neither Bundy nor Bell on hand to compete, McLoughlin, as was expected, had everything his own way and could have won much easier had he desired to stretch himself, but the weather was warm and he was a little languid.

In the girls' schools singles the trophy was captured by Miss Freese of Marlborough, who defeated Miss Chapman of Blanchard-aGmble. This was a close and interesting game, the score at the finish being 7-5, 6-4.

Miss Parker defeated Miss Campbell in the ladies specials, winning the handsome cup. The game was a good one and excited much interest.

MIXED DOUBLES.

The mixed doubles championship was won by Miss Mary Browne and Sinsabaugh defeating Miss Sutton and Herd, the score being close and the game intensely interesting, standing at 10-8, 2-6, 6-3 at the finish. Miss Sutton and Herd had already beaten Hazel Hotchkiss and McLoughlin in this event.

At the conclusion of the matches the trophies were given out at the grand stand to the several winners before a large crowd.

The scores for the concluding day were:

Interscholastic singles: Dawson beat Kendall, 6-0, 6-1; Dawson beat Herd, 6-4, 6-4.

Men's singles: Herd beat Morgan, 4-6, 8-6, 6-0; Dawson beat Herd, default; McLoughlin beat Young, 6-4, 6-2; McLoughlin beat Dawson, 8-6, 6-1.

Ladies' special, singles: Miss Parker beat Miss Lee, 6-3, 6-2; Miss Campbell beat Miss Johnson, 6-4, 6-3; Miss Parker beat Miss Campbell, 6-2, 7-5.

Mixed doubles: Miss Browne and Sinsabaugh beat Miss Myer and Nat Browne, 6-2, 6-3; Herd and Florence Sutton beat Miss Hotchkiss and McLoughlin, 6-2, 2-6, 9-7; Miss Browne and Sinsabaugh beat Herd and Miss Sutton, 10-8, 2-6, 6-3.

WARD BREAKS LEAP RECORD.

SOUTHERN ATHLETIC STARS IN ANNUAL CONTEST.

Chico High Squad Wins Team Honors from Oakland by Narrow Margin—Records Smashed in Shot-Put, Hammer, High Jump and Track Events—McClure Wins.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Ward of Los Angeles Polytechnic High School alone won fourth place for his school in the interscholastic invitation track meet on Stanford oval today. He established a new interscholastic record for the meet by clearinñ 6 ft. 1 in. in the high jump and took first in the 120-yard hurdle race in 16 1-5s. He tried for the world's high school record for the high jump and almost leaped over the bar at 6 ft. 3 in.

"Mickey" McClure of Los Angeles High School showed his heels to a pack of twenty-five runners in the 880-yard event. He emerged from the bunch on the first turn and easily held the lead to the finish. The time was 2m. 3s. McClure easily could have bettered the time if he had been closely pressed, but he outclassed the field

Olmstead of Harvard School captured third in the shot put with a heave of 45 ft. 10 in.

Chico High School won the meet with seventeen points. Oakland High was only one point behind. The Oakes made a strenuous effort to win as they had taken first in two previous meets. If they had been successful this year the trophy would have become their permanent property.

The weather was ideal and practically every record of former meets was broken. Rice of Chico High School threw the twelve-pound hammer 180 ft. 7 in. and put the shot 49 ft. 8½ in. Young of Healdsburg vaulted 11 ft. 8 in. Todd of Oakland won the 440-yard dash in 51 4-5s.

The mile run was an exciting race and first place was captured by Huggins of Hood River, Or., in 4m. 29s., equaling the interscholastic record held by Ken Lee of Los Angeles. MacLiso of Oakland High took first in the low hurdles, the time being 25 3-5s.

For Good Roads.

During the coming summer experiments with materials for the construction of roads that will withstand motor vehicle traffic better than those now in use are to be made under the supervision of the road inquiry division of the Department of Agriculture. Probably the most interesting work will be a number of experiments with mixtures of Portland cement, concrete and asphaltic base oils. It is hoped that this combination will give the high tensile and compressive strength of the cement, and the great toughness and malleability of the asphaltum or bitumer

HOT OLD TIME.

THREE HUNDRED CARS STRETCH TO MALIBU.

Two Thousand Members of the Automobile Club and Their Friends Enjoy Annual Picnic and Amateur Sports By the Seaside.

MORE than 300 automobiles, the largest number ever in line for any tour in Southern California formed the procession to the Malibu Ranch yesterday, carrying 2000 members of the Automobile Club and their friends, for the annual outing and barbecue.

The long string of cars wound its way for miles along the seashore to the barbecue grounds under the sycamores, about a mile from the Malibu ranch-houses.

The last car reached the picnic grounds at 12 o'clock. Six fat young steers had been butchered and the meat barbecued. The crowd was seated at long tables arranged beneath the trees, and an old-time Spanish dinner was served.

Though the day was hot, the picnic spot was not unpleasantly warm, and as there was enough for everybody to eat and drink, the lunch hour passed pleasantly, with many toasts being offered for the Automobile Club officers, who were the hosts. Chili beans, roasted potatoes, barbecued meat, and for desert ice cream was the menu served many miles from home. Everything was just right, and there was not a hitch during the proceedings.

Roy P. Hillman, president of the club, was master of ceremonies. He was assisted by Miss S. C. Geary, acting secretary for the association, who made a hit as an entertainer. She took charge of the parade early in the morning, lined up the scores of cars, and sent them through the streets on their boosting tour for the club. Arrived at the grounds, Miss Geary continued her good work, and saw that everybody had something to eat and was properly entertained.

WOMEN'S RACE.

There were races for the women, contests for the men, and sprints for the small girls and boys. Fine prizes purchased for the events were offered by the club, and the contests were hard fought.

Mrs. W. J. Burt won the woman's race, with a sprint that sent her twice a winner over the fifty-yard route. Mrs. Burt won the first heat, and then took the final in a close finish from Miss C. Carver. She was given a handsome prize.

Tom Carrigan, the Apollo of the fat men's race, took all the honors in his event. He walked away with the first heat, and then won the final, after being handicapped. Carrigan weighs 250 pounds, was the heaviest man in the race, but said he was running for the honor of the Royal Tourist, and just could not lose. His prize was a running suit. Carrigan beat George Williams, who was the other fastest fat man.

The Misses Frances Edwards and Graydon Williams, two of the pretty girls on the grounds, ran a dead heat in the finals of the girls' race. The two young women raced to the tape and Referee P. A. Renton could not decide which had won. He called it a dead heat and the prize was divided.

E. Roger Stearns, clerk of the course, brought the athletes to the starting line under a huge sycamore. George Cline was there with a gun to act as starter. Those who broke from the tape before the gun was fired were penalized.

Little Ruby Meade won the girls' race handily. The 50-yard race for men was won by C. S. Brooks, who also won the three-legged race with Frank Bungay as partner.

RENTON SCORES.

Referee Renton called the turn against his own boy running in the 50-yard dash when the lad came to the tape a winner. The boy stretched out his hands to grasp the rope instead of breasting the string. He lost the race, though he had been leading the entire distance.

Again in the sack race, when two pairs or runners came to the tape together, Renton decided the race a draw and it was not until three heats had been run that Brooks and Bungay qualified for the prize.

The course was laid out under the trees. Every event was well filled. The large crowd lined the course and cheered on the runners. President Hillman dropped out of a heat of the fat men's race when he saw the stride of Carrigan.

E. Roger Stearns had himself timed for fifty yards and found he was too slow and also refused to start. Harry Mason, of the Diamond Tire Company, was the second fastest man in the 50-yard race, which Brooks won.

The sack race went to William Clark who made a great run in spite of his handicap. Joseph Davis won the boy's 50-yard race and A. H. Sweet the tire rolling contest.

The four-cylinder and six-cylinder nines lined up for the baseball game, which finished the day's sports. The six-cylinder team, captained by Carl McStay, won the contest by a score of 9 to 8. McStay was presented with a coffee pot as a loving cup, in honor of his victory. C. A. Sweet captained the losing team.

The procession of cars which started homeward at 4 o'clock stretched from the Malibu gate to Venice. It was a continuous stream of motors that chugged over the road close to the sea.

Hill-Climb.

The Worcester Automobile Club has made a preliminary announcement of its fourth annual hill climbing contest, to be held on the Dead Horse Hill, Worcester, on June 4. As the Worcester Automobile Club has received one of the four hill-climb sanctions issued for 1910 the list of events will be larger than before. Classes will be so arranged that cars of all types and motive power will be cared for.

Improve Highways.

The automobile owners of Ukiah, Cal., and vicinity have formed a club to advocate the improvement of the highways. It has been decided to set a day aside as road-making day, on which the automobile owners, about fifty strong, will march out with pick and shovel, and go to filling up ruts.

WESTON DROPS NEAR HIS GOAL.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

UTICA (N. Y.) April 23.—Edward Payson Weston, walking to this city along the tow path of the Erie Canal, collapsed this morning two miles west of Chittenango.

Those with him carried him to a farmhouse, where he was put to bed. It is said Weston's collapse was caused by something he ate at the banquet given him in Syracuse last night.

TROPHY AS STIMULUS.

Valuable Silver Cup, Fought for in England, Will Be Given to Local Soccer League.

One of the finest sporting trophies in Los Angeles will probably be fought for next winter by the Southern California soccer football elevens.

The cup that will be put up for the soccer league race has been for thirteen years a perpetual challenge trophy of the Old Country soccer league of Belfast. On the disintegration of the Belfast league, the possession of the trophy reverted to the original donor, Samual Gorfunkle, who shipped it to his son, Joe Gorfunkle, the captain of the Los Angeles Thistles. Joe expects to present the cup to the Southern California Association under a deed similar to the old grant to the Belfast organization, to be fought for as a perpetual challenge trophy.

The cup is an artistic two-handled silver vase, which stands, with it's four-inch pedestal, more than two feet high. It will probably prove a big stimulus to the Los Angeles soccer enthusiasts, and ought to insure a successful league schedule for next winter.

A good series of league games next season will take away the stigma left by the failure of the different teams to get together last winter, and put the game in this part of the country on a firmer footing than ever.

JEFFRIES ROWS TO LIMBER UP.

QUITS USUAL TRAINING FOR SPIN ON RIVER.

Big Bruiser Cuts Out His Road Work on Advice of Farmer Burns—Corbett Writes a Warning Against Too Much Exercise—Rickard Is to Visit Camp Today.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BEN LOMOND, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Jeffries gave up his usual training today and spent the day rowing on the San Lorenzo River. He figured that rowing would take the stiffness out of his shoulders better than any other work. He also cut out his run on the road on advice of Farmer Burns.

After his row Jeffries took lunch and did not indulge in any boxing. A letter arrived from Corbett saying he would reach camp about May 27. He warned Jeff not to overdo in his work.

Jim even omitted the early morning road work, something unusual for him, though he appeared to be feeling well. This afternoon he put in two full hours in the gymnasium and hand ball court.

Tex Rickard, who with Jack Gleason is promoting the Fourth of July championship contest, will pay his first visit to Jeffries's training camp tomorrow.

Going Some.

Baltimore physicians now have the right of way with their automobiles in all the streets of that city, the same as fire apparatus, police patrols and ambulances. They are allowed to speed to sick bed calls, to the aid of injured workmen and the like without being halted by the police, while trolley cars and wagons must make room for them. In order to distinguish the physicians' cars from those of other owners, the police department has provided each physician with a sign about five inches square bearing a red cross.

Cleanliness in Stables.

A solution of 6 per cent. of copper sulphite used as a spray is fine to clean the water trough. A sour manger is the abomination of a really good horse. The man who forces a horse to eat from such a vile place is sure to be the loser, and will sometimes lose the horse with intestinal disorders, including colic.

De Palma, De Rosier, Whittler in Match Race.

Heat Event Should Prove a Thrilling Affair.

Boards Have Been Washed: Course Is in Shape.

F. E. Whittler is doped to win the match professional race at the Coliseum this afternoon, in which Jake de Rosier and Ralph de Palma are the other two starters. In spite of the experience of De Palma as a driver of fast cars and the knowledge of Jake de Rosier, Whittler is the likeliest winner, the fans say.

This Salt Lake man, who has already won from Jake, is a coming world-record breaker. His Merkel is particularly fast. He should be able to secure a good lead over De Rosier on the Indian and De Palma on the other Merkel.

The Coliseum track has been thoroughly washed and prepared for the races. It is fast, one of the fastest tracks in the world, and is ideally suited for a race meet such as the one planned by Manager George Kreamer for this afternoon. World records should again be broken because of the talent interested.

Arthur Mitchel is a likely rider in the twenty-mile race, one of the big events of the day. Mitchel has been turning miles in 48s. flat, the fastest time made in practice. There is not a rider who trains more faithfully than Mitchel. He is in line for a victory that will count.

The fact that Ralph de Palma has remained in Los Angeles a week just to race De Rosier and Whittler lends peculiar zest to the events today. De Palma is riding for the mere sport of the thing, and is picked by many for first honors.

NEEDS PRACTICE.

It hardly seems likely that a man who has been out of the game for so long can win over veterans who are hardened to the toughest race, and who are also thoroughly acquainted with the track. The injury to De Palma's leg does not seem to hinder him in any way when he mounts and rides his fast Merkel.

De Rosier has been out every day. The fact that his preliminary hearing in the Police Court on a serious charge comes up tomorrow may tend to spoil his chances of a victory. He is a nervy rider, and has always been willing to take chances.

The ten-mile amateur race brings out a good field. Raymond Seymour, on a Reading-Standard, looks like a winner in this race. M. J. Graves, who has given him some hard runs, is entered against Seymour and Al Ward on a Merkel, is the other starter.

Following is a list of the entries:

Six miles, stock machines, open to 30.50 cu. in. P.D.: Clarence Briggs, C. Short, Frank Montgomery, Irwin Knappe.

Six miles, first heat of professional championship race: Ralph de Palma, Jake de Rosier, F. E. Whittler.

Ten miles, single cylinder, open to trade riders: Raymond Seymour, Reading Standard; M. J. Graves, Indian; Al Ward, Merkel.

Six miles, second heat of professional championship.

Eight miles, trade riders, open to seven-horse-power machines: Raymond Seymour, Reading Standard; M. J. Graves, Indian; Al Ward, Merkel.

Twenty miles, free-for-all professional: Jake de Rosier, Arthur Mitchel, F. E. Whittler.

CADILLAC TOUR.

Fifty Machines to Fall in Line Friday, May Thirteenth, for Run to San Diego and Return.

Those who undertake the run on the Cadillac tour to San Diego and return May 13 to 16 have planned an enjoyable outing. There will be about fifty cars on the run. One of the features of the trip will be a voting contest for the most popular man and the most popular woman. The homeliest man and the poorest driver will also be honored. There will be prizes for the car that is in the best condition at the end of the tour.

Tires, speedometers, glass fronts and horns will be given those who qualify in the honor list. Every passenger will be entitled to a vote and the contest will be begun the moment the first car leaves Los Angeles. The tourers expect to leave Los Angeles Friday morning, May 13. Don Lee, of the Lee Motor Car Company, has chosen this date because he says it is his lucky number. The first day's run will be to Riverside. The Tourists will pass Saturday and Sunday at Coronado. Monday the trip home will be made by the coast route.

Manager M. H. Green says the fifty list is certain to be reached this week. The tour will be one of the largest ever given in Southern California if the present indications form a correct estimate of the number who will start.

TIRE-SELLING CAMPAIGN.

Coleman & Bentil to Remove to Larger Quarters Because of Increased Business.

R. D. Henshaw, representative for the Michelin Tire Company of Milltown, N. J., spent a week in Los Angeles. He says the Michelin people, through their agents, Messrs. Coleman & Bentil, are about to start an active campaign in Los Angeles for their tire.

G. N. Jordan, who is known to the trade in the West, and who is now with the Michelin Company, is expected here May 1. Jordan will make his headquarters in Los Angeles and will look after the Michelin interests in this city.

While the Michelin people have been in America a little more than two years they have been manufacturing tires since 1885. The factories are the four largest tire-manufacturing concerns in the world and are located at Turin, Italy, and Milltown, N. J. They are devoted exclusively to the making of pneumatic automobile tires and accessories.

Those who attended the recent Motordome races had a chance to see what Michelin tires would do. Several world records were made on these tires. The demand for the tires has increased and larger quarters are necessary.

Farmers Buy Cars.

Kansas farmers spent $3,200,000 for automobiles during 1909 and $2,700,000 in 1908. In one Nebraska town of 800 population forty automobiles were sold last year to farmers near the town and retired farmers in the town. Careful estimate of the number of automobiles owned by farmers in the United States is 76,000.

VALVES MOTOR OR TWO-CYCLE.

AMPLEX SALES MANAGER HAS STRONG COMPARISONS.

American-Simplex Man Talks on Motors and Claims His Car Is One of the Least Expensive Yet Experimented With—Cites Some Interesting Points.

George W. Wade, sales manager for the Amplex Auto Company, has returned to the East after a short stay in Los Angeles. While here he made his headquarters with the Bekins-Williams Motor Company, local agents for the American Simplex. He is naturally an enthusiast on the two-cycle motor principle.

"The four-cycle motor has been tried and experimented on from all angles," says Wade. "It has been built from the single-cylinder to the eight cylinder model. Valves have been located in different positions on the cylinders. More cylinders mean more flexibility. I often wonder if autoists realize that by using six cylinders they get only one additional explosion per revolution of the fly wheel over the four-cylinder.

"There is more engine wear and tear, more work and more oil needed. The poor man should not buy a six-cylinder car even if he does like the almost perfect rhythm of the engine. It is too expensive for him. For the man who has money to burn there is nothing to be said. He has the widest of choice.

"Imagine the benefit to be gained by eliminating valves. In the four-cylinder valveless American Simplex you have no trouble keeping the valves properly ground and seated rightly.

"Suppose we had been using two-cycle or valveless motors for years and someone should invent a four-cycle valve motor with but half the number of impulses per revolution that the two-cycle has. What chance would such a man have to introduce his car. The American-Simplex motor will develop better than fifty horse power with 900 revolutions of the motor to the minute.

"We believe that it is possible to convince any autoist who is fair that we have a motor that is worth consideration. The American-Simplex motor at 1600 revolutions develops seventy horse power. This is enough for any purpose. The car will go anywhere and do anything a four-cycle machine will accomplish.

"We are building cars to last. We have fifty cars on the way to the Pacific Coast now and we expect to increase our owners to a thousand here in Los Angeles. The American-Simplex car will become better known because it is bound to become popular. We claim it is one of the most economical cars built."

LICENSED DEALERS' ASSOCIATION

Baltimore Falls Into Line and Strong Organization Is to Be Formed for Aid of Autoists.

Another Licensed Dealers' Association, similar to the organization formed recently in Los Angeles is to be organized in Baltimore. There are now licensed associations in New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Los Angeles. The leaders in the movement issued a call asking twenty-four of the licensed dealers of Baltimore to attend the meeting called to form the organization.

The association is to be formed, so a communication from Arthur S. Zell, one of the boosters for the organization, states, for the purpose of holding automobile shows, for the promotion of the good-roads movement, for legislation, and for handling the trade in second-hand cars.

Most of the large dealers of Baltimore have promised to join the body. There is to be no fight against unlicensed dealers, but the members are to work for the best interests of each other. Lines are not to be drawn too tightly, it is stated, and the most stringent rule, of course, is that only those handling cars licensed under the Selden patent can become members.

Foreign Trade.

The foreign trade of the United States in automobiles now amounts to $1,000,000 a month, or $12,000,000 per annum, of which sum about $4,000,000 are imports and $8,000,000 exports. Ten years ago the trade in automobiles was not of sufficient value to justify the bureau of statistics in making a separate record of either the imports or exports, the few automobiles entering or leaving the country being included under the miscellaneous class of "all other articles."

The Long Island Automobile Club is to begin the publication of a monthly magazine which will be devoted to the advancement of good roads and motoring, with special attention given to the needs of the district from Manhattan to Montauk.

The Western Mechanical Works has secured the agency for the Dorris Car from the Bosbyshell-Carpenter Company.

Carey King, who was injured when the Apperson car was wrecked at the Motordrome, is slowly improving.

C. E. Wilson, city attorney of Duluth, Minn., has had his six-cylinder Welch car shipped here for his use. He will tour Southern California.

Roy P. Hillman, president of the Auto Club of Southern California, entertained Samuel M. Butler, chairman of the Contest Board of the Automobile Association of America, during his stay in this city, while the Motordrome races were on.

Twenty-four Hours.

Twelve bona fide nominations have been made for the international twenty-four-hour race meet which the Motor Racing Association, of New York, is to conduct at the Brighton Beach Motordrome on May 13-14. As that is the limit set on the number of cars to be allowed to compete in that event, any other prospective entrants will have to wait for later contests.

Rubber Streets.

A new process for paving streets with vulcanized rubber has been invented by a Brazilian, and promises to revolutionize the rubber trade in that country. Vulcanin, as the compound is called, is a mixture of crushed stone or coarse sand with a vulcanizing medium, the composition of the latter being a secret of the manufacturers.

FIVE HUNDRED FORDS A MARK.

STANDARD MOTOR CAR COMPANY MANAGER AFTER RECORD.

E. Roger Stearns Has Made Four Hundred Sales and Expects to Eclipse All Records Before Present Season Closes — Has Secured Frayer-Miller Truck.

Five hundred Ford cars for the season of 1910 is the mark E. Roger Stearns, manager for the Standard Motor Car Company, has set for himself this season. He is nearing the 400 mark and seems almost certain of attaining his wish to sell four times as many cars as in any other season.

This is Stearns's first year as manager of the local Ford branch. He has been identified with the Ford factory for years, however, and knows the car perfectly. He has driven Fords to victory in several race meets and his record of this year is nothing unusual as he was high man in the selling force contest the last season.

It has now become a question of deliveries as far as Stearns is concerned. He has been sold ahead for a month and has been shipping out cars as fast as they have been received. It has been a scramble on the part of the agents in which each entered into a friendly contest to get as many cars as possible. L. J. Hampton, the Pasadena man, heads the list of outside agents in numbers of cars sold.

When the fight between the licensed and unlicensed dealers waxed hot Stearns took an important part in the contest and was one of the faithful who tried to keep the old dealers' association intact.

The rush of the auto selling season took the keen edge off the battle and things have adjusted themselves amicably. Stearns has been selling so many cars that he has no time for anything else, he says.

In addition to the Ford agency he is handling the Velie line of cars. He has sold several this season but the Ford is his main seller and has proved popular to such a degree that he expects to lead all other agencies in town in the number of cars sold.

Stearns received word yesterday that the Frayer-Miller truck agency had been transferred to the Standard Motor Car Company. This high-powered commercial vehicle is one of the most popular in its line and is almost certain to prove a good seller. Stearns expects the first truck about the beginning of May.

"We will devote most of our time to the Ford agency," said Stearns yesterday, "but we have had so many requests for commercial cars that it was necessary for us to secure a good truck if we could. The Frayer-Miller is the best looking thing in the market, we believe, and we have closed for the agency."

Terrific Strain on Tires During Record Breaking Stunts When Rubber Must Perform Wonders.

Careful analysis of the wonderful speed records made by Barney Oldfield and Caleb Bragg at Los Angeles and Daytona shows the superiority of the motor car as a speed agent over all other modes of travel. Motorcycles, flying machines and steam locomotives are not excepted.

Not content with setting a world record of 27.33 seconds for the mile, on a straightaway, Oldfield turned a mile on a board circular track in 36.22 seconds at the Los Angeles Motordrome, beating all other existing marks for the distance.

The straightaway record means a speed of 131¾ miles an hour, or 193 1-5 feet a second. The Firestone tires Oldfield used were whirled around at 1396 revolutions to the minute. They sustained a weight of 2500 pounds of machine, and made it move faster than human beings ever traveled before.

Had Oldfield traveled at this speed from New York to Chicago he would have covered the distance in 7 hours [illegible] the time of the Twentieth Century Limited look te- [illegible]son. The strain on the tires was terrific.

PECULIAR.

FRIENDS THINK MEAD DEAD; OLDS MAN BOBS UP SERENELY.

When W. J. Mead, general manager for the Olds Motor Works, saw a telegram recently asking how he had been killed, he was one of the most surprised, as well as one of the livest men on earth. The wire was addressed to Woods R. Woolwine, president of the Woolwine Motor Car Company, agents for the Oldsmobile, who is entertaining Mead.

"Wire immediately details of death of W. J. Mead," was the gist of the telegram sent to Woolwine.

There seemed to be no explanation of the strange request and an answer saying Mead is "alive and kicking" was sent to his friends at once.

It was not until a week later than the strange incident was explained. A newspaper article containing an account of the death of W. J. Mead caused all the trouble for the Olds factory man.

The article explained how Mead had been thrown through the glass front of a car which had been wrecked by striking a tree. The car, the article stated, became unmanageable and Mead was fatally injured by being thrown forcibly through the glass and against the tree.

"While I wish to express my deepest sympathy for my namesake," said Mead yesterday, "I am more than pleased to be able to announce to my friends that I am well and able to eat three hearty meals a day. I did not know there was another W. J. Mead in the world until I heard of this accident and the peculiar mistake it caused.

"While I have been in Los Angeles I have had a chance to test some of the new model Olds touring cars sent to the Woolwine Motor Car Company from the factory, and also some of the older machines. It certainly pays to build well. This fact is being brought home to me more forcibly every day.

"I have just had a ride in one of our early model curved dash Oldsmobiles and the praises of its owner made me feel prouder than anything I have heard since I have been here.

"It proves our oft-repeated assertion that Oldsmobiles have been good from the beginning. M. Hardinger, who lives in one of your beach towns, owns the machine. He says it is one of the cheapest cars in the town both for gasoline consumption and upkeep. He has been running the car for seven years and in that time he says he has never arrived home under any power but that of the motor. He has had one serious accident and that was when a larger machine crashed into the little Olds.

STEARNS UP BAIRDSTOWN.

Clarence Smith Wins Wager by Carrying Seven Persons Up Steep and Treacherous Grade.

Clarence Smith, of the Elmore Motor Car Company, won a wager of $50 on Monday by carrying seven passengers up Bairdstown Hill in a Stearns touring car. Bert Latham drove the high-powered machine, which never hesitated. This is the first time so many persons have been carried up this grade in one car.

When a Pasadena man who owns a fine car happened into the Stearns agency headquarters on Olive street Monday and casually remarked that no automobile could climb Bairdstown Hill carrying seven pasengers, Smith and Latham at once offered to bet the Stearns could turn the trick. The Crown City man was game and put up the Money.

E. B. Smith, who is somewhat of a sport himself when he can succeed in keeping from killing a horse for a month at a time, held the $100. The party went at once to Bairdstown.

Seven persons were crowded into the Stearns, and the car was started. It went at the hill at speed, and topped the steep rise without a miss. It was a triumph for the Stearns agent. Then, just to show the Pasadenan that the car was not specially geared for hill climbing, Latham drove out on the boulevard and turned a few miles at a sixty-four-miles-an-hour gait.

FIGHT CITY THEIR MECCA.

Stoddard-Dayton Owners to Make Run to San Francisco for July Scrap.

"San Francisco is to be the Mecca of many motorists in July," said F. W. Glint, manager for the Stoddard-Dayton Motor Car Company, yesterday. "I know of at least a half-dozen Stoddard owners who are planning to make the run up to the Jeffries-Johnson fight for July 4. This sextette are to travel together.

"This would almost mean that a Stoddard-Dayton tour has been arranged for July, but the party will towns along the way for night stops at different points. The larger number will take three days to make the trip, though several expect to make the run in two days.

"F. O. Johnson, with a party including J. H. Bohon, W. H. Joyce and F. W. Phillips, went to Bakersfield early in the week and found the roads good. They drove a fifty-horse-power Stoddard over the part of the run that the San Francisco tourers will take on the return from the fight city.

"The majority of those who go to San Francisco travel up by the coast route and return over the inland road. This makes a delightful trip, with the roads good almost all of the way."

Burt Motor Car Company Acquires Large Stock of Tourist Parts and Machinery.

W. J. Burt, of the Burt Motor Car Company, has closed an important deal whereby his concern has acquired from the California Automobile Company all the machinery, drawings, parts and repair outfits for Tourist cars. This makes the Auburn man's repair department one of the finest equipped concerns in town.

Some time ago the Auto Vehicle Company's repair department was divided, the Burt Company taking half of the machinery. Now the whole repair business has been turned over to Burt, who will employ a number of expert mechanicians.

There is not a part or drawing for the more than 2000 Tourist cars which have been built that Burt cannot supply. There is not another man in the world who knows a Tourist car as well as Burt himself.

The Burt plant occupies a large area of floor space at Tenth and Main streets, the old home of the Tourist.

The California Automobile Company will devote itself to the sale of California, Tourist, Forestone-Columbus and Warren-Detroit cars.

EARLY DAYS OF JOHNSON.

Licked Eleven Men in Night for Five Bucks.

Johnnie Connors Discovered Black Champion.

Pork and Beaner Develops Into Clever Boxer.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.)

SPRINGFIELD (Ill.) April 19.—Jack Johnson hasn't always fought for even the short end of a $101,000 purse. Here in Springfield the burly champion who will meet Jim Jeffries on July 4 fought eleven men of his own color in what was termed a "battle royal." This was away back about 1899 and for his winning Johnson got a whole $5. Then the colored champ was under the tutelage of Johnnie Connors, at one time champion bantamweight of the country.

It was Connors who saw in Johnson the making of a champion and it was this same Springfield man who, with the late George Siler, secured for Johnson his early fights, and later was instrumental in bringing Johnson and Sam Fitzpatrick together, which resulted in Johnson becoming the great finished fighter that he is. Fitzpatrick brought out Peter Jackson, Young Griffo and the great George (Kid) Lavigne, all wonderful finished fighters.

Johnson came to Springfield in the heyday of the prize-fighting game in this city. Naturally, the first place he looked for was Connors' place. He was hungry and broke. Johnnie, good old sport that he always was and is, took Jack in. The premier pug of this vicinity at that time was Tommy Wilson of Athens, twenty miles from Springfield, who later was Fitzsimmons' sparring partner. He had licked them all, and Connors matched Johnson and Wilson.

ITALAN AS TRAINER.

The match-maker secured Joe Bonansinga, a local Italian, to help train Johnson. He took daily workouts at the fair grounds and was the most apt negro pugilist that Connors ever has known. The date for the mill with Wilson drew near. Johnson was rounding into shape. He was fast, had good wind and had trained as hard for that match, possibly, as he will for his go with Jeff. He had valuable assistance from the Italian, but all the while, there rankled in the Italian's breast, ill-will toward Johnson and Connors. Bonansinga had wanted to fight Wilson, but Connors had said no. So Bonansinga passed the word. He visited his fellow-countrymen and told them he was going after Johnson's scalp.

The day arrived. More than 100 Italians gathered at barn C at the Illinois State fair grounds to see Bonansinga beat the colored boy. Johnson went in as he had done daily, for a friendly sparring match. Looking out around he saw the Italians, but failed to grasp the situation. In the first two rounds he took a severe beating from the big Italian. Then he got hip to himself. He came back in the third strong. He let Bonansinga lead until he was close and then with a vicious uppercut he caught the Italian under the left jaw. Every tooth on that side of his jaw was broken or knocked out. His nose was broken and both his eyes were closed. Scarcely had Johnson landed when there was a commotion. Out of the barn they tore and in two minutes there wasn't an Italian within half a mile of the barn.

GIVES WILSON WARNING.

But that vicious uppercut, which laid out the Italian, killed Johnson temporarily. As soon as Bonansinga recovered he sought out the Wilson camp.

"What on earth you been trying to do," asked Wilson, "stop a train?"

"No," answered the Italian, "Johnson did it."

Connors's fear that the Johnson-Bonansinga affair would give Wilson cold feet was realized, and in two hours the Johnson-Wilson match was cancelled.

Johnson hung around Springfield. There was no one to fight him—no one with the nerve of a Nelson to stand the punishment which the black even a decade ago could give. Connors staged a match one night, the principles being Charlie Burns and Bob Long. As had become the custom, the matches opened with a "battle royal." As many negroes as wanted, would enter the ring, and the last man out would win the purse. On the night of the Burns-Long go there were twelve negroes ready. Calling the eleven to his office, one at a time, Connors promised them $5 each if they would beat Johnson. The promise of the coin resulted in an agreement that Johnson should be the one who would be first attacked.

JOHNSON WHIPS ELEVEN.

The men got in the ring, and George Siler called time. There was a rush and a clash, a curse and a shower of blows. Four of the eleven negroes fell sprawling through the ropes. Tearing at the others like a maddened tigress in her lair, Johnson dealt killing blow after killing blow. The darkies fell through the ropes on all sides, while the crowd sat awed at the showing of the husky boy.

"One of those youngsters, Red Buck, I think it was," said Connors last evening, "came sprawling through the ropes where I was sitting.

"'Get back in the ring and lick him,' I shouted.

"'Nevah, Mr. Connors, nevah,'" ejaculated the colored man. "'It's de outside of dat ring for dis nigger.'"

The "battle royal" lasted twenty minutes. At its conclusion, on all sides lay semi-conscious negroes, the first victims of the powerful punch that Johnson's supporters say will work havoc with Jeff.

Johnson was acclaimed the winner by Siler, and received a $5 bill from the promoter.

"I shure am obliged to you," he said, as he took the money, "for I sure am in need of the eatings right now."

CONNORS PICKS JOHNSON.

On each of his numerous visits here, Siler had heard Connors sing the praises of Jack Johnson, the big burly negro. Siler, however, never had seen Johnson in action until the night of the "battle royal." The work of the man destined to be champion impressed him mightily, and he took him under his wing. From then to now, Johnson's career is known to all fight fans.

"Every time I think of the coming fight, I am reminded of the day Johnson came into the place," said Connors. "Poorly dressed, a modest, well-behaved negro, he walked shyly up to me, hat in hand. 'Is dis here place operated by Johnnie Connors?' asked Johnson. I told him it was, and he asked to see him. I told him I was Johnnie Connors, and he said to me: 'Well, sah, I know you is an old fighter. I am a fighter, too, but now I'm took him to a restaurant near his place and there Johnson ate. "I've laughed many a time about that meal," said Conors. "Johnson ate and ate and ate. I thought he never would get filled, and I finally said, 'Jack, if you can fight like you can eat, you're a whirlwind.' 'Well, sir,' he replied, 'I was just wondering whether you'se going to allow me a piece of that blackberry pie.'" He got the pie.

By a strange coincidence, a photographer appeared and snapped Johnson eating pie, and that picture is one of the photographs shown in Siler's book on his life's history, written by him a few months prior to his death.

WATCHES JOHNSON'S RISE.

No man in the world probably has watched Jack Johnson's career more closely than Johnnie Connors. And nowhere in the world has Jack Johnson a warmer supporter than the little scrappy former champion in this city. Johnson and Connors haven't met since the day Johnson left here to go to Chicago to fight in a mill arranged for him by the veteran referee. But throughout almost a decade they have corresponded, and Johnnie Connors was among the first men in America to hear from Jack Johnson after he had laid Tommy Burns low, more than a year ago.

Naturally, Connors picks the colored boy to win the title in the natal day mill. A close student of the prize fighting game, a man who has picked many a winner, and a man who picks Johnson, not because of sentiment, but after a comparative analysis of the two men's ability, he says he doesn't see how Jeff can whip him.

"They say Johnson has no great punch," says Connors. "If poor old Bonansinga was alive today he'd tell you that Johnson had a pile-driver punch. Jeff never was a fighter to push the milling. Neither was Johnson, and on that account I look for Johnson to outlast the white man, and eventually lay him low."

Governor Boosts.

Gov. Hay of Washington is an enthusiastic good roads advocate and has aided the cause for better highways in the western State tremendously. For this year 1100 miles of State trunk roads are planned by him. These roads are designed to serve 75 per cent. of the population of the State, now estimated to be near the 1,250,000 mark, and will touch eleven cities, taking in a large number of smaller towns between Spokane and Puget Sound.

Vanderbilt Race.

It is now certain that Harry F. Grant, winner of last year's Vanderbilt cup race, will be in the lists again this year as a competitor. Grant has sent in his application for registration to the contest board of the A.A.A. and announced that he will drive a stock

¶ A 24-hour race is the longest race officially recognized by the A. A. A. Rac Association. The ordinary endurance test and road race is not a supreme of endurance, as luck and accident in these events play important roles, and best car may be temporarily disabled by a trifling derangement which cann corrected in the short time covered by such a contest. On the other hand, 24-hour race is of such length that, eliminating violent accidents, the winner almost invariably be awarded the credit for being the most enduring car. speed alone is of no avail, for unless a car possesses wonderful vitality and fection of detail the cruel abuse to which it is subjected by being driven cont ously hour after hour at a mile-a-minute speed over rough horse tracks around short, unbanked turns, brings to light its weaknesses and imperf tions and one by one contenders are eliminated or gradually drop to the through time lost in repairs and replacements, and the contest, by vir dispossession or elimination, unerringly indicates the car of the greatest ance.

¶ The most noted stock cars in the world have competed with the LOZIER various 24-hour races—as large a number as 20 cars having started at times these events. The LOZIER cars have finished either first or second in the jority of these races, and have twice finished first and second—two great ble victories which have no parallel in the annals of automobile racing. ZIER cars have six times exceeded previous World's 24-hour Records other car more than once. The LOZIER car holds the present 24-hour of 1196 miles, and during the race in which this record was made the of the motor was never raised.

¶ The above is but one of the strong proofs which we are offering to tiate our claim that the LOZIER, in demand at a higher figure than other motor car built, is proven LEGITIMATELY HIGH-PRICED.

224 South Los Angeles Street, Los Angeles, Cal.

Gentlemen—I have a 1909 model, 20-h.p. Oakland automobile which I have run 12,000 miles, and am still running it on the original set of Goodyear tires. I carry an extra tire, but have never had occasion to use it, having had only three punctures and no blow-outs.

Nearly every mile out of the 12,000 has been over country roads. I have only had the car in Los Angeles three times. This distance includes a trip over the Mount Baldy race course, viz., to the Big Horn mine, and at that time the road had not been cleared and put in its present condition. This trip, of course, includes the Newhall grade, and on the trip I carried three passengers with provisions, utensils, bedding and paraphernalia for a week's fishing trip.

Have also been over the Gaviota and Casitas passes with the car.

The only repairs necessary during the time I have run this car have been $1 for a broken spring which was welded, and $1 for brazing a casting which was broken.

The car is now in fine condition, and is in use every day, rain or shine. Very truly yours,
W. M. WARREN.

Racers of the South Coast Yacht Club at San Pedro, which are being cleaned and put in the water for the opening contests of the season which are to begin in June.

out exception, closely fought. With the big boats of the club away on the island race, the smaller yawls of the fleet should find things all their own way over the Montgomery course around Catalina Island.

An innovation planned for August will be a power-boat competition, for which a new cup will in all probability be put up. With the Lilian C., the Ybis, and the Iona, the club has already the nucleus of a fast motor-boat fleet, while Graves's smaller Dos Amigos and Ed Ellis's Gabriella will also be in the running. With a successful initial carnival this season, the officers of the South Coast Club expect to see power-boat racing established upon a firm basis in this vicinity, with great interest aroused among the rival owners. Together with the power-boat races a carnival of general aquatic sports is planned.

ANNUAL CRUISE.

No definite date has yet been set for the annual cruise, which will come in the latter part of August. There is some likelihood that the cruise this season will be to Santa Barbara, instead of to San Diego as in former years. At Santa Barbara the yachts would have an opportunity to compete in the races for the Potter cup, the Chamber of Commerce cup contests, and those for the Citizens' cup. A cup will be offered for the South Coast craft winning the run from San Pedro to the destination, whether Santa Barbara or San Diego.

Still another August race will be the contest for the big Nordlinger trophy. The race for the Nordlinger clock is to Bird Rock on the isthmus, and return.

The annual Stag Cruise to the isthmus will be taken in September, and the long season will close with the Arbitrary Handicap. The dates for the Arbitrary Handicap and the closing banquet have not been finally set, though it is known that they will fall somewhere near the middle of September.

An interesting feature of the San Pedro racing this year will be the large proportion of yawls. In no place is the cruising-rig as popular as in Southern California waters. This year there will be, among other yawls, the Minerva, the Arrow, the Wave, the Sister, the Diana, the Royal, and the new Winsome in the South Coast Club races. Among the sloops the new Siwash and the Mah-pe will head the racing lists, with the smaller Natchie making a third. Schooners also are comparatively few in number, the Sweetheart, the Skidbladnir, and the Nautilus being the only prominent two-masters in sight at the opening of the season.

MAKING READY.

The clubhouse at San Pedro will be put into commission about the middle of May, and a gay season of entertainments is looked forward to. During the summer there will be dances, clambakes, house-parties and banquets. A special effort is to be made this year to provide entertainment for the ladies who will be guests of the club, and all ladies' events of other years will probably be eclipsed.

The club's greatest entertainments of the season will center about the Honolulu race, theater parties, banquets and house parties being planned in honor of the visiting yachtsmen who will be the guests of the club during the first days of July.

Financially the club reports that it is again in sound condition, with prospects for additional new members and general prosperity exceedingly good.

Five vessels have already been entered in the big trans-Pacific contest; the new yawl Winsome of San Pedro, South Coast Yacht Club; the Gwendolyn II of the Seattle Yacht Club; the new sloop Siwash, now under construction at Terminal Island, South Coast Yacht Club; the schooner Sweetheart, owned by Commodore R. C. P. Smith of the South Coast Club, and the Hawaii, of the Hawaii Yacht Club. At least a half dozen more entries will probably be received before the lists close. Already the greatest contest in the history of Pacific Coast yachting is assured.

The schooner Lurline, twice winner of the Honolulu race, has been sold by ex-Commodore Sinclair to H. O. Nelson of the San Diego Yacht Club. This ends the controversy as to whether the Lurline will be entered in the Honolulu race from the Corinthian or South Coast yacht clubs; from now on she is a San Diego club boat.

The last thing of consequence done in the way of preparing South Coast yachts at San Pedro for the season's work has been the taking of the masts out of the Skidbladnir, preparatory to stepping her new sticks and rerigging the big schooner completely. Just at present the craft is completely dismantled. The new keel of Commodore Smith's Sweetheart is just being put in. When the Sweetheart is finally vessel will be about all that remains in the rebuilt craft.

Work on the Winsome has been hurried along, and the trim little seagoing yawl is now ready for her first spring workouts. The Mischief II is also ready to go into commission. These two with the Mah-pe are the first Southern California yachts to tune up for the 1910 season.

RACE FROM SAN DIEGO.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The yacht Lurline, last year winner of the Hawaiian cup in the San Pedro to Honolulu race, will be entered in the same race this year under the colors of the San Diego Yacht Club.

The boat has been purchased by Dr. O. N. Nelson, a member of the San Diego Yacht Club, who is in San Francisco with a local crew preparing to bring the yacht here.

Upon arrival here, the Lurline will be put in trim for the annual Honolulu race.

The San Diego Yacht Club plans a series of motor boat and launch and yacht races between this point and San Pedro previous to the sailing of the big yachts for Honolulu.

It is proposed that the wind-up will be at San Pedro the day previous to the big race, which will afford the local crews a chance to give the Lurline a rousing send-off.

FISHING GIVES LOT OF SPORT.

Primitive Methods Develop Through the Ages.

Harpoons Used Before Era of Christianity.

Business and Pleasure in Modern Methods.

In these balmy days no subject so completely possesses the mind of the average American as that of fishing tackle. The lure of the game fish ever has been a strong one, and whether it be a hook and line fit for catching a minnow, a steam power net for catching hundreds of barrels of herring or mackeral, or a harpoon gun for laying low the mighty leviathan of the sea, fishing tackle is full of interest to him who dreams, and in his dreams hears the faint, far call of the wild.

In the fishing world many remarkable instruments and appliances are used, but one must go to the Orient to find the most peculiar sort of tackle. One occasionally hears in America of a trained otter, and the fisherman who is lucky enough to possess one has a guarantee for a good season's work. In the Mediterranean turtle fisheries the remora, or sucking fish, is used as an assistant fisherman. It is a curious sort of fish which attaches itself to larger fish, to turtles, or to boats themselves, and when it gets a good grip, a mudturtle is not in its same class for holding-on qualities.

RING ON TAIL.

When it is caught a heavy ring is placed about its body just ahead of its tail, and it is tethered to the boat. When a turtle is sighted the remora is thrown out, and it fastens its forty-leech-power-suction apparatus to the shell of the turtle. It holds fast to the turtle until that creature has been towed alongside of the vessel, when it is pried loose and sent after another turtle. Sometimes the remora gets contrary and will not try to take hold of its turtle, but will swim back to the boat and fasten its sucker to the hull of the boat.

Akin to the remora in turtle fishing is the use of the cormorant in China for fishing purposes. The birds are caught when young and are carefully trained. A tight collar is placed about their necks, to which strings are fastened. They are thrown out into the water and taught to catch fish and bring them to the Chinese boats. It takes infinite patience, much petting, and some boxing of ears to teach the cormorant to fish without a collar and strings attached, but when one masters the art it is a most valuable aid to the fisherman.

The cormorants take a certain pride in their work, and when they are unsuccessful in their efforts they take their places shamefacedly to await the next tryout. The young usually are trained to work by the assistance of the old birds. The owners are kindness itself to the birds when they work, but box their heads and hurl imprecations at them when they fail.

In some of the South Sea Islands a species of spider proves that it was the original fishnet maker. A bamboo sapling is bent on a round shape and tied. It stays in this position for some time and then a spider comes along and uses it as the framework on which to build its web. This coverts it into a sort of Barbdingaymon tennis racquet and with this the native knocks a fish out of the water as a tennis player would strike a ball out of his side of the court. The webs are as strong as the dip net of ordinary design.

In the commercial fisheries of the world all sorts of tackle are used. Of course, the vast majority of the world's fish supply is caught in nets. The most important of these nets is the trawl net. This is a large-mouthed net bag of gigantic proportions, with a beam of about forty feet long. At either end of this beam is a triangular hoop which serves the threefold purpose of sinker, beam supporter and sled runner. This net is "shot" from the stern of the boat and trawled along until it is filled with fish, when it is hauled in.

OLD-TIME NETS.

The seine is one of the nets to which the populace owes much of its fish supply. It is a plain net with sinker weights at the bottom and cork floats at the top. It may vary in size from the huge, quarter-of-a-mile-long and sixty-feet-wide Cornish Bilchard seine to the little hand-net worked by the fisher children along the beach. In the heavy salmon fishing of the northwest the seine and the gill net are much used. The seine is shot in a semicircle across stream, and when it is full of fish it is hauled ashore, horse and steam power often being used in the operation. The fish wheel is used in the salmon fisheries. It looks much like an overshot water wheel and over this the fish are shot into a staked enclosure.

In the herring fisheries the gill net is used, and some of these are of such remarkable size that they contain dozens of tons of fish when hauled in. The meshes of the gill net are big enough to admit their heads and to pass their gills. But the larger part of the body cannot pass through. In this predicament they figuratively back pedal until their gills become hopelessly fast in the meshes. When the nets are full as is desired they are drawn up and the fish emptied on the deck. Many other kinds of fish also are caught with the gill net.

MILES IN LENGTH.

Long-line fishing is another of the commercial methods by which the world's fish supply is captured. A single line, sometimes as much as ten miles long, is shot out from the side of the boat. A heavy weight is attached to the end first thrown overboard, and at intervals of a few feet short lines with hooks on them are attached. The long line is stretched across the tide, and thus the hooks are kept at a proper distance apart. When the big line has remained out long enough it is hauled in and on the thousands of hooks, sometimes 5000 of them, there are nearly every kind of fish that one can imagine, a veritable Noah's ark of the deep. In miniature, this line becomes the "trot line" of inland river fishing.

COD FISHERIES.

In the great cod fisheries on Newfoundland the simple hand line is most used. A single fisherman in a boat goes out and pulls them in one after the other until he gets a boatload. The long line and the nets are sometimes used. It is said that a fish has more curiosity than any other living creature and in sport fishing for mackerel the best bait that can be used is simply a little piece of scarlet flannel or ribbon, tapering to a point. There is nothing in the sea that this imitates; it is merely intended to take advantage of the mackerel's inquisitiveness.

Perhaps the most dangerous and thrilling calling in the world of marine life is whaling, though the advent of the steam whaler has tended to lessen both the danger and the romance of the chase. That the harpoon used in whaling is of very remote origin, as well as whaling itself, is shown by the fact that in the Book of Job it is asked concerning the leviathan, "Canst thou fill his skin with barbed irons?"

There is a tradition that the Indians of Florida, long before the white man set foot on American soil, would jump on the head of a whale, plug up one nostril with a wooden peg, then allow him to go to the bottom, and when he came up again plug up the other nostril, and thus suffocate the monster. Of course, no one credits this tradition, but there seems to be no room for doubt that the ancient Eskimos would surround a whale and at a given signal fill it full of harpoons to which were attached inflated sealskins. Thus buoyed to the surface it was only a question of time until the whale would die. The use of the bomb harpoon gun, in which a bomb with fuse attached is hurled with a harpoon into the whale is comparatively recent. When the bomb explodes it usually inflicts a mortal wound.

TURTLE FISHING.

In the South Sea Islands turtle fishing is carried on in the most primitive fashion. The fishermen swim out from the vessel, climb upon the turtle's back, and like the Old Man of the Sea, ride him to the vicinity of the ship, where a line is passed to him and hooked around the turtle's head, halter fashion. Then the captor swims off for another victim. Sometimes they make good shark bait, a fate which they doubtless deserve, as they literally burn the turtles alive in order to get the shell off some fiend having discovered that when the shell is taken off before the turtle is killed it makes a finer quality of tortoise shell.

For American sport fishing, the deep sea fishing off the coast of California and Florida and in the Gulf of Mexico, where the tarpon, the black sea bass, and other large fish abound, is said to be the most exciting. The rods, reels, and lines must be of the very highest quality. It requires hours to land one of these big fish, and infinite skill and patience; sometimes it becomes an endurance contest.

For trout and other inland game fishes an inexhaustible variety of rods, reels, lines, and artificial bait is to be had. It is said that the Chinese and the Japanese make the finest fishlines in the world. Some of the best are made by the fisherwomen of the Straits of Magellan. They use their own hair for material.

The average American angler is satisfied with a kit costing a few dollars. Some of them, however, have kits in which they have spent thousands of dollars. But whether it is the bent pin and the wad of raw cotton used by the small boy or the most expensive rod, reel and line that money can buy, skill and patience are the most necessary parts of a complete outfit of fishing tackle and money cannot buy them.—[Minneapolis Journal.

A year ago the Hupmobile had just made its bow to the public.

Today, in a thousand towns and cities—all over the world—five thousand Hupmobiles are in use.

These two brief paragraphs tell the wonderful story of the Hupmobile—a story of things done and loyal partisans won.

Why and how was it possible for the Hupmobile—a newcomer—to leap so quickly and surely into lasting favor; in one year to gain a place which other and older cars have struggled years to attain?

In the first place, it offered extraordinary value—the motor buying public was quick to grasp the truth that no value to compare had ever been presented.

True, there were cars of moderate price.

But none at a figure approximating the Hupmobile price possessed the dash and beauty, the mechanical and structural liberality and staunchness which mark alike the Hupmobile and the costlier, larger cars.

So the Hupmobile was instantly and universally welcomed; not alone by those who had hopefully and patiently awaited the coming of such a car, but by men who owned the costliest types and recognized in the Hupmobile a smaller brother to these cars.

And the Hupmobile began at once to make good, in public contests and in the service of the first delighted buyers.

For instance, early in the season, it made a cleanup in the Porter Hill climb at Cleveland, winning twice in its class.

Hard on the heels of this initial victory came the Ft. Ancient Hill climb at Dayton and the Detroit reliability run, the Hupmobile winning in its class in both.

In the Buffalo fuel economy contest, it came off with a record of 36.8 miles on one gallon of gasoline, and first honors.

In speed and endurance, it made its mark early, winning the six hour race at Brighton Beach in August, and two ten mile and one five-mile races in Texas.

Its mountain climbing record is unique. The Hupmobile was the first automobile ever to reach the top of Georgia's famous Stone Mountain, under its own power and without assistance, making an ascent which even a horse has never accomplished. It was the second car ever to ascend Mt. Greylock, Mass., under its own power. It climbed the steepest and highest peaks of the Adirondacks; and distinguished itself in mountain work in Colorado and California.

After victoriously traversing the hot sands of the great American desert in the Los Angeles-Phoenix race, three Hupmobiles successfully crossed the snowbound wastes between Detroit and New York early in January; and in the Dakotas, Colorado and Canada, snow tours of no less severity were completed with equal credit. On the Los Angeles cently turned a mile in 58 equipment of lamps and fenders.

In the fewest words, the year has been one of progress for the Hupmobile.

Its position is firmly established.

It has done anything and everything could do, save that it has not carried gers as the larger cars.

Its good name has been won by its motor, sturdily accepting whatever of it; by its continuous service, keep; in short, by those attributes pected or found in cars of moderate rank the Hupmobile with cars of far

Jockey Is Insane.

CHICAGO, April 23.—Alfred Overton, formerly well known as the Jockey "Monk" Overton, became violently insane in a Police Court here today. It required six policemen to place him in a cell, where he beat his head against the bars until consciousness left him.

Browning Makes Good.

Frank Browning, midget in size, the San Francisco Pacific Coast League recruit, and the leading twirler in that organization during the season of 1909, bested Cy Falkenberg, Cleveland's elongated flinger, and the tallest that Ban Johnson's league boasts of, in the first game at Detroit. It was Browning's début in big league company and the youngster made an auspicious start. If he can continue to display the form shown in that game, it is needles to remark that he will remain on the Tiger pay roll.

To hold the hard-hitting team of Jim McGuire to six widely-disseminated hits and a single tally, is a record that the most highly-respected veteran might be proud to possess. For a youngster, to be shoved in against a team that had on the two previous days defeated two of the best twirlers in the American League, and twirl as he did, the glory is all the greater.—[Detroit Free Press.

ABANDON GRAND CIRCUIT.

Racing on Eastern Tracks Killed by Adverse Legislation on Betting and Other Evils.

The abandonment of the eastern end of the Grand Circuit, while a hard knock, is not as damaging a blow as might be supposed, since the disappearance of the mile-track performers will mean an increase in the number of half-mile track races. There is a distinct line drawn between the two classes of horses, for the very good reason that a horse can go so much faster over a mile track than he can over a two-lap ring that he finds himself outclassed on the latter courses once he has been raced to his limit on a mile track. Legislation prohibiting betting in the Eastern States has operated against the mile tracks more than the half-milers, since the expenses were necessarily larger, particularly in the matter of purses. It requires a pretty good-sized purse to attract the light harness stars, and the mile-track managers in the old days depended on the profits from the pooling and other privileges to bring them out even, for it was seldom that the gate alone was sufficient to pay expenses. One by one the mile tracks have been abandoned, while the half-mile tracks have at least held their own, the track managements having resorted to fair features to bring out the people.

The fight against betting in New York State has had a more damaging effect on racing than in some of the other States, and the climax has now been reached. Buffalo, Syracuse, Poughkeepsie and New York City were Grand Circuit eligibles, but all except Syracuse decided to drop out this year, and that decision took with it the Readville and Hartford meetings, for the distance is too great for western horse owners to ship to those tracks alone. The Buffalo dates have been retained by the owner of the Fort Erie (Can.) track, the new law in that country having legalized bookmaking, but the meeting has been cut to three days, since the law limits light harness race meetings in Canada to that duration, and it may be that the Grand Circuit horsemen will fail to patronize so short a meeting.

PREACHER PANS TY.

An Atlanta minister preached a sermon on baseball recently, and he panned Ty Cobb and professional ball players to a fare-you-well. Among other things, he said: "Ty Cobb is the biggest man in Georgia today. It's a fact, a shameful fact. Really, I feel like 'cussing' when I think of the homage the people pay to a man whose only contribution to society is his ability to hit a ball and to run from one base to another." That Cobb party

There are, of course, various models of Oldsmobiles, but we want to say just a few special words today about the greatest car this factory or any other has ever turned out—the OLDSMOBILE LIMITED. It's the car that spells perfection in auto-designing and building. It's the car that marks the very highest development in the art of building a luxurious, elegantly equipped, powerful automobile full of comfort and reliability. The wonderful advantage of the 42-inch tires can only be realized on demonstration. The magnificent big car fairly glides over the rough places in the road. You'll be delighted.

There's a Best in every class. That's as true of automobiles as of sewing machines, and just as in sewing machines the best is mighty liable to be found in the simplest model. The Cartercar has but one lever. Its power transmission of the simple type can hardly be improved upon. Its engine little marvel of strength and few parts. By comparing the personnel of the two the close relation may be seen,—and that alone ought silence reports so diligently circulated by business rivals the effect that conflicting interests and contentions exist.

A Word to the 1500 E-M-F Dealers

F COMPANY will not repudiate any contract it has with dealers without good cause. Studebakers would the last to ask or permit such a thing. No good purpose be served by any change of dealers either now or at later period—and none is contemplated.

G AS YOU DO YOUR PART—treat buyers of our cars ly, fairly, liberally, and carry out in spirit as well in the letter E-M-F policies—all will be well. In short, it up to you. Changes will be made only where and when dealer himself has violated his part of the compact.

THE E-M-F SALES PLAN—study it carefully, for we the more you study it the more you will like it. We it is the most comprehensive and the most practical plan this industry has yet known. It has been most worked out. It is the result of all the experience bakers and the E-M-F Company have had.

POSE IS TO FACILITATE the handling of our product to enable dealers and customers to obtain cars, supplies parts at the most advantageous freight rates and in the possible time. The concern which would lead in business must take care of owners and reduce in every way margins between factory and consumer, expense of handling and other items.

THE UNITED STATES IS DIVIDED first into three districts, each covered by an assistant sales manager, under the direction of the general sales manager at Detroit, whose duty it will be to keep in close touch with every dealer, great and small, in his territory and see that every buyer of an E-M-F "30" or Flanders "20" car is properly taken care of.

THIRTY-FIVE DISTRIBUTING BRANCHES for our wholesale business will immediately be established at points selected because of their advantages from a shipping and distributing standpoint. These branch centers are indicated by stars and black dots on the map shown herewith. Study railroad conditions, freight differentials and other shipping conditions and you will see the philosophy of the plan and the logic of the selection of these thirty-five points.

NOW STUDEBAKERS ALREADY HAVE branch houses at 18 of the above points—indicated by stars. These branches are admirably equipped as to quarters, organization and experience, to act as distributing centers for this product. The E-M-F policy will be inaugurated at these points and the product will be distributed from there. Meantime, others will immediately be established.

THE BRANCH MANAGER WILL BE OUR DIRECT representative on the ground and will carry out the sales policy as determined by the directors of the E-M-F Company which he represents.

SMALL DEALERS WHO CANNOT afford to buy cars in car load lots may obtain single cars from the nearest branches. Those who can and so desire, will have their cars shipped direct from the factory.

EVERY DEALER, GREAT AND SMALL, WILL CONTRACT WITH THE FACTORY DIRECT. Every contract will be endorsed by the E-M-F Company at Detroit. Branch managers will, however, be empowered to adjust all claims and, in fact, transact all business in behalf of the sales department, right on the ground. But every dealer will feel he is working with the factory direct and that no additional discount or rake-off comes from the business he does.

ALL DEALERS WILL BE ON EXACTLY THE SAME footing and all contracts will be uniform as they are at present. In other words, there will be no change save that involved in establishing these thirty-five distributing points for your accommodation and our convenience in handling the great volume of business we have planned to do.

And Now a Word to Buyers and Owners

WE CONSIDER THE BUYER the court of last resort. From his decision as to the merits of our cars there is no appeal. A satisfied owner is the best salesman—a dissatisfied one the reverse. It is our proud boast that, today, there are over 10,000 persons engaged in selling E-M-F "30" and Flanders "20" cars to their acquaintances—explaining their points of superiority and proudly demonstrating their efficiency. This is the largest and yet the cheapest sales force known. They are satisfied owners.

OUR SALES POLICY is designed to meet the needs of owners of our cars. Its chief purpose will be to keep in closer touch with every owner. To make it easier to obtain repair or replacement parts. By the establishing of thirty-five distributing branches we are sure that every owner will be well served, no matter in what remote corner of this great country he resides or may tour.

THESE BRANCHES WILL CARRY at all times complete stocks of parts of all cars—past as well as current models. Claims will be adjusted promptly, complaints investigated thoroughly and most important of all, we shall know that the policies which have contributed to the phenomenal success of the E-M-F Company will be enforced elsewhere as it has been in Detroit—where more E-M-F "30" cars are driven than of any competing make.

BY DISTRIBUTING OUR PRODUCT DIRECT, as above outlined, we keep clear of many abuses that have grown up in the automobile industry. Illegitimate "rake-offs"; excessive freight charges; overcharging for accessories; substitution of inferior equipment such as tops and storm fronts for those furnished and guaranteed by the E-M-F Company. These and many other abuses will be entirely eliminated by our system of distributing branches and traveling factory representatives.

EACH BRANCH MANAGER HAS BEEN SELECTED because of his fitness for such a position of trust and responsibility. All are broad gauge men. It will be their pleasure as well as their duty to carry out the policies of this company—with which they are in full accord. They are men on whom we can rely to adjust claims and decide on all important matters arising in their territory—men in whom buyers can have implicit confidence. That is a very important consideration in the purchase of a motor car,—perhaps the most important one.

GRAHAM SEES SULTRY GAME.

eague Leader Watches Hogan Put Off Grounds.

rackenridge Loses Before He Gets Started.

indsay Pleases Fans With His Fine Fielding.

Los Angeles, 7; Vernon, 3.

Judge Thomas Graham, president of ie Pacific Coast League, made his first ppearance in Los Angeles yesterday nce he has been the leader of the ague and from his seat in the grand and saw Happy Hogan of the Ver- ons thrown off the ball field for the eenty-steenth time since the season egan. The only comment Graham iade was that Hogan became a little o obstreperous.

Incidentally the president declared iat he liked to see ball players a lit- e scrappy on the field, for it added fe to the game and a little row was hat the fans wanted occasionally. his may be a hint to players for the ear, but Hogan was certainly in a t of hard luck that he did not know hat the president thought before the ame was through.

The game itself was deadened by the eat which put some of the players the bad and particularly Kittie rashear, who had all kinds of hard hances and bungled on three of these. lurphy muffed a fly, Roth and Brown rew wildly and Fisher dropped a rown ball, but these mistakes might e overlooked on account of the heat.

Brackenridge started in to pitch for ie Vernons and before he settled him- elf in his tracks the Angels had made our runs and these were enough to eat Mister Brack. The day was an- ther scorcher and the fans that sat on ie bleachers in the sun were certainly ome of the faithful, but for their de- otion they saw some good and bad aseball.

Briswalter for the Angels always had e Happ guessing and it required lenty of pokes and hard ones to get ıns off him.

FINE FIELDING.

The spectacular fielding of the day ere shown by Lindsay of Vernon, who ade some beautiful assists to first from ehind second base. These were picked p on the run and in several instances e grabbed the ball with the left hand nd then changed it to his right and rew the runner out at first. In strik- g contract to his work was that of it Brashear, who had a bad day of it n hard chances and made three er- ors. The unfeeling fans made all orts of fun of Kittie, forgetting that e ended last season with a fielding ercentage of .971 in 201 games and hit 46.

Brackenridge was spotty again and aley got him up in the air in the rst inning by hitting the first pitched all for a double over first base. Ross ollowed with a neat sacrifice, which ut Daley on third and then Howard alked. Dillon sent a long fly to cen- er that scored Daley and put Howard n second and he raced in when Mur- hy hit to center.

In the second, with two out, Daley alked, ran to third on Ross's long ingle to right, and scored when Kit Brashear let Coy's throw to third get way from him. Ross reached second n the throw in, got to third on How- rd's bouncing infield hit, and scored n a double steal with Howard going o second. A pass, two singles, a sac- ifice and an error by Kit Brashear made two more runs in the fourth, and he final came from a single, an out nd two steals by Murphy.

For Vernon, Carlisle was hit by itcher in the first inning and scored n a third base bunt by Martinke and wild throw by Roth. A pass, a dou- le and a long fly made the second un, and two singles and an out the hird one.

Fisher shocked the fans with a nappy unassisted double play in the eventh inning, and yet it was so easy e could not help himself out of it. With one out and Ross on first base, Dillon hit a hot liner into Fisher's ands and he stepped on the first bag nd doubled Ross before the little fel- ow could get back to the bag. Roth lid almost the same thing in the ighth for Vernon, for with two on ases and one out, Roy Brashear drove liner to third and Roth shot the ball cross to Dillon and doubled Mar- inke.

Hap Hogan's finish came in the first nning, and he wrought himself into a ever, but had to take the count when Finney got through with him. Mar- inke had bunted safely to third and an to second when Roth threw the all away. Roy Brashear bounced an nfield single to Howard, and with Ho- an coaching at third, Martinke over- an the bag and was thrown out be- ore he could get back. Hogan fol- owed Finney to the diamond to yell ut his hard luck tale, and Finney romptly threw him into the bleachers. The score:

SENATORS WIN ANOTHER.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23.—Sacramento took the third straight game from San Francisco today when, after a batting festival in which base hits were plentiful, the local players finished on the short end of a 6 to 4 score.

The Sacramentans found Willis with ease, after Eastley had been taken out of the game. Although the San Francisco batters did their share of the hitting, they did not bunch the safeties as Graham's men did. Baum takes the credit for the day's results, and Willis gets the blame. Score:

OAK HEAVERS OFF.

EASY FOR PORTLAND.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PORTLAND, April 23.—Oakland had a dress parade of pitchers in their game with Portland, but their combined talents were unable to prevent the local boys capturing the game, 7 to 0.

Nelson started the procession of Portland players to first base in the first. He lasted only a few minutes, and was supplanted by Harkins. The procession continued and Portland made four runs in the first inning.

The Portlanders started another procession in the second, but it was cut short by Lively, Oakland's new pitcher, who finished a long game with credit to himself. Gregg, who pitched his first game for Portland today, made a fine showing. Score:

TAFT LOVES BASEBALL.

DESERTS GAME OF GOLF.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Once again has William Howard Taft ingratiated himself with the army of baseball fans. He has turned his back on the golf game and when he visits St. Louis on May 4 he will devote the afternoon to the national game, and will pass judgment on the work of both Cardinals and Browns.

Thus all of the President's known ability as a diplomat will be called into play, to retain the title as "king of the rooters" that was bestowed on him yesterday when he demonstrated his enthusiasm with both teams who clash. With the Browns and Cardinals coming from his native State he will be loath to choose between them and as they represent rival leagues the position will still be the more delicate.

AUTO TOPS $50.00

Have Your Tops Made to Order from Ten Different Styles of Goods

5-PASSENGER TOURING CAR TOPS $50

Automobile owners, these $50 tops are here to stay. It is an established fact that a top that costs $125 to $150 will not keep its shape and be a presentable article one day longer than a well made and properly proportioned top which will cost you less than half that price. This is why my $50 job has proven itself a winner at this amount of money. I am using mohair and other high-class goods such as French Plaids with a beautiful olive colored backing for the inside. I am putting these goods on Victoria shape bows with brass mouldings. When complete, make a high-class job. These automobile tops possess three advantages that have not been found in any top up to the present time. In the first place, the dealer can use this top on a car and make a sale with it where a higher-priced top would possibly stop him.

In the second place, if a man wants to get rid of a second-hand car, he can apply this top to it and dispose of his car to better advantage than without.

And thirdly, a customer does not have to go without a top to his car, as he can even reach two in a season for what he has been paying for one, heretofore.

THROOPERS BEAT HOLLYWOOD NINE

PHENOM LINTON BADLY POKED BY PASADENANS.

With Score One All in Seventh Young Mechanics Fill Bases and Fellow With Triple and Home Run. Victory Marks Fifteenth Straight Win for Prep Team.

Throop Academy beat Hollywood High School 7 to 1, at Tournament Park, Pasadena, yesterday afternoon. Pitcher Linton, the young crack of the Hollywood nine, was batted out of the box in the seventh inning.

With the score 1 to 1 in the last of the seventh, the first threee Throopers to come to bat hit safely, filling the bases. Matthews then drove out a triple, and the hoodoo that has protected the prep southpaw was broken. Simpson, the next man up, knocked out a home run.

The victory is Throop Academy's fifteenth straight win this season. The Polytechnic school is now tied for first place in the County League with Pasadena High, each team having won three games without a defeat.

Vinson pitched a good game for Throop, letting the visitors down with three hits. Until the seventh Linton also did well, striking out ten men.

TIGERS HOPE TO WIN.

The Occidental and Pomona baseball teams will clash in their first contest, at Baer Park, tomorrow afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock.

The Tigers have been working out in a series of practice games, and are in splendid condition. Occidental was defeated by U.S.C., but the Methodists had horseshoes with them, and the Tigers do not figure that result in the "dope" on the Pomona game.

Lockwood is to pitch for Occidental, and Kingman will probably twirl for the sagebrushers.

BROWN'S NEW CURVE.

USES RUBBER GLOVE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mordecai Brown is the only member of the Cubs who really enjoys pitching a game of baseball in a snowstorm. He is working on a new curve and practice on his new deceiver has just put him right for a battle in a blizzard or rainstorm. He wears a thin rubber glove on his pitching hand while doing his stunt.

"The chief reason for wearing it," said Brown today, "is that the new curve I am working on brings the ball in contact with portions of my hand which have never been used in pitching and which, therefore, are quite tender. Still I have found that I can get a much better grip on the ball for all curves so that I may use it whenever the ground is wet enough to make the ball slippery."

RENO (Nev.) April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Barney Oldfield is to appear here on May 1, when he drives at the Nevada Jockey Club track. Five hundred dollars worth of Goldfield gold is being made up into a crown to be presented the champion automobilist by Tex Rickard and other Nevada admirers. A Reno jeweler is constructing the crown which is emblematic of Oldfield's achievement when he attained a speed of 142 miles an hour on a Florida beach.

"Boys, I'm glad I'm going back. While I believe the Cubs would have won the pennant without me, I feel more certain now. I am in fair condition and will report to Manager Chance tomorrow morning.

TRACK TEAM TO GO ALONG.

Stanford Team to Accompany Lagunita Crew to Washington on Way to Chicago Meet.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, April 22.—The Stanford track men who are to engage in the western conference meet at Chicago in June, probably will accompany the Lagunita crew to the University of Washington the latter part of May and meet the northern track team on the same day on which the crew is to race with the Washington eight on Lake Washington. The track team also may engage in a dual meet with the University of Washington.

If this plan be carried out, the trip will be the most important ever taken by a western team, as meets already sity of Utah and Colorado University.

About twelve of the best performers in the intercollegiate meet will make the trip. Tom Coleman, who was not taken along last year because freshmen are not eligible to compete in the western conference meet, is sure of a place on the team this year. Horine and Argabrite, the freshmen high jumpers, although they are the best men Stanford has, will not be eligible.

The Lagunita crew that will meet the University of Washington, May 21, will undoubtedly include the same men who rowed against California. The northern university has guaranteed the local men expense money to the amount of $400.

ALL CLASS.

SAVAGE CORNERS RECORD PACERS.

HEDGEWOOD BOY AND LADY MAUD C. ADDED TO STABLE.

Famous Horse Breeder Plans Extensive Exhibition Tour Throughout Country—Dan Patch Will Confine Work to Show Ring—Team Races a Feature.

Hedgewood Boy and Lady Maud C., two of the world's most famous pacers and holders of the world's team record, have been added to M. W. Savage's championship stable.

The royal quintette is composed of Dan Patch, 1:55, champion of champions; Minor Heir, 1:59¼, joint holder of the world's race record, the world's unpaced mile record and holder of all world's records for green pacers; George Gano, 2:02¾, champion money winner of 1909, and believed to have two-minute possibilities; Hedgewood Boy, 2:02¼, and Lady Maud C., 2:02¾.

This year Dan Patch will not be asked to lower any world's records. He will be allowed to step through the stretch and perhaps halves and quarters at his old-time speed, and perhaps, if any of his stable mates grow too conceited, he will show them what the real world's champion can do.

Probably next in importance will be Minor Heir, admitted to be the heir apparent. The great son of Heir-at-Law is the only harness horse that negotiated a two-minute mile last season. He tied the world's record for an unpaced mile, and all experts admit that with any kind of luck during the coming year many records will be at his mercy. He will battle against the watch alone as one feature of the Savage programme.

George Gano, Hedgewood Boy and Lady Maud C. will also be asked for their greatest efforts against time. Each of these pacers has his admirers, and each is believed to have a chance of winning a place within the magic two-minute circle.

Savage plans a series of races between these four great side-wheelers. Never in turf history have four such famous pacers battled for supremacy. Which one will win remains to be demonstrated. Each has his followers, and followers who will back their judgment with their gold. They will be for blood. The best horse and the best driver will win. Savage will get the service of four of the best drivers in the country, and he says that he absolutely has no favorites.

Last, the stable will offer an absolutely unique attraction in a team race which will combine all the excitement of the old Roman chariot race, with the skill and speed resulting from generations of scientific harness horse breeding. A team race has never been heard of on a modern race track. This will not only be a race between two teams, but between the two fastest teams in the world, made up of the four fastest pacers.

Hedgewood Boy and Lady Maud C., full brother and sister, and exactly mated in color, size, weight and gait, have won their spurs. Last season they reduced the world's record over three seconds, and experts who watched their efforts say that they have not reached their limit by a second or two.

Minor Heir and George Gano are also remarkably mated. Individually, they are believed to have more speed than the present holders of the record. They have never, however, been driven together, a Hedgewood Boy and Lady Maud C. have since they were colts. Nobody can make even an intelligent guess as to what the stallions will do against the brother and sister.

CHANGES INADEQUATE.

Alterations in Football Rules Prove Unsatisfactory in the Spring Practice Play.

Henry M. Wheaton, an old Yale player, who has been appointed as head coach of the Annapolis team, says that more tinkering with the football rules is necessary before it will be possible to save the present forward pass across the line of scrimmage and still provide an adequate and proper secondary defense for the defensive tackles. The following statement is accredited to Wheaton:

"The trouble of last year and preceding seasons with the forward pass will not disappear until a rule is adopted providing that any forward pass across the line of scrimmage, which travels more than ten yards beyond the point where the ball is put in play, may be caught and handled as a fair catch, under the same regulations that pertain to a catching of a kick. This would allow the defensive halfbacks to play up close to the line, preventing line bucking, opening the play and holding the forward passes to shorter distances.

"The new tackling rule, which forbids diving tackles, is a failure and will result in a bigger cripple list than the old regulation. Splitting of the halves into fifteen-minute periods has also resulted unhappily in our spring practice."

A HOME RUN BUNT.

Unique Play by Which the Batter Pulled Off a Game in the Southern League.

The Southern League furnishes a story of a home run bunt that won a game. It seems that there was a man on first and that the batter was instructed to lay down a bunt. He put a roller toward third, the first baseman was drawn in and the second baseman covered first. The third baseman threw to first. Everybody saw the ball on the way. It hit the baseman's glove and—disappeared. When the hunt for the ball began the first runner was hugging second, while the batter overrun first and stumbled and fell out in right field.

He quickly got up, retouched first, ran to second and persuaded the other man to run ahead of his home with the winning run. Everybody thought the ball was lost in the grass, and finally it was found in right field. How it got there was a mystery until the man who hit the bunt explained. It appears that the ball bounced from the second baseman's glove and bounded up under the runner's arm as he sprinted past the bag. The runner closed his arm down tight, kept on running, gave a stage fall out in right field, and dropped the ball where it was later found.—[Seattle Post-Intel-

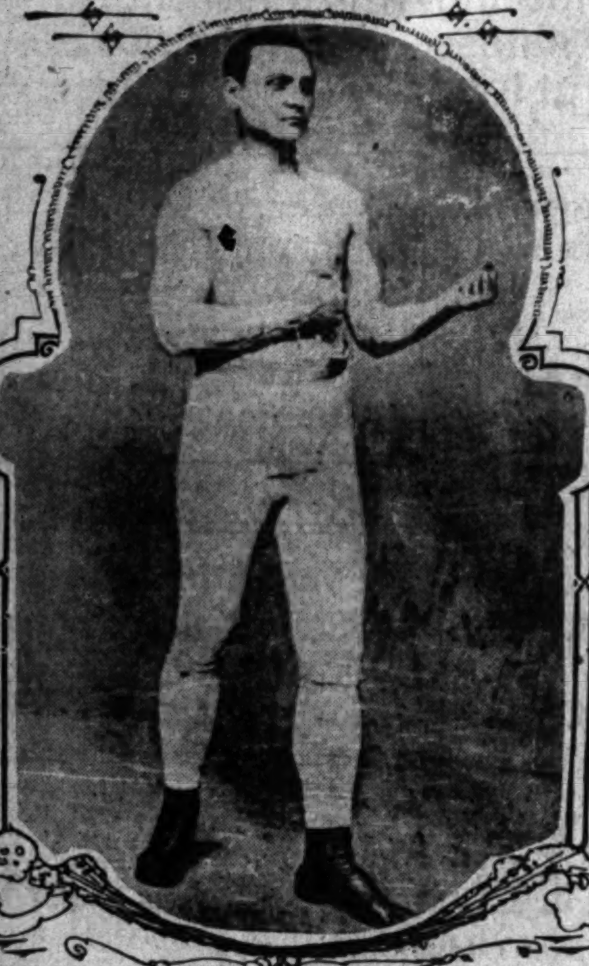
HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPIONS OF AMERICAN PRIZERING

NO. XI.

[Copyright, 1910, by S. J. Kelly.]



John J. Dwyer,
one of America's champion heavyweights.

JOHN J. DWYER, champion (XI.) 1878 to 1880; weight, 170 pounds; height, 5 feet, 9½ inches.

The career of John Dwyer as champion was a meteoric one. Dwyer's record previous to his one ring battle for the title was that of an amateur, he having figured in ring affairs only as a skillful boxer with the gloves.

His qualities and science were, however, well known to his friends, as he had defeated many opponents, among them one or two professionals in boxing bouts. Steve Taylor, of considerable fame as a heavyweight pugilist, had been bested by him.

Dwyer was a Brooklyn boy and held a position in one of the courts of that city, but being persuaded that he had a broader career as a pugilist and was a possible champion, he issued a sweeping challenge in 1878 to fight any boxer in the United States and posted his money, which latter remained for a long time uncovered.

The heavyweight title was supposed to rest in a lukewarm manner with Joe Goss, but in truth the fancy and the general public looked upon Johnny Dwyer as able to take and hold the title should he at any time enter the ring as an aspirant for the "belt."

No pugilist seemed anxious to meet Dwyer, but at length a match was arranged between him and Jimmy Elliott. Elliott was undoubtedly a game and desperate fighter, and was known throughout the United States at one time for his fierce and sanguinary battles in the ring.

Elliott possessed a splendid physique, standing nearly six feet and weighing when trained 185 pounds. He had many of the attributes of a champion, and with proper handling and higher ambitions might have reached the highest honors.

This battle of Dwyer and Elliott, fought May 8, 1879, at Long Point, Can., was without its equal as a brief encounter. Elliott was fearfully punished and Dwyer was declared the winner at the end of twelve rounds.

By this fight Johnny Dwyer became champion of the American ring. He later visited England, Ireland and foreign countries, but the effects of his battle with Elliott were so severe that he never entirely recovered his health. He received permanent injuries from body blows during that fight, and died a few years after, leaving the only record of having fought one battle and that for the championship and winning it.

TIGER FOOTBALL DATES.

Princeton Publishes Official Card of Gridiron Games for Coming Season.

The Princeton University football schedule for the coming season shows several changes from schedules of recent years. Dartmouth will be played in New York on October 29. The game probably will be at the Polo Grounds.

The new games on the schedule are New York University and Carlisle. Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Sewanee and the Navy have been dropped. Villanova is the only midweek contest on the list. There is one less game scheduled than last year. The meeting with Carlisle at Princeton is the first basis of comparison between the Tigers and Pennsylvania.

In order to ease up the schedule before the Yale game, which is scheduled for November 12 at Princeton, Fordham has been listed between Dartmouth and Eli.

There is general satisfaction here over the list. It is believed that the schedule is well balanced to help the development of the team for the Yale game. In fact, every date is apparently arranged as a training point for the final contest. The schedule cannot be called a hard one.

The schedule reads as follows:

October 1—Stevens Institute, at Princeton.
October 5.—Villanova, at Princeton.
October 8—New York University, at Princeton.
October 15—Lafayette, at Princeton.
October 22—Carlisle Indians, at Princeton.
October 29—Dartmouth, at New York.
November 5—Fordham, at Princeton
November 12—Yale, at Princeton.

LETTERS FOR ATHLETES.

Fifty Stanford Men Receive Insignia for Representing Cardinal Teams Against California.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, April 22.—Nearly fifty Cardinal athletes were awarded "S's" yesterday by the Executive Committee for representing Stanford in intercollegiate contests this spring. Twenty-one of these men are registered from Southern California. As about one-third of the students attending the university are southerners, the south has made an exceptional record in contributing athletes to the Cardinal team this semester.

The student body awarded emblems to the members of the Lagunita crew that defeated California, despite the fact that rowing is not fostered by the student body. This action met with general approval among the students. The crew men who were given "S's" were: R. H. Seward, '12, of Los Angeles; R. R. Hails, '12, of Santa Barbara; J. W. Roberts, '10, of Redlands; J. C. Huston, '10; C. L. Schaupp, '12; H. L. Dieterle, '12; R. A. Gilmore, '12, and J. F. Partridge, '12.

Four stars were awarded to Leland Scott, '10, and H. V. Poor, '10, who have won points in four intercollegiate track meets. The other point winners in the meet with California were: H. L. Horton, '08; H. R. Stolz, '10, of Redlands; S. H. Bellah, '10, J. E. Shelton, '10; H. E. Reed, '10; W. D. A. Peaslee, '10; W. S. Porter, '11, of Santa Barbara; W. M. Wyman, '11, of Santa Barbara; C. C. Taylor, '11; K. L. Dole, '11, of Riverside; T. C. Waring, '11; C. H. Tallant, '11, of Santa Barbara; T. L. Coleman, '12, of Los Angeles; W. H. Newman, '12, of San Diego; R. B. Carter, '12, of Los Angeles; E. F. Kern, '13, of Pasadena; L. H. Price, '13; C. L. Horine, '13, and W. M. Argabrite, '13, of Ventura.

The baseball men who received emblems are: M. Mitchell, '10, of Los Angeles; Stan Mitchell, '13, of Los Angeles; R. C. McFadden, '10, of Fullerton; L. H. Cochran, '10, of San Bernardino; B. L. Ball, '11, of Los Angeles; S. W. Gilfillan, '12, of Los Angeles; G. McGregor, '09; H. E. Reed, '10; C. F. Ganong, '10; M. Obear, '12, and L. Childs, '13, of Redlands.

H. S. Morgan, '10, and G. L. Shaul, '12, of San Diego and H. Mann, '10, and R. L. Murray, '13, were given "S's" for representing the university in the intercollegiate tennis tournament.

Debating medals were awarded to G. F. Morgan, '10, and Paul Batkin, '10, of Los Angeles; J. S. Shelton, '10, and R. J. Miller, '11. Morgan and Batkin were on both the Carnot and the intercollegiate teams.

The Executive Committee is considering the advisability of awarding a uniform medal to all 'varsity athletes in the future. The tennis players may be given a different emblem than is given to the other athletes. Soccer football may be ranked as a minor sport for which emblems will be given.

CRICKETERS AT WORK.

Members of Los Angeles Club to Practice at Vineyard Station This Afternoon.

Members of the Los Angeles Cricket Club will practice this afternoon at the Vineyard Junction grounds, at the end of the Pico Heights car line. The practice will probably be begun at about 2 o'clock.

Twelve men showed up for the first work-out of the year, last Sunday afternoon. A much larger number will probably be on hand today, and from next Sunday on full-sized squads will limber up until the regular schedule of league games starts. The grounds have been well cared for, the final rolling given last week having put them in fine condition for play.

STANFORD BOXING BOUT.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, April 22.—The annual boxing tournament is to be held in Encina gymnasium Monday night. Twenty men have signed for the bouts in the various divisions. Each match will consist of three rounds of three minutes each. The winner in each class will be awarded a gold medal.

THE NEW Rambler

THE New Rambler Offset Crank-shaft enables you to throttle down on high gear no faster than a man usually walks. This means that in crowded traffic, much gear shifting is avoided. The straight-line drive takes the power direct from the engine to the rear axle without encountering the angle or corner, found in most other driving systems. Thirty-six-inch wheels give high clearance and add to the appearance and riding qualities. The Spare Wheel eliminates tire worry because this wheel with inflated tire, can so quickly and easily be substituted for the damaged tire.

Pomona Baseball Team Expects to Win Conference Championship Easily.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.)

CLAREMONT, April 23.—Good work has been done by the Pomona 'varsity baseball squad during the last week. Although the improvement has not been steady, the men are now putting up fairly classy conference baseball.

Tomorrow the team is to journey to Baer Park to meet the Tigers in the first game against Occidental in the conference schedule. With the first U.S.C. contest put away with a 6 to 1 score in favor of the Blue and White, the Claremonters are anticipating another clean sweep in the conference series.

U.S.C. is regarded as the hardest proposition on the Southern California college diamonds, with Occidental putting up nearly as good an article of ball. If the Pomona nine wins on Mon- won, Whittier being hardly considered in the running.

All three of Pomona's first games were played away from home, the home games being the decisive contests.

Good batting is largely responsible for the showing the team is making. A few of the new men, notably Bobby Spurgeon and Kingman, are showing good baseball instinct, and should develop into stars with college practice. Kingman is already showing conference form in the box, pitching a ball that is hard to hit. He still lacks the speed necessary for top-notch class, but has good curves and fair control.

The dangers for the team lie in the overconfidence of the squad, and the inexperience of the new men. The case of swelled head is not as pronounced now, however, as at the beginning of the season, while so far the team has held itself down at critical moments like a bunch of veterans.

STANFORD CHESS TEAM.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, April 22.— University of California in the annual chess tournament. The final match was played early in the week. The Rice trophy will be held by Stanford during the coming year. The results of the games were: H. Mann (S.) defeated S. C. Haight (C.;) S. J. Cummings (S.) defeated J. De Fremery (C.;) W. O. Smith (S.) defeated W. A. English (C.;) R. L. Vaughn (S.) defeated A. C. Hatton in a professional bout. The youngster won the 115-pound championship among the amateurs and is anxious to enter into a larger ring career among the pros. If he does not develop stage fright in his maiden effort he stands a good chance to win. Rogers is a tough kid and will probably give Hatton a fine chance to show his real ability both at boxing and at absorbing the gaff.

FLYNN GOING EAST.

WOULD CHALLENGE LANGFORD.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, April 23.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Jim Flynn, who has fought many gruelling contests on the Coast, was a visitor in Chicago today for a few hours. He came from Los Angeles where he has been living since he was a child, although he was born in Hoboken, N. J. This is his first trip back East since he was taken from there by his parents.

Flynn departed from Chicago at 2:30 o'clock on the eighteen-hour-flyer for New York. He is going there with the intention of meeting the winner of the Sam Langford-Stanley Ketchel contest which takes place in the East April 27. Even if he does not secure any bouts he will stay there for some time and then start back to the Coast in time to see the Jack Johnson-Jeffries battle.

Flynn had planned to remain in Chicago several days, but the cold weather was not agreeable. He is a husky fellow and strong-looking. He is about five feet ten inches tall and has a short reach which accounts for all of the infighting he does. He recently fought Johnson and give him a hard battle, although the champion stopped him.

RING NOTES.

Owen Moran, who is to meet Tommy McCarthy next Monday night at San Francisco will be seen in Los Angeles if he is successful in the coming bout. He is anxious to appear before Tom McCarey's club, and Tiv Kreling, who is looking after the managerial part, says he will be glad to have Moran meet Memsic, Powell or any other lightweight which McCarey would furnish.

Kid McClung, who made such a hit at McCarey's pavilion two years ago, is back in town and would like to get on with the winner of the Bloom-Rogers contest or any other 138 to 140-pound boy in town.

Lew Powell, who defeated George Memsic in their fifteen-round bout at Oakland recently, is planning an invasion of the Atlantic Coast, but may remain in California long enough to take on George Memsic for twenty-five rounds at Vernon arena in May, if the match can be arranged.

Jack Burns and his manager, Doc Gene Jeffery, are still complaining of the raw deal they received in the Barry contest. They have asked for another battle with Barry, but it is not probable that the Chicago heavyweight would care to take any more risks with Burns, who showed himself to have improved greatly since he last was seen in Los Angeles.

Tommy McCarthy, the "brick-top" fighter of San Francisco, has at last been matched with Owen Moran, and should he win, he will be a great card in the lightweight division. McCarthy has been making good in all his fights up north, and will be a contender for the honors if he should succeed in landing a knockout punch to the little Englishman.

Johnny Murphy, the northern lightweight, who died in New Mexico last week, will be buried in San Francisco Monday afternoon.

Boxing Bouts Upheld.

MILWAUKEE, April 23.—Boxing contests conducted in Milwaukee are not in violation of the State law prohibiting prize fights, according to a decision given by Judge Alvin C. Brazes in the Municipal Court. The court held that boxing bouts, where no decisions were given, no purses awarded, no championship at stake and no belt awarded, could not be termed prize fights.

Boxer Found Dead.

BOSTON, April 22.—Max Lundy, a boxer, who sparred six rounds with Joe O'Brien of Cambridge at Brockton last night, was found dead in bed at his home in Roxbury today. The body was sent to the morgue for examination.

An order has been sent out to steamboat inspectors by the United States Inspector General at Washington stating that the law prohibiting the transportation of motor vehicles on ferries, unless the lights are extinguished, will be strictly enforced this season.

Frank Connelly, champion bantamweight, and Danny Webster, on the right, who are to fight ten rounds Thursday night at Naud Junction.

LOCAL ANGLERS CATCH LIMITS.

SPORT ON SESPE FURNISHES TROUT LIMITS.

Flanigan and Weil Secure Legal Allowance When Others Fail—Go Into Upper Reaches of Streams While Majority Cast Lines Into Lower Waters Where Fish Are Wary.

One of the best trout strings taken this month was pulled from the upper waters of the Sespe last week by D. W. Flanigan and S. D. Weil. Two limits of good fish were secured before the anglers returned to Los Angeles.

Owing to the extremely low water unusually favorable fishing conditions prevail at present in the Sespe, according to Flanigan and Weil. Instead of entering the smaller tributaries of the river as during other seasons, the trout this year appear to have gone straight on into the upper waters of the main stream.

Ordinarily the trout, going upstream during the weeks of the spawning season, turn aside whenever the tributaries present attractive spawning conditions. This year the low water has in many instances shut the branch streams away from the main bed of the Sespe entirely, necessitating the continuation of the trip upward. With water low, fishermen plenty and food scarce, the rush to the head waters has been accentuated.

Many fishermen were met along the lower Sespe fishing grounds, but nearly all reported having bad poor luck. Flanigan and Weil went further up the river than the others and found good sport. One morning the limit was taken before 9 o'clock, there being twenty-eight fish a foot or more in length in the two creels. The average of the entire catch was large.

The fish seemed hungry and rose well. All trout taken were caught with a fly.

Starting in from Fillmore, the two fishermen covered more than eighteen miles along the course of the Sespe before the best fishing was struck. In places the going was exceedingly rough and difficult, both sportsmen agreeing that a better way to reach the good grounds would be to start in from Nordhoff.

The water was found to be lower for this time of the season than in any year since the dry three winters of about a decade ago, and something like 30 deg. warmer than last year. In some places where during ordinary years the river at this time is hardly fordable, the men could cross without wetting their knees. The big trout holes were not particularly affected, but except in the upper waters the fish were very wary. Big fellows could be seen in the holes on the lower reaches, but would not be tempted from safety with any kind of tackle.

A Sport Rebuked.

Mr. Herbert Spencer one time put very neatly the distinction between sport as an amusement and as an occupation. Dropping in at his club, he met a young friend, who invited him to play a game of billiards. The philosopher led off and left the balls in a good position for his opponent, who dexterously ran out, not allowing his companion another shot. Then the young expert naturally looked at the philosopher for the customary compliment, but the loser of the game said, very seriously, after depositing his cue in the rack: "Sir, a certain proficiency in such a sport as this is a sign of a good education of the eye, the nerve, the hand; but the mastership of billiards which you have exhibited could have been asquired only by an ill-spent youth.—[The Spectator.

CARDINAL TEAM AFTER RECORD.

STANFORD RELAY QUARTETTE IS EXCEPTIONALLY FAST.

Moulton's Favorites Will Make Desperate Attempt to Lower American Four-Man Mark in Carnival at Berkeley Next Saturday—Scott Wants Pole Vault Record.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, April 22.—Stanford is to be represented in the relay carnival at Berkeley next Saturday by the fastest four-man relay team that has ever been developed in the West. Wyman, Stolz, Carter and Coleman, who will form the team, are southern men, and it would be almost impossible to collect a faster quartette anywhere on the Coast. The team will make a strenuous effort to annex the American intercollegiate record for the mile course.

In the intercollegiate meet, Wyman, Stolz and Carter, with C. C. Taylor, of Selma, established a new Coast record of 3m. 24 2-5s. Coleman is considerably faster than Taylor, who ran his lap in much slower time than any of the other three men, although the average time was 51s. With Coleman, who is able to do 51s. or better, it is expected that the team will come close to 3m. 20s. However, as each man would have to cover his lap in 50s. in order to reach his mark, it is not probable that the feat will be accomplished.

In 1898 a four-man team composed of B. J. Wefers, Max Long, T. E. Burke, and H. S. Lyons, reached 3m. 21 2-5s., which stands as the best American record. The national intercollegiate mark is not as good as this and the Cardinal men have an excellent chance to make a killing.

Coleman and Carter were members of the Los Angeles High School track team two years ago. Wyman is the best quarter-miler that has ever attended the Coast universities. He attended high school at Santa Barbara. Stolz "prepped" at Redlands.

Capt. Scott, and possibly S. H. Bellah, the pole vaulters, also are to participate in the meet at the University of California. Scott will make an effort to break the world's record for the vault, which is 12ft. 9¾in. and is held by Dray of Yale. Scott has cleared 12ft. 6¼in.

Beeswax makes a good substitute for enamel on rims. After heating the rims with a blowtorch, it can easily be applied. It will spread easily over the rusted surfaces.

Beauty Is More Than Paint Deep

So bring an expert with you to see the Hudson. There is no question about the looks of the Hudson. It speaks for itself, but if you are going to invest your money in a motor car, you owe it to yourself to go deeper than looks—and that is why we invite you, when making an examination of the Hudson, to have with you some one who is well posted on motor car construction.

You will find there is not a mechanical feature of the Hudson that has not been proven out thoroughly in scores of successful cars. They are not new features, but they are NEW in a car at the Hudson price. For instance:

The French Renault type of motor has been found satisfactory wherever used. The selective sliding gear type of transmission has been adopted on practically all high-grade cars. The semi-floating type of rear axle found on the Hudson has been proven out on many of the best cars made, both in America and abroad.

Three-quarter elliptic rear springs are found on no other car at the price. Roominess is usually the last thing to be looked for in a low-priced car. It is found to an unusual degree in the Hudson. It is a Hudson feature.

The Hudson is refined—by that we mean that more attention has been paid to things, little in themselves, but contributing materially to the owner's comfort and satisfactoin, than in any other car at the price.

And so it is all through this unusual car—nothing experimental, nothing untried—practically nothing new but the price.

NEW RUBBER FROM INDIA.

Price of Commodity Lowers With Production.

Stable Foundation for Big Uplift of Trade.

Automobile Trucks a Great Factor in Demand.

London seems from this distance to have gone mad over rubber, and some writers have characterized the enormous buying of shares in rubber companies as another South Sea bubble. Just what has caused the rubber boom is explained by F. W. Dunbar, who is vice-president of the New York Commercial Company, which is one of the largest importers of and dealers in crude rubber in this country or in Europe.

Dunbar has just returned from London, whither he went for the purpose of looking into conditions for his own information and guidance.

"The keynote of the situation in London," said Dunbar, "is the fact that a rubber planter in Ceylon is able to deliver his product in London or in New York, all costs and charges paid, for one shilling or 25 cents a pound, and sell it for $2.50 to $2.75.

"From March, 1908, to March, 1910, the price of crude rubber advanced more than 250 per cent. To be nearer exact, the price has gone up in two years from 80 or 90 cents a pound to $2.75. This is due to the fact that the uses for crude rubber have become much more varied within the last few years. It is entering into the manufacture of almost every necessity. Two or three years ago it was estimated that the total production of the world approximated 60,000 tons. Today it is nearly 80,000 tons.

AUTO BIG FACTOR.

"What has been the greatest factor in consumption is the automobile, the motor bus and the heavy auto truck. It is estimated that the ordinary automobile business will not increase very considerably from now on, but the truck business will increase to such an extent that horses will almost disappear from the streets. In London, where the Strand used to be a congested thoroughfare, with horse omnibuses, cabs and carts moving slowly and stopping at every cross-street, the traffic now goes by at a smart pace. There is more of it than ever, but it is composed mostly of motor buses, private automobiles and taxicabs, and even the first keep up a pace of about eight miles an hour. The horse has almost gone from that part of London.

"Then in some parts of the city you will see a sort of steam truck, which has really a motor engine, drawing two or three loaded vans. The trucks each have from eight to sixteen tires, and it is said that one of these tires contains seventeen pounds of crude rubber. The price of automobile tires is not so high as it was three years ago, owing not only to competition but to more scientific methods of tire manufacturing, but it is assured that under present conditions the price of tires in another three years will exceed what it was three years ago.

BRAZIL STARTED IT.

"Up to about ten years ago the foundation of rubber manufacturing, which is Brazilian rubber, had no competitor. This rubber grows wild in Brazil, and is termed wild rubber by the trade because no modern methods were employed in growing or producing it. Through the way the British government has of finding out what its colonies can best produce there has during these ten years been brought into the market from the east another rubber known as Ceylon rubber, the first real competitor the Brazilian product ever had.

"The Island of Ceylon so far as climate is concerned is said to be almost the same as the rubber-producing portion of Brazil. As far back as 1876 the British government began experimenting in Ceylon with Brazilian rubber, seed, plants and trees being imported and put into the ground on the island. For years there seemed to be no special results obtained and, no great interest was taken in the experiment until some time in the '90s, when some 20,000,000 trees were planted in Ceylon and the Malay Peninsula. These began to show results in about 1897, when a few hundred pounds of rubber from Ceylon was offered in the markets of London and New York.

NEW INDUSTRY.

"This excited some interest, but the manufacturers who experimented with it concluded that it had no special value, so that it did not attract any earnest attention. But meanwhile, as the rubber was actually sold, the planters continued putting in trees as fast as possible. The result was that in 1905 something like 500 tons of rubber was produced and sold profitably. Ever since then the quantity has continued to grow very rapidly. From 1905 on, this rubber excited so much attention that companies were formed, both native and English. When the financial crisis of 1907 came along, these were rapidly growing in number. The production was increasing, but owing to the state of finances, much inquiry was made as to the cost of producing the rubber.

"Then as the Brazilian product had declined in price from $1.25 to 65 cents and the Ceylon rubber had not won out in popularity, the latter declined faster than Para rubber. The result of this and the investigations showed that the Ceylonese planters could deliver rubber in London or in New York at a cost of not over a shilling, or a quarter, a pound.

LOWERED THE PRICE.

"When this was demonstrated, confidence in rubber reawakened and was established, and on the return of the price of rubber to above $1 a pound, the Ceylon product kept pace with the Brazilian. In 1908 a boom in rubber was started, much to the surprise of the entire trade, and while there may not be an actual shortage in crude rubber any year, still the production and the consumption are so nearly the same that it is a question how each manufacturer can supply himself. This naturally is a great factor in determining present prices. For a long time there was a belief that speculation was behind the market, but time has demonstrated that this was not the case, and that the old law of supply and demand is the cause of the prices of today.

"For the last five years the entire East has been devoting itself to the formation of rubber companies, either buying out plantations or companies that were in operaiton or starting new companies for planting rubber. At the present time the company proposition, so far as Ceylon and the Malay Peninsula are concerned, is practically closed because there are probably very few possibilities either of buying existing plantations or finding ground for new ones. The other rubber producing localities of the world are being looked over very carefully. Nevertheless it should be remembered that the great success in Ceylon is largely due to the fact that the companies there are under English laws and the supervision of the companies themselves and of the plantations is in the hands of Englishmen.

SOLID FOUNDATIONS.

"That in such a great development of the kind many irresponsible companies have sprung up is but natural. But it is safe to assume that of the companies established in Ceylon or the Malay Peninsula the greater proportion have solid foundations and there are good reasons for their shares bringing the prices they do in London. Statistics are carefully kept of all the companies, giving their acreage, the number of trees planted, their dates of planting and the actual production of rubber each year. This is easy to follow. They begin tapping trees when they are five years old, keeping up the process regularly until the seventh year, the tree reaches its maximum and can be counted upon for a regular yield from that time on. Information regarding any of these companies is easily obtained. Statistics are being published by several responsible people in London and one may take the figures and work out what results may be expected from year to year.

"Looking over the statistics in a general way it will be noticed that the largest planting took place in 1904, 1905 and 1906. Therefore a maximum crop will probably be obtained about 1913. Ceylon and the Malay Peninsula produced last year about 2700 tons. It is a fairly sure estimate that they will produce 8000 tons in 1910, and a 40 per cent. increase yearly is practically assured. In 1915 and 1916 the crop will approximate 60,000 tons, which at today's prices would bring $400,000,000.

"A great many articles have been printed in the newspapers to the effect that the rubber boom, so-called, is a wildcat speculation—a sort of South Sea bubble—that must sooner or later result disastrously. As a matter of fact almost all of these companies have a foundation of actually yielding trees, while each year more than double the present number will come into bearing. In that respect rubber is not like a mine, which is bound to fail at some time or other, while rubber trees once yielding will always bear, and so far there is no sign of any pest or pestilence which may destroy them.

"Here are some facts that bear out the yielding possibilities I have referred to. There is one company that has a capital of £150,000 divided into shares of two shillings fully paid. In 1906 its production of rubber was 91,700 pounds. In 1907 it was 224,778 pounds, and in 1908 it was 350,688 pounds. When they made their first estimate in 1909 they figured on 400,000 pounds. Later this estimate was revised to 470,000 pounds. The actual crop turned out to be 516,222 pounds. Now I saw it computed that if the company were to sell its estimated output for 1911 at only nine shillings a pound it would net more than the total capital of the company. It will occasion no surprise to mention that this company's shares are selling in the London market at 32 shillings, sixteen times their par value.

WEALTHY CONCERNS.

"Then there is another company which has 2,750,000 trees under cultivation. Its shares have a par value of £1 each, but they are selling for about £12. The estimated yields of its plantations are: For 1910, 750,000 pounds; 1911, 1,500,000 pounds; 1912, 2,500,000 pounds, and 1913, 4,000,000 pounds. This last yield at $3 a pound would produce four times the original capital of the company.

"Whether present prices of crude rubber will hold for any length of time nobody knows. It is a fact that sooner or later as the production of Ceylon rubber increases it must affect the prices, but fluctuations in prices will not affect the sound companies. Even lower prices these Ceylon companies would not feel appreciably, lower prices being overcome by increased production.

"It is a mistaken idea to look upon the crude rubber industry as one that may collapse simply because it has the foundation of being able to produce a needed commodity at 25 cents a pound, which production, it is reasonably assured, cannot be affected in any way such as a failure of crops. In fact, so far as is known there is nothing that would affect rubber trees so they would not produce except a wholesale catastrophe like an earthquake. At the same time, during movements of this kind, sound propositions are always accompanied by unreliable ones, and it is up to the public, when reliable information is so easily obtainable, to determine which to avoid."—[New York Sun.

TWO HURT IN SLIDING.

College Baseball Players Receive Injuries to Ankles in Base Running.

Two college baseball players have been badly injured this spring while in the act of sliding to base, one at Harvard and one at Yale. This sort of injury has been frequent on the diamond in recent years. A few years ago George Van Haltren, then of the Giants, broke his leg while sliding for second base on the old Pittsburgh grounds. Lefty Davis broke his leg the same way on the same grounds and Mike Donlin fractured a leg while making a slide on the Cincinnati grounds. Another player who broke a leg sliding was Otis Clymer.

As a matter of fact the second cushion has been prominent as a station at which accidents have occurred. There have been innumerable spikings at that position, most of them accidental, but a few intentional, and other accidents resulting in the incapacitating of a player for a considerable length of time. Year before last Larry Doyle was stepped on by John Hummel while the latter was trying to reach second base at the Polo Grounds, and Larry was out of it for the rest of the season. In a previous season Tim Donahue of the Chicago Nationals was severely spiked by Jack Warner while the latter was making a slide. Harry Steinfeldt and Napoleon Lajoie had a collision at second base. Everybody thought for a moment that Steinfeldt had been killed, but he soon recovered. Lajoie, however, as a result of the accident, developed water on the knee and was out of the game for a considerable length of time. Hal Chase has been spiked on the hand a couple of times sliding to second.

THE WIDOW WISE

Verses by Paul West

Drawing by Prince Pierre Troubetzkoy

1—The Widow Wise was popular with all the girls she knew.
They'd bring their troubles all to her for admonition true.
Sweet Julia Deane, for instance, told the Widow of her woes
When she began to fear that "he" would never dare propose.

2—"That's just my case," said other girls. "Ours, too!" came echoes sad.
The Widow smiled—"You darling girls, it really is too bad!
But wait—I know a remedy." The girls' hearts gave a bound.
"I'll give a little dinner and invite the young men 'round.

3—"As hostess and as chaperon I'll manage, you shall see,
To dissipate their bashfulness as nicely as can be.
By covert hints and artful tact my very best I'll do
To make each laggard swain at once declare his love for you."

4—The dinner came. The boys were shy; but in a little while
The clever Widow drew them out with many a practised wile.
She led the talk on marriage, and the girls with little sighs
Thought "What a dear, sweet creature is our friend the Widow Wise!"

5—When gathered in the drawing room "Now, girls," the Widow said,
"I've brought them to the popping point, and you can go ahead.
Seek out the most romantic spots—you'll conquer, never fear—
And when they have proposed at last, my dears, you'll find me here!"

6—Alone, the Widow's tears fell fast. "Alas, alack!" sobbed she;
"For others I can find their mates, but not a mate for me!"
She heard a sound, she glanced around, and there, upon his knees,
Was Julia Deane's adored young man, who begged, "Come wed me, please!"

7—She bade him go, but, Oh, in turn the other boys all came,
Declaring that the Widow Wise had set their hearts aflame
In vain she called them silly youths, and ordered them "Avaunt!"
In chorus sentimental they declared, "'Tis you we want!"

8—The girls, expectant, waited long, each for her chosen youth;
Then, doubting, sought the drawing room and learned the awful truth.
They called the Widow "Cat!" and "Wretch!" with anger in their eyes.
"Well, isn't that ingratitude!" exclaimed the Widow Wise.

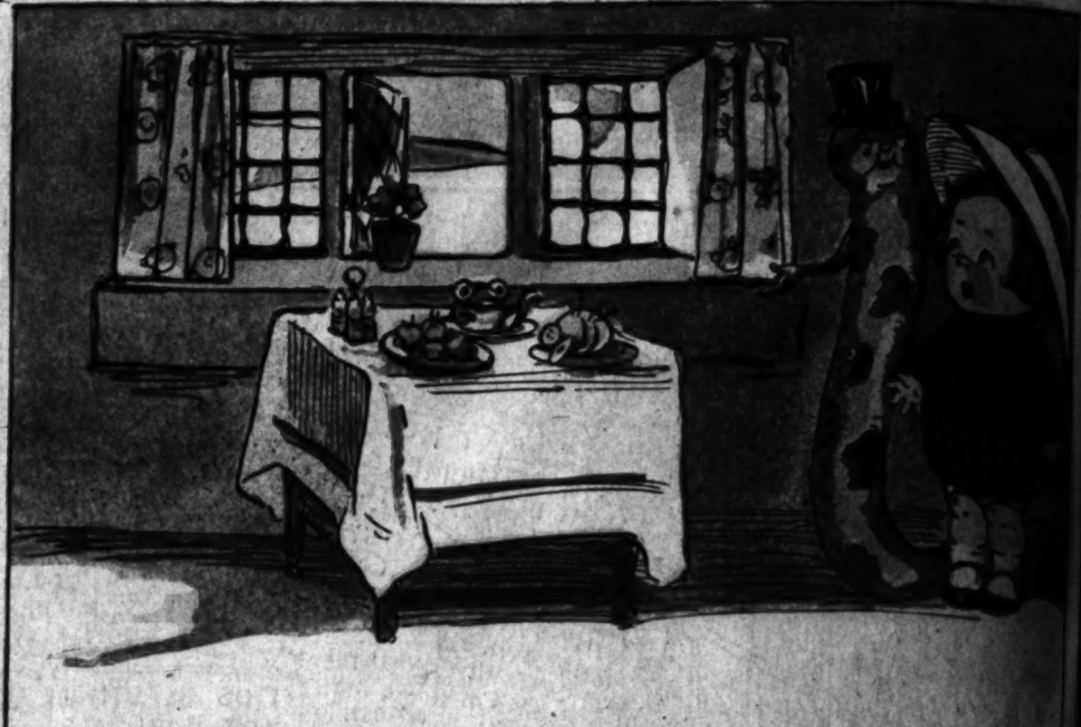
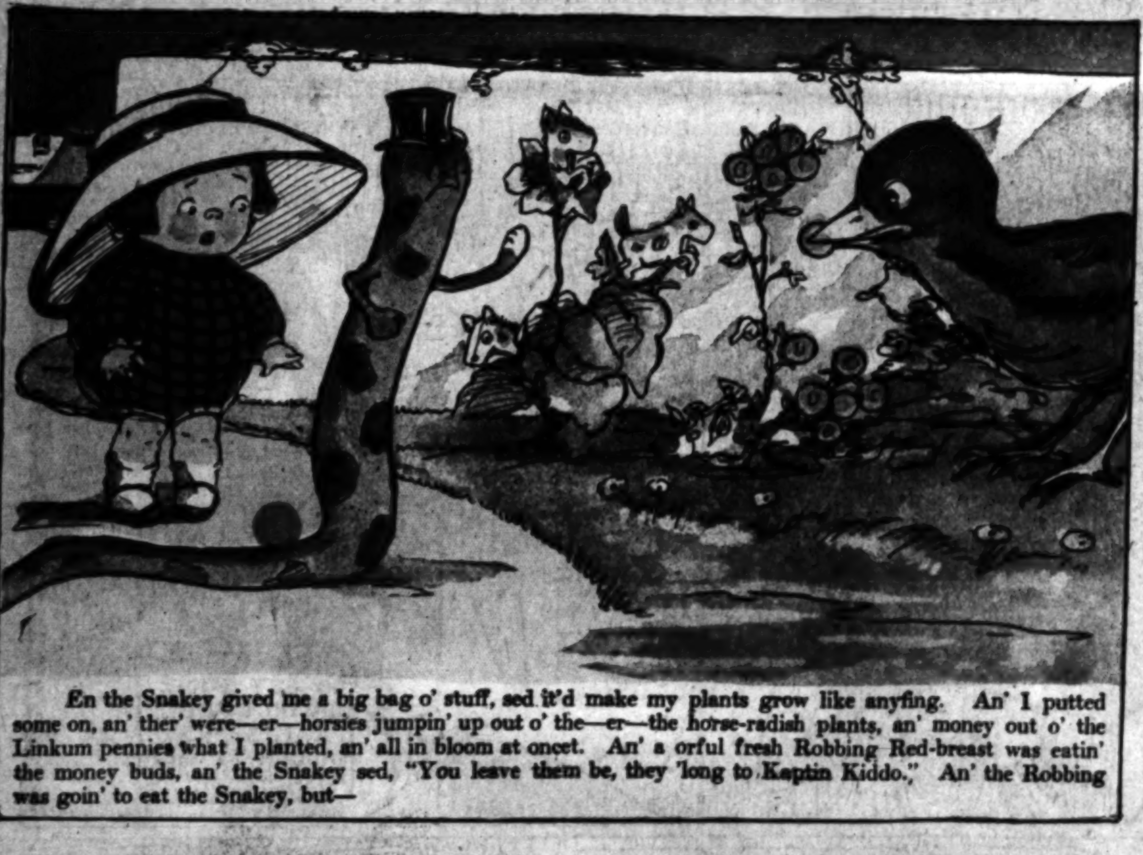
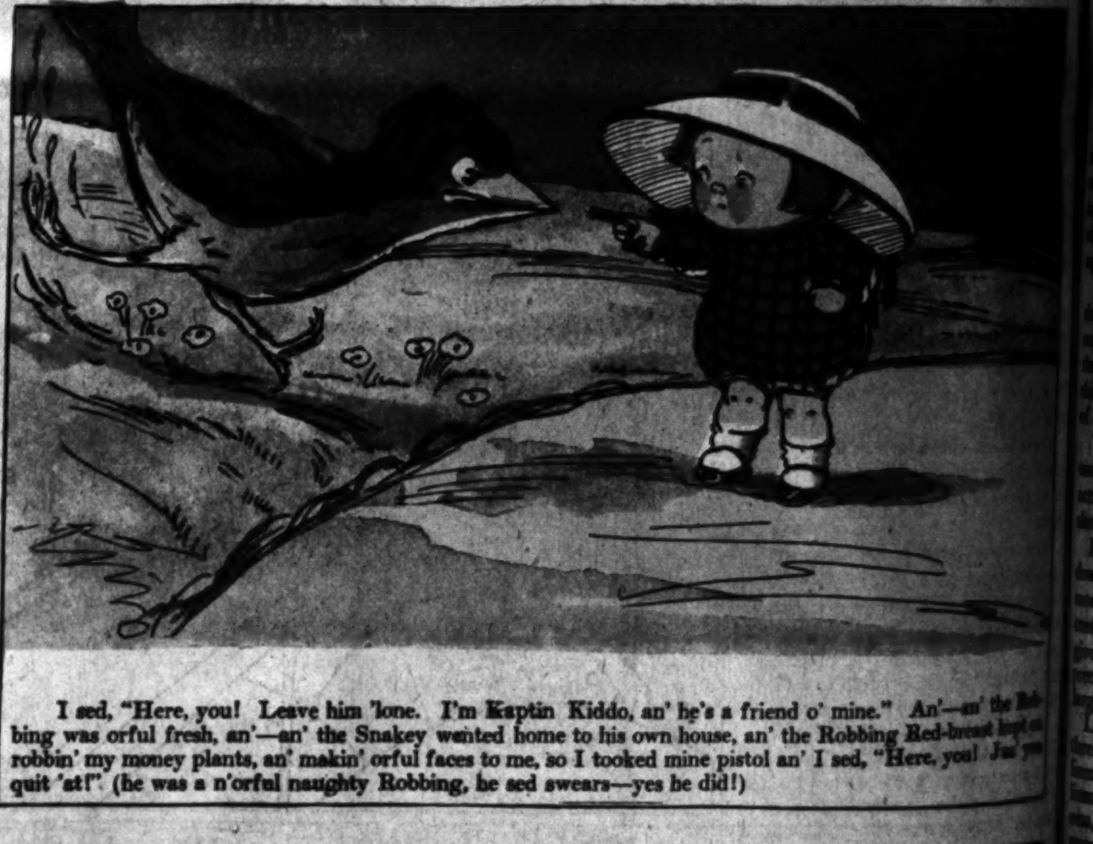
I'se awful busy now-a-days plantin' a garding full o' seeds. I planted horse-radish, to grow horsies wif, an' egg plants fer eggs, an' lots o' fings. An' hat plants an' ring plants, an'—an'—er—an' money plants. An' I was diggin' to plant some Linkum pennies what I had in my—er—pocket, an' I digged a gr-r-eat big hole, an' somebuddy sed, "Hello, there Kaptin Kiddo!" An' ther' comed a big, fat, green Snakey, what lived in the garding.



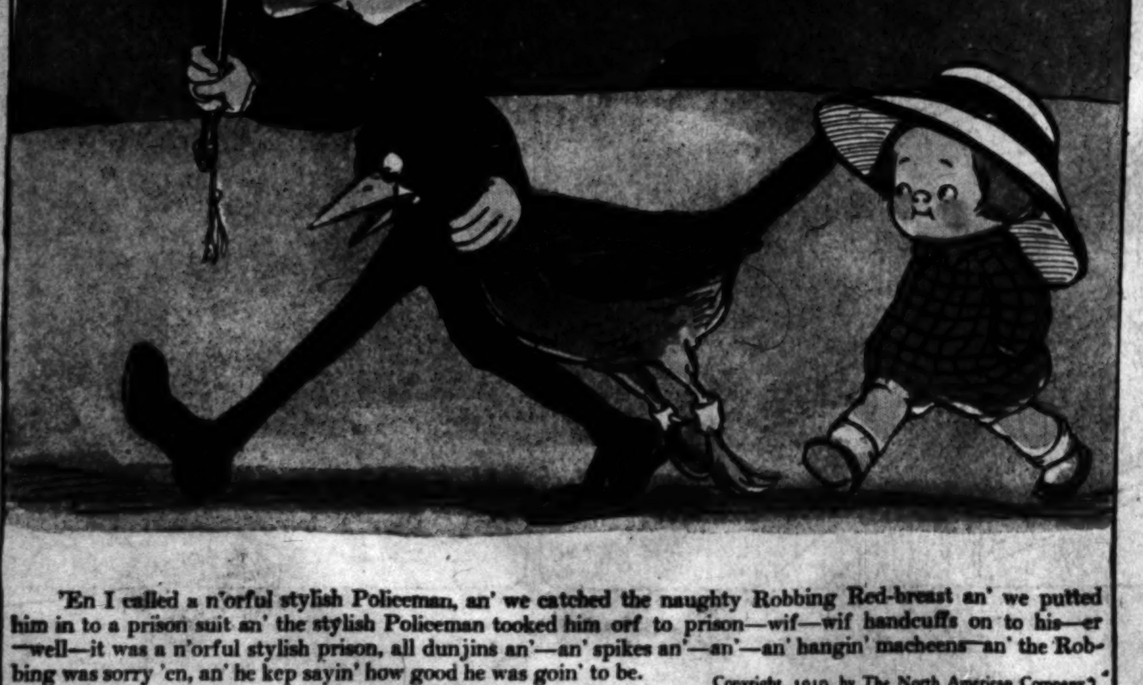
An' I wented to spend the day wif the Snakey, an' he had a high hat, an' a buful golding palace down the', an' I sed I had eated my lunching 'fore I comed. An' the Snakey had stuffed horse flies, an' stewed hop-toads, an'—an' pickled cock-roaches for his lunching, an' he wanted to give me some o' them, too, but I sed, "No, fank you, Mr. Snakey, I have eated my lunching allready."



En the Snakey gived me a big bag o' stuff, sed it'd make my plants grow like anyfing. An' I putted some on, an' ther' were—er—horsies jumpin' up out o' the—er—the horse-radish plants, an' money out o' the Linkum pennies what I planted, an' all in bloom at oncet. An' a orful fresh Robbing Red-breast was eatin' the money buds, an' the Snakey sed, "You leave them be, they 'long to Kaptin Kiddo." An' the Robbing was goin' to eat the Snakey, but—

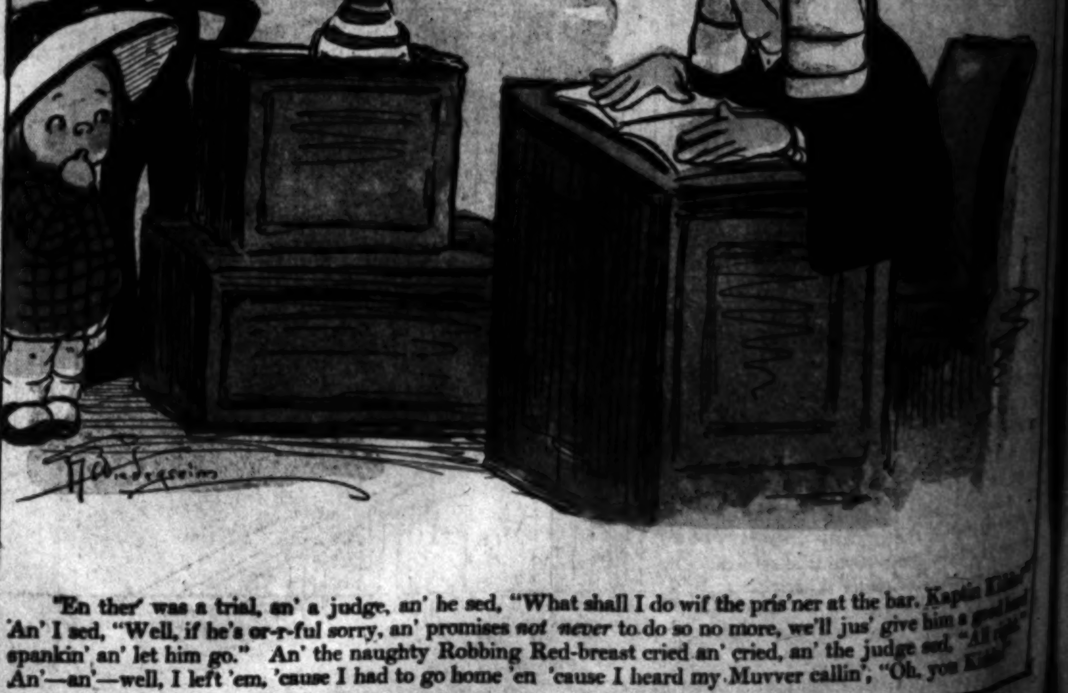


I sed, "Here, you! Leave him 'lone. I'm Kaptin Kiddo, an' he's a friend o' mine." An'—an' the Robbing was orful fresh, an'—an' the Snakey wented home to his own house, an' the Robbing Red-breast kept on robbin' my money plants, an' makin' orful faces to me, so I tooked mine pistol an' I sed, "Here, you! Jus' you quit 'at!" (he was a n'orful naughty Robbing, he sed swears—yes he did!)



'En I called a n'orful stylish Policeman, an' we catched the naughty Robbing Red-breast an' we putted him in to a prison suit an' the stylish Policeman tooked him orf to prison—wif—wif handcuffs on to his—er—well—it was a n'orful stylish prison, all dunjins an'—an' spikes an'—an'—an' hangin' macheens—an' the Robbing was sorry 'en, an' he kep sayin' how good he was goin' to be.

(Copyright, 1910, by The North American Company.)



'En ther' was a trial, an' a judge, an' he sed, "What shall I do wif the pris'ner at the bar, Kaptin Kiddo?" 'An' I sed, "Well, if he's or-r-ful sorry, an' promises not never to do so no more, we'll jus' give him a good hard spankin' an' let him go." An' the naughty Robbing Red-breast cried an' cried, an' the judge sed, "All right." An'—an'—well, I left 'em, 'cause I had to go home 'en 'cause I heard my Muvver callin', "Oh, you Kiddo."

WHEN I can find a timely text for a familiar talk to head "Our Page" in a letter from a constituent, I gladly seize upon it. It is my office and my privilege to find out what will help my fellow-housemothers and to minister to their wants when I can. To this end I encourage readers to write freely of perplexities and achievements, of likes and dislikes, and to speak out frankly—but always kindly—when they read anything in the Exchange of which they do not approve or concerning which they would like to be more fully informed.

So when I had read the following neat little note from a woman who uses a typewriter—much to my comfort—and betrays her business capacity by saying what she has in her mind, and then closing the epistle, as she began it, without a useless word, I marked it, "Use soon!" and laid it atop of the pile of papers intended for this week's consideration:

> Your menus call for salads two or three times a week. Please tell us if you think them economical, and if you do, give recipes for some that are both cheap and good. We need green foods in the early spring. JANET B. (Pittsburg, Pa.).

Before emulating my straightforward correspondent and driving directly at the main subject in hand, let me tell of something I saw the other day in the modest home of a suburbanite. Yet I can hardly call hers a suburban home. It stands within a fringe of houses, such as one sees on the outskirts of every large city. I am disposed to speak of them as the "interlining," dividing town from village; one cannot determine exactly where one begins and the other ends. Real estate men advertise these homes as "enjoying all the advantages of the country and the privileges of the city." Sometimes one puts a "dis" before one of the commendatory words.

AN IMPROVISED GARDEN

My friend is a young housekeeper whose husband "commutes." They occupy the whole of an old-fashioned house. It was a small farmhouse forty years ago. Now it is a "cottage with all the modern improvements." One of the old-time conveniences is a kitchen with two sunny windows. If they were in a two-hundred-a-month city "apartment" those windows would add $300 a year to the rent. Our ingenious housewife had fitted one of them up as a kitchen garden. Wide, low, shallow flower pots are set closely together and brimming and running over with lush greenery. Not ferns and hyacinths, but pot herbs, as useful as they are homely in the estimation of some readers. Watercress flourishes in a bed of pebbles and moss flooded with water. Mint has a spacious corner in which to dispread itself, and it has taken advantage of it. Thyme, parsley and a broad bed of chives fill all the rest of the window shelf that is not occupied by what my hostess displayed with especial pride, namely, a dozen heads of lettuce—not large, but comely, and just coming to perfection.

"They are the successors of half-grown plants we got from a market gardener last fall. He had more than his glass house would accommodate, so he gave us enough to fill that box and told us how to take care of them. They 'headed' in due time and were eaten. As fast as we took one up, we set another younger plant.

"We have had mint sauce all winter whenever we could afford roast (alleged) lamb. The parsley has done splendidly! I think it enjoys being thinned and clipped. I know the chives do. When I want a tablespoonful or two of minced chives to flavor salad or stew, I bring my scissors to the window and shred off as much as I want. It shoots up the faster for being cropped."

"And you have drawn upon this for winter salads?" I mused, regretfully. "What a pity you cannot make use of it the year round!"

"Oh, but we shall!" staring at me in surprise. "My garden will grow faster and more luxuriantly as the days lengthen and the sunshine is warmer. All I have to do is to replenish and enrich from time to time. The only difference in my care of the plants is that they will be in the open window, instead of being shut in from the fresh air except upon very mild days. We have no garden to speak of—only a scrap of paved court, which is in the shadow more than half the day. Even the grass will not thrive there. And since we must have our herbs for garnishing, seasoning and salads, my window kitchen garden has come to stay. And it is great fun to look after it!"

In obedience to one of the Exchange mottoes, I "pass it on"—this pretty story of the way the woman contrives to supply her table with things that are dear in the market except in midsummer. It is too late in the season for the flat-dweller to have a winter garden. But, when her neighbors to the right and left and opposite to her are adorning window shelves and sills with flowering plants, let her set in array her miniature garden of herbs, and insure, at least, a weekly salad of crisp, fresh leaves she cannot get at the greengrocer's at any price.

"Janet B." has said truly that we need green foods in the springtime. Bile has been generated by the comparatively sedentary habits of the winter. We all keep our houses too hot, and the devitalized air breeds what Shakespeare would name "choleric humors" in the healthiest of us. The sudden warmth of spring days, alternating with untimely frosts, add to the evils from which none are exempt. We diagnose them as "a touch of spring fever," and bear what we cannot relieve.

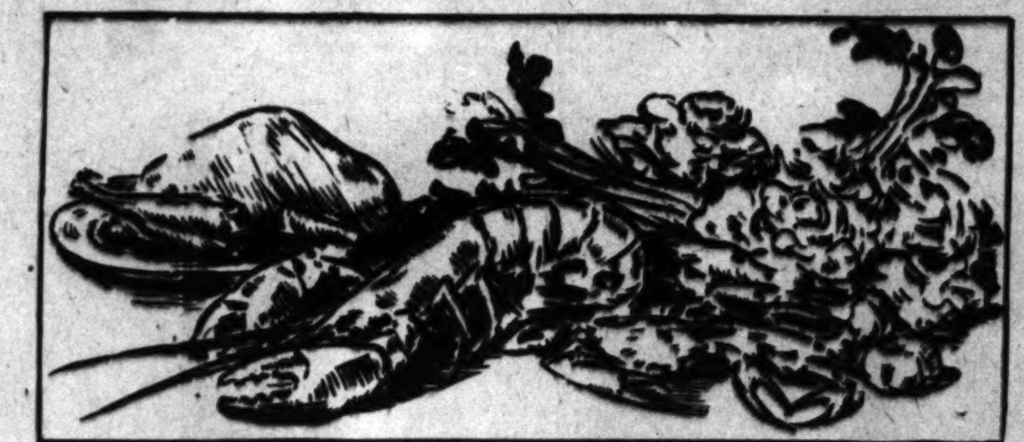
SALAD INSTEAD OF MEAT

Try what "green foods" will do to ward off the periodical malady and "let up" upon hot bread and tridaily "feeds" of meat.

Are salads economical? asks our Buffalo correspondent. When used in place of meat—yes! At this point I would draw the distinction sharply between what I call heavy and light salads. As I have explained repeatedly, salads in which chicken, turkey, lobster, crabmeat and other fish are chief ingredients should not have place in a course dinner or a family dinner that begins with soup, goes forward with hot meat and vegetables and winds up with sweets and coffee. The mission of the salad at such a meal is to stimulate the appetite for what is to follow. Mayonnaise dressing is utterly inappropriate here. The simpler the appetizer the better. Lettuce, cress, tomato, cucumber, endive romaine—any one of these, with a light French dressing, comes into play as an entree.

Which leads me to the admission that a mayonnaise properly compounded is not economical. A cupful of the best salad oil and the yolks of two eggs cost more than the body of the salad. One is reminded of a ball gown, the trimming of which is worth ten times as much as the material it garnishes. Nor are our chicken, lobster and egg salads in tune with the symphony of spring.

I shall, therefore, in the recipes herewith offered to "Jane B." and her congeners, avoid elaborate compositions, involving the outlay of more time and money than our average housemother can afford to devote to this branch of culinary operations. All the same, I crave leave to offer one or two dishes that will fill up acceptably the gaps in the Sunday night supper or summer luncheon set by the omission of meat from the family menu.



"When salad is not economical."

As, for instance:

Ellen's Potato Salad.

Rub through the colander or vegetable press enough boiled potatoes to make two cupfuls of mashed potato. Chop very fine one-third as much of the heart of a white cabbage as you have potato. Mix with this two small pickled onions, also chopped very fine—into almost invisible atoms. Mix all well together and set on ice while you get ready the dressing. Or, better yet, have the dressing made some hours before you prepare the other ingredients, that it may also be ice cold.

Dressing.

Beat a raw egg very light; blend with it a teaspoonful of powdered sugar, a tablespoonful of melted butter, half a teaspoonful of French mustard or a quarter spoonful of made English mustard, half a teaspoonful of celery salt and the same of paprika. When you have beaten all together, pour over them half a cupful of scalding vinegar and stir it in well. Use a silver fork for this work. Whip the mass up lightly from the bottom and set on the ice. Serve with crisp cresses laid about the base of the mound. Pass heated crackers and cheese with it.

Imitation Crab Salad.

Pound to a powder the yolk of a hard-boiled egg, and rub to a paste with a teaspoonful each of salt and powdered sugar and half a teaspoonful of French mustard. Work into this the juice of half a lemon and a teaspoonful of onion juice. This done, stir in a tablespoonful of salad oil with half a pound of dry old cheese, grated. Beat and toss with a silver fork until all are thoroughly incorporated. If you can get from the fishman the shells of half a dozen crabs and fill them with the "imitation," you will have a prettier dish and one that will (almost) cheat the eaters into the fancy that it is a crab salad.

Garnish with parsley, unless, indeed, you can get crab claws.

Mary's Potato Salad.

Boil six or eight large potatoes and a couple of red beets, and let them get perfectly cold. When you are ready to make the salad, cut the potatoes into dice and mince the beets very finely. Rub to an emulsion four tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, added drop by drop. Season when thick with celery salt and white pepper. Arrange the potato dice in a chilled bowl and pour the dressing over them, loosening gently with a silver fork to let it reach the lower stratum. Now mound into a cone. Mark upon this several triangles tapering toward the apex of the cone. Sprinkle one of these triangles thickly with the minced beets, another with very finely chopped chives and a third with the pounded yolk of a hard-boiled egg. Or leave out the egg and alternate the red and green until the cone is covered. Lay lettuce leaves about the base. Pass heated crackers with cheese with the salad.

Cauliflower Salad.

Boil a head of cauliflower and let it get cold. Cut apart the clusters and lay lightly upon lettuce leaves. Pour over all a good French dressing just before serving.

Make this dressing by rubbing together six tablespoonfuls of oil with two of lemon juice or vinegar, half a teaspoonful of sugar and the same of white pepper. Do this in a bowl which you have rubbed inside with a cut clove of garlic. If you prefer to omit the garlic, add a teaspoonful of minced chives to the dressing.

This is a good, safe recipe for French dressing to be used for any kind of salad.

Cucumber Salad With Sour Cream Dressing.

Beat a cupful of sour cream which has loppered—but not broken—until it is smooth, adding, after the first minute, a tablespoonful of powdered sugar and a half teaspoonful of lemon juice. Slice chilled cucumbers into iced water; leave them there until you are ready to serve. Drain well and pile upon a shallow chilled dish. Cover with the dressing. An excellent way of disposing of cream that has soured upon your hands. You will be ready to welcome the next mishap of this kind.

Lettuce and Cress Salad.

Select crisp leaves from the heart of lettuce that has lain in iced water for an hour. Shake off all the wet and lay the leaves within a chilled glass bowl. On these dispose clusters of fresh watercress which have also lain in cold water until needed. Just before the salad goes to table pour over it a very cold French dressing mixed with finely minced chives.

Pass heated crackers and cream cheese with it.

Lettuce and Tomato Aspic Salad.

Strain the liquor from a can of tomatoes through cheesecloth. Stir into it a teaspoonful of onion juice and a teaspoonful of sugar, with a saltspoonful each of salt and white pepper or of paprika. Bring to a quick boil, and pour over half a box of gelatine which has soaked three hours in a cup of cold water. Pour, when cooled, into a wet mould, or into cups, and set upon the ice to form.

In serving, turn out upon a chilled dish lined with lettuce leaves, or, if you prefer to form the aspic in cups, turn each upon a crisp leaf of lettuce upon a plate of its own. The "individual helps" are more elegant and keep shape better than when the aspic is formed in a large bowl.

Celery Aspic.

There is no more delicious salad than this. In saying this, I reiterate my thanks to the correspondent to whom we are indebted for the recipe. From the first appearance of it upon our table it has taken high rank in the list

THE HOUSEMOTHERS' EXCHANGE

MRS. C. H. (Belton, Ga.) asks for a recipe for making white fruit cake. It gives me pleasure to inclose two recipes, which I think she will pronounce excellent.

Pavini Cake.

One-half pound each of wheat flour, of rice flour and of stoned raisins. The raisins are cut into small pieces after they are stoned. One-quarter pound each of cleaned currants, of butter and of pulverized sugar; two ounces of sweet almonds; a little grated nutmeg; a pint of milk and an even teaspoonful of baking soda. Wash and clean the currants and dry them well. Stir the butter and sugar to a cream; blanch and chop the almonds. Warm the milk slightly and stir the soda into it. Mix all the ingredients together and beat faithfully. Butter a mould, fill it a little more than half full, and bake in a moderate oven from one and a half to two hours.

Economical White Fruit Cake.

One pound of flour; a quarter pound each of sugar and of butter; one-half pound of currants; one teaspoonful of soda; one-half pint of milk and the whites of four eggs. Cream butter and sugar; whip the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth and stir into the creamed butter and sugar; then the other ingredients, and when all are thoroughly mixed, the soda, dissolved in a little warm water. Beat for one minute up from the bottom with each stroke; pour into a buttered mould and bake in a moderate oven for an hour and a half.

These are the recipes of an excellent English cook. I am an English girl. Please let me have a recipe for the German liver pudding.

A. R. G. C. (Pittsburg, Pa.).

I hope you will see the recipe for German liver pudding published today. It answers your demand.

May I ask if there are no eggs in the Pavini cake? Does the soda raise the fruit, etc., sufficiently without other help? Please write to me as to this point. I observed that in the more "economical" recipe, you have the whites of four eggs, and fancied that the omission of them in the first formula might be a clerical blunder.

That Finishing School

Your article upon the finishing school for our daughters is so sorely needed that I cannot withhold a word of appreciation.

I stand with you upon views which you say are "pronounced and antiquated." I began training my children when they were babies, and I have never believed that neglect on the part of the mother may be atoned for by a coating of veneer slapped on when a child grows up.

I am almost alone in my opinions. Modesty forbids me to speak of the result with my two sons and one daughter, except to say that it is most gratifying to me.

One acquaintance said to me:

"To what finishing school did you send Lois? I'd like my daughter to acquire the same charm of manner and speech."

Laughingly I pointed to myself and said: "This is her finishing school."

She evidently thought I was jesting, for she answered: "Oh, well, if you do not care to tell I won't press you."

Wasn't that a commentary upon the general up-bringing of American children?

Excuse these personalities. I could not help thanking you for your words of wisdom.

ONE OLD-FASHIONED MOTHER (Buffalo, N. Y.).

And it is another (and one well satisfied with the result of her training) who writes these words. I hold and believe for certain that God gave me my children to be brought up by their parents, and not by hirelings, whose best work is done upon the contract system. Just as surely as there are no two leaves in the forest which are precisely alike, it is true that each child has its individuality, and that it must be dealt with in accordance with a just and loving appreciation of personal peculiarities and needs. Shall I cast my boy upon the weltering sea of other boys, 100 or 500 miles away from home and from my jealous watchfulness of influences that may warp him from the standard I have set up for him in my mind? The boarding school is a mill; well managed, perhaps. The machinery is perfect in its way. But it is machine—not handwork—that is turned out from it. My boy or my girl is no more to the teachers than hundreds of other young people. We shudder at hearing that the man we used to know as a respectable entity is, in hospital or almshouse, but "No. 9" or "No. 47." My children may be no brighter, sweeter or more sensitive than thousands of others. They are mine! And I am too proud and too fond to have them regarded as mere numerals anywhere.

Since, in the sight of Him who bestowed them upon me, I am responsible for them, body and soul, how dare I shirk the blessed and the solemn duty?

I thank you for letting me know that there is at least one other mother who is as obstinate in her obsolete whims as myself. And with you, I thank the Father of us all, Who never exiles us from His presence to be brought on our way by alien hands, that He has set the seal of approval upon the work done in His fear and, as we believe, by His command.

"Wherefore, comfort one another with these words."

Garden Lemons

I was not sure until I read the letter of an "Oklahoma Housemother" that the garden lemons, spoken of several times in the Exchange, are identical with what we once bought as "vine peaches," or "peach melons." Their only resemblance to lemons is in the color of the skins when ripe. Some of ours had smooth skins; some were slightly "netted." The flavor is somewhat flat and insipid, but they make very good sweet pickles. I made a pleasant sauce by boiling them with enough lemon just to make them pleasantly acid, adding a stick of whole cinnamon and a few whole cloves. I made a sauce for meats, of watermelon rind, in the same way.

I made fine preserves of the garden lemons by adding wild-grape juice. This supplied the needed acid and imparted an agreeable flavor.

I suppose some of our readers will sneer at a pet economy of mine that may, yet, interest others. I carefully save beef-drippings and the fat skimmed from soups and use it instead of butter in cake-making. Of course, there is a difference in fats. Some have almost a tallow-like hardness, and these would not be suitable for cake, while others have the grain and consistency of butter.

I happened upon this expedient when I had to make cake and found myself unexpectedly without butter. I had misgivings, but the result was so satisfactory that I have never used butter since in making cake, except when it is very cheap.

If you wish, I will tell you of other economies some time.

A. B. J. (Morris, Ill.).

Send them along! Economy is fashionable this year. Not from choice, but from necessity.

The idea of using clarified dripping for cake-making strikes me as singular. Does not the meat of which it is a by-product impart a taste to the cake and betray the substitute? If not, your discovery is worth knowing. My grocer informed me last week complacently that "Eggs have dropped 3 cents a dozen." Before I could more than look my gratification, he added sadly: "But butter has advanced 8 cents on the pound!"

That is the way the domestic pendulum swings for us in this year of our Lord 1910!

Liver Pudding

The next letter that lies under my hand was marked in red pencil, "Use soon!" last week. I cannot delay the publication further. The recipe has been called for twice within the week.

Seeing several requests for liver pudding, I will forward a recipe for a dish to which we give that name, and that is greatly liked by our family:

Early in the morning I put on some rather fat meat to boil—about a pound of coarse beef or veal. A couple of hours later I scald a pound of liver, pouring off the water in which the liver is parboiled. Then I run meat and liver through the chopper, with a large onion. Season well with salt and pepper, half a teaspoonful of mace, a bit of sage or thyme (or both, if you like). Now add the water in which the meat was boiled, and thicken all with coarse cornmeal until it will just drop from the spoon. Turn into a well-greased mould and steam three hours.

The first day serve hot, as it comes from the mould. The next, slice and heat in hot dripping.

Another dish that is hailed with delight by us is a "left-over."

To Use Cold Meat.

Run enough cold meat through the chopper to fill a coffee cup. Next, grind half as much dry bread and mix the two together. Now fry a large onion to a golden brown, chop fine and add to the other ingredients. Stir in enough cold water to make a thick paste. Flavor well with celery salt, pepper, sage and thyme. When all are blended, set back upon the stove in a frying-pan containing a little butter and brown slowly on both sides. Turn out upon a hot plate. It is good.

I should like to tell housemothers how to make molasses buns, barley stew without meat and Boston brown bread.

But my letter is getting too long, and I shall wait to hear from somebody who has tried and liked the liver pudding.

Mrs. H. C. C. (Los Angeles, Cal.).

We shall await impatiently the returns from your "output."

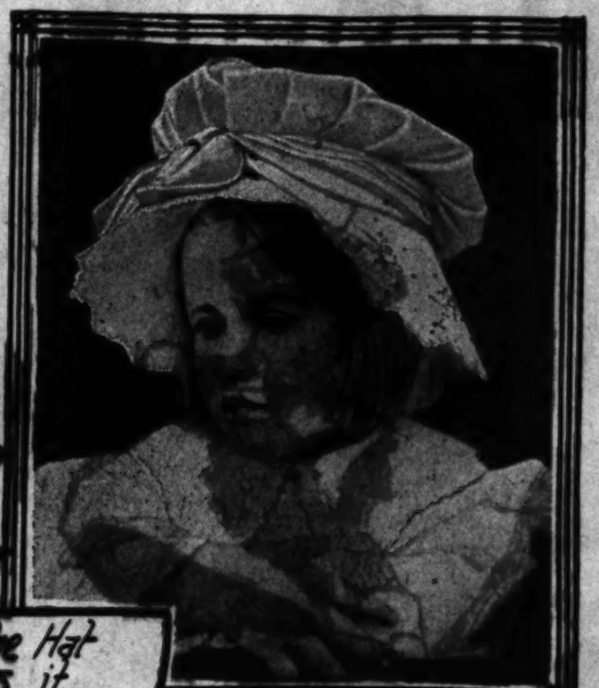
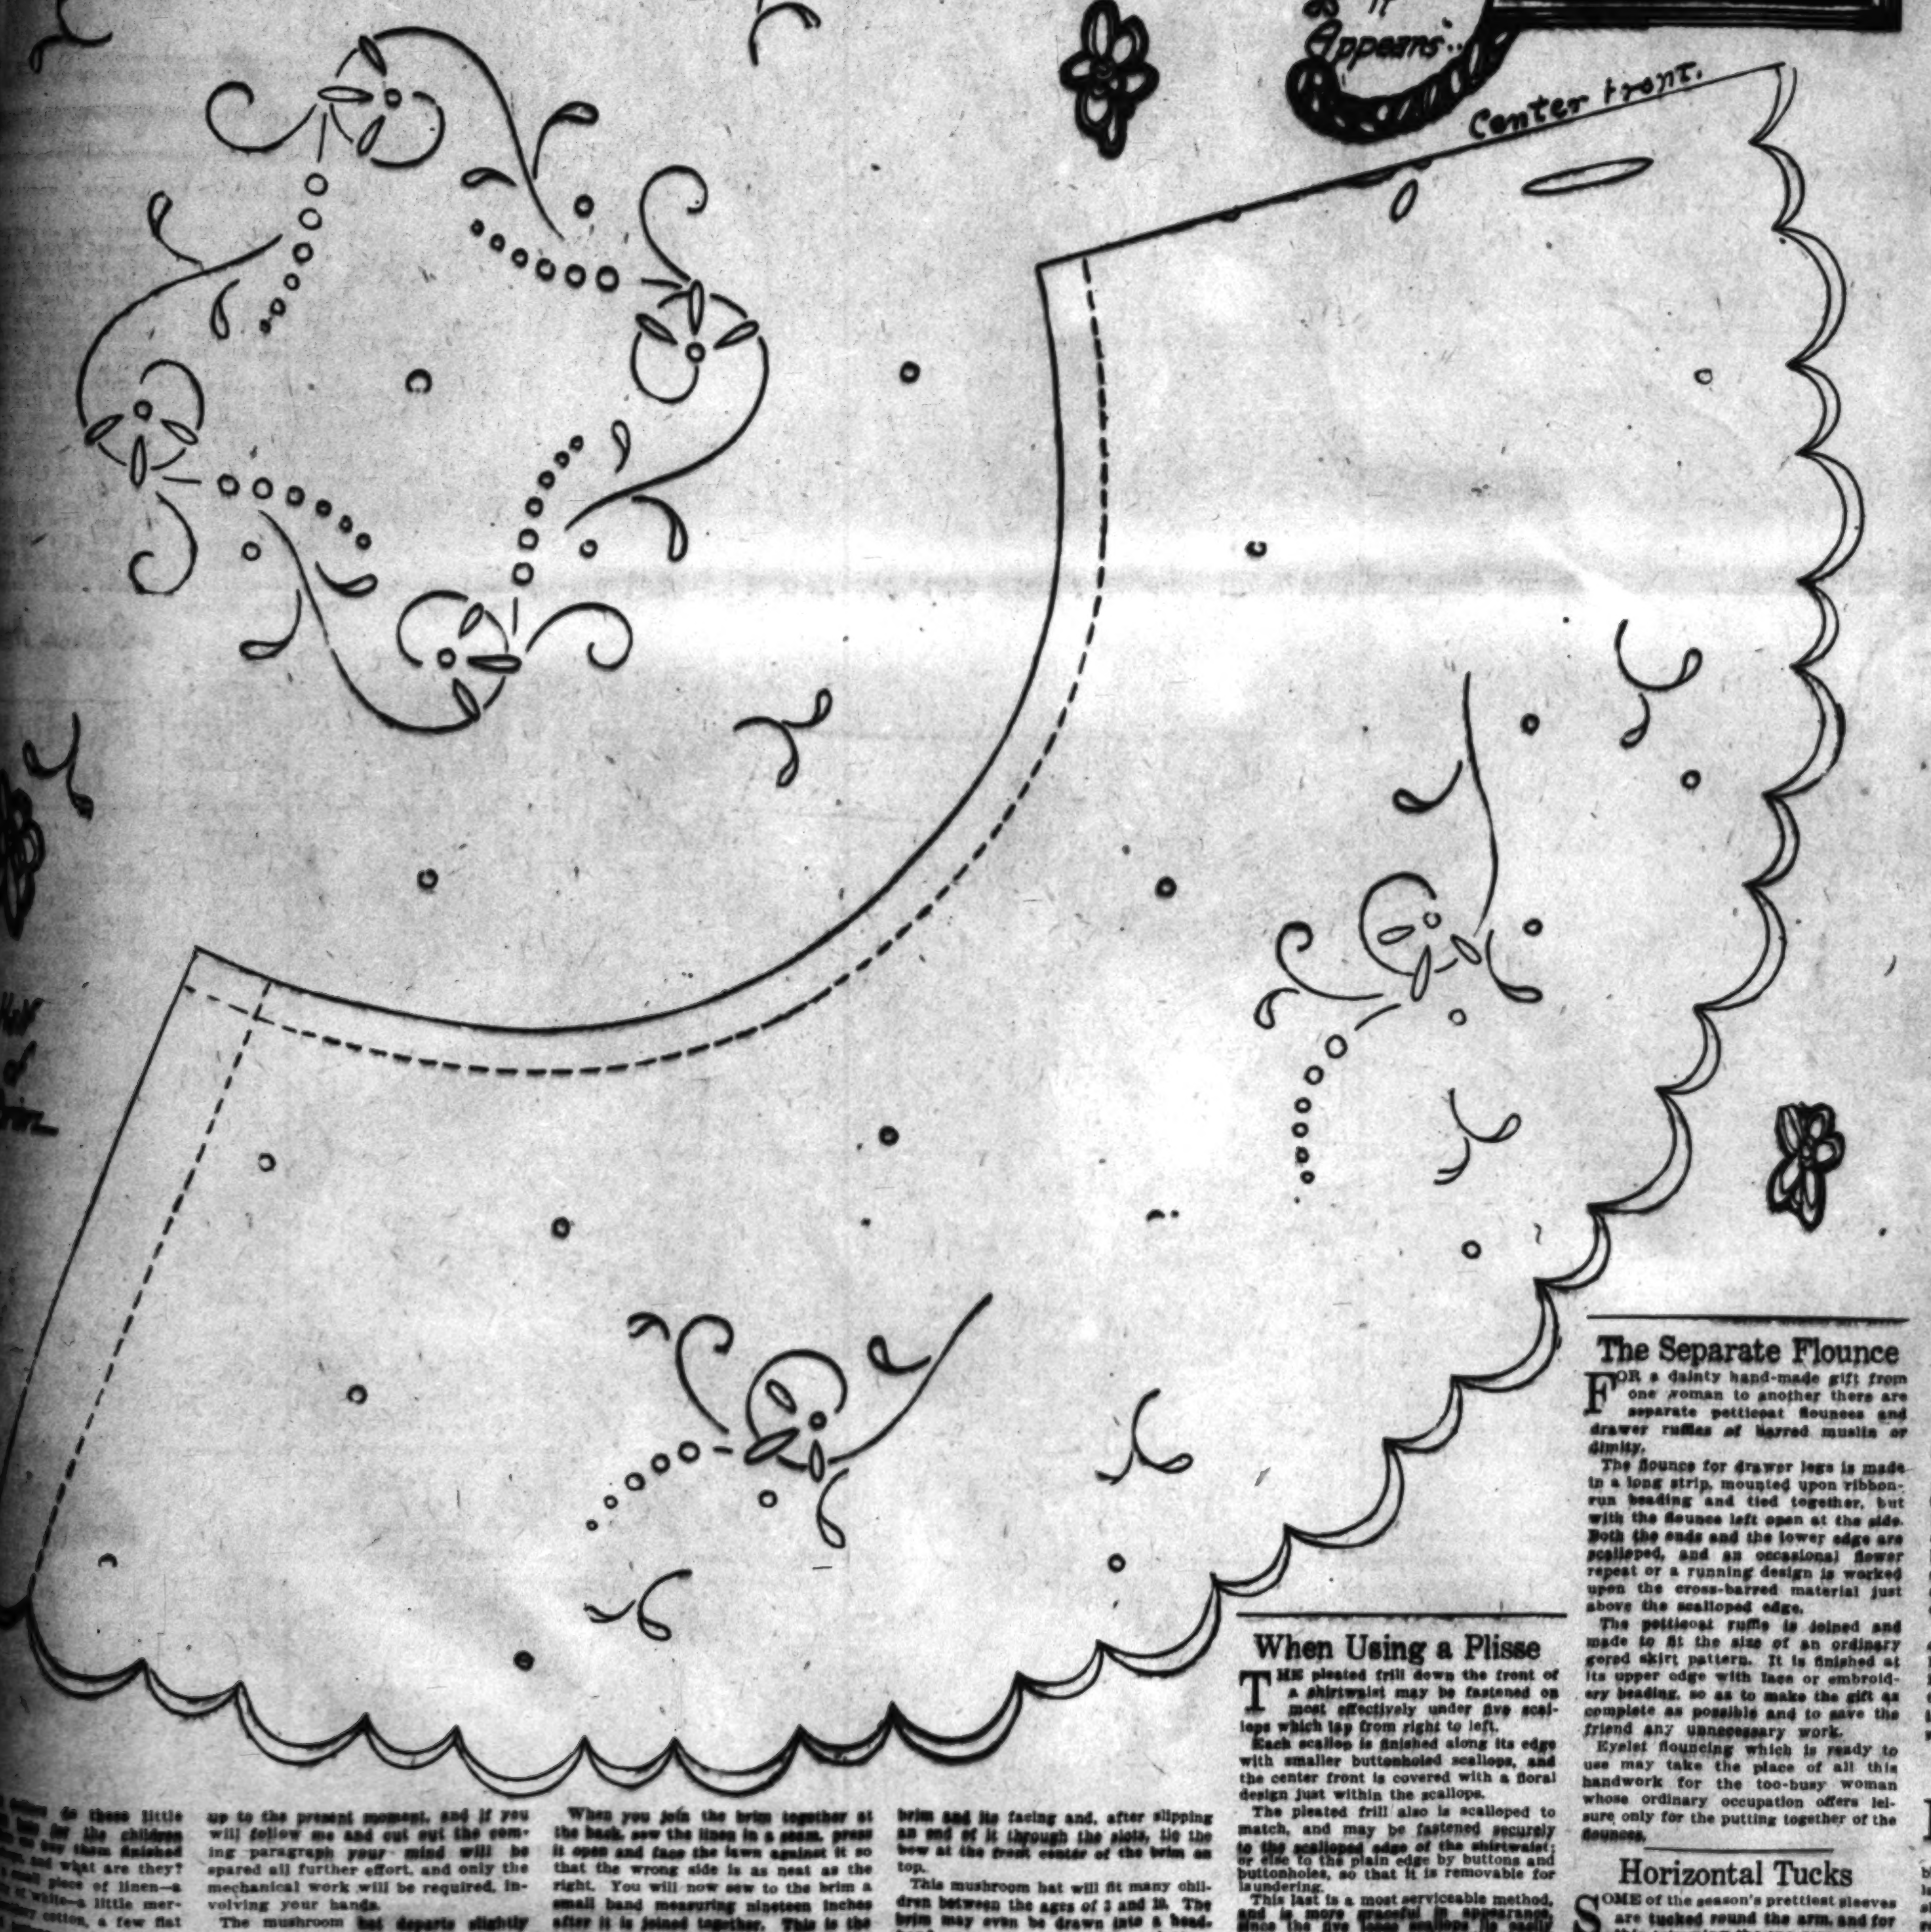
HOW TO EMBROIDER A CHILD'S HAT



The Hat as it Appears

Designed By E. J. BUCKMAN



[illegible] do these little [illegible] for the children [illegible] buy them finished [illegible] and what are they? [illegible] small piece of linen—a [illegible] of white—a little mer- [illegible] cotton, a few flat [illegible], a hat elastic [illegible] of ribbon. The [illegible] will stay as near [illegible] the quality of your [illegible].

[illegible] course, something [illegible] embroiderers are [illegible] work, so I speak to [illegible] talks, and you [illegible] effects in the [illegible] child if you are [illegible] time upon [illegible] accessories. [illegible], a real [illegible], and alto- [illegible] thought [illegible] for you up to the present moment, and if you will follow me and cut out the coming paragraph your mind will be spared all further effort, and only the mechanical work will be required, involving your hands.

The mushroom hat departs slightly from the lingerie hat of other years, and requires, therefore, a somewhat different treatment. I am showing you half of the brim and the central decoration for the top of the crown, which is to be cut exactly sixteen inches in diameter.

Embroider all of the small circles and the flower centers as eyelets, the stems in outline stitch and the petals and leaves solid. The crown is to be a single thickness; the brim should be lined with a layer of white lawn, unless your linen is very heavy. If you decide to face the brim, embroider first your pattern and then baste together the brim and facing and work the buttonholed edge through both materials.

When you join the brim together at the back, sew the linen in a seam, press it open and face the lawn against it so that the wrong side is as neat as the right. You will now sew to the brim a small band measuring nineteen inches after it is joined together. This is the headband, to which is fastened the elastic, and to the outer side of which are sewed sixteen buttons. To these the crown is buttoned.

Around your 16-inch disk or crown sew a tiny flat facing of lawn only a quarter of an inch wide when finished, and place sixteen small buttonholes at regular intervals just inside of this facing to button crown to brim.

Lay some four or five inch ribbon of dainty pink or blue—a satin taffeta quality—round the crown, beginning with the center of your ribbon at the front. Carry it backward over the buttons and buttonholes, cross it at the back, bring it front again to the two long slots which you have buttonholed through the brim and its facing and, after slipping an end of it through the slots, tie the bow at the front center of the brim on top.

This mushroom hat will fit many children between the ages of 3 and 10. The brim may even be drawn into a headband measuring less than nineteen inches. I know of no better-shaped lingerie hat and of none more simply laundered nor more easily made, considering the final result.

Shirtwaist Fastenings

THREE huge scallops lapping from right to left form the front fastening of a French pique shirtwaist. After being most carefully faced with bias sheer linen or lawn, these shallow scallops are braided in parallel rows with white star braid.

The garment is buttoned in the center of each scallop with a tailor's buttonhole and a linen-covered button braided in circular lines.

When Using a Plisse

THE pleated frill down the front of a shirtwaist may be fastened on most effectively under five scallops which lap from right to left.

Each scallop is finished along its edge with smaller buttonholed scallops, and the center front is covered with a floral design just within the scallops.

The pleated frill also is scalloped to match, and may be fastened securely to the scalloped edge of the shirtwaist; or else to the plain edge by buttons and buttonholes, so that it is removable for laundering.

This last is a most serviceable method, and is more graceful in appearance, since the five long scallops lie easily upon the plisse and are less stiff than if they were sewed fast.

Seaweed Designs

CENTERPIECES and sofa pillows stamped with a seashell or a seaweed design are now worked out to a natural effect in a combination of linen or silk floss with coronation braid. The braid chosen is that having a very long heavy portion in its weave, and these long beadlike sections are so placed in the sewing that they run back and forth just within the edge of the shell to form the corrugations.

The outer or extreme edge is done in long-and-short embroidery in either green or pink.

The Separate Flounce

FOR a dainty hand-made gift from one woman to another there are separate petticoat flounces and drawer ruffles of barred muslin or dimity.

The flounce for drawer legs is made in a long strip, mounted upon ribbon-run beading and tied together, but with the flounce left open at the side. Both the ends and the lower edge are scalloped, and an occasional flower repeat or a running design is worked upon the cross-barred material just above the scalloped edge.

The petticoat ruffle is joined and made to fit the size of an ordinary gored skirt pattern. It is finished at its upper edge with lace or embroidery beading, so as to make the gift as complete as possible and to save the friend any unnecessary work.

Eyelet flouncing which is ready to use may take the place of all this handwork for the too-busy woman whose ordinary occupation offers leisure only for the putting together of the flounces.

Horizontal Tucks

SOME of the season's prettiest sleeves are tucked round the arm, and for this trimming the one-seam sleeve is advisable. It will immediately be apparent to the constant user of patterns why this pattern will be the only one available for tucking purposes.

Large tucks are alternated with groups of tiny tucks. Wide lace insertion is let in between wide tucks, and on many plainer sleeves a few strips of wide insertion cross the arm above the elbow.

There is danger in continuing these horizontal lines too far down, because an excess of them will lengthen the arm unduly.

Thus tucked, the upper sleeve is frequently stopped and finished at the elbow, and from beneath it is hung, to a skeleton lining, an undersleeve of some delicate fabric in keeping with the gown.

Children's Summer Frocks

COARSE blue linen frocks for v little girls are embroidered v coral-colored linen, silk or co floss, and thus repeat the strong or tal coloring of older garments.

In many childish models embroi takes on the background color w just a dash, here and there, stronger coloring or contrasting h

Eyelet work is much in evidence white linens; for small children work is done daintily on handkerc linen, while for older girls it re bles the coarseness of Syrian w and is done by punching large h and finishing their edges with co white cotton.

Large coin spots are embroidered solid padded work on colored li frocks for little girls of 4, and o frocks again show a few single conv tional roses. For instance, rose broidery is done in pink and green o gray linen.

The simplest design for a child's d is often made altogether acceptable the embroidering of its belt and c and a tiny patch on the front brea just beneath the lowered neck line.

COUCH STITCH

Many little frocks show just a t border of handwork in couch stitch u cotton voile. For this work m strands of soft untwisted cotton laid together and held down by a gle strand of more firm twisted cott String is used in the same way. colored linen floss as well as Ro floss, which is silk, give richness many an otherwise plain dress of he cotton or linen.

The black and white frock in th year size is not a mistake when broidered with gray cotton and w with bright scarlet or tapestry blue bons.

Choice and most appropriate co enter into all the smaller childr clothes, when once they have pa the all-white limit.

Yellow linens are coarsely ha worked in golden brown or black for red-haired child or the black-hai and when they can be worn are m effective.

The gray linens for children ar new note, and embroider well with d er gray and a little coral sprinkled

It is not always necessary to in upon bright colors in each dress for little child, because the hair, eyes general coloring may be of such cl ness that they will be made even p tier by the use of a plain tone in garment. The bright note on the ha the gorgeous spot made by the h bow may be the one needed touch enhance the beauty of the child and gown.

ABOUT COATS

Coats of linen, pique, cotton bedf or cloth often are more effective w made of a dull tone and enlivened the gayest collar and cuffs.

There is ample opportunity on linen coat for bold and dashy e broidery in long Japanese stitc of a contrasting color.

Cross-stitching is in good repute now for the little folks as well as big, and pongee lends itself wonderf well to the work and to childish g ments.

Patterns for this work may be in a small booklet, including runn yings and large motifs. Many ti the single motif may only be found part of a set pattern or corner, when separated will be ideal for front of a yoke, for each shoulder or use at intervals on the skirt.

A very little work, be it remember on the very little child is in bet taste than great patches of it; but do grudge that little if you would get best effect on the inexpensive frock.

A Home-Made Flowe

HERE is pretty work for the lo of fine stitches, not embroide but ordinary sewing of the fan work type.

The large velvet flower for the side the new straw hat is now made round cabochon lines.

Cut out about five petals, rose-sha petals preferably, suggestive of the w open briar rose, but very much larg Cut them from that darkest shade blue velvet known as corbeau bl Before forming them into a rose (j as you would make up a paper flow bind each petal with bias white sa cut one and one-half inches wide, sew against the right side by hand, turn over and faced against the wrong sid

When this rose is supplied with a p of dark blue satin as a center, on whi has been worked some yellow Fren knots with embroidery silks, it m take its place without shame upon t large leghorn hat, which will requ very little other decoration.

Your Instep

INSTEAD of a lengthy embroideri process on the stocking instep, la is substituted as an insert.

This work is usually done on t black or the white stocking, and t lace chosen is let in in a diamon shaped piece—a very elongated and na row diamond.

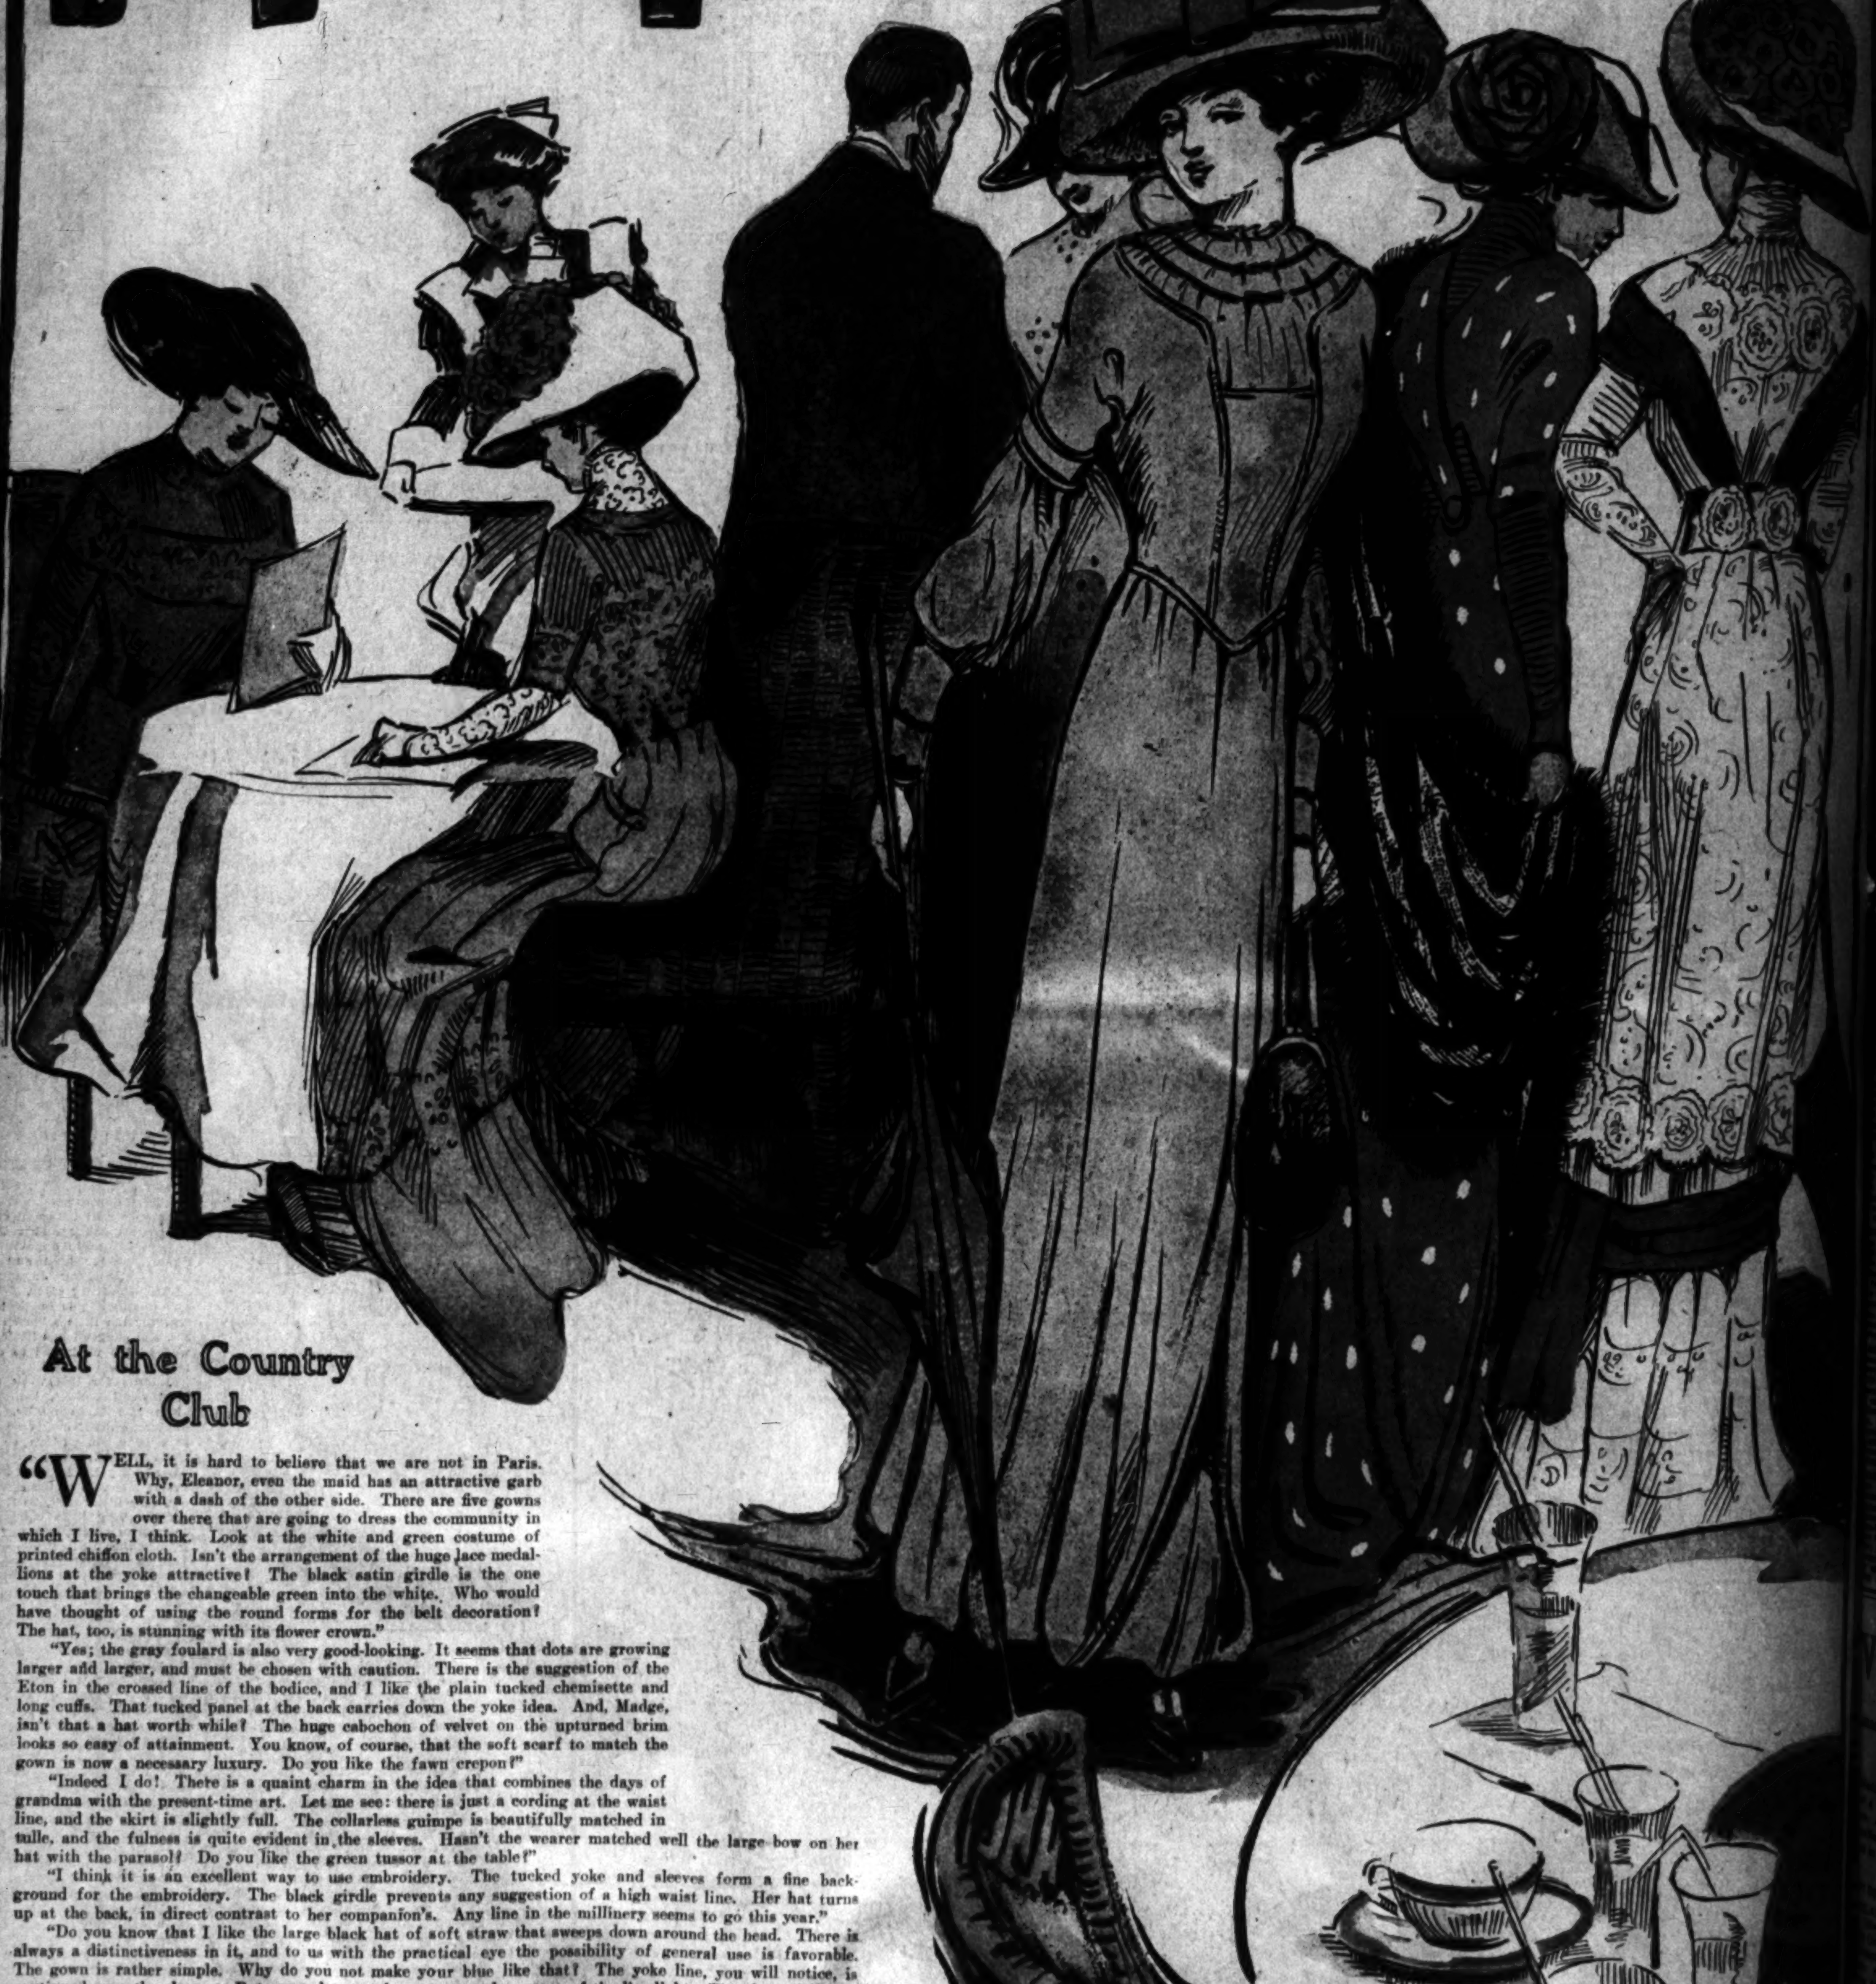
The long strip of insertion, or a over lace, is basted upon the inst just where it will show above the sli per. A diamond shape is then outlin with white thread, and over this worked a solid band of over-and-ov stitch in floss to match the stockin and about an eighth of an inch wide

This done, the remaining flaps of th lace, outside of the diamond, are c away and then the stocking is turne and that part of it beneath the dia mond of lace is clipped carefully out

If your work is well done, stockin and lace will not pull apart.

This is a lacy relief from the regula tion embroidery and will prove beaut ful for your friend, the June bride.

The Smartest Fashions of Well-Dressed Folk



At the Country Club

"WELL, it is hard to believe that we are not in Paris. Why, Eleanor, even the maid has an attractive garb with a dash of the other side. There are five gowns over there that are going to dress the community in which I live, I think. Look at the white and green costume of printed chiffon cloth. Isn't the arrangement of the huge lace medallions at the yoke attractive? The black satin girdle is the one touch that brings the changeable green into the white. Who would have thought of using the round forms for the belt decoration? The hat, too, is stunning with its flower crown."

"Yes; the gray foulard is also very good-looking. It seems that dots are growing larger and larger, and must be chosen with caution. There is the suggestion of the Eton in the crossed line of the bodice, and I like the plain tucked chemisette and long cuffs. That tucked panel at the back carries down the yoke idea. And, Madge, isn't that a hat worth while? The huge cabochon of velvet on the upturned brim looks so easy of attainment. You know, of course, that the soft scarf to match the gown is now a necessary luxury. Do you like the fawn crepon?"

"Indeed I do! There is a quaint charm in the idea that combines the days of grandma with the present-time art. Let me see: there is just a cording at the waist line, and the skirt is slightly full. The collarless guimpe is beautifully matched in tulle, and the fulness is quite evident in the sleeves. Hasn't the wearer matched well the large bow on her hat with the parasol? Do you like the green tussor at the table?"

"I think it is an excellent way to use embroidery. The tucked yoke and sleeves form a fine background for the embroidery. The black girdle prevents any suggestion of a high waist line. Her hat turns up at the back, in direct contrast to her companion's. Any line in the millinery seems to go this year."

"Do you know that I like the large black hat of soft straw that sweeps down around the head. There is always a distinctiveness in it, and to us with the practical eye the possibility of general use is favorable. The gown is rather simple. Why do you not make your blue like that? The yoke line, you will notice, is continued over the sleeves. But come, let us take unto ourselves some of the limelight. They have delicious sandwiches here and, besides, there is your brother-in-law inviting us to a table."
